Of general iudgement is more plainly prophesied, 1. Reg. 2. That our Lord shal iudge the ends of the earth, not that Dauid, nor Salomon, but Christ should raigne in his militant Church, euen to the ends of the earth, and in fine iudge the whole world. The same is confirmed Psal. 49. God wil come manifestly, our God, and he wil not keepe silence. Fire shal burne forth in his sight. Psal. 95. He shal iudge the round world in equitie, and the peoples in his truth. Psal 96. Fire shal goe before him, and shal inflame his enemies round about. Againe, the same royal Prophet (Psal. 48.) describeth the future and eternal state of the damned saying: as sheep (creatures vnable to helpe themselues) they are put in hel, death shal feed vpon them. Of the blessed life addeth: And the iust shal rule ouer them in the morning, that is, in the Resurrection, and Psal. 149. The Saints shal reioyce in glorie, they shal be ioyful in their beds (in eternal rest.) The exaltations (prayes) of God in their throate, and two edged swords in their hands: to doe reuenge in the nations, punishments among the peoples. To bind their Kings in fetters, and their nobles in yron manicles. That they may doe in them the iudgement that is written: This glorie is to al his Saints. And much greater glorie belongeth to Saints: for this is but accidental, vntered according to vulgar capacitee. The essential and perfect glorie, which no eye hath seen, nor care hath heard, nor hart can conceiue, consisteth in seeing God. Among accidental glorious gifts, the foure dowries of glorified bodies are especially prefigured: Impassibilitie by the wood Setim, wherof the Arke was made (Exod. 25.) Agilitie and Penetrabilitie in some sort by Dauids quicknes against Goliath, and his conueying of himself into Sauls campe and forth againe (1. Reg. 17. & 26.) but a more plaine figure of Claritie was in Moyses face (Exod. 34.) which by his conuersation with God, became more glorious then mortal eyes were able to behold, glistening and shining as most splendent light through cristal, described as if his skinne had been a cleere horne, appearing and spreearing beames like the sunne, proceeding from the beautie of his soule, so that none of al the people could looke directly vpon him, except he covered his face.

Thus much concerning particular points of faith and religion. And it is no lesse eident, that the vniuersal Church and Citie of God stil continued: yea was more visible and conspicuous to the whole world then before. First, by Gods marvelous protection therof in the desert, and famous victories and conquests of the land of Chanaan. And by the excellent lawes giuen to this people, which al nations admired, and none had the like. Deut. 4. For in this fourth age, besides other lawes and precepts, the spiritual and temporal States were more distinguished, and the Ecclesiastical Hierarchie especially disposed in subordination of one supreme head, with inferiour gouerners, eue in their place and office, for edification of the whole bodie. For Moyses beeing chief ruler and conductour of the Israelites out of Egypt, receiued and deliuered to them the written Law (Exod. 20.) And for obseruation and conseruation therof by Gods expresse appointment (Leuit. 8.) consecrated Aaron the ordinarie High Priest, himself remayning stil extraordinarie Superiour, also aboue Aaron. And after Aaron be consecrated in like manner his sonne Eleazar high Priest, and successour to his father (Num. 20.) To whom succeeded others in this order (1. Paralip. 6.) Phinees, Abisue, Bocci, Ozi, Zacharias, (otherwise 1. Reg. 1. called Heli) Meraioth, Amarias (otherwise Achimelec, whom Saul slew, 1. Reg. 22.) Achitob (otherwise Abiathar, who was deposed, 3. Reg. 2.) and Sadoc, in whose time the Temple was founded.

To these were adioyned other Priests, also consecrated in a praescript forme (Leuit. 8.) and Leuites ordayned to asst in lower and distinct offices (Num. 3 & 4.) In the first degree the Caathites, whose office was to carrie the Sanctuarie, and vessel therof wrapped vp by the Priests, but were forbid in paine of death, to touch them, or to see them. In the second degree the Gersonites; who carried the cortines and couers of the Tabernacle, and vessel of the Altar. In the third degree the Merarites; who carried the bordes, barres, and pillers, with their feete, pinnes, cordes, and other implements of the tabernacle; euerie one according to their office and burdens, Num. 4. v. vit.

But in the temporal state and government Iosue of the tribe of Ephraim succeeded to Moyse (Num. 27. Deut. 3. & 34.) And after Iosue were diuers interruptions of succession, with gouerners of diuers tribes, and change of gouernment, from Dukes to Iudges, and from Iudges to Kings. For after Iosues death the people being sore afflicted by inuasions of Infidels, God raised certaine special men, with title of Iudges to deliuer and saue them. First Othoniel of the tribe of Iuda; then Aod of Benjamin; after him Samgar (the Scripture not signifying of what tribe) then Barach with Debora of Ephraim; Gedcon of Manasses; Abimelech, his base sonne, an vsurper; Thola of Issachar; Iair, and Iephth of Manasses; Abesan of Iuda; Aialon of Zibulon; Abdon of Ephraim; Sampson of Dan; and Heli, who was also high Priest of Aarons stocke, otherwise called Zaraias (1. Paralip. 6.) and Samuel also of the tribe of Lewi a Prophet. In his time the people demanding and vrging to haue a King, Saul of the tribe of Benjamin was annointed. 1. Reg. 10. But for transgreding Gods commandments, especially for exercising spiritual suuction without warrant (1. Reg. 13.) and not destroying idolaters (1. Reg. 15.) was deposed, and Dauid of the tribe of Iuda was annointed King, who after manie great troubles possessed the whole Kingdome, and died in peace, leauing his sonne Salomon inuctea and annointed King in his throne.

The Church being thus established in distinct states and orders, albeit there were manie imperfections in al sortes of persons, and great sinnes committed, yet God so punished offenders, and chastised the whole people, that he sit conserued, the greatest, or chiefe part, in true faith and religion. For whiles they were in the desert, they murmured very often against God, and his Ministers their Superiours. (Exod. 17. Num. 11. 14. 20. 21.) Manie fel to idolatrye (Exod. 32.) Aaron not free from cooperating in the peoples sinne. Nadab and Abiu Aarons sonnes, and consecrated Priests, offered strange fire (Leuit. 10.) Core Dathan and Abiron, with their complices made a great schisme (Num. 16.) Manie committed carnal fornication with Infidels; and were therby drawen to spiritual (Num. 25.) Of which and other like sinnes the Psalmist speaketh (Psal. 94.) exhorting his people not to harden their harts, as in the desert their fathers had tempted God. Fourtie yeares was I offended (sayth God) with that generation and sayd: They alwayes erre in hart. And therefore he swate in his Againe, the people falling to idolatrie and other finnes, were afflicted and sore pressed by sorraine enemies, but repenting were deliuered and saued by certain captaiues called Iudges and * Saviours: as appeareth in the book of Iudges. They had also tribulations by some of their owne nation, for among the Iudges one (called Abimelec) was a tyrannical vsurper (Iudic. 9.) Saul their first King falling from God vniustly persecuted Dauid (1. Reg. 18. &c.) Ambitious Absolom rebelled against the King his father (2. Reg. 15.) and Saba of the tribe of Benjamin raised an other rebellion (2. Reg. 20.) Likewise Adonias, assisted by Abiathar the high Priest, and by Ioab general of the armie, pretended to reigne his father Dauid yet liuing, to prevent Salomon of the Kingdom (3. Reg. 1.) So God both shewed his iustice, in suffering such afflictions to happen, for punishment of sinne: and his mercie, in sauing his Church from ruine.

Moreover, for preseruation of the Church, there were diuers diuine Ordinances provided by the Law. For first al were strictly commanded, not to communicate with Infidels in their idolatrie (Ex. 23.) nor with Schismatickes in their schisme (Nu. 16.) but to destroy al Idolaters (Num. 33.) and thumie al nouelties in religion, as a sure marke of idolatrie, or false doctrine (Deut. 13.) Further to conserue vnitie there was but one Tabernacle, and one Altar for sacrifice, in the whole people of Israel. Whereupon when the two tribes and halfe, on the other side Iordan, had made a seueral altar, al the tribes that dwelt in Chanaan, suspecting it was for sacrifice, sent presently to admonish them, and prepared to make warre against them, except they destroyed their new altar, but being aduertised that it was only an altar of monument, and not for sacrifice, were therewith satisfied (Iosue. 22.) Afterwards the tribe of Dan, setting vp idolatrie, and the other tribes not correcting it, they were al punished. Which happened by occasion of an other enormous sinne, committed and not corrected in the tribe of Benjamin. For the other eleuen tribes making warre against them for this iust cause, yea by Gods direction, and warrant, yet had the worse, sustenting great slaughter of men in two conflictes; and in the third Benjamin was almost destroyed. Iudic. 20.

Finally, for decision of al controuersies and ending of strife, the High Priest was expresly ordained supreme Iudge (Deut. 17.) And al were commanded in paine of death to submitte their opinions, and obey his sentence: with promise of Gods assistance, wherby his definitions were certaine and infallible. For in consultations of doubts and difficult cases, God inspired him with doctrine of veritie (Exod. 28. 29. Leuit. 8. Num. 3. 7. 9. 1. Reg. 23. 30.) Which iudgement seate. Christ admonished the Iewes to repayre vnto and follow (Math. 23.) though the Iudges themselves did not the things which they taught. In so much that Caiphaz, through this assistance of Gods spirite, being otherwise a wicked man, yet pronounced the truth, That one must die for the people. Which therefore S. Iohn the Euangelist ascribeth to his Chayre and office, because he was High Priest that yeare. Ioan. 11.

Seeing then Gods providence and continual assistance was so cleer, and assured in the Church of the old Testament, much more is the Church of Christ builded vpon a sure rocke, assured of his perpetual assistance, & alwayes preferued from erring in Faith, or in general practise of Religion. And that by Gods like assured ordinance of one supreme head and Iudge, S. Peter, and his Successour: for whom our Saviour prayed, that his faith should not faile. Further commanding him, that he should confirme his brethren. Al which we see is performed in the successours of S. Peter, whereas the successours of the other Apostles are all failed long since. The same most assured stabilitie of the Church of Christ, is further confirmed by the whole Law and Prophets. Namely, Deut. 32. and 33. where Moyses foretelles more power and grace in the Church, to be collected in the Gentiles of all nations, then euer was in that of the Israelites or Iewes. Likewise, 1. Reg. 2. The same was both prefigured and prophecied by holie Anna: The hungrie (those that desire Gods grace and glorie) are filled: vntil the barren woman (the Church of the Gentiles) bare verie manie: and she that had manie children was weakned. Shewing that the Church of the Iewes had manie, vntil the multitude of Gentiles much more abounded. Wherefore the Psalmist inuiceth all nations to praise God, saying; Psal. 116. Praise our Lord al ye Gentiles: praise him al ye peoples. Also 2. Reg. 7. God promised Dauid, saying: Thy Kingdome for euer before thy face, and thy throne shall be firme continually which was not verified in Dauids temporal Kingdome. For it was quickly diuided, after Salomons death, and a smal part left to his sonne Roboam. And after the captiuitie in Babilon, his seed had onlie title and right without profession of royal throne. Againe 2. Reg. 22. The same royal Propbet in his Canticle of thankes-giuing, and last propheticall wordes (chap. 23.) much preferreth the spiritual Kingdome of Christ, before the earthlie Kingdome of the Iewes. But most specially and plainly in the Psalmes: Psal. 2. Why did the Gentiles rage, and peoples meditate vaine things? Signifying that the furie of all aduersaries rageth in vaine, against Christ and his Church. For I am appointed, by him (sayth Christ of his Father) King ouer Sion, his holie hill. I wil giue thee (sayth God to his Sonne) the Gentiles for thine inheritance, and thy possession the ends of the earth. Psal. 17. A people which I knew not, hath serued me. Psal. 44. The Queen (the Church) stood on thy right hand in golden rayment, compassed with varietie, of vertues, and diuers sortes of holie professions. Psal. 47. Mount Sion is founded with the exultation of the whole earth. For euer and euer he (Christ) shall rule vs euermore. Psal. 86. Glorious things are sayd of thee, o citie of God. But omitting innumerable other such texts, the 88. Psalm conteyneth a large prophetic of Christ and his Church, where S. Augustin giueth vs this briefe admonition: Christiani estis, Christum agnoscite. You are Christians, agnize Christ. I wil put (sayth God) his hand in the sea, Christs dominion in the Gentiles, and his right hand in the riuers; all sortes shall serue him. He shall be high aboue the Kings of the earth. Of the Church he addeth: I wil put his seed for euer and euer, and his throne as the dayes of heauen. Neither doe sinnes frustrate this promise of God, therefore it foloweth: But if his children that forsake my law: and wil not walke in my iudgements: If they shall profane my iustices, and not keep my commandements; What then, wil Christ for al this abandon his Church, as he did the old Synagogue, of which God sayth: Deut. 32. They haue prouoked me in that which was no God: and I wil prouoke them, in that which is no people? Not so. How then? I wil visite, sayth our Lord, their iniquities with a rodde, and their sinnes with stripes. But my mercie I wil not take away from him. This is a strong Firmament (sayth S. Augustin) God promisseth, yea sweareth, and wil noelie to Dauid, that his seed shal continue for euer. His throne as the Sunne in Gods light, and the Moone perfected for euer. So this great Doctour sheweth by holie Scriptures against the Donatistes, and in them against Protestants, that the militant Church of Christ hath been stil, and shal be visible, during this transitorie world.

CHAP. VII.

The beginning of the fifth age.

Salomons palace, 2. his house in the Forrest, 8. and the Queenes house is built. 13. Two great brasen pillers: 23. a sea (or lauer) 27. ten brasen feete: 38. ten lesse lauatories, and other vessels, and implements pertaining to the Temple, adorned with images of Angels, and other creatures, are further described.

AND his owne house Salomon built in thirteene yeares, and brought it to perfection. 2. He built also the house of the forest of Libanus of an hundred cubites in length, & fiftie cubites in bredth, and thirtie cubites in height: and foure score galleries between pillers of ceder: for he had cut ceder trees into pillers. 3. And he decked the whole vault with bordes of ceder, which was held vp with fise & fourtie pillers. And one order had fifteen pillers, 4. set one against another, 5. and looked one ouer against another, with equal space between the pillers, & ouer the pillers square beames in al equal. 6. And the porch of the pillers he made of fiftie cubits in length, and thirtie cubits in bredth: and an other porch before the greater porch: and pillers, and toppes vpon the pillers. 7. He made also the porch of the throne, wherein the seate of iudgement is; and couered it with ceder wood from the pauement vnto the top. 8. And the litle house, where they sate in iudgement, was in the middes of the porch of like worke. He made also a house for the daughter of Pharao (which Salomon had taken to wife) of such worke, as also this porch. 9. Al of chosen stones, which were sawed by a certain rule and measure both within and without: from the fun-

darion to the top of the wals, and without vnto the greater court. 10. And the foundations of chosen stones, great stones of ten or eight cubits. 11. And about there were hewed chosen stones of equal measure, and in like manner of cedre. 12. And the greater court round with three rewes of hewed stones, and one rew of planed cedar, moreouer also in the inner court of the house of our Lord, and in the porch of the house. 13. King Salomon also sent, and tooke Hiram from Tyre, 14. the sonne of a widow woman of the tribe of Nepthali, his father a Tyrian, an artificer in brasse, and ful of wisdom, and intelligence, and skil to make al worke of brasse. Who when he was come to King Salomon, made al his worke. 15. And he cast two brasen pillers, of eightene cubits in height one piller: and a line of twelue cubits compassed both pillers. 16. He made also two litle heads, which should be put vpon the heads of the pillers, cast of brasse: five cubits high one litle head, and five cubits the other litle head: 17. and as it were in manner of a nette, & of cheynes knit one to the other with maruelous worke. Both litle heads of the pillers were cast: seven rewes of litle nettes in one litle head, & seven litle nettes in the other litle head. 18. And finished the pillers, and two rewes round about euerie nette, that they might couer the litle heads, which were ouer the top of the pomegranates: in like manner did he also to the second litle head. 19. And the litle heads, that were vpon the heads of the pillers, were made as it were with lillie worke, in the porch, of foure cubites. 20. And againe other litle heads in the top of the pillers about, according to the measure of the piller against the litle nets: and of the pomegranates were two hundred rewes round about the second litle head. 21. And he set two pillers in the porch of the temple: & when he had erected the piller on the right hand, he called the name therof * Iachin: in like maner he erected the second piller, & called the name therof * Booz. 22. And vpon the heads of the pillers he put a worke in manner of a lillie: and the worke of the pillers was perfected. 23. He made also (a) a sea of founders worke, of ten cubites from brimme to brimme, round in compasse, the height therof was of five cubits, and a corde of thirtie cubits did compasse it round about. 24. And the grauing vnder the brimme compassed it, ten cubites going about the lauatorie: there were two rewes of chamfered forowed grauings cast. 25. And it stood vpon twelue oxen, of which three looked to the North, and three to the West, and three to the South, and three to the East, and the sea was ouer them: whose hinder parts were al hid inward. 26. And the thickenes of the lauatorie was of three ounces: and the brimme therof as it were the brimme of a chalice, and the leafe of crisped lillie: it containd two thousand (b) bates. 27. And he made ten brasen feet, of foure cubits in length euerie foote, and foure cubits in bredth, and three cubits in height. 28. And the verie worke it selfe of the feete, was entergrauen: and entergrauings between the ioyntures. 29. And between the litle crownes and the playts, lions, and oxen, and Cherubs: and in the ioyntures likewise aboue: and vnder the lions & oxen as it were bands of brasse hanging downe. 30. And foure wheeles at euerie foote, and axeltrees of brasse: and at foure sides as it were litle shoulders vnder the lauatorie cast, looking one against an other. 31. The mouth also of the lauatorie was inward in the top of the head: and that which appeared outward, was of one cubite al round, and together it had one cubite and a halfe: and in the corners of the pillers were diuers engrauiings: and the middle enterpillers square not round. 32. The foure wheeles also which were at the foure corners of a foote, ioyned one to an other vnder the foot: one wheele had in height a cubite and a halfe. 33. And they were such wheeles as are accustomed to be made in a chariot: and their axeltrees and spokes, and strakes, and naues, al cast. 34. For those foure litle shoulders also at euerie corner of one foote, were cast out of the foote and ioyned together. 35. And in the top of the foote was a certayne roundnes of halfe a cubite, so wrought, that the lauatorie might be put thereon, hauing the engrauiings therof, and diuerse caruiings of it-self. 36. He graued also in those seelings, which were of brasse, and in the corners, cherubs, and lions, and palmetrees, as it were in the similitude of a man standing, that they seemed not to be engrauen, but put to round about. 37. After this manner made he ten feet, of one casting and measure, and like grauing. 38. He made also ten lauatories of Brasse: one lauatorie conteyned fourtie bates, and it was of foure cubits: also at euerie foot, that is ten, he put so manie lauatories. 39. And he set the ten feet, siue on the right side of the temple, and siue on the left: and the sea he put on the right side of the temple against the East toward the South. 40. Hiram therefore made cauldrons, and shouels, & litle pottes, and perfected al the worke of King Salomon in the temple of our Lord. 41. Two pillers, and two cordes of the litle heads vpon the litle heads of the pillers: and two litle nets, to couer the two cordes, that were ouer the heads of the pillers. 42. And foure hundred pomegranates in the two nets: two reues of pomegranates in euerie net, to couer the cordes of the litle heads, which were vpon the heads of the pillers. 43. And ten feet, and ten lauatories vpon the feet. 44. And one sea, and twelue oxen vnder the sea. 45. And cauldrons, & shouels, and litle pots. Al the vessels that Hiram made to King Salomon in the house of our Lord, were of bright latten. 46. In the champayne countrie of Iordan did the King cast those things in a clay ground, between Sacoth & Sarthan. 47. And Salomon placed al the vessels: but for the exceeding great multitude the brasse could not be weighed. 48. And Salomon made al the vessels in the house of our Lord: an altar of gold, and a table, wherupon the loaves of proposition should be put, of gold: 49. and candlestickes of gold, siue on the right hand, and siue on the left against the oracle, of pure gold: and as it were litle floures, and lamps aboue of gold: and golden snuffers, 50. and water pots, and fleshhooks, and phials, and morters, and censars, of moit pure gold: and the hindges of doores of the inner Sanctum Sanctorum, and of the doores of the house of the temple, were of gold. 51. And Salomon perfected al the worke that he did in the house of our Lord, and brought in the things that Dauid his father (a) had sanctified, siluer and gold, and the vessels, and layed them in the treasures of the house of our Lord.

C H A P. VIII.

The arke is brought in, and the temple dedicated. 10. A glorious cloud replenisheth it. 14. Salomon prayeth long to God, 55. blesteth the people, 62. and manie victims are offered in this solenne festiuitie.

HEN were gathered together al the ancients of Israel with the Princes of the tribes, and the heads of the families of the children of Israel to King Salomon into Ierusalem: that they might carrie the Arke of the couenant of our Lord out of the citie of Dauid, that is, out of Sion. 2. And al Israel assembled to King Salomon in the month of Ethanim, on a solenne day, that is the seuenth month. 3. And al the ancients of Israel came, and the Priests tooke the arke, 4. and caried the arke of our Lord, and the tabernacle of couenant, and al the vessels of the Sanctuarie, that were in the tabernacle: and the Priests and the Leuites caried them. 5. And King Salomon, and al the multitude of Israel which was assembled vnto him, went with him before the arke, and they immolated sheep and oxen without estimation and number. 6. And the Priests brought in the arke of the couenant of our Lord into his place, into the oracle of the temple, into Sanctum Sanctorum vnder the wings of the Cherubs. 7. For the Cherubs spred their wings ouer the place of the arke, and couered the arke, and the barres therof aboue. 8. And wheras the barres stood out, and the ends of them appeared without in the Sanctuarie before the oracle, they appeared no farder outward, which also were there vntil this present day. 9. And in the arke there was (a) nothing els but two tables of ston, which Moyfes put in it in Horeb, when our Lord made the couenant with the children of Israel, when they came out of the Land of Ægypt. 10. And it came to passe, when the Priests were gone out of the Sanctuarie, a cloud filled the house of our Lord, 11. and the Priests could not stand and minister for the cloud: for the glorie of our Lord had filled the house of our Lord. 12. Then sayd Salomon: Our Lord sayd that he would dwel in a cloud. 13. Building I haue built a house for thy habitation, thy most firme throne for euer. 14. And the King turned his face, and (b) blessed al the Church of Israel: for al the Church of Israel stood. 15. And

(a) There was no more with in the arke, Deut. 10. but on the out side was the rodde of Aaron, Num. 17. Heb. 9. the golden pot with Manna, Exod. 16. Heb. 9. and the booke of the law repeated by Moyfes, Deut. 31. All princes blest their people and parents their children.

Salomon sayd : Blessed be our Lord the God of Israel, who spake by his mouth to Dauid my father, & in his owne hands hath perfected it, saying: 16. Since the day that I brought my people Israel out of Ægypt, I chose no citie of al the tribes of Israel, that a house might be built, and my name might be there : but I chose Dauid to be ouer my people Israel. 17. And Dauid my father would haue built a house to the name of our Lord the God of Israel : 18. and our Lord sayd to Dauid my father : In that thou hast thought in thy hart to build a house to my name, thou hast done wel, casting this same thing in thy mynd. 19. Neuerthelesse thou shalt not build me a house, but thy sonne, that shal come forth of thy reynes, he shal build a house to my name. 20. Our Lord hath confirmed his word, which he spake : & I stand for Dauid my father, & sitte vpon the throne of Israel, as our Lord hath spoken : and I haue built a house to the name of our Lord the God of Israel. 21. And I haue appoynted there a place for the arke, wherein the couenant of our Lord is, which he made with our fathers, when they came out of the Land of Ægypt. 23. And Salomon stood before the altar of our Lord in the sight of the assemblie of Israel, and extended his hands toward heauen, 23. and sayd : Lord God of Israel, there is no God like to thee in heauen aboue, and vpon the earth beneath : which keepest couenant and mercie with thy seruants, that walke before thee in al their hart. 24. Which hast kept to thy seruant Dauid my father, the things that thou hast spoken to him : by mouth thou didst speake, and with thy hands thou hast accomplished, as this day proueth. 25. Now therefore Lord God of Israel, keep vnto thy seruant Dauid my father the things which thou hast spoken to him, saying: There shal not be taken away of thee a man before me, which sitteth vpon the throne of Israel : (c) yet so if thy children shal keep their way, that they walke before me as thou hast walked in my sight. 26. And now Lord God of Israel, let thy words be established, which thou hast spoken to thy seruant Dauid my father. 27. Is it then to be thought that indeed God dwelleth vpon the earth? for if heauen, and the heauens of heauens can not cōteyne thee, how much more this house, which I haue built? 28. But looke toward the prayer of thy seruant, & to his petitions, o Lord my God : heare the hymne and the prayer, which thy seruant prayeth before thee this day : 29. that thy eies be opened vpon this house night and day: vpon the house, wherof thou saydst: My name shal be there : that thou heare the prayer, which thy seruant prayeth in this place to thee. 30. That thou heare the request of thy seruāt & of thy people Israel, whatsoeuer they shal pray for in this place, & thou shalt heare in the place of thy habitation in heauen : and when thou hast heard, thou shalt be merciful, 31. If a man shal sinne agaynst his neighbour, & shal haue any oath, wherwith he is held fast bound: & shal come because of the oath before thine altar into thy house, 32. thou shalt heare in heauen : and shalt doe, and iudge thy seruants, condemning the impious, and rendring his way vpon his head, and iustifying the iust, and

If thy people Israel shall flye their enemies (because they wil sinne agaynst thee) & doing penance and confessing to thy name, shall come, and pray, & beseech thee in this house; 34. heare in heauen, & forgiue the sinne of thy people Israel, and thou shalt reduce the vnto the land, which thou gauest to their fathers. 35. If the heauen shall be shut, and it rayne not, because of their finnes, and praying in this place, they doe penance to thy name, and shall be conuerted from their finnes through their affliction: 36. heare them in heauen, and forgiue the finnes of thy seruants, and of thy people Israel: and shew them a good way wherein they may walke, and giue rayne vpon thy land, which thou hast giuen to thy people in possession. 27. If famine aryse in the land, or pestilence, or corrupt ayre, or blasting, or locust, or rust, and their enemy afflict them besieging the gates, al plague, al infirmity, 38. al cursing, and banning, that shall chance to any man of thy people Israel: if any man shall know the wound of his hart, and shall spread forth his hands in this house, 39. thou shalt heare in heauen, in the place of thy habitation, and shall be merciful agayne, and shalt so doe that thou giue to euery one according to his wayes, as thou shalt see his hart (for thou onlie knowest the hart of al the children of men) 40. that they feare thee al the dayes, which they liue vpon the face of the land, which thou hast giuen our fathers. 41. Moreouer also the stranger, which is not of thy people Israel, when he shall come from a farre countrie for thy name (for thy great name shall be heard of, and thy strong hand, 42. and thy stretched out arme euery where) when therefore he shall come, and shall pray in this place, 43. thou shalt heare in heauen, in the firmament of thy habitation, & thou shalt doe al things, for the which the stranger shall inuocate thee: that al the peoples of the earth may learne to feare thy name, as thy people Israel, and may proue that thy name is inuocated vpon this house, which I haue built. 44. If thy people shall goe forth to warre agaynst their enemies, by the way, whither soeuer thou shalt send them, they shall pray to thee agaynst the way of the citie, which thou hast chesen, and agaynst the house, which I haue built to thy name, 45. and thou shalt heare in heauen their prayers, and their petitions, and shalt doe iudgement for them. 46. But if they shall sinne to thee (for there is no man which sinneth not) and thou being wrath shalt deliuer them to their enemies, and they shall be led captiue into the land of their enemies farre or neere, 47. and shall doe penance in their (e) hart in the place of captiuitie, and conuerted shall beseech thee in their captiuitie, saying: We haue sinned, we haue done wickedly, we haue dealt impiouly: 48. and shall returne to thee in al their hart, and al their soule, in the land of their enemies, to the which they shall be led captiue: and shall pray to thee agaynst the way of their lād, which thou gauest to their fathers, & of the citie which thou hast chesen, & of the temple which I haue built to thy name: 49. thou shalt heare in heauen, in the firmament of thy throne their prayers, and their petitions, and shalt doe their iudgement for them: 50. and shalt be merciful to thy people, which sinned to thee, and to al their iniquities wherewith they haue transgressed agaynst thee: & thou shalt giue mercie before them that shal haue them captiu. s, that they may haue compassion on them. 51. For they are thy people, and thine inheritance, whom thou hast brought our of the Land of Ægypt, from the middes of the yron furnace. 52. That thy eies be open to the petition of thy seruant, & of thy people Israel, and thou heare them in al things for which they shal inuocate thee. 53. For thou hast separated them to thee for an inheritance from al the peoples of the earth, as thou hast spoken by Moyse thy seruant, when thou didst bring our fathers out of Ægypt, Lord God. 54. And it came to passe, when salomon had accomplished praying to our Lord al this prayer and petition, he rose from the sight of the altar of our Lord: for he had fastened both knees on the ground, and had spred his hands toward heauen. 55. He stood therefore and blessed al the assemblie of Israel with a lowde voyce, saying: 56. Blessed be our Lord, which hath giuen rest to his people Israel, according to al things that he hath spoken: there hath not fayled so much as one word of al the good things, that he spake by Moyse his seruant. 57. Be our Lord God with vs, as he hath been with our fathers, not forsaking, nor reiecting vs. 58. But incline he our harts to him, that we may walke in al his waies, and keep his commandments, and his ceremonies, and iudgements whatsoever he commanded our fathers. 59. And be these my words, wherewith I haue prayed before our Lord, approaching to our Lord God day and night, that he may doe iudgement for his seruant, and for his people Israel day by day: 60. that al the people of the earth may knowe, that our Lord he is God, and there is none other besides him. 61. Let our hart also be perfect with our Lord God, that we walke in his decrees, and keep his commandments, as also this day. 62. Therefore the King, and al Israel with him, did immolate victimes before our Lord. 63. And Salomon killed pacifike holtes, which he immolated to our Lord, of oxen two and twentie thousand, and of sheep an hundred twentie thousand: and they dedicated the temple of our Lord, the King, and the children of Israel. 64. In that day the King sanctified the middes of the court, that was before the houie of our Lord: for he made the holocaust there, and sacrifice, and fat of the pacifikes: because the brasen altar, that was before our Lord, was too litle, and could not take the holocaust, and sacrifice, and fat of the pacifikes. 65. Salomon therefore made in that time a solemne festiuitie, and al Israei with him, a great multitude from the entrance of Emath vnto the Riuer of Ægypt, before our Lord God, seuen daies and seuen daies, that is, fourteen daies. 66. And in the eight day he dismissed the people: Who blessing the King, went into their tabernacles reioycing, and with a ioyful hart for al the good things, that our Lord had done to Dauid his seruant, and to Israel his people.

Our Lord appearing againe to Salomon, 4. admonisheth him and his people to keep the precepts, 6. threatening punishment if they doe not. 10. The King of Tyre receueth twentie cities of Salomon, but liketh them not. 14. Salomon buildeth more cities and townes. 20. Maketh diuers nations tributarie. 24. The Queen repayreth to her house. 25. The King offereth victimes thise euerie yeare. 26. And fetcheth gold from Ophir.

AND it came to passe when Salomon had perfected the building of the house of our Lord, & the Kings house, and al that he wished & would haue done, 2. our Lord appeared to him the second time, as he had appeared to him in Gabzon. 3. And our Lord said to him : I haue heard thy prayer & thy petition which thou hast prayed before me : I haue sanctified this house, which thou hast built, that I might put my name there for euer, and myne eies and my hart shal be there alwaies. 4. Thou also if thou wilt walke before me, as thy father walked, (a) in simplicitie of hart, and in equitie, and wilt doe al things, which I haue commanded thee, and wilt keep my ordinances and my iudgements: 5. I wil set the throne of thy Kingdome ouer Israel for euer, as I haue spoken to Dauid thy father, saying: There shal not be taken away a man of thy stocke from the throne of Israel. 6. But if by reuolting you and your children shal turne away, not folowing me, nor keeping my commandements, and my ceremonies, which I haue proposed to you, but shal goe and worship strange Gods, and adore them: 7. I wil take away Israel from the face of the land, which I haue giuen them, and the temple which I haue sanctified to my name, I wil cast away from my sight, and Israel shal be for a prouerbe, and for a fable to al peoples. 8. And this house shal be for an example: euerie one that shal passe by it, shal wonder, and hisse, and say: Why hath the Lord done thus to this land, and to this house? 9. And they shal answer: Because they haue forsaken the Lord their God, which brought their fathers out of the Land of Ægypt, and haue folowed strange Gods, and adored them, and worshipped them: therefore hath the Lord brought vpon them al this euil. 10. And twentie yeares being complete, after that Salomon had built the two houses, that is, the house of our Lord, and the house of the King, 11. (Hiram the King of Tyre ministring to Salomon ceder trees & firre trees, and gold according to al that he had need) then Salomon (b) gaue to Hiram twentie townes in the Land of Galilee. 12. And Hiram went from Tyre, to see the townes which Salomon had giuen him, and they pleased him not, 13. and he sayd: Are these the cities, which thou hast giuen me, brother? And he called them

This is the summe of the expences, which King Salomon offered to build the house of our Lord, and his owne house, and Meilo, and the wal of Ierusalem, and Hefer, and Mageddo, and Gazer. 16. Pharao the King of Egypt came vp and tooke Gazer, and burnt it with fire: And the Chananite, that dwelt in the citie, he slew, and gaue it for a dowrie to his daughter the wife of Salomon. 17. Salomon therfore built Gazer, and Bethhoron the lower, 18. and Balaath, and Palmira in the Land of the wildernes. 19. And al the villages, that perteyned to him, and were without wal, he fenced, and the cities of the chariots, and the cities of the horsemen, and whatsoever pleased him to build in Ierusalem, and in Libanus, and in al the land of his dominion. 20. Al the people, that was remayning of the Amorrhaites, and Hetheites, and Pherezeites, and Heueites, and Iebu-seites, that are not of the children of Israel: 21. their children, that were remayning in the land, to wit, those whom the children of Israel could not abolish: Salomon made tributaries, vntil this day. 22. But of the children of Israel Salomon appoynted not any man to serue, but they were men of warre, and his seruants, and Princes, and captaynes, and ouerseers of the chariots and horses. 23. And there were Princes ouer al the workes of Salomon, made ouerseers, siue hundred fiftie, which had the people subiect, and commanded ouer their appoynted workes. 24. And the daughter of Pharao went vp out of the citie of Dauid into her house, which Salomon had built her: then did he build Mello. 25. Salomon also offered three tymes euerie yeare holocaustes, and pacifike victimes vpon the altar, which he had built to our Lord, and he burnt incense before our Lord: and the temple was perfected. 26. King Salomon also made a nauie in Asiongaber, which is beside Ailath in the shore of the Redsea in the Land of Idumea. 27. And Hiram sent in that nauie his men, that were mariners & skilful of the sea, with the seruants of Salomon. 28. The Queen of Saba comming to King Salomon, admireth his wisdom, magnificence, and order of government. 10. She giueth and receiueth gifts. 14. Salomon receiueth much gold diuers wayes: 16. maketh golden targets, 18. a magnificent throne, 21. and many golden vessels. 25. Manie bring him presents. 26. He hath manie chariots, horsemen, 27. abundance of siluer. 28. Marchants of diuers Kingdomes sel him horses.

BV T the Queen of (a) Saba also hauing heard the fame of Salomon, in the name of our Lord came to proue him in hard propositions. 2. And entring into Ierusalem with a great trayne, and riches, and camels carying spices, and gold exceeding infinite, and pretious stones, she came to King Salomon, and spake him to all things that she had in her hart. 3. And Salomō interpreted to her al the words, that she proposed: there was not a word, that the King could be ignorant of, and could not answer her. 4. And the Queen of Saba seeing al the wisdom of Salomon, and the house which he had built, 5. and the meates of his table, and the habitations of his seruants, and the orders of them that serued, and their garments, cup-bearers, and the holocausts which he offered in the house of our Lord (b) she had no longer spirit, 6. and she said to the King: The report is true, which I haue heard in my countrie, 7. concerning thy words, and concerning thy wisdom. and I did not belieue them that told me, til my selfe came, and saw with myne eyes, & haue proued that the half hath not been told me: greater is thy wisdom, and thy workes, then the rumour, which I haue heard. 8. Blessed are thy men, and blessed are thy seruants, which stand before thee alwaies, and heare thy wisdom. 9. Be the Lord thy God blessed, whom thou hast pleased, and that hath set thee vpon the throne of Israel, for that the Lord hath loued Israel for euer, and hath appointed thee King, to doe iudgement and iustice. 10. She therefore gaue to the King an hundred and twentie talents of gold, and spices exceeding much, and pretious itones: There was no more brought so much spice, as that which the Queen of Saba gaue to King Salomon. (11. But the nauie also of Hiram, which caried gold out of Ophir, brought from Ophir thynne trees exceeding manie, and pretious itones. 12. And the King made of the thynne trees the porches of the house of our Lord, and of the Kings house, and harps & vials for the singers: there were not such thynne trees brought, nor seen vntil this present daye.) 13. And King

(b) As this Queen had no spirit, when she saw Salomons wisdom, so the Church gathered of gentiles knowing Christs grace, & finding the masters of Euangelical doctrine, casting away the spirit of pride, and laying off al hautincisse of mind, learned to distrust in her self, and to trust in the great mercie of her King. S. Greg. in Psal. 7. peniten. 10. 2.

* A wonderful thing, that a Queene vpon fame of a mans wisdom traueled so farre to heare him speake, and to see his gouernment. but it was Gods inspiration to signifie by this figure, that the Church of Christ should be gathered of the Gentiles in all nations. Salomon gaue to the Queene of Saba al that she would, and asked of him: beside those things, which of himself he offered her for a royal giift. Who returned, and went into her countrie with her seruants. 14. And the weight of the gold, that was brought to Salomon euerie yeare, was of six hundred sixtie six talents of gold: 15. beside that, which the men brought, that were ouer the tributes, and merchants, and al that sold light wares, and al the Kings of Arabia, and the Dukes of the land. 16. Salomon also made two hundred shields of most pure gold, six hundred sicles of gold did he allow for the plates of one shield. 17. And three hundred targets of tried gold: and three hundred pounds of gold garnished one target: and the King put them in the house of the forest of Libanus. 18. King Salomon also made a great throne of yuoric: and couered it with gold exceeding yellow, 19. which had sixe steps: and the top of the throne was round in the hinder part: and two hands on either side holding the seat: and two Lyons stood at euery hand. 20. And twelue litle Lyons standing vpon the sixe steps on either side: there was not such a worke made in al Kingdomes. 21. Yea and al the vessels, out of the which King Salomon drunke, were of gold: and at the furniture of the house of the forest of Libanus of most pure gold: there was no siluer, neither was it thought of any price in the daies of Salomon, 22. because the Kings nauie, once in three yeares, went with the nauie of Hirā on the sea into Tharis, bringing thence gold, & siluer, & the teeth of elephants, and apes, & pecocks. 23. King Salomon therefore was magnified aboue al the Kings of the earth in riches, & wisdom. 24. And al the earth desired to see Salomons face, that they might heare his wisdom, which God had giuen in his hart. 25. And euerie one presented him giifts, vessels of siluer and gold, garments, and instruments for warre, spices also, and horses, and mules euerie yeare. 26. And Salomon gathered together the chariots and horsemen, and there amounted to him a thousand foure hundred chariots, and twelue thousand horsemen: and he disposed them in fenced cities, and with the King in Ierusalem. 27. And he made that there was as great abundance of siluer in Ierusalem, as of stones: and of cedre trees he caused such a multitude, as if it were sycamore trees, which grow in the playnes. 28. And there were horses brought for Salomon out of Ægypt, and Coa, for the Kings merchants bought them out of Coa, and brought them at a set price. 29. And a chariot of foure horses came out of Ægypt, for sixe hundred sicles of siluer, and one horse for an hundred and fittie. And after this manner did al the Kings of the Hethites and of Syria sel horses.

Salomon louing and marrying manie women of diuers nations, is drawn by them to idolatrie. 9. God therefore offended suffereth Adad an Idumean, 23. Razon King of Damascus, 26. and Hieroboam his owne seruant to make warre against him. 29. Ahas the Prophet foretelleth Hieroboam, that he shal reigne ouer tenne tribes, leauing but two to Salomons heyres, 38. with promise to prosper, if he serue God. 42. Salomon dieth.

AND King Salomon loued manie women strangers, the daughter also of Pharao, and Moabites, & Ammonites, Idumeians, and Sidonians, & Hethcians: 2. of the nations, wherof our Lord sayd to the childe of Israel: You shal not goe in vnto them, neither shal anye of the come in vnto yours: for they wil most certainly turne away your harts to folow their Gods. To these therefore was Salomon copled in most feruent loue. 3. And he had wiues as it were Queenes (a) seuen hundred, and concubines three hundred: and the women turned away his hart. 4. And when he was now old, his hart was depraued by women, that he folowed strange Gods: neither was his hart perfect with our Lord his God, as the hart of Dauid his father. 5. But Salomon worshipped Astarthee the Goddesse of the Sidonians, and Moloch the idol of the Ammonites. 6. And Salomon did that which was not liked before our Lord, and he accomplished not to folow our Lord, as Dauid his father. 7. Then built Salomon a temple to Camos the idol of Moab, in the mount that is agaynst Ierusalem, and to Moloch the idol of the children of Ammon. 8. And in this manner did he to al his wiues that were strangers, which burnt frankincense, & immolated to their Gods. 9. Therefore our Lord was wrath with Salomon, because his minde was turned away from our Lord the God of Israel, who had appeared vnto him the second tyme, 10. and had commanded him concerning this ward, that he should not folow strange Gods, & he kept not the things which our Lord commanded him. 11. Our Lord therefore sayd to Salomon: Because thou hast done this, and hast not kept my couenant, and my precepts, which I haue commanded thee, breaking I wil rent asunder thy Kingdom, and wil giue it to thy seruant. 12. Neuerthlesse in thy dayes I wil not doe it. because of Dauid thy father: out of the hand of thy sonne I wil rent it, 13. neither wil I take away the whole Kingdome, but (b) one tribe I wil giue to thy sonne for Dauid my seruant, and (c) Ierusalem, which I haue chosen. 14. And our Lord rayled vp an aduerinarie to Salomon, Adad an Idumeite of the Kings seed, who was in Edom. 15. For when Dauid was in Idumea, and Ioab the general of the warfare was gone vp to burie them that were slayne, and had slayne al malekind in Idumea, (16. for Ioab tarried there six months, and al Israel, til he slew al malekind in Idumea,) 17. Adad himself fled, & the men of Idumea of his fathers seruants with him, to goe into Ægypt: and Adad was a litle boy. 18. And when they rose out of Madian, they came into Pharan, and they tooke with them men of Pharan, and entred into Ægypt to Pharao the King of Ægypt: who gaue him a house, and appoynted him meats, and assigned him land. 19. And Adad found grace before Pharao exceedingly, in so much that he gaue him to wife the germane sister of his wife Taphnes the Queene. 20. And the sister of Taphnes bare him a sonne Gemubath, and Taphnes brought him vp in the house of Pharao: & Gemubath was dwelling at Pharaoes house with his children. 21. And when Adad in Ægypt had heard, that Dauid slept with his fathers, and that Ioab the general of the warefare was dead, he sayd to Pharao: Dismiss me, that I may goe into my countrie. 22. And Pharao sayd to him: For what lackest thou with me, that thou seekest to goe into thyne owne countrie? But he answered: Nothing: yet I beseech thee that thou dismiss me. 23. God also raysed vp to him an aduersarie, Razon the sonne of Eliada, who had fled Adarzer the King of Soba his Lord: 24. and he gathered men against him, and he became the captayne of theeues, when Dauid killed them: and they went to Damascus, and dwelt there, and they made him King in Damascus, 25. and he was an aduersarie to Israel (d) al the dayes of Salomon: and this is the euil of Adad, and hatred against Israel, and he reigned in Syria. 26. Ieroboam also the sonne of Nabath, an Ephratheite of Sareda, the seruant of Salomon, whose mother was called Serua, a woman widow, lifted vp his hand against the King. 27. And this is the cause of his rebellion against him, because Salomon built Mello, and filled vp the breach of the citie of Dauid his father. 28. And Ieroboam was a strong man and mightie: and Salomon seeing the young man of a good wit and industrious, had made him chief ouer the tributes of al the house of Ioseph. 29. It came to passe therefore at that tyme, that Ieroboam went out of Ierusalem, and the Prophet Ahias the Silonite found him in the way, couered with a new cloke: and they two onlie were in the field. 30. And Ahias taking his new cloke, wherwith he was couered, (e) cut it into twelue parts. 31. And he sayd to Ieroboam: Take vnto thee ten pieces: for thus sayth our Lord the God of Israel: Behold I wil rent the Kingdome out of the hand of Salomon, and wil giue thee ten tribes. 32. But one tribe shal remayne to him for my seruant Dauid, and Ierusalem the citie, which I haue chosē of al the tribes of Israel: 33. because he hath forsaken me, and hath adored Astarthee the goddesse of the Sidonians, and Chamos the God of Moab, and Moloch the God of the children of Ammon: and hath not walked in my wayes, to doe iustice before me, and my precepts, and iudgements, as Dauid his father. 34. Neither wil I take away al the Kingdome out of his hand, but I wil make him

Prince al the dayes of his life, for Daud my seruant, whom I chose, who kept my commandments & my precepts. 35. But I wil take away the Kingdome out of his sounes hand, and wil giue thee ten tribes: 36. and to his sonne I wil giue one tribe, that there may remayne a lampe to Daud my seruant at al times before me in Ierusalem, the cite which I haue chosen, that my name might be there. 37. And thee wil I take, and thou shalt reigne ouer al things, that thy soule desireth, and thou shalt be King ouer Israel. 38. If therefore thou wilt heare al things, that I haue commanded thee, and wilt walke in my waies, and doe that which is right before me, keeping my commandments and my precepts, as Daud my seruant did: I wil be with thee, and wil build thee a faythful house, as I built a house to Daud, and I wil deliuer Israel to thee: 39. and I wil afflict the seede of Daud vpon this, but yet not alwaies. 40. Salomon therefore would haue killed Ieroboam: who arose, and fled into Ægypt to Sefac the King of Ægypt, and was in Ægypt vntil the death of Salomon. 41. And the rest of the words of Salomon, and al that he did, and his wisdom: behold they are al written in the Book of the words of the daies of Salomon. 42. And the daies that Salomon reigned in Ierusalem ouer al Israel, are fourtie yeares. 43. And Salomon (f) slept with his fathers, and was buried in the cite of Daud his father, & Roboam his sonne reigned for him.

Roboam following yongmens counsel, 16. Ieroboam possesseth ten tribes of his Kingdom. 21. Which he endeaouering to recouer by warre, is admonished by a Prophet to cease. 26. Ieroboam setteth vp golden calves to be adored, making temples, altars, and Priests fit for his purpose.

AND Roboam came into Sichem: for thither was al Israel gathered together to make him King. 2. But Ieroboam the sonne of Nabat, when he was yet in Ægypt fugitiue from the face of King Salomon, hearing of his death, returned out of Ægypt. 3. And they sent and called him: Ieroboam therefore came, and al the multitude of Israel, and they spake to Roboam, saying. 4. Thy father layd a most hard yoke vpon vs: thou therefore diminish now a litle of thy fathers most hard empire, and of the most heauie yoke, that he layd vpon vs, and we wil serue thee. 5. Who sayd to them: Goe vntil the third day, and returne to me. And when the people was gone, 6. King Roboam tooke counsel with the ancients, that assisted before Salomon his father, whiles he yet liued, and he sayd: What counsel doe you giue me, that I may answer this people? Who sayd to him: If this day thou wilt yeald to this people, and condescend to them, and graunt to their petition, & wilt speake to them gentle words, they wil be thy seruants alwaies. 8. Who left the counfel of the ancients, which they had giuen him, and admitted yongmen, that had been brought vp with him, & wayted on him, 9. and he sayd to them: What counfel giue you me, that I may answer this people, which haue sayd to me: Make the yoke lighter which thy father hath put vpon vs? 10. And the yongmen that had been brought vp with him, sayd: Thus speake to this people, which haue spoken to thee, saying: Thy father aggrauated our yoke, doe thou ease it. Thus shalt thou speake to them: My least finger is grosser then the backe of my father. 11. And now my father layd vpon you a heauie yoke, but I wil adde vpon your yoke: my father beat you with scourges, but I wil beate you with scorpions. 12. Ieroboam therfore came, and al the people to Roboam the third day, as the King had spokē, saying: Returne to me the third day. 13. And the King answered the people rough words, leauing the counfel of the ancients, which they had giuen him, 14. and he spake to them according to the counfel of the yongmen, saying: My father made your yoke heauy, but I wil adde to your yoke: my father beat you with whips, but I wil beate you with scorpions. 15. And the King condescended not to the people: because our Lord was turned away from him, (2) that he might rayse vp his word, which he had spoken in the hand of Ahias the Silonite, to Ieroboam the sonne of Nabat. 16. The people therfore seeing that the King would not heare them, answered him, saying: What part haue we in Dauid: or what inheritance in the sonne of Isai? Goe into thy tabernacles Israel, now see to thy house Dauid. And Israel went into their tabernacles. 17. But ouer the children of Israel, whosocuer dwelt in the cities of Iuda, Roboam reigned. 18. King Roboam thertore ient Aduram, who was ouer the tributes: and al Israel stoned him, and he died, moreouer King Roboam in haist went vp into his chariot, and fled into Ierusalem: 19. and Israel reuolted from the house of Dauid, vntil this present day. 20. And it came to passe when al Israel had heard, that Ieroboam was returned, they sent, and called him, an assemblee being gathered, and they made him King ouer al Israel, neither did any man folow the house of Dauid beside the tribe of Iuda onlie. 21. And Roboam came to Ierusalem, and gathered together al the house of Iuda, and the tribe of Benjamin, an hundred fourefeore thousand chosen men warriers, to fight agaynst the house of Israel, and to reduce the Kingdom to Roboam the sonne of Salomon. 22. But the word of our Lord came to Semeias the man of God, saying: 23. Speake to Roboam the sonne of Salomon, the King of Iuda, and to al the house of Iuda, and Benjamin, and the rest of the people, saying: 24. Thus sayth our Lord: You shal not goe vp, neither shal you fight agaynst your brethren the childre of Israel: let euerie man returne into his house, for this word is done by me. They heard the word of our Lord, & returned from their iourney as our Lord had commanded them. 25. And Ieroboam built Sichern in mount Ephraim, and dwelt there: and departing thence he built Phaniel. 26. And Ieroboam sayd in his hart: Now wil the Kingdom returne to the house of Dauid, 27. if this people shal goe vp to make sacrifices in the house of our Lord into Ierusalem: and the hart of this people wil be turned to their Lord Roboam the King of Iuda, and they wil kil me, and returne to him, 28. And finding out (b) a deuise he made two golden calves, and sayd to them: Goe vp no more into Ierusalem: Behold thy Gods Israel, which brought thee out of the Land of Egypt. 29. And he put one in Bethel, and the other in Dan: 30. and this thing was an occasion of sune: for the people went to adore the calves, as farre as Dan. 31. And he made temples in the excelses, and Priests (c) of the abiects of the people, which were not of the children of Levi. 32. And he appoynted a solemne day in the eight month, the fifteenth day of the month, after the similitude of the solemnitie, that was celebrated in Iuda. And going vp he made in like manner an altar in Bethel, to immolate to the calves, which he had framed: and he ordayned in Bethel Priests of the (d) excelses, which he had made. 33. And he went vpon the altar, which he had built in Bethel, the fifteenth day of the eight month, which he had forged out of his owne hart: and he made a solemnitie to the children of Israel, and went vp vpon the altar, to burne incense.

C H A P. XIII.

A Prophet sent from Iuda to Bethel foretelleth the birth of Iosias, and destruction of Ieroboams altar, 4. whose hand being suddenly withered, 6. is restored by the Prophets prayer. 11. The same Prophet is deceiued by an other Prophet, and slaine by a lion. 33. Ieroboam proceedeth in impietie.

AND behold a man of God came out of Iuda, in the word of our Lord into Bethel, Ieroboam (a) standing vpon the altar, and censuring. 2. And he cried out against the altar in the word of our Lord, and sayd: Altar, altar, thus saith our Lord: Behold a child shal be borne to the house of Dauid, named (a) Iosias, and he shal immolate vpon thee Priests of the excelses, which now doe burne frankincense on thee, and he shal burne mens bones vpon thee. 3. And he gaue a signe in that day, saying: This shal be the signe, that our Lord hath spoken: Behold the altar shal be clouen, and the ashes on it shal be powred out. 4. And when the King had heard the word of the man of God, which he cried out against the altar in Bethel, he stretched forth his hand from the altar, saying: Take him. And his hand withered, which he stretched forth against him: neither was he able to draw it backe vnto him. 5. The altar also was clouen, and the ashes were powred out of the altar, according to the signe which the man of God had told before in the word of our Lord. 6. And the King said to the man of God: Beseech the face of our Lord thy God, and pray for me, that my hand may be restored me. And the man of God besought the face of our Lord, and the Kings hand was restored to him, and it became as it was before. 7. And the King spake to the man of God: Come home with me, that thou mayst dyne, and I wil giue thee gifts. 8. And the man of God answered the King: If thou wouldest giue me the halfe part of thy house, I wil not come with thee, nor eate bread, nor drinke water in this place: 9. for so was it enioyned in the word of our Lord cōmāding: Thou shalt not eate bread, nor drinke water, nor returne by the way that thou camest. 10. He departed therefore by an other way, and returned not by the way, that he came into Bethel. 11. And a certaine Prophet being old dwelt in Bethel, to whom his sonnes came and told him al the workes, that the man of God had done that day in Bethel: and the words which he had spoken to the King, they told their father. 12. And their father sayd to them: What way went he? His sonnes shewed him the way, by which the man of God was gone, which came out of Iuda. 13. And he said to his sonnes: Saddle me and asse. Who when they had saddled it, he got vp, 14. and went after the man of God, and found him sitting vnder a terebinth: and he said to him: Art thou the man of God that camest out of Iuda? He answered: I am he. 15. And he sayd to him: Come home with me, that thou mayst eate bread. 16. Who sayd: I can not returne, nor come with thee, neither wil I eate bread, nor drinke water in this place: 17. because our Lord spake to me in the word of our Lord, saying: Thou shalt not eate bread, and thou shalt not drinke water there, nor returne by the way thou wentest. 18. Who sayd to him: I also am a Prophet like to thee: and (b) an Angel hath spoken to me in the word of our Lord, saying: Bring him backe with thee into thy house, that he may eate bread, and drinke water. He deceiued him, 19. and brought him backe with him: he did eate therefore bread in his house, and drunke water. 20. And when they sate at the table, the word of our Lord came to the Prophet, that brought him backe. 21. And he cried out to the man of God, which came out of Iuda, saying: Thus sayth our Lord: Because thou hast not been obedient to the mouth of our Lord, and hast not kept the cōmandmēt which our Lord thy God commanded thee, 22. and hast returned, and eaten bread, and drunke water in the place wherin he commanded thee that thou shouldest not eate bread, nor drinke water, thy dead bodie shal not be brought into the sepulchre of thy fathers. 23. And when he had eaten and drunke, he saddled his asse for the Prophet, whom he brought backe. 24. Who when he was gone, a lion found him in the way, and (c) killed him, and his bodie was cast forth in the way: and the asse stood by him, and the lion stood by the dead bodie. 25. And behold, men passing by saw the dead bodie cast in the way, and the lion standing beside the bodie.

b) This man of Bethel was indeed a Prophet of God, but in this lied wickedly, and so deceiuing the other Prophet, made him to breake Gods commandment, for which he was slaine. Wherevpon Hieroboam (whom the wicked Prophet sought to please) was lesse affraid to proceed in idolatrie.

c) Not only the deceiuer, but also he that is deceiued, is guiltie and punishable for breaking Gods commandment.

And

And they came and diuulged it in the citie, wherein that old Prophet dwelt. 26. Which when that Prophet heard, which had brought him backe out of the way, he sayd: It is the man of God, that was disobedient to the mouth of our Lord, and our Lord hath deliuered him to the lion, & he hath torne him, and killed him according to the word of our Lord, that he spake to him. 27. And he sayd to his sonnes: Sadle me an asse. Who when they had sadled, 28. and he was gone, he found his dead bodie cast forth in the way, and the asse and the lion standing by the corse: the lion (d) did not eate of the dead bodie, nor hurt the asse. 29. The Prophet therefore tooke the corse of the man of God, and layd it vpon the asse, and returning brought it into the citie of the old Prophet, that they might mourne for him. 30. And he layd his corse in his owne sepulchre: and they mourned for him: Alas, alas my brother. 31. And when they had mourned for him, he sayd to his sonnes: When I thal be dead, burie me in the sepulchre, wherein the man of Ged is buried: beside his bones lay my bones. 32. For assuredly the word shal come to passe, which he hath foretold in the word of our Lord agaynst the altar that is in Bethel: and agaynst al the temples of the excelses, that are in the cities of Samaria. 33. After these words Ieroboam returned not from his wicked way, but on the contrarie part he made of the most abiect of the people Priests of the excelses: Whosoever would, he filled his hand, and he was made a Priest of the excelses. 34. And for this cause did the house of Ieroboam sinne, and was ouerthrowen, and destroyed from the face of the earth.

(d) By this it appeareth to be Gods worke and punishment.

C H A P. XIII.

Ahias the Prophet foresheweth the ruine of Hieroboams familie: 12. namely the death of his sonne, for whom beeing sick, the mother consulteth the Prophet. 20. Hieroboam dieth, and his sonne Nadab reigneth. 21. Some also of the people of Iuda committing idolatrie and other sinnes, 25. the King of Ægypt innadereth and sacketh Hierusalem. 31. Roboam dieth and his sonne Abias reigneth.

AT that time Abia the sonne of Ieroboam was sicke. 2. And Ieroboam sayd to his wife: Arise, and change thy habite, that thou be not knowen to be the wife of Ieroboam, & goe into Silo, where Ahias the Prophet is, which spake to me, that I thould reigne ouer this people. 3. Take also in thy hand tenloaues, & cracknels, & a vessel of honie, & goeto him: for he wil shew thee what shal happen to this childe. 4. The wife of Ieroboam did as he had spoken: and rising vp went into Silo, and came into the house of Ahias: but he could not see, because his eies were dimme for age. 5. And our Lord sayd to Ahias : Behold the wife of Ieroboam cometh in , to consult thee concerning her sonne that is sicke : thus and thus shalt thou speake to her. When she therefore entred in , and dissembled to be that she was, 6. Ahias heard the sound of her feet entring in at the doore, and sayd: Come in Ieroboams wife: Why doest thou fayne thy self to be an other woman? But I am sent to thee a heauie messenger.. 7. Goe, and tel Ieroboam : Thus sayth our Lord the God of Israel : Because I haue exalted thee out of the middes. of the people, and made thee Prince ouer my people Israel, 8. and haue rent the Kingdom of the house of Dauid, and giuen it to thee, and thou hast not been as my seruant Dauid, who kept my commandments; and folowed me in al his hart, doing that which was wel liked in my sight: 9. but hast wrought euil aboue al, that haue been before thee, and hast made thee strange and molten Gods, (4) that thou mightest prouoke me to anger, and hast reiected me behind thy backe : 10. therefore behold I wil bring in euils vpon the house of Ieroboam, and wil strike of Ieroboam him that pisseth to the wal, and the inclosed, and the vilest in Israel: and I wil cleanse the remainyes of the house of Ieroboam, as dung is wont to be cleansed til al be pure. 11. They that shal die of Ieroboam in the citie, them the dogges shal eate: and they that shal die in the field, them the foules of the ayre shal deuour: because our Lord hath spoken. 12. Thou therefore arise, and goe into thy house: and in the verie entrance of thy feet into the citie, the child shal dye, 13. & al Israel shal mourne for him, and shal burie him: for this onlie of Ieroboam shal be brought into the sepulchre, because vpon him hath been found a good word from our Lord the God of Israel, in the house of Ieroboam. 14. And our Lord wil appoyne to himself a King ouer Israel, that shal strike the house of Ieroboam in this day, and in this time : 15. and our Lord the God of Israel shal strike it, as a reede is wont to be moued in the water: and he shal plucke out Israel fro this good countrie, which he gaue to their fathers, and shal scatter them ouer the Riuer: because they haue made to themselues groues, to prouoke our Lord. 16. And our Lord shal deliuer Israel for the sinnes of Ieroboam, who hath sinned, and made Israel to sinne. 17. The wife therefore of Ieroboam arose, and departed, and came into Therfa: and when she entred the threthold of the house, the childe died, 18. and they buried him. And al Israel mourned for him according to the word of our Lord, which he spake in the hand of his seruant Ahias the Prophete. 19. But the rest of the words of Ieroboam, how he fought, and how he reigned, be hold they are written in the Booke of the words of the daies of the Kings of Israel. 20. And the daies, that Ieroboam reigned, are two and twentie yeares: and he slept with his fathers: and Nadab his sonne reigned for him. 21. Moreouer Roboam the sonne of Salomon reigned in Iuda: one and fourtie yeares old was Roboam when he began to reigne: seuenteen yeares reigned he in Ierusalem the citie, which our Lord chose to put his name there, of al the tribes of Israel. And his mothers name was Naama an Ammonite. 22. And Iudas did euil before our Lord, and prouoked him about al things, that their fathers had done, in their sinnes which they sinned. 23. For they also built them altars, & statucs, & groues vpon euerie highhil, and vnder euerie tree ful of green leaues: 24. yea and effeminate were in the land, and they did al the abominations of the gentils, which our Lord destroyed before the face of the childre of Israel. 25. And in the fifth yeare of the reigne of Roboam, Sefac the King of Egypt came vp into Ierusalem, 26. and tooke the treasures of the house of our Lord, and the Kings treasures, and al things he spoyled: the shields also of gold, which Salomon had made: 27. for the which Roboam made brasen shields, and deliuered them into the hand of the captaynes of shield-bearers, and of them that kept watch before the doore the Kings house. 28. And when the King went into the house of our Lord, they that had the office to goe before, caried them: and afterward they recaried the to the armourie of the shield-bearers. 29. And the rest of the words of Roboam, and al that he did, behold they are written in the Book of the words of the daies of the Kings of Iuda. 30. And there was warre between Roboam and Ieroboam alwaies. 31. And Roboam slept with his fathers, and was buried with them in the cite of Dauid: and his mothers name was Naama an Ammonite: and Abias his sonne reigned for him.

(4) Ieroboam did not wittingly and of purpose set up false Gods, to the end he might prouoke God to anger: for his intention only was to keep the people fro going to Ierusalem, lest by that occasion they should returne to Roboam the Lord, King of Iuda. ch 12. v. 17. But by setting vp idols he did prouoke God so frequently to anger. So here and in other places this phrase: that he might prouoke: that is might he fulfill, and the like, signifie not the final cause, but the sequelle of other factes, without direct intention.

 CHAP. XV.

Abias reigneth wickedly in Iuda three yeares. 8. After him his sonne Afa succeeding destroyeth idolatrie, reigning fourtie one yeares. 16. Who hauing warres with the King of Israel, maketh league with the King of Syria. 24. Afa dying Iosaphat succeedeth. 25. Nadab reigneth wickedly two yeares in Israel, is then slaine by Baasa of the tribe of Issachar, 29. and his whole familie is destroyed. 33. Baasa also reigneth wickedly twentie soure yeares.

HER F O R E in the eighteenth yeare of King Ieroboam the sone of Nabat, Abias reigned ouer Iuda. 2. Three yeares reigned he in Ierusalem: the name of his mother was Maacha the daughter of Abessalom. 3. And he walked in al the sinnes of his father, which he had done before him: neither was his hart perfect with our Lord his God, as the hart of Dauid his father. 4. But for Dauids sake our Lord his God gaue him a lape in Ierusalem, that he might rayse vp his sonne after him, and establiish Ierusalē: 5. (a) because Dauid had done right in the eyes of our Lord, & had not declined from al things, which he commanded him, al the daies of his life, except the matter of Vrias the Hetheite. 6. But there was warre between Roboam and Ieroboã al the time of his life. 7. And the rest of the words of Abias, and al that he did, are they not written in the Book of the words of the Kings of Iuda? And there was warre between Abias and Ieroboam. 8. And Abias slept with his fathers, and they buried him in the citie of Dauid: and Afa his sonne reigned for him. 9. In the twentieth yeare therefore of Ieroboam the King of Israel reigned Afa the King of Iuda. 10. And he reigned one and fourtie yeares in Ierusalem. His mothers name was Maacha, the daughter of Abesalom. 11. And Afa did right before the sight of our Lord, as Dauid his father: 12. and he tooke away the effeminate out of the land, and he purged al the filth of the idols, which his fathers had made. 13. Moreover he remoued also Maacha his mother, that she should not be Princeesse in the sacrifices of Priapus, and in the groue which she had consecrated: and he destroyed her denne, and brake the most filtie idol, and burnt it in the torrent cedron: 14. but (b) the excelses he did not take away. Otherwise the hart of Afa was perfect with our Lord al iis daies: 15. and he caried in those things, which his father had sanctified & vowed, into the house of our Lord, siluer and gold, and vessels. 16. And there was warre between Afa and Baasa the King of Israel al their daies. 17. Baasa also the King of Israel went vp into Iuda, and built Rama, that no man might goe out or come in of Afaes side the King of Iuda. 18. Afa therefore taking al the siluer and gold that remained in the treasures of the houle our Lord, and in the treasures of the Kings house, gaue it into the hands of his seruants: and he sent to Benadad the sonne of Tabremon the sonne of Hezion, the King of Syria, which dwelt in Damascus, saying: 19. There is a league between me and thee, and betwixt my father and thy father: therefore I haue sent thee giftes, siluer and gold: and I desire thee that thou come, and make void the league, that thou hast with Baasa the King of Israel, and he may retire from me. 20. Benadad agreing to King Afa, sent the Princes of his armie into the cities of Israel, and they stricke Ahion, & Dan, & Abeldomum of Maacha, & al Cēneroth, to witte, al the Lād of Nephthali. 21. Which when Baasa had heard, he interritted to build Rama, & returned into Thersa. 22. But King Afa sent word into al Iuda, saying: Let no man be excused, and they tooke stones from Rama, and the timber thereof, wherwith Baasa had built, & Afa of it built Gabaa Benjamin and Maspha. 23. But the rest of al the words of Afa, & al his forces, & al that he did, & the cities that he built, are not these written in the Book of the words of the dayes of the Kings of Iuda? Howbeit in the time of his old age he was diseased in his feete. 24. And he slept with his fathers, & was buried with them in the citie of Dauid his father. And Iosaphat his sonne reigned for him. 25. But Nadab the sonne of Ieroboam reigned ouer Israel the second yeare of Afa the King of Iuda: and he reigned ouer Israel two yeares. 26. And he did that which is euil in the sight of our Lord, & walked in the wayes of his

And Baasa the sonne of Ahias of the house of Issachar, lay in wayte against him, & stricke him in Gebbethon, which is a citie of the Philisthims: for Nadab & al Israel besieged Gebbethon. 28. Baasa therefore slew him in the third yeare of Afa the King of Iuda, and reigned for him. 29. And when he reigned, he stricke(c) al the house of Ieroboam: he leaft not so much as one soule of his seed, til he destroyed him according to the word of our Lord, which he had spoken in the hand of Ahias the Silonite, 30. for the finnes of Ieroboam, which he had sinned, & wherwith he had caused Israel to sinne, and for the offence, wherwith he prouoked our Lord the God of Israel. 31. But the of rest the words of Nadab, and al that he wrought, are not these things written in the Book of the words of the daies of the Kings of Israel? 32. And there was warre between Afa and Baasa the King of Israel al their daies. 33. In the third yeare of Afa the King of Iuda, reigned Baasa the sonne of Ahias ouer al Israel in Thersa foure & twentie yeares. 34. And he did euil before our Lord, and walked in the waies of Ieroboam, and in his finnes, wherwith he made Israel to sinne.

Iehu for prophesying the destruction of Baasa and his house, 7. is slaine. 8. Yer his sonne Ela reigneth two yeares. 9. Then Zambri rebelleth, killeth Ela, and reigneth. 16. Part of the people choosing Amri (Prince of the arme) their King, 18. Zambri desperately burneth himselfe and the Kings palace. 21. An other part folow Thebni as King til his death. 23. Amri reigneth twelue yeares wickedy. 29. His sonne Achab succeedeth, marieth Iezabel, and scrueeth Baal. 34. In the meane time Hiel repaireth Iericho.

AND the word of our Lord came to Iehu the sonne of Hanani against Baasa, saying: 2. For so much as I haue exaltad thee out of the dust, and set thee duke ouer my people Israel, but thou hast walked in the way of Ieroboam, and hast made my people Israel to sinne, that thou mightest anger me with their finnes: 3. behold, I wil cut downe the posteritie of Baasa, and the posteritie of his house, and I wil make thy house as the house of Ieroboam the sonne of Nabat. 4. Whosoever of Baasa shal die in the citie, him shal the dogges eate: and whosoever of his shal die in the countrie, him shal the fowles of the ayre deuour. 5. But the rest of the words of Baasa, and whatfoeuer he did, and his battels, are not these things written in the Book of the words of the daies of the Kings of Israel? 6. Baasa therefore slept with his fathers, and was buried in Thersa: and Ela his sonne reigned for him. 7. And when the word of our Lord came in the hand of Iehu the sonne of Hanani the Prophet agaynst Baasa, and agaynst his house, & agaynst al the euil, that he had done before our Lord, to anger him in the workes of his hands, that it should be made as the house of Ieroboã: for this cause he slew him, that is to say, Iehu the sonne of Hanani, the Prophet. 8. In the sixe and twentieth yeare of Afa the King of Iuda, reigned Ela the sonne of Baasa ouer Israel in Therfa two yeares. 9. And his seruant Zambri rebelled agaynst him, the captayne of the halfe part of the horsemen: and Ela was in Therfa drinking, and drunken in the house of Arfa the Gouvernour of Therfa. 10. Zambri therefore ruhing in, strucke and slew him in the seuen & twentieth yeare of Afa the King of Iuda, and he reigned for him. 11. And when he reigned, and sate vpon his throne, he struck al the house of Baasa, and he leaft not of it one that could pisse agaynst a wal, and his kinsfolke and freinds. 12. And Zambri destroyed al the house of Baasa, according to the word of our Lord, that he had spoken to Baasa in the hãd of Iehu the Prophet, 13. for al the sinnes of Baasa, and the sinnes of Ela his sonne, who sinned, and made Israel to sinne, prouoking our Lord the God of Israel in their vanities. 14. But the rest of the words of Ela, and al that he did, are not these written in the Book of the words of the daies of the Kings of Israel: 15. In the seuen and twentieth yeare of Afa the King of Iuda, reigned Zambri seuen daies in Therfa: moreouer the armie besieged Gebbethon a citie of the Philisthims. 16. And when they heard that Zambri had rebelled, and ilayne the King, (a) al Israel made Amri their King, who was General of the warfare ouer Israel that day, in the campe. 17. Amri therefore went vp, and al Israel with him from Gebbethon, and they besieged Therfa. 18. And Zambri seeing that the citie should be taken, he went into the palace, & burnt himself with the Kings house: and he died 19. in his sinnes, which he had sinned doing euil before our Lord, and walking in the way of Ieroboam, and in his sinne, wherwith he made Israel to sinne. 20. But the rest of the words of Zambri, and of his treason, and tyrannie, are not these things written in the Book of the words of the dayes of the Kings of Israel: 21. Then was the people of Israel diuided into two parts: the halfe part of the people folowed Thebni the sone of Gineth, to make him King: & the halfe part Amri. 22. But the people that was with Amri, preuayled ouer the people that folowed Thebni the sonne of Gineth: and Thebni died, and Amri reigned. 23. In (b) the one and thirtith yeare of Afa the King of Iuda Amri reigned ouer Israel, twelue yeares: in Therfa he reigned six yeares. 24. And he bought the mount of Samaria of Somer for two talents of siluer: & he built it, and he called the citie which he had built by the name of Semer the Lord of the mount of Samaria. 25. And Amri did euil in the sight of our Lord, & wrought wickedly aboue al, that were before him. 26. And he walked in al the way of Ieroboam the sonne of Nabat, and in his sinnes wherwith he made Israel to sinne: that they might anger our Lord the God of Israel in their vanities.

(A) Al those that were in the campe chose their General to be their King, and preuailed therin, though another halfe of Israel chose & folowed another for a time.

(b) Thebni being then dead he reigned peaceably, for he began his reign the 17. yeare of Afa. v. 15. & 16. and reigned in al 12. yeares.

27. But the rest of the words of Amri, and the battels he made, are not these things written in the Booke of the words of the daies of the Kings of Israel? 18. And Amri slept with his fathers, and was buried in Samaria, and Achab his sonne reigned for him. 29. But Achab the sonne of Amri reigned ouer Israel the eight & thirith yeare of Asa the King of Iuda. And Achab the sonne of Amri reigned ouer Israel in Samaria two and twentie yeares. 30. And Achab the sonne of Amri did euil in the sight of our Lord aboute al that were before him. 31. Neither did it suffice him that he walked in the sinnes of Ieroboam the sonne of Nabat: besides he tooke to wife Iezabel the daughter of Ethbaul the King of the Sidonians. And he went, and serued Baal, and adored him. 32. And he set an altar to Baal in the temple of Baal, which he had built in Samaria, 33. and he planted a groue: and Achab added in his worke, prouoking our Lord the God of Israel aboute al the Kings of Israel, that were before him. 34. In his daies Hiel of Bethel built Iericho: (c) in Abiram his first borne he founded it, and in Segub his last he set vp the gates therof: according to the word of our Lord, which he spake in the hand of Iosue the sonne of Nun.

(c) When Hiel began to build Iericho, his eldest sonne died, so the rest successuely, that the last died when he finished the building: because God by the mouth of Iosue had forbid the building therof.

Elias by his prayer shutteth the heauen from raining. 2. Is fed by a crow, 8. and by a widow of Sareptha. 13. Whose pot of meale, and barrel of oyle diminisheth not. 17. Her sonne dieth, and is raysed to life.

AND Elias the Thesbite of the inhabitants of Galaad said to Achab: Our Lord liueth the God of Israel, in whose sight I stand, if there shal be these yeares dew and rayne, but according to the words of my mouth. 2. And the word of our Lord came to him, saying: 3. Depart from hence, and goe agaynst the East, and be hidde in the Torrent Carith, which is agaynst Iordan, 4. and there thou shalt drinke of the torrent: and I haue commanded the rauens that they feed thee there. 5. He therefore went, and did according to the word of our Lord: and when he was gone, he sate in the Torrent Carith, which is agaynst Iordan. 6. The rauens also brought him bread and flesh in the morning, in like manner bread and flesh in the euening, and he dranke of the torrent. 7. But after certayne daies the torrent was dried: for it had not rayned vpon the earth. 8. Therefore the word of our Lord came to him, saying: 9. Arise, and goe into Sareptha of the Sidonians, and thou shalt tarie there: for I haue commanded a wydow woman there to feede thee. 10. He arose,

4) To this question (sayth S. Augustin) the Prophet answered in spirite: No. For God killed not this childe to afflict so good a mother, but to confirme her in true religion & comforte her by raising him from death. So Lazarus died not to remaine dead, but to be raysted to life, for Gods more glorie.

and went into Sareptha. And when he was come to the gate of the citie, the widow woman appeared to him gathering sticckes, and he called her, and sayd to her: Giue me a litle water in a vessel, that I may drinke. 11. And when she went to fetch it, he cried after her saying: Bring me also, I beseech thee, a morsel of bread in thy hand. 12. Who answered: Our Lord thy God liueth, I haue no bread, but so much meale in a pot as a hand can hold, and a litle oile in a vessel: behold I gather two sticckes, that I may goe in, and dresse it for me & my sonne, that we may eate, and die. 13. To whom Elias sayd: feare not, but goe, and doe as thou hast sayd: but first make for me of the same meale a litle harth cake, & bring it to me: & for thy selfe & thy sonne thou shalt make afterward. 14. For thus sayth our Lord the God of Israel: The pot of meale shal not fayle, nor the vessel of oile be diminished vntil the day, wherein our Lord wil giue rayne vpon the face of the earth. 15. Who went and did according to the word of Elias: and he did eate, and she, and her house: and from that day 16. the pot of meale fayled not, and the vessel of oyle was not diminished, according to the word of our Lord, which he spake in the hand of Elias. 17. And it came to passe after thesethings, the sonne of the woman, the good wife of the house, fel sicke, & the sickenesse was verie vehement, so that there remayned no breath in him. 18. She therfore sayd to Elias: What is to me and thee thou man of God? comest thou vnto me, that myne iniquities might be remembred, and thou mightest kil my sonne? 19. And Elias sayd to her: Giue me thy sonne. And he tooke him from her bosome, and caried him into the vpper chamber where himselfe abode, and layd him vpon his bed. 20. And he cried to our Lord, and sayd: O Lord my God, what, the widow also with whom I am after a fort susteyned, hast thou afflicted, that thou wouldest kil her sonne? 21. And he stretched forth, and measured himselfe vpon the childe three tymes, and he cried to our Lord, and sayd: O Lord my God, let the soule of this child, I beseech thee, returne into his bodie. 22. And our Lord heard the the voice of Elias: and the soule of the child returned into him, and he reuiued. 23. And Eliastooke the child, and brought him downe from the vpper chamber into the lower house, and deliuered him to his mother, and sayd to her: Behold thy sonne liueth. 24. And the woman sayd to Elias: Now, in this I haue knowen that thou art a man of God, and the word of our Lord in thy mouth is true.

The third yeare of famine, Elias meeting the chief gouernour of Achabs house, hardly perswadeth him to tel Achab, that he is present. 17. Achab blameth Elias; but Elias freely auoucheth that not he, but Achab troubleth Israel. 19. By a miracle foure hundred and fiftie fals prophets are conuincd, 20. and are slaine. 21. Elias prayeth and it rayneth.

AFTER manie daies the word of our Lord came to Elias, the third yeare, saying: Goe, and shew thy self to Achab, that I may giue rayne vpon the face of the earth. 1. Elias therefore went to shew himself to Achab: and there was sore famine in Samaria. 3. And Achab called Abdias the gouernour of his house: And Abdias did feare our Lord very much. 4. For when Iezabel killed the Prophets, of our Lord, he tooke an hundred Prophets, and hid them by fiftie and fiftie in caues, and fed them with bread and water. 5. Achab therefore sayd to Abdias: Goe into the land to al the fountaynes of waters, and into al valleys, if perhaps we may find grasse, and saue the horses and mules, and the beasts may not vtterly perish. 6. And they diuided the countries between them, that they might goe circuite about them: Achab went one way, and Abdias an other way seuerally. 7. And when abdias was in the way, Elias mette him: who when he knew him, (4) fel on his face, and sayd: My Lord, art not thou Elias? 8. To whom he answered: I am. Goe, and tel thy Lord: Elias is here. 9. And he sayd: What haue I sinned, that thou deliucrest me thy seruant into the hand of Achab, that he may kil me? 10. Our Lord thy God liueth, there is no nation or Kingdome, whither my Lord hath not sent to seeke thee; and al answering: He is not here; he adiured al Kingdoms and nations, for that thou wast not found. 11. And now thou sayest to me: Goe, and tel thy Lord, Elias is here. 12. And when I am departed from thee, the Spirit of our Lord wil carie thee into a place, that I know not: and I entring in shal tel Achab, and not finding thee, he wil kil me: and thy seruant feareth our Lord from his infancie. 13. Hath it not been told thee my Lord, what I did when Iezabel killed the Prophets of our Lord, that I hid of the Prophets of our Lord an hundred men, by fiftie and fiftie in caues, and fed them with bread and water? 14. And now thou sayst: Goe, and tel thy Lord: Elias is here: that he may kil me? 15. And Elias sayd: The Lord of hoits liueth, before whose face I stand, this day wil I appeare to him. 16. Abdias therefore went to meet Achab, and told him: and Achab came to meet Elias. 17. And when he had seen him, he sayd: Art thou he that doest trouble Israel? 18. And he sayd: not I haue troubled Israel, but thou, and the house of thy father,

4) Abdias adored Elias as the Prophet of God, and a holic man, not with ciuil honour, for in the world Abdias was the greater person, nor with diuine honour, for that had been idolatric. It was therefore religious honour, called dulia, due to spiritual excellencie of Gods seruants.

who haue forsaken the commandements of our Lord, & haue folowed Baalim. 19. Neuerthelesse send now, and gather vnto me al Israel in the mount of Carmel, and the Prophets of Baal foure hundred fittie, and the Prophets of the groues foure hundred, which eate of Iezabels table. 20. Achab sent to al the children of Israel, and gathered together the Prophets in the mount of Carmel. 21. And Elias comming to al the people, sayd: (b) How long halt you on two sides? If our Lord be God, folow him: but if Baal, folow him. And the people did not answer him a word. 22. And Elias sayd agayne to the people: I onlie remayne a Prophet of our Lord: and the Prophets of Baal are foure hundred and fittie men. 23. Let two oxen be giuen vs, and let them choose to themselues one ox, and cutting it into pieces let them lay it vpon wood, but put no fyre vnder: and I wil dresse the other ox, and wil lay it vpon wood, and put no fire vnder. 24. Inuocate ye the names of your Gods, & I wil inuocate the name of my Lord: and the God that shal heare by fyre, let the same be God. And al the people answering sayd, A very good proposition. 25. Elias therefore sayd to the Prophets of Baal: Choose you one ox, and make it first, because you are manie: and inuocate the names of your Gods, and put no fire vnder. 26. Who when they had taken the ox, which he gaue them, they dresse it: and they inuocated the name of Baal from morning vntil midday, saying: Baal heare vs. And there was no voice, nor any that answered: and they leaped ouer the altar, that they had made. 27. And when it was now midday, Elias iested at them, saying: Crie with a louder voice: for he is God, and perhaps he speaketh, or is in his inne, or in the way, or at the least he sleepeth, that he must be waked. 28. They cried therefore with a loud voice, and cut themselues after their rite with kniues and lancets, til they were al embrewed with bloud. 29. And after the midday was past, and whiles they prophecied, the time was come, when they vsed to offer sacrifice, neither voice was heard, nor any did answer, nor attend them praying: 30. Elias sayd to al the people: Come vnto me. And the people comming to him, he repayred the altar of our Lord, that was destroyed. 31. And he tooke twelue stones according to the number of the tribes of the children of Iacob, to whom the word of our Lord came, saying: Israel shal be thy name. 32. And he built of the stones an altar in the name of our Lord: and he made a water gutter, as it were by two furrowes round about the altar. 33. and he layed the wood in order, and diuided the ox in ioints, and layd it vpon the wood. 34. and said: Fil foure buckets with water, and powre vpon the holocaust, and vpon the wood. And againe he sayd: Doe it also the second time. Who hauing done it the second time, he said: The third time also doe the same. And they did so the third time, 35. and the waters ranne about the altar, and the trough of the conduite was filled. 36. And when it was now time that the holocaust should be offered, Elias the Prophet comming said: Lord God of Abraham, and Isaac, and Israel, shew this day that thou art the God of Israel, and I thy seruant, and that according to thy commandment I haue done al these things. 37. Heare me Lord, heare me (c) that this people may learne, that thou art our Lord God, and thou hast conuerted their hart againe. 38. And the fire of our Lord fel, and deuoured the holocaust, and the wood, and the stones, licking also the dust, and the water, that was in the water gutter. 39. Which when al the people had seen, they fel on their face, and said: Our Lord he is God, our Lord he is God. 40. And Elias said to them: Apprehend the Prophets of Baal, and let not one escape of them. Whom when they had taken, Elias brought them to the Torrent Cison, and killed them there. 41. And Elias sayd to Achab: Goe vp, eate and drinke: because there is found of much raine. 42. Achab went vp to eate and drinke: and Elias went vp into the top of Carmel, and flat on the earth put his face between his knees, 43. and he said to his seruant: Goe vp, and looke toward the sea. Who when he was gone vp, and had looked, he said: There is nothing. And againe he said to him: Returne seuen tymes 44. And in the seuenth time: Behold a litle cloud as it were a mans foote came vp from the sea. Who said: Goe vp and say to Achab: Yoke thy chariot aad goe downe, lest the raine preuent thee. 45. And when he turned himseife hither and thither, behold the heauens were darkened, and clouds, and winde, and there fel great raine. Achab therefore going vp went into Iezrahel: 46. and the hand of our Lord was made vpon Elias, and his loynes girded he ranne before Achab, vntil he came into Iezrahel.

Elias flying Iezabel, in the desert eateth a barth cake and drinketh water, brought by an Angel, and so goeth fourtie dayes and nights vnto mount Horeb. 9. Lamenting that he alone is left of the Prophets of God, 15. God commandeth him to returne to Damascius, and anoint Hazael King of Syria, Jehu King of Israel, and Eliseus a Prophet: 18. and telleth him, there remaine seuen thousand in Israel, which haue not bowed to Baal.

AND Achab told Iezabel al things that Elias had done, and how he had killed al the Prophets with the sword. 2. And Iezabel sent a messenger to Elias, saying: These things doe the Gods to me, and these adde they, if this houre to morow I make not thy soule as the soule of one of them. 3. Elias therefore was afraid, and ryting he went whither foeuer his wil caried him: and he came into Berfabee of Iuda, and leaft his seruant there, 4. and went forward into the desert, one dayes journey. And when he was come, and sate vnder a iuniper tree, he detired for his soule to die , and sayd : It sufficeth me Lord , take my soul: for I am not better then my fathers. 5. And he cast himself downe , & slept in the shadow of the iuniper tree : & behold an Angel of our Lord touched him , and sayd to him : Arise , and eate. 6. He looked , and behol dat his head harth-baked bread, and a vessel of water : he therefore did eate, & drinke, & he slept againe. 7. And the Angel of our Lord returned the second time, & touched him, & said to him : Arise, eate : for thou hast yet a great way to goe. 8. Who when he was risen , did eate & drinke, and walked in the strength of that meat fourtie daies, & fourtie nights , vnto the mount of God , Horeb. 9. And when he was come thither, he taried in a caue, and behold the word of our Lord vnto him, and he said to him : What doest thou here Elias? 10. But he answered : With zele haue I been zelous for our Lord the God of hosts, because the children of Israel haue forsaken thy couenant : thy altars haue they destroyed , and thy Prophets they haue slaine with the sword , and (a) I alone am leaft , and they seeke my life to take it away. 11. And he said to him : Come forth , and stand in the mount before our Lord : and behold our Lord passeth , and a great winde and strong , ouerthrowing mountaynes and breaking rockes before our Lord : not in the wind is our Lord , and after the winde an earth quake : not in the earth quake is our Lord, 12. and after the earth quake fire: not in the fire is our Lord, & after the fire a whittling of a gentle winde. 13. Which when Elias had heard , he couered his face with his mantel , and coming forth stood in the doore of the caue , and behold a voyce vnto him , saying : What doest thou here Elias? 14. And he answered : With zele haue I been zelous for our Lord the God of hostes : because the children of Israel haue forsaken thy couenant : thine altars they haue destroyed, and thy Prophets they haue slaine with the sword, and I alone am leaft, and they seeke my life to take it away. 15. And our Lord sayd to him : Goe, and returne into thy way by the desert of Damascus : and when thou art come thither thou (b) shalt anoint Hazael King ouer Syria , 16. and Iehu the sonne of Namsi thou shalt anoynt King ouer Israel: and Elifeus the sonne of Saphat, which is of Abelmeula, thou shalt anoynt Prophet for thee. 17. And it shal be, whosoever shal escape the sword of Hazael, him Iehu shal kil : and whosoever shal escape the sword of Iehu , him shal Elifeus kil, 18. And I wil leaue me in Israel seuen thousand men , whose knees haue not been bowed before Baal , and euerie mouth, that hath not adored him kissing his hands. 19. Elias therefore departing thence , found Elifeus the sonne of Saphat , ploughing with twelue yoke of oxen , and he was one of them that ploughed with twelue yoke of oxen : and when Elias came to him , he cast his mantel vpon him. 20. Who forthwith leauing the oxen ranne after Elias , and said : Let me kisse, I pray thee , my father , and my mother , and so I wil folow thee. And he sayd to him : Goe , and returne : for that which was my part , I haue done to thee. 21. And returning from him , he tooke a

The Syrians threatning and besieging Samaria, 13. God signifieth by a Prophet to Achab, that he shal haue the victorie, 20. which he obtaiueth: 23. Also the second yeare fighting in the champaine. 31. But sauing the King of Syrians life, and making league with him, 35. one of the children of the Prophets being slaine, for not stryking when he was so commanded, 37. an other denou- ceth reuenge to Achab, for not killing the Syrian King.

MORE OVER Benadad the King of Syria, gathered together al his host, and two and thirtie Kings with him, & horses, & chariots: & going vp fought agaynst Samaria, and besieged it. 2. And sending messengers to Achab the King of Israel into the citie, 3. he said: Thus saith Benadad: Thy siluer, and thy gold is mine: and thy wiues, and thy principal children be mine. 4. And the King of Israel answered: According to thy word my Lord King, I am thine, and al that is mine. 5. And the messengers returning, said: Thus saith Benadad, which sent vs vnto thee: Thy siluer, and thy gold, and thy wiues, and thy children thou shalt giue me. 6. To morow therefore this verie houre I wil send my seruants to thee, and they shal search thy house, and the house of thy seruants: and al that pleaseth them, they shal put in their hands, and take away. 7. And the King of Israel called al the ancients of the land, and said: Marke, and see that he seeketh to intrap vs. for he sent to me for my wiues, and children, and for the siluer and gold: and I said not nay. 8. And al the ancients, and al the people said to him: Heare not, neither agree vnto him. 9. He therefore answered the messengers of Benadad: Tel my Lord the King: Al things for the which thou didst send to me thy seruant in the beginning I wil doe: but this thing I can not doe. 10. And the messengers returning made report vnto him, who sent againe, and sayd: These things doe the Gods to me, and these adde they, if the dust of Samaria shal suffice for the handfuls of al the people, that foloweth me. 11. And the King of Israel answering, sayd: Tel him (a) Let not the girded glorie as the vngirded. 12. And it came to passe, when Benadad had heard this word, himself & the Kings dranke in pauillions, and he sayd to nis seruants: Besette the citie, and they did besette it. 13. And behold a Prophet comming to Achab the King of Israel, sayd to him: Thus sayth our Lord, Halt thou in dede seen al this exceeding great multitude: behold, I wil deliuer the into thy had this day: that thou mayst know, that I am the Lord. 14. And Achab said: By who:

(a) Those that are girded & strongly armed doe not wisely in trusting their owne strength, & contemning their aduerfaries: for by so doing they are often ouerthrowne. And those that distrusting themselves trust in God, one way or other alwaies preuaile. A necessarie lesson, both in temporal and spiritual warfare.

And he said to him: Thus saith our Lord: By the seruants of the Princes of the prouinces. And he said: Who shal begin to fight? And he said: Thou. 15. He therefore mustered the seruants of the Princes of the prouinces, and he found the number of two hundred thirtie two: and he mustered after them the people, al the children of Israel, seuen thousand. 16. And they went forth at noone. But Benadad dranke al drunken in histent, and two and thirtie Kings with him, which were come to ayde him. 17. The seruants therefore of the Princes of the prouinces issued forth in the forefront. Benadad therefore sent. Who told him, saying: Men are come forth out of Samaria. 18. And he said: Whether they come for peace, take them aliuie: or els to fight, aliuie take ye them. 19. The seruants therefore of the Princes of the prouinces issued forth, and the rest of the armie folowed: 20. and euerie one strucke the man that came against him: and the Syrians fled, and Israel pursued them. Benadad also the King of Syria fled on horsebacke with his horsemen. 21. Moreouer the King of Israel issuing forth strucke the horses and chariots, & he strucke Syria with a great slaughter. 22. (And a Prophet coming to the King of Israel, said to him: Goe, & take courage, & know, & see what thou doest: for the yeare folowing the King of Syria wil come vp against thee.) 23. But the seruants of the King of Syria said to him: The Gods of the mountaynes be their Gods, therefore haue they ouercome vs: but it is better that we fight against them in the champaine, and we shal ouercome them. 24. Thou therefore doe this word: Remoue al the Kings from thine armie, and put captaines for them: 25. and reparaire the number of souldiers, that are slaine of thine, and horses according to the old horses, & chariots according to the chariots, which thou hadst before: and we wil fight against them in the champaine, and thou shalt see that we shal ouercome them. He belieued their counsel, and did so. 26. Therefore after a yeare was passed, Benadad mustered the Syrians, and went vp into Aphec, to fight against Israel. 27. Moreouer the children of Israel were mustered, and taking victuals they went forth on the contrarie side, and camped against them, as it were two litle flocks of goats: but the Syrians filled the land. (28. And a man of God coming, said to the King of Israel: Thus saith our Lord: Because the Syrians haue said: The Lord is God of the mountaines, and is not God of the Valleyes, I wil giue al this great multitude into thy hand, and (b) you shal know that I am the Lord.) 29. And seuen dayes did these and they direct their armies one against the other, and in the seuenth day was the battel fought, and the children of Israel strucke of the Syrians an hundred thousand footmen in one day. 30. And they that remained in Aphec, fled into the citie: and the wal fel vpon seuen and twentie thousand men, that were leaft. Moreouer Benadad flying entered the citie, into a chamber that was within a chamber, 31. and his seruants said to him: Behold, we haue heard that the Kings of the house of Israel are merciful: Let vs therefore put sackcloths on our loynes , and cords on our heads , and goe forth to the King of Israel : perhaps he wil saue our liues. 32. They girded their loines with sackcloths , and put cords on their heads, and came to the King of Israel , and said to him : Thy seruant Benadad saith : Let my soule liue , I beseech thee. And he said : If he be yet aliue, he is my brother. 33. Which the men tooke for good lucke : and in hast caught the word of his mouth , and said : Thy brother Benadad. And he said to them: Goe and bring him to me. Benadad therefore came out to him , and he lifted him vp into his chariot. 34. Who said to him : The cities which my father tooke from thy father , I wil render : doe thou make thee streets in Damascus, as my father made in Samaria , and I confederate wil depart from thee. He therefore made a league , and dimissed him. 35. Then a certaine man of the children of the Prophets sayd to his fellow in the word of our Lord : Strike me. But he would not strike. 39. To whom he said : Because thou wouldest not heare the word of our Lord, behold thou shalt depart from me, and a lion shal strike thee. And when he was departed a litle from him , a lyon found him , and slew him. 37. But finding also an other man, he said to him : Strike me. Who strucke him, and wounded him. 38. The Prophet therefore went, and met the King in the way , and with sprinkling of dust changed his face and his eies. 39. And when the King passed by, he cried to the King, and said : Thy seruant went forth to fight hand strocks : and when a certaine man was fled , one brought him to me , and said : Keep this man : who if he shal slip away, thy life shal be for his life, or thou shalt pay a talent of siluer. 40. And whiles I being troubled turned hither and thither , sodainly he appeared not. And the King of Israel sayd to him: This is thy iudgement, which thy self hast decreed. 41. But he forthwith wyped off the dust from his face, and the King of Israel knew him, that he was of the Prophets. 42. Who sayd to him: Thus sayth our Lord (c) Because thou hast let goe out of thy hand a man worthie to die, thy life shal be for his life, and thy people for his people. 43. The King of Israel therefore returned into his house , contemning to heare, & raging came into Samaria.

Naboth for denyng his vineyard to King Achab, is by Queen Iezabels commandment falsly accused, and stoned to death. 10. Achab hastning to possesse the vineyard, Elias the Prophet threatneth him manie evils, 23. and no lesse to Iezabel: both being obstinate in sinne. 27. Yet Achab for feare of punishment, doth external workes of penance, and thereby escapeth part of the temporal plagues.

*a) If no subiect were Lord of anie land, but only at the Kings pleasure & Kings were proper Lords of al the lands in their Kingdomes, then Achab might haue taken Naboths vineyard; especially giuing him a better, or money for it. Neither was it a vaine scruple in Naboth, to conferue his ancestors inheritance. For both his denial is here iustified, and Achabs extortion condemned. S. Ambrose li. 2. of sic c. 9. counteth Naboth a Martyr. See Amos. 1. Reg. 8. (b) To auoid horroure of blasphemie holie scripture often vseth the verme tl. sing for cu. sing.*

ND after these words, at that tyme Naboth the Iezrahelite had a vineyard, which was in Iezrahel, beside the palace of Achab the King of Samaria. 2. Achab therefore spake to Naboth, saying: Giue me thy vineyard, that I may make me a garden of herbes, because it is nigh, and ioyning to my house, and (a) I wil giue thee for it a better vineyard: or if thou thinke it more comodious for thee, the price of siluer, so much as it is worth. 3. To whom Naboth answered: Our Lord be merciful to me, that I giue not the inheritance of my fathers to thee. 4. Achab therefore came into his house with indignation and fretting vpon the word that Naboth the Iezrahelite had spoken to him, saying: I wil not giue thee the inheritance of my fathers. And casting himself vpon his bed, he turned away his face to the wal, and did not eat bread. 5. And Iezabel his wife went in vnto him, and sayd to him: What is this matter, whereupon thy soule is greued: and why eatest thou not bread? 6. Who answered her: I spake to Naboth the Iezrahelite, and sayd to him: Giue me thy vineyard, taking money for it: or if it please thee, I wil giue thee a better vineyard for it. And he sayd: I wil not giue thee my vineyard. 7. Iezabel therefore his wife sayd to him: Thou art of great authoritie, and doest wel gouerne the Kingdome of Israel: Arise, and eat bread, and be of good cheer, I wil giue thee the vineyard of Naboth the Iezrahelite. 8. She therefore wrote letters in the name of Achab, and signed them with his ring, and sent to the ancients, and the chiefe men that were in his citie, and dwelt with Naboth. 9. And this was the tenor of the letters: Proclame a fast, and make Naboth sit among the chiefe of the people, 10. and suborne two men the children of Belial agaynt him, and let them beare false testimony: that he hath (b) blessed God and the King: and bring him forth, and stone him, and so let him die. 11. His citizens therefore the ancients and chiefe men, that dwelt with him in the citie, did as Iezabel had commanded them, and as it was written in the letters which she sent to them: 12. they proclaimed a fast, and made Naboth sitte among the chiefe of the people. 13. And two men the children of the diuel being brought forth, they made them sitte agaynst him. but they, as deuclish men, gaue testimonie agaynst him before the multitude : Naboth hath blessed God and the King : for the which thing they brought him forth without the citie, and killed him with stones. 14. And they sent to Iezabel, saying : Naboth is stoned, and is dead. 15. And it came to passe, when Iezabel had heard that Naboth was stoned, and dead, she spake to Achab : Arise, and possesse the vineyard of Naboth the Iezrahelite, who would not agree vnto thee, and giue it taking money : for Naboth liueth not, but is dead. 16. Which when Achab had heard, to wit, that Naboth was dead, he arose, and went downe into the vineyard of Naboth the Iezrahelite, to possesse it. 17. The word of our Lord therefore came to Elias the Thesbite, saying : 18. Arise, and goe downe to meet Achab the King of Israel, who is in Samaria : behold he goeth downe to the vineyard of Naboth, to possesse it : 19. and thou shalt speake to him, saying : Thus sayth our Lord : Thou hast slayne, moreouer also thou hast possist. And after these words thou shalt adde : Thus sayth our Lord : In this place, wherein the dogs haue licked the bloud of Naboth, they * shal licke thy bloud also. 20. And Achab sayd to Elias : Hast thou found me to be anemie? Who sayd : I haue found thee, for that thou art sold to doe euil in the sight of our Lord. 21. Behold I wil bring euil vpon thee, and wil cut downe thy posteritie, and wil kil of Achab him that pisseth agaynst the wal, and the inclosed, and the last in Israel. 22. And I wil make thy house, as the house of Ieroboam the sonne of Nabad, and as the house of Baasa the sonne of Ahias : because thou hast done to prouoke me to anger, and hast made Israel to sinne. 23. But of Iezabel also our Lord spake, saying : The dogs shal eate Iezabel in the field of Iezrahel. 24. If Achab die in the citie, the dogs shal eate him : but if he die in the field, the foules of the ayre shal eate him. 25. Therefore there was not such an other as Achab, who (e) was sold to doe euil in the sight of our Lord : for his wife Iezabel set him on, 26. and he became abominable, in so much that he folowed the idols, which the Amorrheites had made, whom our Lord consumed before the face of the children of Israel. 27. Therefore when Achab had heard these words, he rent his garments, and couered his flesh with haircloth, and fasted, and slept in sackcloth, and walked casting downe his head. 28. And the word of our Lord came to Elias the Thesbite, saying : 29. Hast thou not seen Achab humbled before me? therefore, because he hath humbled himself for my sake, I wil not bring in the euil in his dayes, but in his sonnes daies wil I bring the euil vpon his house.

Achab King of Israel consulting and believing false Prophets rather then Micheas a true Prophet, accompanied with Iosaphat King of Iuda, resolvetb to fight against the Syrians for Ramoth Galaad. 26. Committeb Micheas to prison, 29. proceedeth to the warre, 34. is staine, and Ochozias succeedeth. 41. Iosaphat refuseth to traffike longer with Ochozias, dieth, & his sonne Ioram reigneth. 52. Ochozias foloweth the euil steps of his parent.

HERE passed therefore three yeares without warre between Syria and Israel. 2. And in the third yeare, Iosaphat the King of Iuda went downe to the King of Israel. 3. (And the King of Israel sayd to his seruants: are you ignorant that Ramoth Galaad is ours, and we neglect to take it out of the hand of the King of Syria?) 4. And he sayd to Iosaphat: Wilt thou come with me to fight into Ramoth Galaad? 5. And Iosaphat sayd to the King of Israel: As I am, so thou also: my people and thy people are one: and my horsemen thy horsemen. And Iosaphat sayd to the King of Israel: Aske, I beseech thee, this day the word of our Lord. 6. The King of Israel therefore assembled the Prophets, about foure hundred men, and he sayd to them: Shal I goe into Ramoth Galaad to fight, or sitte stil? Who answered: Goe vp, and our Lord wil giue it into the Kings hand. 7. And Iosaphat sayd: (a) Is there not here some Prophet of our Lord, that we may aske by him? 8. And the King of Israel sayd to Iosaphat: There is one man least, by whom we may aske our Lord: but I hate him, because he doeth not Prophecie vnto me good, but euil, Micheas the sonne of Iemla. To whom Iosaphat sayd: Speake not so, o King. 9. The King of Israel therefore called a certaine eunuch, and sayd to him: Make hast, and bring hither Micheas the sonne of Iemla. 10. And the King of Israel, and Iosaphat the King of Iuda sate each in his throne clothed with royal attyre, in a court beside the doore of the gate of Samaria, & al the Prophets prophecied before them. 11. And Sedecias the sonne of Chanaan made himself (b) hornes of yron, and sayd: Thus sayth our Lord: With these shalt thou strike Syria, til thou destroy it. 12. And al the Prophets in like manner prophecied, saying: Ascend into Ramoth Galaad, and goe prosperously, & our Lord wil deliuer into the Kings hands. 13. But the messenger, that went to cal Micheas, spake to him, saying: Behold the words of the Prophets with one mouth preach good things to the King: let thy word therefore be like to theirs, and speake good things. 14. To whom Micheas sayd: Our Lord liueth, whatsoever our Lord shal tel me, that wil I speake. He therefore came to the King, and the King, sayd to him: Micheas, shal we goe into Ramoth Galaad to fight, or sit stil? To whom he answered: (c) Ascend, and goe prosperously, and our Lord wil deliuer it into the Kings hands. 16. But the King sayd to him: I adiure thee agayne and agayne, that thou speake not to me but that which is true in the name of our Lord. 17. And he sayd: I saw al Israel dispersed in the mountaynes, as sheep not hauing a shepheard, and our Lord sayd: These haue no maister, let euerie man returne into his house in peace. (18. Therefore the King of Israel sayd to Iosaphat: Did I not tel thee, that he doth not Prophecie me good, but alwaies euil?) 19. But he adding, sayd: Therefore heare the word of our Lord: I saw our Lord sitting vpon his throne, and al the hoste of heauen assisting him on the right hand and on the left: 20. and our Lord sayd: Who shal deceiue Achab the King of Israel, that he may goe vp, and fal in Ramoth Galaad? And one sayd these manner of words, and an other otherwise. 21. And there came forth a spirit, and stood before our Lord, and sayd: I wil deceiue him. To whom our Lord spake: Wherein? 22. And he sayd: I wil goe forth, and be a lying spirit in the mouth of al his Prophets. And our Lord sayd: Thou shalt deceiue, and shalt preuayle: (d) goe forth, and doe so. 23. Now therefore behold our Lord hath giuen the spirit of lying in the mouth of al thy Prophets, that are here, and our Lord hath spoken euil agaynst thee. 24. And Sedecias the sonne of Chanaana came, and smote Micheas on the cheek, and sayd: Hath the Spirit of our Lord leaft me, and hath it spoken to thee? 25. And Micheas sayd: Thou shalt see in that day, when thou shalt enter into thy chamber, (e) within the chamber to be hid. 26. And the King of Israel sayd: Take Micheas, & let him tarie with Amon the gouernour of the citie, and with Ioab the sonne of Amelech, 27. and tel them: Thus sayth the King: Cast this man into prison, and feed him with bread of tribulation, and water of distresse, til I returne in peace. 28. And Micheas sayd: If thou returne in peace, our Lord hath not spoken in me. And he sayd: Heare al ye peoples. 29. Therefore the King of Israel went vp, and Iosaphat the King of Iuda into Ramoth Galaad. 30. The King of Israel therefore sayd to Iosaphat: Take armour, and goe into the battel, and put on thyne owne garments. Moreouer the King of Israel changed his habite, and went into the battel. 31. And the King of Syria had commanded the Princes of his chariots thirtie and two, saying: You shal not fight agaynst any lesser, or greater, but agaynst the King of Israel onlie. 32. When therefore the Princes of the chariots had seen Iosaphat, they suspected that he was the King of Israel, & making a violent assault they fought agaynst him: and Iosaphat cried out. 33. And the Princes of the chariots perceiued that he was not the King of Israel, and they ceased from him. 34. And a certaine man bent his bow, directing the arrow at al aduerture, and (f) by chance he strucke the King of Israel between the lungs and the stomacke. But he sayd to his cochere: Turne thy hand, and

f) It happened by chance in respect of the archers inten-carrie me out of the armie, because I am grieuously wounded. 35. The battel therefore was fought that day, and the King of Israel stood in his chariot against the Syrians, and he died in the euening: and the blood of the wound ranne into the middes of the chariot, 36. and the herauld sounded in al the armie before the sunne set, saying: Euerie man returne into his citie, and into his countrie. 37. And the King died, and was carried into Samaria: and they buried the King in Samaria, 38. & washed his chariot in the poole of Samaria, and the dogs licked his blood, and they washed the raynes of the bridle, according to the word of our Lord which he had spoken. 39. But the rest of the words of Achab, and al that he did, and the house of yuorie that he built, and of al the cities that he built, are not these things written in the Book of the words of the daies of the Kings of Israel? 40. Achab therefore slept with his fathers, and Ochozias his sonne reigned for him. 41. But Iosaphat the sonne of Afa began to reigne ouer Iuda the fourth yeare of Achab the King of Israel. 42. Fiue and thirtie yeares old was he when he began to reigne, and fiue and twentie yeares he reigned in Ierusalem: the name of his mother was Azuba the daughter of Salai. 43. And he walked in al the way of Afa his father, and he declined not from it: and he did that which was right in the sight of our Lord. 44. But yet he tooke not away the excelses: for as yet the people did sacrifice, and burnt incense in the excelses. 45. And Iosaphat had peace with the King of Israel. 46. But the rest of the words of Iosaphat, and his works, which he did, and his battels, are not these things written in the Book of the words of the daies of the Kings of Iuda? 47. Yea and the remnant of the effeminate, which remayned in the daies of Afa his father, he tooke out of the land. 48. Neither was there then a King appoynted in Edom. 49. But King Iosaphat had made nauies on the sea, which should saile into Ophir for gold: and they could not goe, because they were broken in Afiongaber. 50. Then sayd Ochozias the sonne of Achab to Iosaphat: Let my seruants goe with thy seruants in the ships. And Iosaphat would not. 51. And Iosaphat slept with his fathers, and was buried with them in the Citie of David his father: and Ioram his sonne reigned for him. 52. And Ochozias the sonne of Achab began to reigne ouer Israel in Samaria, in the seuententh yeare of Iosaphat the King of Iuda, and he reigned ouer Israel two yeares. 53. And he did euil in the sight of our Lord, and walked in the way of his father and his mother, and in the way of Ieroboam the sonne of Nabat, who made Israel to sinne. 54. He serued also Baal, and adored him, and prouoked our Lord the God of Israel, according to al things which his father had done.

THE ARGUMENT OF THE FOURTH BOOK OF KINGS.

HIS fourth Book prosecuteth the historie of the two Kingdomes of Iuda & Israel, to the general captiuities of the both. Shewing manie special vertues and heroical acts of good Kings, Prophets, and other goodlie persons; and diuers crimes of the wicked. For in Iuda were some good Kings, highly commended; some evil, whom God spared in this world for Dauid sake. so that in both sorts King Dauides seede continued in his throne, and royal state (first in the twelue tribes, afterward in two) nere foure hundred fourscore yeares. And after the captiuitie (as wil appeare in the age ensuing) it was conserued in honour and estimation, til C^rist our Sauiour. But in the Kingdome of Israel (or ten tribes) which stooe about two hundred fiftie yeares, was great change, by raising and extirpating royal families. At their Kings were bad, yet partly were set vp by God himself, partly suffered to reigne; and in both Kingdomes were true and false Prophets, God vsing the ministerie of al, to his owne glorie, the good of his Church, and punishment of others, and sometimes of themselves. So this Book may be diuided into two parts. In the seuenteen former chapters, are recorded ioyntly and mixtly the principal things done in both Kingdomes, til the captiuitie of the ten tribes. The other eight chapters concerne other things done in Iuda, until their captiuitie in Babylon.

The Kingdom of Iuda conserued in Dauides seede.

Many royal families begun and destroyed in the Kingdom of Israel.

This book diuided into two parts.

AND Moab moued warre agaynst Israel, after that Achab was dead. 2. And Ochozias fel through the stanchions of his vpper chamber which he had in Samaria, and was sicke: and he sent messengers, saying to them: Goe, consult Beelzebub the God of Accaron, whether I may liue of this my infirmitie. 3. And an Angel of our Lord spake to Elias the Thesbite, saying: Arise, and goe vp to meete the messengers of the King of Samaria, and thou shalt say to the: What is there not a God in Israel, that ye goe to consult Beelzebub the God of Accaron? 4. Wherefore thus saith our Lord: From the bed on which thou art ascended, thou shalt not goe downe, but dying thou shalt die. And Elias went away. 5. And the messengers returned to Ochozias. Who said to them: Why are you returned? 6. But they answered him: A man mer vs, and sayd to vs: Goe, and returne to the King that sent you, and you shalt say to him: Thus saith our Lord: Dost thou therefore send to consult Beelzebub the God of Accaron, because there was no God in Israel? Therefore from the bed, which thou art vpon, thou shalt not goe downe, but dying thou shalt dye. 7. Who said to them: What shape and habite had that man, which mette you, and spake these words? 8. But they said: A hairie man, and girded about his raines with a girdle of lether: Who said: (a) It is Elias the Thesbite. 9. And he sent vnto him a captaine of fiftie men, and the fiftie that were vnder him. Who went vp and sayd to him sitting in the top of the mount: Man of God; the King hath commanded that thou come downe. 10. And Elias answering, sayd to the captaine of fiftie men: If I be a man of God, (b) let fyre come downe from heauen, and deuour thee, and thy fiftie. Fyre therefore came downe from heauen, and deuoured him and the fiftie men that were with him. 11. And he sent againe vnto him another captaine of fiftie men, and his fiftie with him. Who spake to him: Man of God, thus saith the King: Make hast, come downe. 12. Elias answering said: If I be a man of God, let fyre come downe from heauen, and deuour thee, and thy fiftie. Fyre therefore came downe from heauen, & deuoured him, & his fiftie. 13. Agayne he sent a third captaine of fiftie men, and the fiftie that were with him. Who when he was come, bowed his knees toward Elias, and prayed him and sayd: Man of God despise not my life and the liues of thy seruants that are with me. 14. Behold fyre came downe from heauen, and hath deuoured the two first captaynes of fiftie men, and the fifties, that were with them: but now I beseech thee that thou haue mercie on my life. 15. And an Angel of our Lord spake to Elias, saying: Goe downe with him, feare not. He therefore arose, and went downe with him to the King, 16. and spake to him: Thus saith our Lord: Because thou hast sent messengers to consult Beelzebub the God of Accaron, as though there were not a God in Israel, of whom thou mightest aske the word, therefore from the bed which thou art ascended vpon, thou shalt not descend, but dying thou shalt die. 17. He died therefore according to the word of our Lord which Elias spake, and Ioram his brother reigned for him, in the second yeare of Ioram the sonne of Iosaphat the King of Iuda: for he had no sonne. 18. But the rest of the words of Ochozias, which he wrought, are not these written in the Booke of the words of the daies of the Kings of Israel:

(a) Elias was knowen by his much haire, and distinct habite, from ordinary men.

(b) In zeale of iustice Elias procured fire from heauen to burne the proud captaynes and their men, as he procured fire to burne the holocaust, and then slew the false Prophets. 3. Reg. 18. apud. Ang li. 2. c. 20. de mirabil. S. Script.

And when he was come downe to Bethel, the children of the Prophets, that were in Bethel, went forth to Eliſeus, and ſayd to him: Doeſt thou know, that this day our Lord wil take thy maſter from thee? Who answered: I alſo know it: hold your peace. 4. And Elias ſayd to Eliſeus: Sit here, becauſe our Lord hath ſent me into Iericho. And he ſayd: Our Lord liueth, and thy ſoule liueth, I wil not leaue thee. Who answered: Thou haſt asked a hard thing: Neuertheleſſe if thou ſee me when I ſhal be taken from thee, thou ſhalt haue that thou haſt asked: but if thou ſee me not, thou ſhalt not haue it. 11. And when they went forward, and going talked together, behold a tyrie chariote, and tyrie horſes parted them two aſunder: and Elias aſcended by a hurle wind into heauen. 12. And Eliſeus ſaw him, and cried: My father, my father, the chariot of Iſrael and the guider therof. And he ſaw him no more: and he tooke his garments, and rent them in two pieces. 13. And he tooke

And he sayd: Where is the God of Elias, now also? and he smote the waters, and they were diuided this way and that way, and Elifeus passed ouer. 15. And the children of the Prophets, that were in Iericho, ouer agaynst him seeing him, sayd: The spirit of Elias hath rested vpon Elifeus. And comming to meete him, (c) adored him flat to the ground, 16. and they sayd to him: Behold, there are with thy seruants fittie strong men, that can goe, and seeke thy maister, lest perhaps the spirit of our Lord hath taken him, and cast him vpon one of the mountaines, or into one of the valleues. Who sayd: Send not. 17. And they forced him, til he agreed, and sayd. Send. And they sent fittie men. Who when they had sought three daies, found not. 18. And they returned to him: but he dwelt in Iericho, & he sayd to them: Did I not say to you: Send not? 19. The men also of the citie sayd to Elifeus: Behold the habitation of this citie is verie good, as thy selfe my Lord perceiuest: but the waters are very il, and the ground barren. 20. But he sayd: Fetch me a new vessel, and put salt into it. Which whē they had brought, 21. going out to the fountayne of the waters, he cast salt into it, and sayd: Thus sayth our Lord: I haue amended these waters, and death shal no more be in them, nor barrenesse. 22. The waters therefore were amended vntil this day, according to the word of Elifeus, which he spake. 23. And frō thence he went vp into Bethel: & whē he went vp by the way, litle laddes came forth out of the citie, and mocked him, saying: Come vp baldhead, come vp baldhead. 24. Who when he had looked backe, he saw them, and cursed them in the name of our Lord: and two beares came forth out of the forest, and tore of them two & fourtie boyes. 25. And from thence he went into the mount of Carmel, and from thence he turned into Samaria.

c) They adored him for his holines, and because God had giuen him the spirit of so great a Prophet, not for wordlie, but spiritual excellencie, and therefore not with ciuil but religious honour.

Moreouer Mesa the King of Moab, nourished manie sheepe, & he payed to the King of Israel an hundred thousand lambs, and an hundred thousand rammes with their fleeces. 5. And when Achab was dead, he brake the league, which he had made with the King of Israel. 6. Therefore King Ioram went forth that day out of Samaria, and mustered al Israel. 7. And he sent to Iosaphat the King of Iuda. saying: The King of Moab is reuolted from me, come with me against him to battel. Who answered: I wil come vp: he that is mine, is thine: my people, thy people, & my horses thy horses. 8. And he said: What way shal we goe vp? but he answered: By the desert of Idumea. 9. Therefore the King of Israel, and the King of Iuda, and the King of Edom went forward, and compassed seuen daies journey, neither was there water for the armie, and the beasts that folowed them. 10. And the King of Israel said: Alas-alas alas, our Lord hath gathered vs three Kings together, that he might deliuer vs into the hands of Moab. 11. And Iosaphat said: Is there not here a Prophet of our Lord, that we may beseech our Lord by him? And one of the seruants of the King of Israel answered: Here is Elifeus the sonne of Saphat, which powred water vpon the hãds of Elias. 12. And Iosaphat said: The word of our Lord is with him. And the King of Israel went downe to him, and Iosaphat the King of Iuda, and the King of Edom. 13. And Elifeus said to the King of Israel: What is to me and thee? goe to the Prophets of thy father, and thy mother. And the King of Israel said to him: Why hath our Lord gathered together these three Kings, that he might deliuer thé into the hands of Moab? 14. And Elifeus said to him: The Lord of hostes liueth, in whose sight I stand, If I did not reuerence the face of Iosaphat the King of Iuda, I would not certes haue harkned to thee, nor looked on thee. 15. But now bring me hither a plaier on instruments. And when the player sang, the hand of our Lord came vpon him, & he said: 16. Thus saith our Lord: Make the chanel of this torrent ditches and ditches. 17. For thus saith our Lord: You shal not see winde, nor raine: and this chanel shal be filled with waters, & you shal drinke, and your families, & your beasts. 18. And this is a smal thing in the sight of our Lord: moreouer he wil deliuer also Moab into your hands. 19. And you shal strike euerie fenced citie, and euerie principal citie, and (a) shal cut downe al fruitful trees, and shal stop vp al fountaines of waters, and euerie goodlie field you shal couer with stones. 20. It came to passe therfore in the morning, when they vsed to offer the sacrifice, and behold, water came by the way of Edom, and the ground was filled with waters. 21. But al the Moabites hearing that the Kings were come vp to fight against them, they called together al that were girded with a belt vpon them, and they stood in the borders. 22. And they went forward into the campe of Israel: Moreouer Israel rying vp, strucke Moab: but they fled before them. They therefore that had ouercome, came and strucke Moab, 25. and destroyed the cities: and euerie principal field they filled euerie man casting stones: and they stopt vp al the fountaines of waters: and cut downe al trees that bare fruit, so that there remained onlie brike wals: and the citie was beset of the slingers, and for a great part therof was strucken. 26. The woman therefore went, and shut the doore vpon her, and vpon her sonnes: they brought her vessels, and she powred in. 6. And when the vessels were full, she sayd to her sonne: Bring me yet a vessel. And he answered: I haue none. And the oyle stood. 7. And she came, and told the man of God. 8. And there came a certaine day , and Elifeus passed by Sunam : and there was there a great woman , which held him to eate bread : and when he passed often that way , he turned in to her to eate bread. 9. Who sayd to her husband : I perceiue that this is a holie man of God , which passeth by vs often. 10. Let vs therfore make him a litle chamber , and set him a litle bed in it , and a table , and a stoole , and a candlesticke , that when he commeth to vs he may tarie there. 11. There came therfore a certaine day , and comming he turned in to the chamber , and rested there. 12. And he sayd to Giezi his seruant : Cal this Sunamite. Who when he had called her , and she stode before him , 13. he sayd to his seruant : Speake to her : Behold thou hast diligently ministred to vs in al things , what wilt thou that I doe for thee ? hast thou any busines , and wilt thou that I speake to the King , or the general of the warfare ? Who answered : I dwel in the middes of myne owne people. 14. And he sayd : What wilt she then that I doe for her ? And Giezi sayd : Aske not : for she hath no sone , & her husband is old. 15. He therfore commanded him to cal her : who when she was called , and stood before the doore , 16. he sayd to her : At this tyme , this self same houre , if life accompanie , thou shalt haue a sonne in thy wombe. But she answered : Doe not I beseech thee my Lord , man of God , doe not lie to thy handmaid. 17. And the woman conceiued , and brought forth a sonne in that time , and in the self-same houre , that Elifeus had sayd. 18. And the childe grew. And vpon a certaine day , when going forth he went to his father , vnto the reapers , 19. he sayd to his father : My head aketh , my head aketh. But he said to his seruant , take him , and bring him to his mother , 20. who when he had taken him , and brought him to his mother , she set him vpon her knees vntil noone , and he dyed. 21. And she went vp , and laid him vpon the bed of the man of God , and inut the doore : and going forth. 22. called her husband , and sayd : Send with me , I beseech thee , one of the seruants , & an asse , that I may runne to the man of God , and returne. 23. Who sayd to her : For what cause doest thou goe to him ? The Calends be not to day , nor the Sabbath. Who answered : I wil goe. 24. And she saddled the asse , and commanded her seruant : driue , and make hast , make no stay in going. And doe that which I command thee. 25. She therfore went forward , and came to the man of God into mount Carmel : and when the man of God saw her ouer againt him , he said to Giezi his seruant : Behold that Sunamite. 26. Goe therfore to meet her , & say to her : Is al wel about thee & about thy huthand , and about thy sonne ? Who answered : Wel. 27. And when she was come to the man of God into the mount , she caught his feet : and Giezi came to remoue her. And the man of God said : Let her alone , for her soule is in anguish , and our Lord hath hid it from me , & hath not told me. 28. Who said to him : Did I aske a sonne of my Lord ? Moreouer the mother of the childe said: Our Lord liueth, and thy soule liuerh, I wil not leaue thee. He arose therefore, and folowed her. 31. But Giezi was gone before them, and had put the staffe vpon the face of the childe, and there was not voice, nor sence: and he returned to meet him, and told him, saying: (*) The childe is not risen. 32. Elifeus therefore went into the house, and behold the childe lay dead on his bed: 33. and going in he shut the doore vpon him, and vpon the childe, and prayed to our Lord. 34. And he went vp, and lay vpon the childe, and he put his mouth vpon his mouth, and his eies vpon his eies, & his hands vpon his hands: and he bowed himself ouer him, and the childs flesh was warmed. 35. But he returning, walked vp and downe in the house, once hither and thither: and he went vp, and lay vpon him: and the childe gaped seuen tymes, and opened his eies. 36. And he called Giezi, and said to him: Calthis Sunamite. Who being called, went in vnto him: Who said: Take thy sonne. 37. She came and fel at his feet, and adored vpon the ground: and tooke her sonne, and went out, 38. and Elifeus returned into Galgal. And there was a famine in the land, and the children of the Prophets dwelt before him; and he sayd to one of his seruants: Set on a great pot, and seeth broth for the children of the Prophets. 39. And one went out into the field to gather wilde herbs: and he found as it were a wilde vine, and gathered of it the colocynthides of the field, and filled his mantel, and returning cut it into the pot of broth, for he knew not what it was. 40. They therefore powred it to their felowes to eate: and when they had tasted of the broth, they cried, saying: Death is in the pot, man of God. And they could not eate. 41. But he sayd: Bring meale, and when they had brought it, he cast it into the pot, and said: powre in for the multitude, that they may eate. And there was no more anie biternesse in the pot. 42. And a certaine man came from Baalsalifa bringing to the man of God loaves of the first fruits, twentie barley loaves, and new wheate in his scrip. But he said: Giue to the people, that they may eate. 43. And his seruant answered him: How much is this, that I should set it before an hundred men? Agayne he sayd: Giue to the people, that they may eate: for thus saith our Lord: They shal eate, and there shal be leaft. 44. He therefore set it before them: who did eate, and there was leaft according to the word of our Lord.

NAAMAN the General of the warfare of the King of Syria, was a great man with his Lord, & honourable: for by him our Lord gaue health to Syria: and he was a valiant man and rich, but aleper. 2. Moreouer out of Syria there were come forth robbers, and had led away captiue out of the Land of Israel a litle girle, which wayted vpo the wife of Naamā. 3. Who said to her mistresse: I would my Lord had been with the Prophet, that is in Samaria: surely he would haue cured him from the leprofie, which he hath. 4. Naaman therefore went in to his Lord, and told him saying: Thus and thus hath the wench of the Land of Israel spoken. 5. And the King of Syria said to him: Goe, & I wil send letters to the King of Israel. Who whē he was set forward, & had taken with him ten talents of siluer, & six thousand pieces of gold, & ten change of raymēt. 6. he brought the letters to the King of Israel, in these words: When thou shalt receiue this letter, know that I haue sent to thee Naaman my seruāt, that thou mayest cure him of his leprofie. 7. And when the King of Israel had read the letters, he rent his garments, & said: Am I God, that I can kil, and giue life, because this man hath sent to me, that I should cure a man of his leprofie? marke, and see that he seeketh occasiōs against me. 8. Which when Elifeus the man of God had heard, to wit, that the King of Israel had rent his garments, he sent to him, saying: Why hast thou rent thy garments? let him come to me, & let him know that there is a Prophet in Israel. 9. Naaman therefore came with horses & chariots: & stood at the doore of the house of Elifeus: 10. and Elifeus set a messēger to him, saying: Goe & be washed seue times in Iordan, and thy flesh shall receiue health, & thou shalt be cleane. 11. Naamā being angrie departed, saying: I thought he would come out to me, and standing would inuocate the name of the Lord his God, and touch with his hand the place of the leprofie, and cure me. 12. What are not Abana and Pharphar, the riuers of Damascus, better then al the waters of Israel, that I may be wained in them, and be made cleane? Therefore when he had turned himself, & went away with indignation, 13. his seruants came vnto him, & spake to him: Father, & if the Prophet had sayd a great thing to thee, certes, thou inouldest haue done it: now much more wheras now he sayd vnto thee: Be washed, and thou shalt be cleane? 14. He went downe, and washed in Iordan seuen times according to the word of the man of God, and his flesh was restored, as the flesh of a litle child, and he was made cleane. 15. And returning to the man of God with al this trayne, he came, and stood before him, & sayd: In very deed I know that there is no other God in al the earth, but only in Israel. I beseech thee therefore to take a benediction of thy seruant. 16. But he answered: Our Lord liueth, before whom I stand, I wil not take it. And when he would haue forced him, he did in no wise agree. 17. And Naaman sayd: As thou wilt, but I beseech thee: graunt vnto me thy seruant, that I may take of (a) the earth the burden of two mules: for thy seruant wil no more make holocaust or victime to strange Gods, but to the Lord. 18. But this onlie is it, for which thou shalt beseech the Lord for thy seruant: When my maister shall goe into the temple of Remmon, to adore, and he leaning vpon my hand, if I shall adore in the temple of Remmon, he adoring in the same place, that the Lord pardon me thy seruant for this thing. 19. Who sayd to him: "Goe in peace. He therefore went from him in the spring time of the earth. 20. And (b) Giezi the seruant of the man of God sayd: My maister hath spared Naaman this Syrian, that he tooke not of him the things which he brought: Our Lord liueth, I wil runne after him, and wil take some thing of him. 21. And Giezi folowed at the backe of Naaman: whom when he saw running toward him, he leapt downe from his chariot to meet him, and said: Are al things wel? 22. And he sayd: Wel. my maister hath sent me to thee, saying: Euen now there are come to me two yong men from mount Ephraim, of the children of the Prophets: giue them a talent of siluer, and two change of rayment. 23. And Naaman sayd: It is better that thou take two talentes. And he forced him, and bound the two talentes of siluer in two bags, and the double rayment, and layd it vpon two of his seruants, who also caried it before him. 24. And when he was come now in the euening, he tooke it out of their hand, and layd it vp in the house, and dimissed the men, and they departed. 25. And himself going in stood before his maister. And Elifeus said: From whence comest thou Giezi? Who answered: Thy seruant hath not gone any whither. 26. But he sayd: Was not my hart present, when the man returned out of his chariote to meet thee? Now therefore thou hast receiued siluer, and taken rayment, to bye oliuets, and vineyards, and sheep, and oxen, and seruants, and handmaids. 27. But the leprosie also of Naaman shall cleaue to thee, and to thy seed, for euer. And he went out from him a leper as it were snow.

The case of going to heretical seruice, and Naamans going to the temple of an idol differ in diuers respects. Difference of times.

Of persons.

The things demanded differ much.

Personal presence at heretical seruice in England, a di-

19. Goe in peace.) Schismatikes, as they are commonly (but improperly) now called in England, which being in mind and iudgement Catholikes, goe sometimes to Protestants common prayers, or sermons, draw an excuse of their fact, from this warrant of the Prophet, permitting a Nobleman of Syria to goe and serue his King in the temple, when he adored an Idol. But whosoever wil duly consider this example, shal find great difference in respect of the times, places, persons, and of the very doubts proposed, between this mans case and ours. For before Christs Ghospel was promulgate, neither al Articles of faith were so expressly taught, nor the external profession therof so strictly commanded, as now they are in time of more grace, which giueth more ayde to mans weaknes, wherin also more perfection is required, and therefore our Sauour exacteth of al so confesse him, and his Religion, before men: els he wil denie them before his father. Likewise in the place, where this Nobleman dwelt, his presence in the temple, and seruice to the King, could not be accounted a reuolt from true religion, which was neuer professed there, nor be scandalous to anie man, being al Infidels: but in a christian cuntry, where al beare the name of Christians, especially where men are at controuersie about the true Christian religion, al that frequent, or repaire to the same assemblies, for publike seruice of God, are reputed to be of the same religion; or els dissemblers, as it were to haue no care of religion, knowing God, and not glorifying him as God, and reuolting from the truth which they had learned. The difference also of persons is great. For this Nobleman hauing before his conuersion setued his King, in the office of sustayning him, when he bowed to the Idol, if he should haue refused to doe the same, it would rather haue been supposed that he disdained his Maister, or shewed disloyaltie, then thought, that he refrayned for religion: whereas in our case, verie few doe such temporal seruice, about the King in the church: and such as doe carrie the sword, scepter, or the like, are accounted of that religion, which is there practised; except they manifest the contrarie, as this man did, and our men commonly doe not. Yea if anie doe say they are Catholikes, and yet goe to the Protestants church, they are counted of that rank S. Paul speaketh of, which confesse they know God, but denie him in their deedes. And those which refuse such an office, can not be iudged disloyal, because it is sufficiently knowne, that Catholikes refuse of mere conscience. An other most especial difference is in the things demanded. This Syrian promising expressly before the Prophet, and his owne great trayne, that he would neuer againe serue false Gods, and that he would serue the onlie true God, and for that purpose caried earth with him, to make an Altar for Sacrifice, and returning home preached the miracle wrought in himself, desired not to doe anie thing, wherby he might seeme to serue an Idol: but that when the King leaning vpon him should adore Remmon, he might bow with his maister, not adoring the Idol, for he resolued & promised the contrarie, but adoring God Almighty, in whō now he believed. And this the Prophet approued, in that time, place, and person to be lawful. But those that now in England goe to Protestants seruice, or sermons, doe neither publikly renounce al heresies, nor professe to frequent Masse, the true Sacrifice of the Christian Church, nor auouch the erecting of an Altar, but goe to Church, to shew themselves obedient to the Parliament law, which abandoned the true Diuine Seruice, and in place thereof appointed and commanded al to be present at a new forme of common prayer, thereby making it a diſtinctiue ſigne of conformitie, and participation in that religion, which theſe diſſemblers in their conſciences know to be falſe.

This example therefore doth in no ſort warrant their going to the heretical Church: but contrariwiſe admoniſheth al to take reſolution in our caſe (as Naaman did in his) of our Eliſeus, or ſpiritual Superiour. and if he ſhould ſay: Goe in peace, then might they pleade an excuſe, but he ſayth: None can goe without incurring grieuous ſinne, and eternal damnation. he caſe being ſo much different from Naamans. It is indeed more like to that of Eleazarus, and other Machabees, who were commanded by eating ſwines ſheſh, to depart from the law of God, and their fathers. Which by no meanes was lawfull to doe, nor to make ſhew of doing it, but rather to dye, as they did moſt gloriouſly.

And a great preparation of meates was ſet before them, and they did eat and drinke, and he diſmiſſed them, and they went away to their maiſter, & the robbers of Syria came no more into the Land of Iſrael. 24. He therefore sent a man before: & before that messenger came, he said to the a nciēts: Doe you know that this murderers sonne hath sent to cut off my head? See therefore, when the messenger shal come, shut the doore, and suffer him not to enter in: for behold the sound of his Masters feet in behind him. 33. Elifeus Prophecieth plentie of corne the next day, and death to a chief man that wil not belieue it. 3. Foure Lepers going to yeald themselues to the Syrians, 6. who by Gods providence are frighted and fled away, 9. bring newes therof to Samaria, 12. which by trial is found true. 16. And so there is plentie of corne, and the incredulous nobleman is trod to death with presse of multitude in the gate, as the Prophet foretold.

AND Elifeus sayd: Heare ye the word of our Lord: Thus sayth our Lord: At this time to morow a bushel of floure shal be at one stater, and two bushels of barley at one stater, in the gate of Samaria. 2. One of the Dukes, vpon whose hand the King leaued, answering the man of God, sayd: If our Lord shal make fludgates in heauen, (a) can that possibly be which thou speakest? Who sayd: Thou shalt see it with thine eyes, and shalt not eate thereof. 3. There were therefore foure men lepers, beside the entrance of the gate: who sayd one to an other: What meane we to be here til we die? 4. Whether we enter into the citie, we shal die for famine: or whether we tarie here, die we must: come therefore, & let vs runne away to the campe of Syria. If they spare vs, we shal liue: but if they wil kil vs, we shal die neuerthelesse. 5. They arose therefore in the euening, to come to the campe of Syria. And when they were come to the beginning of the campe of Syria, they found no man there. 6. For our Lord had made them in the campe of Syria to heare the sound of chariots, & horses, & of a verie great armie: & they sayd one to an other: Behold the King of Israel hath for wages hyred against vs the Kings of the Hethites, & of the Ægyptians, & they are come vpon vs. 7. They arose therefore, & fled in the darke, & leaft their tentes, and their horses and asses in the campe, and fled desirous to saue their liues only. 8. Therefore when these lepers were come to the beginning of the campe, they entred into one tabernacie, and did eate and drinke: and they tooke thence siluer, and gold, and rayment, and went, and hid it: againe they returned to an other tabernacle , and from thence likewise taking away they hid it. 9. And they said one to an other : We doe not wel : for this is a day of good tydings. If we shal hold our peace , and wil not tel vntil morning , we shal be blamed of a hainous offence : Come , let vs goe , and make report in the Kings court. 10. And when they were come to the gate of the citie , they told them saying : We went to the campe of Syria , and found no man there , but horses , and asses tyed , and the tents pitched. 11. The porters therefore went , and told it to the King within his palace. 12. Who arose in the night , and sayd to his seruants : I tel you what the Syrians haue done to vs : They know that we suffer great famine , and therefore they are gone out of the campe and lie hid in the fields , saying : When they shal come forth out of the citie , we wil take them aliue , and then we may enter into the citie. 13. But one of his seruants answered : Let vs take fise horses that are remaining in the citie (because they onlie are in the whole multitude of Israel for the other are consumed) and sending , we may trie. 14. They brought therefore two horses , and the King sent into the campe of the Syrians , saying , Goe ye , and see. 15. Who went after them as far as Iordan : and behold al the way was ful of rayment , and vessels , which the Syrians had cast away , when they were amased , and the messengers returning told the King. 16. And the people going forth spoyled the campe of Syria : & a bushel of floure became at one stater , and two buihels of barley at one stater , according to the word of our Lord. 17. Moreouer the King appoynted that Duke on whose hand he leaned , to stand at the gate : whom the multitude trode in the entrance of the gate , and he died , according as the man of God had spoken , when the King came downe to him. 18. And it came to passe according to the word of the man of God , which he spake to the King , when he sayd : Two buihels of barley shal be at one stater , and a buihel of floure at one stater , this verie tyme to morrow in the gate of Samaria : 19. when that Duke answered the man of God , and sayd : Although our Lord would make fludgates in the heauen , can this be done which thou speakest ? And he said to him : Thou shalt see with thine eies , and shalt not eat therof. 20. It chanced therefore to him as it was foretold , and the people trode him in the gate , and he died.

After ſeuē yeeres famine foretold by Eliſeus, the ſunamite woman returning home, recouereth her landes and reuenewes. 7. Eliſeus foreſheweth the death of Benadad King of Syria, and cruel reigne of Hazael. 16. Ioram reigning in Iuda, the Idumeans reuolt from him: alſo Lotua. 23. He dieth; and his ſonne Ochozias ſucceedeth.

AND Eliſeus ſpake to the woman, whoſe ſonne he reſtored to life, ſaying: Arife, goe thou and thy houſe, and ſourne wherſoeuer thou ſhalt finde: for our Lord hath caued a famine, and it ſhal come vpon the land ſeuē yeeres. 2. Who aroſe, and did according to the word of the man of God: and going with her houſhold, ſhe ſoiourned in the land of the Philiftiims many dayes. 3. And when the ſeuē yeeres were ended, the woman returned out of the Land of the Philiftiims: and ſhe went forth to ſpeake to the King for her houſe, and for her lands. 4. And the King ſpake with Giezi the ſeruant of the man of God, ſaying: Tel me al the meruelous things that Eliſeus hath done. 5. And when he had told the King how he had rayſed a dead man, the woman appeared, whoſe ſonne he had reuiued, crying to the King for her houſe and her lands. And Giezi ſayd: My Lord King, this is the woman, and this is her ſonne, whom Eliſeus rayſed. 6. And the King asked the woman: who told him. And the King gaue her an eunuch, ſaying: Reſtore her al things that are hers, and al the reucnewes of the lands, from the day that the leaſt the land vntill this preſent. 7. Eliſeus alſo came to Damafcus, & Benadad the King of Syria was ſicke: & they told him, ſaying: The man of God commeth hither. 8. And the King ſayd to Hazael: Take with thee preſents, & goe to meete the man of God, & conſult the Lord by him, ſaying: Can I eſcape of this myne infirmitie? 9. Hazael therfore went to meete him, hauing with him preſents, & al good things of Damafcus, the lodes of fourtie camels. And when he ſtood before him, he ſayd: Thy ſonne Benadad the King of Syria hath ſent me to thee, ſaying: Can I recouer of this mine infirmitie? 10. And Eliſeus ſayd to him: Goe, tel him (a) Thou ſhalt be healed: but our Lord hath ſhewed me that dying he ſhal die. 11. And he ſtood with him, and was troubled ſo far that he bluſhed: and the man of God wept. 12. To whom Hazael ſaid: Why doeth my Lord weep? But he ſayd: Becauſe I know what euils thou wilt doe to the childre of Iſrael. Their feſed cities thou wilt burne with fyre, and their yongmen thou wilt kil with the ſword, & their litle ones thou wilt daſh in picces, and women with childe thou wilt diuide. 13. And Hazael ſayd: What am I thy ſeruant a dog, that I ſhould doe this great thing? And Elifeus sayd: Our Lord hath shewed me that thou shalt be King of Syria. 14. Whowhen he was departed from Elifeus, came to his master, who sayd to him: What sayd Elifeus to thee? But he answered: He told me: Thou shalt recouer health. 15. And when the next day was come, he tooke a couerlette, and powred water thereon, and spred it vpon his face: who being dead, Hazael reigned for him. 16. In the fifth yeare of Ioram the sonne of Achab the King of Israel, and of Iosaphat the King of Iuda, reigned Ioram the sonne of Iosaphat the King of Iuda. 17. He was two and thirtie yeares old when he began to reigne, and he reigned eight yeares in Ierusalem. 18. And he walked in the waies of the Kings of Israel, as the house of Achab had walked: for (b) the daughter of Achab was his wife: and he did that which is euil in the sight of our Lord. 19. But our Lord would not destroy Iuda, for Dauid his seruant, as he had promised him, to giue him a lampe to him, & to his children alwaies. 20. In his daies reuolted Edom, from being vnder Iuda, and made to it-self a King. 21. And Ioram came to Seira, and al the chariots with him: and he arose in the night, and struck the Idumeans, that had beset him, and the captaynes of the chariots, and the people fled into their tabernacles. 22. Edom therefore reuolted from being vnder Iuda, vntil this day. Then Lobna also reuolted at that time. 23. But the rest of the words of Ioram, and al that he did, are not these things written in the Book of the words of the Kings of Iuda? 24. And Ioram slept with his fathers, and was buried with them in the Citie of Dauid, and Ochozias his sonne reigned for him. 25. In the twelfth yeare of Ioram the sonne of Achab the King of Israel, reigned Ochozias the sonne of Ioram the King of Iuda. 26. Two and twentie yeares old was Ochozias when he began to reigne, and he reigned one yeare in Ierusalem: the name of his mother was Athalia the daughter of Amri the King of Israel. 27. And he walked in the waies of the house of Achab: & he did that which is euil before our Lord, as the house of Achab: for he was the sonne in law of the house of Achab. 28. He went also with Ioram the sonne of Achab, to fight agaynst Hazael the King of Syria in Ramoth Galaad, and the Syrians wounded Ioram. 29. Who returned to be cured in Iezrahel: because the Syrians wounded him in Ramoth fighting agaynst Hazael the King of Syria. Moreouer Ochozias the sonne of Ioram the King of Iuda went downe to visite Ioram the sonne of Achab into Iezrahel, because he was sicke there.

AND Elifeus the Prophet called one of the children of the Prophets, and sayd to him: Girde thy loynes, and take this litle boxe of oyle in thy hand, and goe into Ramoth Galaad. 2. And when thou shalt come thither, thou shalt see Iehu the sonne of Iosaphat the sonne of Namfi: and going in thou shalt rayse him out of the middes of his brethren, and shalt bring him into an inner chamber. 3. And holding the litle boxe of oyle, thou shalt powre vpon his head, and shalt say: Thus sayth our Lord: I haue anoynted thee King ouer Israel. And thou shalt open the doore, and fly, and shalt not stay there. 4. The yongman therefore the childe of a Prophet went into Ramoth Galaad, 5. and entred in thither: and behold the captaynes of the armie sate, and he sayd: I haue a word to thee o Prince: And Iehu sayd: to whom of vs al? But he sayd: To thee o Prince. 6. And he arose, and went into the chāber: but he powred oyle vpon his head, and sayd: Thus sayth our Lord the God of Israel: I haue anoynted thee King ouer the people of the Lord of Israel, 7. and thou shalt strike the house of Achab thy master, and I wil reuenge the bloud of my seruants the Prophets, and the bloud of al the seruants of the Lord of the hand of Iezabel. 8. And I wil destroy al the house of Achab, and kil of Achab him that pisseth agaynst a wal, and the thut vp, and the meanest in Israel. 9. And I wil make the house of Achab as the house of Ieroboam the sonne of Nabat, and as the house of Baasa the sonne of Ahias. 10. Iezabel also the dogges thal eate in the field of Iezrahel, neither thal there be anie to burie her. And he opened the doore, & fled. 11. And Iehu went forth to his masters seruants. Who said to him: Are al things wel? Why came this madde man to thee? Who sayd to them: You know the man, and what he spake. 12. But they answered: It is false, but rather doe thou tel vs. Who sayd to them: Thus and thus he spake to me: and he sayd: Thus sayth our Lord, I haue anoynted thee King ouer Israel. 13. They therefore made hast, and euerie man taking his mantel layd it vnder his feet after the similitude of a iudgement seat, and they sounded the trumper, & sayd: Iehu hath the Kingdom. 14. Iehu therefore the sonne of Iosaphat the sonne of Namfi conspired agaynst Ioram: Moreouer Ioram had besieged Ramoth Galaad, he and al Israel agaynst Hazael the King of Syria: 15. and was returned to be cured in Iezrael of the wounds, for the Syrians had wounded him, fighting againſt Hazael the King of Syria. And Iehu ſayd: If it pleaſe you, let no man goe forth fugitiue out of the citie, leſt he goe, and tel in Iezrahel. 16. And he mounted, and went into Iezrahel: for Ioram was ſicke there, and Ochozias the King of Iuda was come downe to viſite Ioram. 17. The watchman therefore, that ſtood vpon the toure of Iezrahel, ſaw the troupe of Iehu comming, & ſaid: I ſee a troupe. And Ioram ſaid: Take a Chariote, and ſend to meete them, and let him that goeth ſay: Are al things wel? 18. He went therefore, that was gotten vp into the chariote, to meet him, and ſayd: Thus ſaith the King: Are al things peaceable? And Iehu ſayd: What haſt thou to doe with peace? paſſe, and folow me. The watchman alſo told, ſaying: The meſſenger came to them, & returneth not. 19. He ſent alſo the ſecond chariote of horſes: and he came to them, & ſaid: Thus ſayth the King: Is there peace? And Iehu ſayd: What haſt thou to doe with peace? paſſe, & folow me. 20. And the watchman told, ſaying: He is come as far as they, & returneth not: and it is the pace as it were the pace of Iehu the ſonne of Naſſi, for he goeth amayne. 21. And Ioram ſayd: Make readie the chariote. And they made readie his chariote, and Ioram the King of Iſrael went forth, and Ochozias the King of Iuda, each in their chariots, and they went forth to meet Iehu, and found him in the field of Naboth the Iezrahelite. 22. And when Ioram had ſeen Iehu, he ſayd: Is there peace Iehu? But he answered: What peace? The fornications of Iezabel thy mother, and her manie forceries are in their vigour. 23. And Ioram turned his hand, and flying ſayd to Ochozias: Treafon Ochozias. 24. Moreouer Iehu bent his bow with his hand, and ſtrucke Ioram between the ſhoulders: and the arrow went out through his hart, & immediately he fel in his chariote. 25. And Iehu ſayd to captaine Badacer: Take him, throw him forth in the field of Naboth the Iezrahelite: for I remember when I and thou ſitting in a chariote did folow Achab this mans father, that our Lord lifted vp this burden vpon him, ſaying: 26. If not for the bloud of Naboth, and (a) for the bloud of his children, which I ſaw yeſterday, ſayth our Lord, I requite thee not in this field ſayth our Lord. Now therefore take him, & throw him into the field according to the word of our Lord. 27. But Ochozias the King of Iuda ſeeing this, fled by the way of the houſe of the garden: & Iehu purſued him, and ſaid: This man alſo ſtrike ye in his chariote. And they ſtrucke him in the going vp of Gauer, which is beſide Ieblaam: who fled into Mageddo, and died there. 28. And his ſeruants layd him vpon his chariote, and caried him into Ieruſalem: and they buried him there in his ſepulchre with his fathers in the Citie of David. 29. In the eleuenth yeare of Ioram the ſonne of Achab, reigned Ochozias ouer Iuda, 30. and Iehu came into Iezrahel. Moreouer Iezabel hearing of his entrance, paynted her face with itibicke ſtone, and decked her head, & beheld through the window 31. And when they went to burie her, they found nothing but the ſkul, and the feet, and the extreme parts of the hands. 36. And returning they told him. AND Achab had ſeuentie ſonnes in Samaria : Iehu therefore wrote letters, and ſent into Samaria to the chiefe of the citie, and to the ancients, & to them that brought vp Achabs children, ſaying: 2. And he wrote letters to them againe the ſecond tyme, ſaying : If you be mine, and obey me, take the heads of your maſters ſonnes, and cometo me this verie houre to morow into Iezrahel. Moreouer the Kings ſonnes, ſeuentie men were brought vp with the chiefe of the citie. 7. And when it was light he went forth, and ſtanding ſayd to al the people: You are iuſt: If I haue conſpired againſt my maſter, and haue ſlayne him, who hath ſtrucken al theſe? 10. See therfore now there hath not fallen of the words of our Lord on the ground, which our Lord ſpake vpon the houſe of Achab, and our Lord hath done that which he ſpake in the hand of his ſeruant Elias. 11. Iehu therfore ſmote al that were leaſt of the houſe of Achab in Iezrahel, and al his nobles, and familiars, and Priests, til there remayned no reliques of him. 12. And he aroſe, and came into Samaria: and when he was come to the cabbin of the ſhepherds in the way, 13. he found the brethren of Ochozias the King of Iuda, and he ſayd to them: What are you? Who answered: We are the brethren of Ochozias, and are come downe to ſalute the Kings ſonnes, & the Queens ſonnes. 14. Who ſaid: Take the aliuē. And when he was gone thence, he found (a) Ionadab the ſonne of Rechab comming to meete him, and he bleſſed him. And he ſayd to him: Is thy hart right as my hart with thy hart? And Ionabab ſayd: It is. If it be ſo, quoth he, giue me thy hand. Who gaue him his hād. But he liſted him vp to him into the chariot, 16. and ſayd to him: Come with me, and ſee my zele for our Lord. And being ſet in his chariot, 17. he brought him into Samaria. And he ſtrucke al that were leaſt of Achab in Samaria, til there was not one, according to the word of our Lord, which he ſpake by Elias. 18. Iehu therfore aſſembled al the people, & ſaid to thē: Achab worſhipped Baal a litle, but (b) I wil worſhip him more. 19. Now therfore cal to me al the Prophets of Baal, and al his ſeruants, and al his Priests: let there be none but that he come, for I haue a great ſacrifice to Baal: He that ſhal be wanting ſhal not liue. Moreouer Iehu did this craftily, that he might deſtroy the worſhippers of Baal. 20. And he ſayd: Sanctifie a ſolemne day to Baal. And he called 21. and ſent into al the borders of Iſrael, and al the ſeruants of Baal came: there was leaſt not one that came not. And they entred into the temple of Baal: and the houſe of Baal was filled, from one end to the other. 22. And he ſayd to them that were ouer the garments: Bring forth garments for al the ſeruants of Baal. And they brought them forth garments. 23. And Iehu going in, and Ionadab the ſonne of Rechab into the temple of Baal, ſayd to the worſhippers of Baal: Search, and ſee leſt perhaps there be any with you of the ſeruants of the Lord, but that there be the ſeruants of Baal onlie. 24. They destroyed also the temple of Baal, & made a iakes for it vntil this day. 28. Iehu therefore destroyed Baal out of Israel: 29. but yet from the finnes of Ieroboam the sonne of Nabat, who made Israel to sinne, he departed not, neither forsooke he the golden calues, that were in Bethel, and Dan. 30. Let the third part of you goe in on the Sabbath, and keep the watch of the Kings houſe. And let a third part be at the gate Sur: and let a third part be at the gate behind the dwelling of the ſhildebearers: and you ſhal keep the watch of the houſe of Meſſa. 7. But let two parts of you al that goe forth on the Sabbath, keep the watch of the houſe of our Lord about the King. 8. And you ſhal gard him round about, hauing weapons in your hands: and if anie man ſhal enter the precinct of the temple, let him be ſlaine: and you ſhal be with the King coming in and going out. 9. And the centurions did according to al things, that Ioiada the Priest had commanded them: and euerie one taking their men, that went in on the Sabbath, with them that went out in the Sabbath, came to Ioiada the Priest. 10. Who gaue them the ſpeares, and the weapons of King Dauid, which were in the houſe of our Lord. 11. And they ſtood euerie one hauing their weapons in their hand, on the right ſide of the temple, vnto the left ſide of the altar and of the temple, about the King. 12. And he brought forth the Kings ſonne, and put vpon him the diademe, and the couenant: and they made him King, and anoynted him: and cleapping with the hand, ſayd: God ſaue the King. 13. And Athalia heard the voice of people running: and ſhe going into the multitudes into the temple of our Lord, 14. ſaw the King ſtanding vpon the tribunal ſeat according to the manner, and the ſingers, and trumpets neere him, and al the people of the land reioycing, and ſounding the trumpets: and ſhe rent her garments, and cried: A conſpiracie, a conſpiracie. 15. But Ioiada commanded the centurions, that were ouer the armie, and ſayd to them: Lead her forth without the precinct of the temple, and whoſoever ſhal folow her, let him be ſtrucken with the ſword. For the Priest had ſayd: Let her (c) not be ſlaine in the temple of our Lord. 16. And they layd hands on her: and threw her by the way of the entrance of the horſes, beſide the palace, and ſhe was ſlaine there. 17. Ioiada therefore made a couenant between our Lord, and the King, and between the people, that it ſhould be the people of our Lord, and between the King and the people. 18. And al the people of the land entred into the temple of Baal, and deſtroyed his altars, and his images they brake in pieces ſtoutly: Mathan alſo the Priest of Baal they ſlew before the altar. And the Priest ſet gards in the houſe of our Lord. 19. And he tooke the centurions, and the legions of Cerethi and Phelethi, and al the people of the land, and they brought the King from the houſe of our Lord: and they came by the way of the gate of the ſhildebearers into the palace, and he ſat vpon the throne of the Kings. 20. And al the people of the land reioyced, and the citie was quiet: but Athalia was ſlaine with the ſword in the Kings houſe. 21. And Ioas was ſeuen yeares old, when he began to reigne.

Ioas willeth the Priests to reparaire what needeth in the temple, receiuing al the money offered there. 6. Which they not performing, the high Priest prouideth that al is amended, 16. the Priests receiuing only the money due to themselves. 17. Hezael King of Syria taking Geth, and threacning Ierusalem is pacified with money. 19. Ioas is traitarously slaine by his seruants, and his sonne Amasias reigneth.

N the seuenth yeare of Iehu reigned Ioas: and he reigned fourtie yeares in Ierusalem. The name of his mother was Sebia of Bersabee. 2. And Ioas did right before our Lord al the daies, that Ioiada the Priest taught him. 3. But yet the excelses he tooke not away: for the people immolated and burnt incense in the excelses. 4. And Ioas sayd to the Priests: Al the money of the sanctified things, which is brought into the temple of our Lord by the passengers, which is offered for the (a) price of a soule, and which of their owne accord, and of their owne free hart they bring into the temple of our Lord: 5. let the Priests take it according to their order, and maynteine reparations of the house, if they shal see any thing that needeth reparation. 6. Therefore vntil the three and twentieth yeare of King Ioas, the Priests did not make reparations of the temple. 7. And King Ioas called Ioiada the high Priest and the Priests, saying to them: Why make you not the reparations of the temple? Take you therefore money no more according to your order, but render it to the reparation of the temple. 8. And the Priests were prohibited to take money anie more of the people, and to make the reparations of the temple. 9. And Ioiada the high Priest tooke * a treasure, and opened a hole in the top, & set it by the altar at the right hand of the that goe into the house of our Lord, and the Priests that kept the doores did cast into it al the money, that was brought to the temple of our Lord. 10. And when they saw that there was very much money in the treasure, the Kings scribe, and the high Priest went vp, and powred it out, and counted the money, that was found in the house of our Lord: 11. and they gaue it accordiag to number and measure into their hand, which did ouersee the masons of the house of our Lord: who bestowed it on carpenters, and on masons, such as wrought in the house of our Lord, 12. and made reparations: and on them that hewed stones, and that they shoud bye trees, and stones, that were hewed, so that the reparation of the house of our Lord was accomplished in al things, which had need of cost to vp hold the house. 13. but yet there were not made of the ſame money the water pots of the temple of our Lord, and the ſleehooks, and cenſars, and trumpets, and euerie veſſel of gold and ſiluer, of the money that was brought into the temple of our Lord. 14. For it was giuen them that did the worke, that the temple of our Lord might be repayed: 15. and there was no account made with thoſe men that receiued the money to diſtribute it to the crafts men, but vpon their fidelitie they beſtowed it. 16. But the money for offence, & the money for ſinnes, they brought not into the temple of our Lord, becauſe it was the Priests. 17. Then Hazael the King of Syria went vp, & fought agaynſt Geth, and tooke it: and directed his face to goe vp to Ieruſalem. 18. But the reſt of the words of Ioas, and al that he did, are not theſe things written in the Booke of the words of the daies of the Kings of Iuda? 20. And he did euil before our Lord, and folowed the ſinnes of Ieroboam the ſonne of Nabat, who made Iſrael to ſinne, and declined not from them. 3. And there were leaft to Ioachaz of the people but fiftie horsemen , and ten chariots , and ten thousand footmen : for the King of Syria had slaine them , and had brought them as dust by threining in the barne floore. 8. But the rest of the words of Ioachaz, & al that he did, & his strength, are not these things written in the Booke of the words of the daies of the Kings of Israel ? 9. And Ioachaz slept with his fathers , and they buried him in Samaria : and Ioas his sonne reigned for him. 10. In the seuen and thirtith yeare of Ioas the King of Iuda , reigned Ioas the sonne of Ioachaz ouer Israel in Samaria sixteen yeares , 11. and he did that which is euil in the sight of our Lord , he declined not from al the finnes of Ieroboam the sonne of Nabat, who made Israel to sinne , but he walked in them. 12. And Elifeus was sicke of an infirmitie, wherof also he died : and Ioas the King of Israel went downe to him, and wept before him, and sayd: My father, my father, the chariot of Israel and the garder therof. 15. And Elifeus sayd to him: fetch a bow and arrowes. And when he had brought him a bow and arrowes, 16. he sayd to the King of Israel : Put thy hand vpon the bow. And when he had put his hand, Elifeus put his hands ouer the Kings hands, 17. and sayd: Open the east window. And when he had opened it, Elifeus sayd : Shoot an arrow. And he shot. And Elifeus sayd: The arrow of the saluation of our Lord, and the arrow of saluation agaynst Syria: and thou shalt strike Syria in Aphec, til thou consume it. 18. And he sayd: Take vp the arrowes. Who when he had taken them agayne, he sayd to him : Strike the earth with a iauelin. And when he had strucken three times , and stood stil, 19. the man of God was angrie with him, & sayd : (a) If thou hadst strucken fise or six or seuentimes, thou hadst strucken Syria euen to destruction : but now threetimes shalt thou strike it. 20. Elifeus therefore died, and they buried him. And the rouers of Moab came into the land the same yeare. 21. And certaine persons burying a man, saw the rouers, & threw the bodie in the sepulchre of Elifeus. Which whē it had touched the bones of Elifeus the man reuiued & stood vpon his feet. 22. He smote Edom in the Vail of Salt pitsten thousand, and tooke the rocke in battel, & called the name therof, Iecthel, vntil this present day. 8. Then Amasias sent messengers to Ioas the sonne of Ioachaz, the sonne of Iehu the King of Israel, saying: Come (4) let vs see one an other. 9. And al the people of Iuda tooke Azarias ſixteen yeares old, and made him King for his father Amasias. 22. He built Ælath, and reſtored it to Iuda, after that the King ſlept with his fathers. 23. Twentie yeares old was Achaz when he began to reigne, and he reigned sixteen yeares in Ierusalem: he did not that which was pleasing in the sight of our Lord his God, as Dauid his father. 3. But he walked in the way of the Kings of Israel: moreouer also he consecrated his sonne, making him passe through fire according to the idols of the Gentils: which our Lord destroyed before the children of Israel. 4. He immolated also vicimes, and burnt incense in the excelses, and on the hills, and vnder euery tree ful of green leaucs. 5. Then went vp Rasin the king of Syria, & Phacee the sonne of Romelja the King of Israel into Ierusalem to fight: and when they besieged Achaz, they were not able to ouercome him. 6. At that time Rasin the king of Syria restored Aila to Syria, and threw out the Iewes out of Aila: and the Idumeians came into Aila, and dwelt there vnto this day. 7. And Achaz sent messengers to Theglathphalasar the King of the Assyrians, saying: I am thy seruant, and thy sonne: come vp, and saue me out of the hand of the king of Syria, and from the hand of the King of Israel, which are risen together against me. 8. And King Achaz went forth to meet Theglathphalasar the King of the Assyrians into Damascus, and when he had seen the altar of Damascus, King Achaz sent to Vrias the Priest a paterne of it, and a similitude according to al the work therof. 11. And Vrias the Priest built an altar, according to al things, which King Achaz had commanded, from Damascus. so did the Priest Vrias, whilest King Achaz came from Damascus. 12. And when the King was come from Damascus, he saw the altar and worshipped it: and went vp and immolated holocausts, and his sacrifice, 13. & offered libaméts, & powred the bloud of the pacifikes, which he had offered vpon the altar. 14. Moreouer the altar of brasse that was before our Lord, he remoued from the face of the temple, and from the place of the altar, and from the place of the temple of our Lord: and he set it at the side of the altar toward the North. 15. King Achaz also commanded Vrias the Priest, saying: Vpon the greater altar offer the morning holocaust, and the euening sacrifice, and the Kings holocaust, and his sacrifice, and the holocaust of the whole people of the land, and their sacrifices, and their libaments: and al the bloud of the holocaust, and al the bloud of the victime thou shalt powre out vpon it: but the altar of brasse shal be prepared readie at my pleasure. 16. Vrias therefore the Priest did according to al things, which King Achaz had commanded him. 17. And King Achaz tooke the engrauen feete, and the lauatorie that was vpon them: and he tooke downe the * sea from the oxen of brasse, that held it vp, and put it vpon the pauement paved with stone. 18. The * Musach also of the Sabbath, which he had built in the temple: and the entrie of the King outward he turned into the temple of our Lord, because of the King of the Assyrians. 19. But the rest of the words of Achaz, which he did, are not these written in the Book of the words of the dayes of the Kings of Iuda? 20. And Achaz slept with his fathers, and was buried with them in the citie of Dauid, and Ezchias his sonne reigned for him.

Salmanazar King of the Aſſyrians maketh Oſee King of Iſrael tributarie, and perceruing his endeauour to be deliuered thereof, imprifoneth him; after three yeares ſiege taketh Samaria, and carrieth the people captiue into Aſſiria. 7. At which God permitteth for diuers great finnes here recited. 25. The new inhabitants of the countrie not knowing God, are deuoured by lions. Whereupon a true Prielt is ſent to inſtruct them: 29. but they leauing the rites of true religion doe mixe the ſame with idolatrie.

IN the twelfth yeare of Achaz King of Iuda, reigned Oſee the ſonne of Ela in Samaria ouer Iſrael nine yeares. 2. And he did euil before our Lord: but not as the Kings of Iſrael, that had been before him. 3. Againſt him came vp Salmanazar King of the Aſſyrians, and Oſee was made ſeruant to him, and payd him tributes. 4. And when the King of the Aſſyrians had found, that Oſee endeauoring to rebel had ſent meſſengers to Sua the King of Ægypt, that he might not pay tributes to the King of the Aſſyrians, as euery yeare he was accuſtomed, he beſieged him, and caſt him bound into priſon. 5. And he ranged through al the land: and going vp to Samaria, he beſieged it threeyeares. 6. And in the ninth yeare of Oſee, the King of Aſſyrians tooke Samaria, and transferred Iſrael vnto the Aſſyrians: and he put them in Hala, & in Habor beſide the riuer of Gozan, in the cities of the Medes. 7. For it came to paſſe, when the children of Iſrael had finned to our Lord their God, which brought them out of the land of Ægypt, & out of the hād of Pharao the King of Ægypt, they worſhipped ſtrange Gods. 8. And they walked according to the rite of the Gentiles, which our Lord had conſumed in the ſight of the children of Iſrael, & of the Kings of Iſrael: becauſe they had done in like manner. 9. And the children of Iſrael offended our Lord their God with words not right: & built thē excelses in al their cities from the Towre of watchmē vnto the fenced citie. 10. And they made thē ſtatues & groues on euerie high hil, & vnder euerie thicke wooddie tree: 11. & burnt there incenſe vpon the altars after the māner of the Gētiles, which our Lord remoued frō their face: & they did wicked things, prouoking our Lord. 12. And they worſhipped the filths, wherof our Lord commanded them that they ſhould not doe this thing. 13. And our Lord testified in Iſrael and in Iuda by the hand of al the Prophets & Seers, ſaying: Returne from your moſt wicked wayes, and keep my precepts and ceremonies, according to al the law which I commanded your fathers: and as I haue ſent to you in the hand of my ſeruants the Prophets. 14. Who heard not, but hardened their neck according to the necke of their fathers , who would not obey our Lord their God. 15. And they cast away his ordinances , and the couenant that he made with their fathers , and the testifications, wherwith he contested them : and they folowed vanities , and did vaynly : and they folowed the Gentils , that were round about them, concerning which our Lord had commanded them , that they should not doe as they did. 16. And they forsooke al the precepts of our Lord their God: and made to themselues two molten calues, and groues, and adored al the hōste of heauen: and they serued Baal, 17. and consecrated their sonnes , and their daughters through fyre : and they gaue themselues to deuinations, and soothsayings : and they deliuered vp themselues to doe euil before our Lord, (4) that they might prouoke him. 18. And our Lord was wrath with Israel vehemently , and tooke them away from his sight, and there remayned but the tribe of Iuda onlie. 19. But neither Iuda it self kept the commandements of our Lord their God : but walked in the errorrs of Israel , which it had wrought. 20. And our Lord reiected al the seed of Israel, and afflicted them, and deliuered them into the hand of the spoylers , til he threw them away from his face: 21. euen now from that time, when Israel was rent from the house of Dauid , and made Ieroboam the sonne of Nabat their King : for Ieroboam separated Israel from our Lord , and made them sinne a great sinne. 22. And the children of Israel walked in al the sinnes of Ieroboam , which he had done : and they departed not from them, 23. vntil our Lord tooke away Israel from his face , as he had spoken in the hand of al his seruants the Prophets : and Israel was transported out of their land vnto the Assyrians , vntil this day. 24. And the King of the Assyrians brought from Babylon , and from Cutha , and from Auah , and from Emath , and from Sepharuaim : and placed them in the cities of Samaria for the children of Iseael: who possessed Samaria, and dwelt in the cities therof. 25. And when they began to dwel there, they feared not our Lord : and our Lord sent lions vpon them , which killed them. 26. And it was told the King of the Assyrians, and sayd: The nations, which thou hast transferred, and made to dwel in the cities of Samaria, know not the ordinances of the God of the land: and the Lord hath sent lions vpon them : and behold they kil them , for that they know not the rite of the God of the land. 27. And the King of the Assyrians commanded, saying : Bring thither one of the Prieits, which you brought thence captiue , and let him goe, and dwel with them : and let him teach them the ordinances of the God of the land. 28. Therefore when one of those Priests, which were led captiue from Samaria , was come , he dwelt in Bethel , and taught them now they should worship our Lord. 29. And euerie Nation framed their owne God, and put them in the high temples , which the Samaritanes had made , Nation and Nation in their cities, where they dwelt. 30. For the men of Babylon made Secothbenoth : and the Cuthaites made Nergel : and the men of Emath made Asima. 31. Moreouer the Heueites made Nebahaz and Tharthac. And they that were of Sepharuaim burnt their children in fyre, to Adramelech, and Anamelech the Gods of Sepharuaim, 32. and neuetheles they (b) worshipped our Lord. And they made to themselues of the vilest persons Priests of the excelses, and they placed them in the high temples. 33. And when they worshipped our Lord, they serued also their owne Gods according to the custome of the Nations out of the which they were transported to Samaria: 34. vntil this present day they folow the old manner: they feare not our Lord, neither keep they his ceremonies, and iudgements, and law, and the commandment, which our Lord commanded the children of Iacob, whom he surnamed Israel: 35. and he had made a couenant with them, and had commanded them, saying: Feare not strange Gods, and adore them not, neither worship them, and immolate not to them. 36. But the Lord your God, which brought you out of the Land of Ægypt in great strength, and stretched out arme, him feare ye, and him adore, and to him doe ye immolate. 37. The ceremoies also, and iudgements, and law, and the commandment, that he wrote you, keep ye, that you may doe them alwaies: and feare not strange Gods. 38. And the couenant, that he made with you, forget not: neither doe ye worship strange Gods, 39. but feare our Lord your God, and he wil deliuer you out of the hand of al your enemies. 40. But they heard not, but did according to their old custome. These Nations therfore were fearing our Lord, but neuerthelesse seruing their idols also: for both their children and nephewes, as their fathers did, so doe they vntil this present day.

Exechias destroyeth al places of idolatrie in Iuda, breaking also the brasen serpent, made by Moyses, because the people offered incense to it. 9. The captiuitie of the ten tribes is repeated. 13. Exechias not able to resist the Assyrians payeth much money to them. 17. They neuertheles send forces against Ierusalem, reproch the King, blaspheme God, and terrifie the people.

The second part.
Actes of other Kings til the captiuitie of Iuda.

N the third yeare of Osee the sonne of Ela King of Israel, reigned Ezechias the sonne of Achaz King of Iuda. 2. Fiue and twentie yeares old was he when he began to reigne: and he reigned nine and twentie yeares in Ierusalem: the name of his mother was Abi the daughter of Zacharias. 3. And he did that which was good before our Lord, according to al things which Dauid his father had done. 4. He destroyed the excelses, and brake the statues in pieces, and cut downe the groues, and brake the brasen serpent, which

Moyfes

Moyſes had made: for vntil that time the children of Iſrael (2) burnt incenſe to it: and he called the name thereof *Noheſtan. 5. He truſted in our Lord the God of Iſrael: therefore after him there was not the like to him in al the Kings of Iuda, yea neither among them that were before him: 6. and he cleaued to our Lord, and departed not from his ſteps, and he did his commandments, which our Lord commanded Moyſes. 7. Wherefore our Lord alſo was with him, and in al things, to the which he proceeded, he behaued himſelfe wiſely. He rebelled alſo agaynſt the King of the Assyrians, and ſerued him not. 8. He ſtruck the Philiſthians as farre as Gaza, and al the borders, from the Towre of watchmen vnto the fenced citie. 9. In the fourth yeare of King Ezechias, which was the ſeuenth yeare of Oſee the ſonne of Ela the King of Iſrael, came vp Salmanaſar the King of the Assyrians into Samaria, and aſſaulted it, 10. and tooke it. For after three yeares, in the ſixt yeare of Ezechias, that is, the ninth yeare of Oſee the King of Iſrael, Samaria was taken: 11. and the King of the Assyrians transported Iſrael vnto the Assyrians, and placed them in Hala, and in Habor, riuers of Gozan in the cities of the Medes: 12. becauſe they heard not the voice of our Lord their God, but tranſgreſſed his couenant: al things, that Moyſes the ſeruant of our Lord commanded, they heard not, neither did they it. 13. In the fourteenth yeare of king Ezechias, came vp Sennacherib the king of Assyrians to al the fenced cities of Iuda: and tooke them. 14. Then ſent Ezechias the King of Iuda meſſengers to the King of the Assyrians into Lachis, ſaying: I haue ſinned, retyre from me: and al that thou ſhalt put vpon me, I wil beare. Therefore the King of the Assyrians put a taxe vpon Ezechias the King of Iuda, three hundred talents of ſiluer, and thirtieth talents of gold. 15. And Ezechias gaue al the ſiluer that was found in the houſe of our Lord, and in the Kings treasures. 16. At that time Ezechias brake the doores of the temple of our Lord, and the plates of gold, which he had faſtened on them, and gaue them to the King of the Assyrians. 17. But the King of the Assyrians ſent Tharthan, and Rabſaris, and Rabſaces from Lachis to King Ezechias, with a ſtrong power to Ieruſalem: who when they were come vp they came to Ieruſalem, and ſtood beſide the conduite of the vpper poole, which is in the way of the fullers field. 18. And they called the King: and there went out to them Eliacim the ſonne of Helcias gouernour of the houſe and Sobna the Scribe and Ioah the ſonne of Ataph, the * regiſter. 19. And Rabſaces ſayd to them: Speake to Ezechias: Thus ſayth the great King, the King of Assyrians: What is this confidence, that thou doeſt ſtay vpon? 20. Perhaps thou haſt taken counſel to prepare thy ſelfe to battle. Wherin haſt thou confidence, that thou dareſt to rebel? 21. Doſt thou hope in Ægypt, a ſtaffe of reed & brokē, vpon which if a man leane, broken into ſplinters it wil enter into his hand, & pearce it: ſo is Pharao the King of Ægypt, to al that haue confidence in him. 22. But if you wil ſay to me: We haue confidence in our Lord God: is not this he, whose excelses and altars Ezechias hath taken away: & he commanded Iuda and Ierusalem: Before this altar shal you adore in Ierusalem? 23. Now therefore passe to my Lord the King of the Assyrians, &

I wil giue you two thousand horses, and see whether you be able to haue riders for them. 24. And how can you resist before one Prince of the least seruants of my Lord? Hast thou confidence in Ægypt for the chariots and horsemen? 25. Why am I come vp without the wil of the Lord to destroye it? The Lord sayd to me: Goe vp to this land, (b) and destroy it. 26. And Eliacim the sonne of Helcias, and Sobna, and Ioah sayd to Rabfaces: We pray thee that thou speake to vs thy seruants in Siryake: for we vnderstand this tongue: and speake not to vs in the Iewes language, the people hearing it, which is vpon the wal. 27. And Rabfaces answered them, saying: What did my Lord send me to thee, that I should speake these words, & not rather to the men that sit vpon the wal, that they may eate their owne dung, and drinke their vrine with you? 28. Rabfaces therefore stood, and cryed out with a lowd voyce in the Iewes language, & sayd: Heate ye the words of the great King, the King of the Assyrians. 29. Thus sayth the King: Let not Ezechias seduce you: for he shal not be able to deliuer you out my hand.
30. Neither let him giue you confidence vpon the Lord, saying: Our Lord deliuering wil deliuer vs, and this citie shal not be giuen into the hand of the King of the Assyrians. 31. Doe not heare Ezechias. For thus sayth the King of the Assyrians: Doe with me that which is profitable for you, and come forth to me: & euery man shal eate of his vineyard, & of his figge tree: and you shal drinke waters of your owne cesterne, 32. til I come, & transport you into a land, that is like to your land, into a fruitful land, and plentiful of wine, a land of bread: and of vineyards, a land of oliuets & of oyle and honie, and you shal liue, and shal not die.
Heare not Ezechias, who deceiueth you, saying: Our Lord wil deli-uer vs. 33. (c) Did the Gods of Nations deliuer their land from the hand the King of Assyrians? 34. Where is the God of Emath & Arphad?
Where is the God of Sepharuaim, of Ana, and Aua: did they deliuer Samaria out of my hand? 35. What are they among al the Gods of nations, which haue deliuered their countrey out of my hand, that the Lord can deliuer Ierusalem out of my hand? 36. The people therefore held their peace, and did not answer him any thing: for they had recei-ued the Kings commandement that they should not answer him. 37. And Eliacim the sonne of Helcias, gouernour of the house, and Sobna the scribe, and Ioah the sonne of Afaph register came to Ezechias, their garments rent, and told him the words of Rabfaces.

And he sent Eliacim the gouernour of the house, and Sobna the scribe, & the ancients of the Priests couered with sackcloths, to Isaias the Prophet the sonne of Amos. 3. Who sayd to him: Thus saith Ezechias: This day is a day of tribulation, and rebuke, and of blasphemie: the children are come to the birth, and the woman in trauel hath not strength. 4. If perhaps our Lord thy God wil heare al the words of Rabfaces, whom the King of the Assyrians his master hath sent to vpbraid the liuing God, and reprove with words, which our Lord thy God hath heard: and make thou prayer for the remnants that are found. 5. The seruants therfore of King Ezechias came to Isaie. 6. And Isaie sayd to them: Thus shal you say to your master: Thus sayth our Lord: Feare not for the words, which thou hast heard, with which the seruants of the King of the Assyrians haue blasphemed me. 7. Behold I wil send into him a spirit, and he shal here a message, and shal returne into his country, and I wil ouerthrow him with the sword in his country. 8. Rabfaces therfore returned, and found the King of Assyrians expugning Lobna: for he heard that he was departed from Lachis. 9. And when he had heard of Tharaca the King of Æthiopia, saying: Behold, he is come forth to fight against thee: and went against him, he sent messengers to Ezechias, saying: 10. Say this to Ezechias the King of Iuda: Let not thy God seduce thee, in whom thou hast confidence: neither say thou: Ierusalem shal not be deliuered into the hands of the King of the Assyrians. 11. For thou thy self hast heard what the Kings of the Assyrians haue done to al the countries, how they haue spoyled them, canst thou therfore onlie be deliuered? 12. Why, haue the Gods of the Natiōs deliuered al those, whom my fathers haue dettoyed, to witte, Gozan, and Haran, and Reseph, and the children of Eden, which were in Theiassar: 13. the King of Arphad, and the King of the citie of Sepharuaim, of Ana and Aua? 14. Therefore when Ezechias had receiued the letters of the hand of messengers, and had read them, he went vp into the house of our Lord, and layd them open (a) before our Lord, 15. and prayd in his sight, saying: Lord God of Israel, which sittest vpon the cherubins, thou art the only God of al the Kings of the earth: thou madest heauen and earth: 16. Incline thine eare, and heare: open Lord thine eies, and see: and heare al the words of Sennacherib, who hath sent to vpbraid vnto vs the liuing God. 17. In verie deed Lord, the Kings of the Assyrians haue destroyed Nations, and the countries of al. 18. Now therefore, O Lord our God, saue vs from his hand, that al the Kingdomes of the earth may know, that thou art the Lord the onlie God. 20. And Isaie the sonne of Amos. sent to Ezechias, saying: Thus saith our Lord the God of Israel: That which thou hast besought me concerning Sennacherib the King of the Assyrians, I haue heard. 21. This is the word that our Lord hath spoken of him: The (b) virgin daughter of Sion hath despised thee, & scorned thee: Behind thy backe hath the daughter of Ierusalem wagged her head. 22. Whom hast thou vpbrayded, & whom hast thou blasphemed? against whom hast thou exalted thy voice, and lifted vp thine eies in high? against the holie one of Israel. 23. By the hand of thy seruants thou hast vpbrayded our Lord, and hast sayd: In the multitude of my chariots haue I climed the height of mountaynes in the toppe of Libanus, and haue cut downe high cedars therof, and the chosen firre-trees of it. And I haue entred into the borders therof, & the Forrest of the (c) carmel therof 24. haue I cut downe. And I haue drunke strange waters, and haue dried vp with the steps of my feet al the waters inclosed. 25. Why, hast thou not heard what I haue done from the beginning? From ancient daies I haue made that thing, and now I haue brought it to effect: and fenced cities shal be into ruine of litle hilles bickering together. 26. And they that sit in them, weake of hand, they haue trembled & are confounded, they became as the grasse of the field, and the green herbe of the rootes of houses, which withered before it came to ripenesse. 27. Thy habitation, and thy going out, and thy comming in, and thy way I haue knowen before, and thy furie against me. 28. Thou hast been made against me, and thy pride hath ascended into myne eares: I therefore wil put a ring in thy nostrils, and a bitte in thy lips, and wil bring thee back into the way, by the which thou camest. 29. And to thee Ezechias this shal be a signe: Eat this yeare what thou shalt find: and in the second yeare, the things that grow of themselves: moreouer in the third yeare soc ye and reape: plant ye vineyards, and eat the fruit of them. 30. And whatsoever shal be least of the house of Iuda, shal take root downward, and beare fruit vpward. 31. For out of Ierusalem there shal remnants goe forth, and that which is to be saued from the mount of Sion : the zeale of the Lord of hosts shal doe this. 32. Wherfore thus sayth our Lord of the King of the Assyrians : He shal not enter into this citie, nor shoot arrow into it, neither shal shield occupie it, nor munition compasse it. 33. By the way, that he came, he shal returne : and into this citie he shal not enter, sayth our Lord. 34. And I wil protect this citie, and wil saue it for my self, and for Dauid my seruant. 35. It came to passe therefore in that night, an Angel of our Lord came, and struck in the campe of the Assyrians an hundred eightie fye thousand. And when he was risen early, he saw at the bodies of the dead, 36. and Sennacherib the King of the Assyrians departing went away, and taried in Ninieue. 37. And when he adored in the temple of Nefroch his God, Adramelch and Sarasar his sonnes struck him with the sword, and they fled into the land of the Armenians, and Asarhaddon his sonne reigned for him.

Ezechias being sick is told by Isaias that he shal die : but praying to God obtayneth fifteen yeares longer life, &c. and in confirmation thereof receiveth a signe in Achaz dial, returning back ten lines. 12. IN those dayes Ezechias was sick euen to death : & Isaie the sonne of Amos the Prophet came and sayd to him : Thus sayth our Lord God : Take order with thy house, for thou shalt die, and shalt not liue. 2. Who turned his face to the wal, and prayed our Lord, saying : 3. I beseech thee Lord, remember I pray thee how I haue walked before thee in truth, and in a perfect hart, and haue done that which is liked before thee. Ezechias therefore wept with great weeping. 4. And before Isaie was gone out of the middes of the court, the word of our Lord came to him, saying : 5. Returne, and tel Ezechias the Prince of my people : Thus sayth our Lord the God of Dauid thy father : I haue heard thy prayer, and seen thy teares : and behold I haue healed thee, the third day thou shalt goe vp to the temple of the Lord. 6. And I wil adde to thy daies fifteen yeares : yea & out of the hand of the King of Assyrians I wil deliuer thee, and this citie, and I wil protect this citie for my sake, and for Dauid my seruant. 7. And Isaie said: Fetch me a bunch of figges. Which when they had brought, and had layd it vpon his sore, he was cured. 8. And Ezechias had sayd to Isaie: What signe shal there be, that our Lord wil heale me, and that I shal goe vp the third day to the temple of our Lord? 9. To whom Iſaie ſayd: This ſhal be the ſigne from our Lord, that our Lord wil doe the word, which he hath ſpoken: Wilt thou that the ſhadow goe forward ten lines, or that it goe backe ſo many degrees. 10. And Ezechias ſaid: It is an ealie matter for the ſhadow to goe forward ten lines, neither wil I that this be done, but that it returne back ten degrees. 11. Iſaie therefore the Prophet inuocated our Lord, & brought backe the ſhadow by (a) the lines, by the which it was now gone downe in the dial of Achaz, backward ten degrees. 12. In that time Berodach Baladan, the ſonne of Baſadan, the King of the Babylonians ſent letters & guiſts to Ezechias: for he had heard that Ezechias had been ſicke. 13. And Ezechias reioyced in their coming, and he ſhewed them the houſe of aromatical ſpices, and gold and ſiluer, and diuerſe precious odours, oynements alſo, and the houſe of his veſſels, and al that he had in his treaſures. There was not any thing which Ezechias ſhewed them not in his houſe, and in al his power. 14. And Iſaie the Prophet came to King Ezechias, and ſayd to him: What ſayd theſe men? or from whence came they to thee? To whom Ezechias ſaid: From a far cuntry they came to me out of Babylon. 15. But he answered: What ſaw they in thy houſe? Ezechias ſayd: They ſaw al things whatſoeuer are in my houſe: there is nothing that I haue not ſhewed them in my treaſures. 16. Iſaie therefore ſaid to Ezechias, heare the word of our Lord: 17. Behoid the daies ſhal come, and al things ſhal be taken away, that are in thy houſe, and that thy fathers haue layd vp vntil this day, into Babylon: there ſhal not anie thing remayne, ſayth our Lord. 18. Yea of the children alſo that come forth of thee, whom thou ſhalt beget ſhal be taken away, and they ſhal be eunuches in the palace of the King of Babylon. 19. Ezechias ſaid to Iſaie: The word of our Lord which thou haſt ſpoken is good: be there peace and truth in my daies. 20. For the enormous impietie of Manasses , 10. God threatneth destruction of the Kingdom. 16. He spilleth innocent bloud , 18. dieth , and his sonne Amou reigneth also wickedly , 23. is slaine by his seruants , and his sonne Iosias reigneth.

MANASSES was seuen yeares old when he began to reigne, & hereigned fife and fiftie yeares in Ierusalem: the name of his mother was Haphsiba. 2. And he did euil in the sight of our Lord, according to the idols of the Nations, which our Lord destroyed from the face of the children of Israel: 3. And he was turned, and built the excelses, which Ezechias his father had destroyed: and he set vp altars to Baal, and made groues, as Achab the King of Israel had done: and he adored al the host of heauen, and worshipped it. 4. And he built altars in the house of our Lord, of the which our Lord said: In Ierusalem I wil put my name: 5. And he built altars to al the host of heauen in the two courts of the temple of our Lord. 6. And he made his soane passe through tyre: and he vsed southsaying, and obserued diuinations, and made pythons, and multiplied inchanters, to doe euil before our Lord, & to prouoke him: 7. He set also the idol of the groue, which he had made in the temple of our Lord: concerning the which our Lord spake to Dauid, and to Salomon his sonne: In this temple, & in Ierusalem, which I haue chosen out of al the tribes of Israel, I wil put my name for cuer. 8. And I wil no more make the foote of Israel to be moued out of the land, which I gaue to their fathers: yet so if in worke they shal keep al things that I haue commanded them, & al the law which my seruant Moyles commanded them. 9. But they heard not: but were seduced by Manasses, to doe euil (a) aboute the Nations, which our Lord destroyed before the face of the children of Israel. 10. And our Lord spake in the hand of his seruants the Prophets, saying: 11. Because Manasses the King of Iuda hath done these most wicked abominations, passing al things that the Amorrhites did before him, and hath made Iuda also to sinne in his filths: 12. therefore thus sayth our Lord the God of Israel: Behold I wil bring in euils vpon Ierusalem and Iuda: that whosoever shal heare it, both his eares shal tingle. 13. And I wil stretch out vpon Ierusalem the corde of Samaria, and the weight of the house of Achab: and I wil wipe out Ierusalem, as tables are wont to be wiped out, and wyiping out I wil turne it, and draw often the pencil vpon the face therof. 14. al their aduersaries : 15. because they haue done euil before me , and haue continued prouoking me , from the day that their fathers came out of Ægypt , vntil this day. 16. Moreouer Manasses shed also innocent blood exceeding much, til he filled Ierusalem euen to the mouth: beside his finnes., wherein he made Iuda to sinne, to doe euil before our Lord. 17. But the rest of the wordes of Manasses, and al that he did, and his sinne, which he sinned, are not these things written in the Booke of the wordes of the dayes of the Kings of Iuda? 18. And Manasses slept with his fathers, and was buried in the garden of his house , in the garden of Oza: and Amon his sonne reigned for him. 19. Two and twentie yeares old was Amon when he began to reigne : two yeares also he reigned in Ierusalem: the name of his mother was Messalemeth the daughter of Ieteba: 20. And he did euil in the sight of our Lord , as Manasses his father had done. 21. And he walked in al the way, by the which his father had walked: and he serued the filthes, which his father had serued , and he adored them, 22. and forooke our Lord the God of his fathers, and walked not in the way of our Lord. 23. And his seruants lay in wayte agaynst him , and slewe the King in his house. 24. But the people of the land stricke al them , that had conspired agaynst King Amon: and made Iofias his sonne their King for him. 25. But the rest of the wordes of Amon which he did, are not these written in the Book of the wordes of the dayes of the Kings of Iuda? 26. And they buried him in his sepulchre , in the garden of Oza : and Iofias his sonne reigned for him.

Iofias repayreth the temple, and Diuine seruice. 8. The booke of law is found, 11. whereupon they consult our Lord, 15. and are foretold that much euil shal fall vpon them, 18. but the good King shal dye in peace.

EIGHT yeares old was Iofias when he began to reigne, he reigned one & thirtie yeares in Ierusalem: the name of his mother was Idida , the daughter of Hadaia of Befecath. 2. And he did that which was liked hetore our Lord , and walked in al the waies of Dauid his father: he declined not to the right hand , or to the left. 3. And in the eighteenth yeare of King Iofias , the King sent Saphan the sonne of Assia , the sonne of Messulam , the scribe of the temple of our Lord , saying to him : 4. Goe to Helcias the high Priest , that the money may be gathered into a summe , which hath been brought into the temple of our Lord , which the porters of the temple haue gathered of the people , 5. and let it be giuen to the workemen by the ouerfeers of the house of our Lord, who also shall distribute it to them that worke in the temple of our Lord, to make the reparations of the temple : 6. that is, to the carpenters and masons, and to them that mend broken places : and that timber may be bought, and stones out of the quarries, to repayre the temple of our Lord. 7. Yet let not the money which they receiue be accounted to them, but let them haue it in their power, and vpon their fidelitie. 8. And Helcias the high Priest sayd to Saphan the scribe : I haue found the Booke of the law in the house of our Lord : and Helcias gaue the volume to Saphan, who also did reade it. 9. Saphan also the scribe came to the King, and reported vnto him that which he had commanded, and sayd : Thy seruants haue gathered into a summe the money, which is found in the house of our Lord : and they haue giuen it to be deltributed to the workemen, by the ouerfeers of the workes of the temple of our Lord. 10. Saphan also the scribe told the King, saying : Helcias the Priest hath giuen me a Booke. Which when Saphan had read before King, 11. and the King had heard the words of the law of our Lord, he rent his garments. 12. And he willed Helcias the Priest, and Ahicam the sonne of Saphan, and Achobor the sonne of Micha, and Saphan the Scribe, and Afaia the Kings seruant, saying : 13. Goe and consult our Lord for me, and for the people, and for al Iuda, concerning the words of this volume, which is found : for the great wrath of our Lord is kindled agaynst vs : because our fathers haue not heard the words of this Booke, to doe al that is writen for vs. 14. Helcias therefore the Priest, and Ahicam, and Achobor, and Saphan, and Afaia went to Holda a Prophetesse, the wife of Sellum, the sonne of Thecua, the sonne of Araas keeper of the garmets, who dwelt in Ierusalem in the (a) second : and they spake to her. 15. And she answered them : Thus sayth our Lord the God of Israel : Tel the man, that sent you to me : 16. Thus sayth our Lord : Behold, I wil bring euils vpon this place, and vpon the inhabitants therof, al the words of the law which the King of Iuda hath read : 17. because they haue forsaken me, and haue sacrificed to strange Gods, prouoking me in al the works of their hands : and my indignation shall be kindled in this place, and shall not be quenched. 18. But to the King of Iuda, that sent you to consult our Lord, thus you shall say : Thus sayth our Lord the God of Israel : For that thou hast heard the words of the volume, 19. and thy hart is stricken with feare, and thou art humbled before the Lord, hearing the words agaynst this place, and the inhabitants therof, to witte, that they should become a wonder and a curse : and hast rent thy garments, and wept before me, and I haue heard it, sayth our Lord : 20. therefore I wil gather thee to thy fathers, and thou shalt be gathered to thy sepulchre in peace, that thy eies may not see al the euils, which I wil bring in vpon this place.

He also destroyeth the altar in Bethel (not remouing the bones of a Prophet) 19. and other altars in Samaria: killeth the false Priests. 21. And maketh a notorious great Pasch. 26. Yet God threatneth the captiuitie of Iuda for their sinnes. 29. Iosias is slaine in battle by the King of Ægypt: and his soune Ioachaz reigneth. Who after three months is deposed by the King of Ægypt, and his brother Eliacim, henceforth called Ioakim, made King.

AND they reported to the King that which she had sayd. Who sent: and al the ancients of Iuda and Ierusalem were assembled to him. 2. And the King went vp to the temple of our Lord, & al the men of Iuda, and al that dwelt in Ierusalem with him Priests and Prophets, and al the people from litle to great: and in hearing of al he read al the words of the Book of the couenant, which was found in the house of our Lord. 3. And the King stood vpon the step: and made a couenant with our Lord, to walke after our Lord, and keep his precepts, and testimonies, and ceremonies, with al their hart, and with al their soule, and to performe the words of this couenant, which were written in that Book: and the people agreed to the couenant: 4. And the King willed Helcias the high Priest, and the Priests of the second order, and al the porters, that they should cast out of the temple of our Lord al the vesseis that had been made to Baal, and in the groue, and to al the host of heauen: & he burnt them without Ierusalem in the Valley cedron, and caried the dust of them into Bethel. 5. And he destroyed the Southfayers, which the Kings of Iuda had appointed to sacrifice in the excelses in the cities of Iuda, and round about Ierusalem: and them that burnt incense to Baal, and to the Sunne, and to the Moone, and to the twelue signes, and to al the host of heauen. 6. And he caused the groue to be caried forth cut of the house of our Lord without Ierusalem in the Valley cedron, and he burnt it there, and brought it into dust, and threw it vpon the sepulchres of the common people. 7. He destroyed also the litle houses of the effeminate, which were in the house of our Lord, for the which the women woue as it were litle houses of the groue. 8. And he gathered together al the Priests of the cities of Iuda: and he contaminated the excelses, where the Priests did sacrifice from Gabaa vnto Bersabee: and he destroyed the altars of the gates in the entrance of the doore of Iosue chief of the citie, which was on the left hand of the gate of the citie. 9. Howbeit the Priests (a) of the excelses wēt not vp to the altar of our Lord in Ierusalem: but only they did eate azimes in the middes of their brethren. 10. He contaminated also Topheth, which is in the Valley of the sonne of Ennom: that no man should consecrate his sonne or daughter by fyre to Mbloch. 11. He tooke away also the horses, which the Kings of Iuda had giuen to the Sunne, in the entrance of the temple of our Lord, beside the chamber of Nathanaelech the eunuch, who was in Pharurim: and the chariots of the Sunne he burnt with fire. 12. The altars also that were vpon the roofes of the vpper chamber of Achaz, which the Kings of Iuda had made, and the altars which Manasses had made in the two courts of the temple of our Lord, the King destroyed: and he rane from thence, and sprinkled the ashes of them into the Torrent cedron. 13. The excelses also that were in Ierusalem, on the right side of the Mount of offence, which Salomon the King of Israel had built to Astaroth the idol of the Sidonians, and to Chamos the scandal of Moab, and to Melchom the abomination of the children of Ammon, the King destroyed. 14. And he brake in pieces the statues, and cut downe the groues: and he filled their places with the bones of dead men. 15. Moreouer the altar also, that was in Bethel, and the excelse, which Ieroboam the sonne of Nabat had made, who made Israel to sinne: and that altar, and excelse he destroyed, and burnt, and brake into powder, and the groue also he burnt. 16. And Iofias turning, saw there sepulchres, that were in the mount: and he sent & tooke the bones out of the sepulchres, and burnt them vpon the altar, & polluted it according to the word of our Lord, which the man of God spake, who had foretold these things. 17. And he sayd: What title is that, which I see? And the citzens of that citie answered: It is the sepulchre of the man of God, which came from Iuda, and foretold these things which thou hast done vpon the altar of Bethel. 18. And he sayd: Let him alone, let no man moue his bones. And his bones remainyd vntouched with the bones of the Prophet, that came out of Samaria. 19. Moreouer al the temples of the excelses, which were in the cities of Samaria, which the Kings of Israel had made to prouoke our Lord, Iofias tooke away: and he did to them according to al the works, which he had done in Bethel. 20. And he slew al the Priests of the excelses, that were thēte vpon the altars: and he burnt mens bones vpon them: and turned into Ierusalem. 21. And he commanded al the people, saying: Make a Phafe to our Lord your God, according as it is written in the Book of this couenant. 22. For (b) there was not such a Phafe made from the daies of the Iudges, which iudged Israel, and of al the daies of the Kings of Israel, and of the Kings of Iuda, 23. as in the eighteenth yeare of King Iofias this Phafe was made to our Lord in Ierusalem. 24. There was no King before him like to him, that returned to our Lord in al his hart, and in al his soule, and in al his powre according to al the law of Moyse: neither after him did there arise the like to him. 26. But yet our Lord was not auerted from the wrath of his great furie, wherwith his furie was wrath against Iuda: for the prouocations, wherwith (c) Manasses had prouoked him. 27. Our Lord therefore sayd: Iuda also wil I take away from my face, as I haue taken away Israel: and I wil reiect this citie, which I chose Ierusalem, and the house wherof I sayd: My name shal be there. 28. And he did euil before our Lord, according to al things which his fathers had done. 33. And Pharao Nechao bound him in Rebla, which is in the land Emath, that he should not reigne in Ierusalem: and he set a penaltie vpon the land, an hundred talents of siluer, and a talent of gold. 34. And Pharao Nechao made Eliacim King the sonne of Iosias, for Iosias his father: and turned his name Ioakim. Moreouer he tooke Ioachaz and brought him into Egypt, and he died there. 35. And Ioakim gaue the siluer and the gold to Pharao, when he had taxed the land vpon euerie man, that it might be payd according to the precept of Pharao: and he exacted of euerie man according to his abilitie, as wel siluer as gold of the people of the land: to giue vnto Pharao Nechao. 36. Fiue and twentie yeares old was Ioakim, when he began to reigne: and he reigned eleuen yeares in Ierusalem: the name of his mother was zebida the daughter of Phadara of Ruma. 37. And he did euil before our Lord according to al things, which his fathers had done.

IN his daies came vp Nabuchodonosor the King of Babylon, and Ioakim was made his seruant three yeares: and he rebelled agaynst him againe. 2. And this by the word of our Lord was done agaynst Iuda, to take it away before him for al the sinnes of Manasses which he did, 4. and for the innocent blood, that he had shed, and filled Ierusalem with the blood of innocents: and for this thing God would not be made propitious. 5. Whom Nabuzardan the General of the armie taking, brought them to the King of Babylon into Reblatha. 21. And the King of Babylon struck them, and slew them in Reblatha in the land of Emath: and Iuda was transported out of their land. 22. And he made Godolias the sonne of Ahicam the sonne of Saphan Gouvernour ouer the people, that was left in the land of Iuda, which Nabuchodonosor the King of Babylon had left. 23. Which when al the captaynes of the souldiers had heard, they and the men that were with them, to witte, that the King of Babylon had appoynted Godolias, there came to Godolias into Maïpha Ismael the sonne of Mathanias, and Iohan an the sonne of Caree, and Saraias the sonne of Thanehumeth a Netophathite, and Iezonias the sonne of Maachathi, they and their felowes. 24. THE ARGUMENT OF PARALIPOMENON.

PARALIPOMENON, that is, A supplement of things omitted, called by the Hebrewes Dibre haiaimim, The words of the dayes, or Chronicle, is an Abridgement, briefly shewing, besides diuers other genealogies, from the beginning of the world, the faith and religion both of the progenitors, and offspring of the Patriarch Iacob, whose progenie God chose and made his peculiar people; and in that nation more particularly recounting the Actes of King Dauid, and other Kings of his line, til they were led captiue into Babylon. A booke of such and so great importance (sayth S. Hieron e) as whosoever without it arrogateth the knowledge of Scriptures, may mocke himselfe. The author is vncertaine, but probably it seemeth to be gathered by Esdras, out of other bookes and traditions, for the perfecting of the old Testament: and is vndoubtedly canonical Scripture. In hebrew it is al one booke, but being large, is with the Greekes and Latines parted into two. And the first booke may be diuided into three principal parts. The first nine chapters conreyne diuers genealogies, first by the only right line from saam to Noe, then by diuers lines of Noes progenie, but most specially of Iacobs twelue sounes. In the tenth chapter the reiection, and death of King Saul is repeated. The other nineteen chapters are al of Dauid, to wit, of his election to be King, and munition, his vertues, his faults also, and his special actes, concerning Goas seruice, government of the people, and prouision made for building Goas Temple.

A N N O T A T I O N S.

BECAUSE in diuers holie Scriptures, and especially in these Books of Paralipomenon, manie difficulties occurre concerning diuers persons, and places; as also differences of numbers, and times; in reconciling wherof the holie Fathers and Doctours haue much laboured, making sometimes large commentaries to satisfie themselves, and other diligent searchers of the truth, and to remoue the obloquies of detractours from the authoritie of holie Scripture, whose learned explications of such obscurities if we should cite, it would be ouer-long, and contrarie to our purpose of brief Annotations; here once for often, we wil present to the vulgar reader, certaine cleare and ordinarie rules, by which the learned Diuines doe reconcile such apparent contradictions.

First, it is euident by fundrie examples, that manie persons, places, and some other things had diuers names, & so are sometimes called by one name, sometimes by another. Secõdly: which is more cõmon) manie were called by the same names, and so must be distinguished by the differences of times, places, qualities, or other circumstances. Thirdly, in genealogies and other histories, children are not alwaies called the sonnes, or daughters of their natural parentes, but sometimes of legal fathers, & sometimes also of those that adopted the for their children and sometimes of their grandfathers, or former progenitours. Fourthly, sometime for mysterie sake another number is expressed, being true in the mystical sense, differing from the precise number according to the historie. As in the genealogie of Christ the Euangelist counteth thrise fourteen generations from Abraham to our Saviour, differing from the historie of the old Testament. Fifthly, euen in the historie it self, sometimes holie Scripture counteth only the greater numbers, omitting the lesser, and in some other addeth also the odde numbers. Sixthly, the Scriptures speake often by tropes, as mentioning part for the whole, or the whole for the part; so by the figure Synchdoche, Christ is said to haue been three daies dead, that is, one whole day & part of other two. And some King liuing or reigning so manie yeares and part of an other, and his successour reigning the other part, each part is countend to each of them for a whole yeare, and so a yeare is added, more then is in the precise number. Seuenthly, sometimes the sonnes reigned together with their fathers, as Ioathan reigned his father Ozias yet liuing. 4. Reg. 15. and so both their reignes are sometimes counted, sometimes their feveral yeares, as euerie one reigned alone. Eightly, the times of vacances, in the gouernment of the Iudges, reignes of Kings, and the like, are sometimes omitted in calculation, sometimes adioyned to the predecessour, or successour. Ninthly, sometimes the holy Scripture mentioneth the only time that one liued or reigned wel, as it were blotting out the rest with obliuion. So Saul is sayd to haue reigned two yeares (1. Reg. 13.) Who wel and euil reigned much longer. Tenthly, by errour in writing, words, names, and especially numbers may easely be changed; and can not easely be corrected. By these or other like meanes, al the holie Scriptures may be defended, though none ought to presume by his priuat spirit to understand and expound al Scriptures; which are hard not only by reason of their profound sense, surpassing mans natural capacitie, but also for that in outward apparence, sometimes there seeme to be contradictions, but indeed neither are, nor can be vttered by the Holie Ghost, the Spirit of truth, Inditer of the whole sacred Bible. And therefore we must relie vpon Gods Spirit, speaking in his spouse the Church, comended vnto vs by those Scriptures, wherof we are sufficiently assured.

Differences of names, numbers, & times, found in holie scriptures, make the hard to be vnderstood.

Diuers meanes to reconcile seeming contradictions in holie scriptures.

Not priuate, but publicke spirit of the Church expounder of holie Scripture.

But the spirit came on Amasai the Prince among thirtie, & he sayd: We are thine, o Dauid, & with thee, o sonne of Isai: peace, peace be to thee, and peace to thy helpers, for thy God helpeth thee. Dauid therefore receiued them, and appoynted them Princes of the bād. 19. The Arke is brought from Abinadabs house, 8. Dauid and others dancing before it. 9. Oza for touching it is stracken dead. 13. Whereupon Dauid fearing to bring it to Ierusalem, it remayneth three months in the house of Obededom.

And the whole multitude answered that it should be so done: for the word had pleased al the people. 5. Dauid therefore assembled al Israel from Sihor of Ægypt, til thou enter into Emath, to bring the Arke of God from Cariathiarim. 6. And when they were come to the Floore of Chidon, Oza stretched forth his hand, to hold vp the Arke: for the oxe being wanton had made it leane a litle a-side. 10. Our Lord therefore was angrie agaynst Oza, & strucke him, for that he had touched the Arke: and he died there before our Lord. 11. And Dauid was strucke sad, because our Lord had diuided Oza: and he called that place, the Diuision of Oza vntil this present day. 12. And he feared God at that time, saying: How may I bring in the Arke of God vnto me? 13. And for this cause he brought it not vnto himselfe, that is, into the citie of Dauid, but turned it away into the house of (a) Obededom the (b) Getheite. 14. Therefore the Arke of God remayned in the house of Obededom three months: & our Lord blessed his house, and al things that he had.

(a) Obededom was a Leuite, (c. 15. v. 18.) and therefore more meete to keep the arke: (b) Called a Getheite because he had dwelt in the towne of Geth.

And when they were come vp into Baalpharaim, Dauid stricke them there, and sayd: God hath diuided myne enemies by my hand, as waters are diuided: and therefore the name of that place was called Baal Pharaïm. 12. And they leaft there their Gods, which Dauid commanded to be burnt. 13. And other time also the Philisthims invaded, and were dispersed in the Vale. 14. And Dauid consulted God agayne, and God sayd to him: Goe not vp after them, retyre from them, & thou shalt come agaynst them ouer agaynst the peare-trees. 15. And when thou shalt heare the sound of one going in the top of the peare-trees, then shalt thou yssue forth to battel. For God is gone forth before thee, to strike the campe of the Philisthims. 16. Dauid determining to build a Temple, 11. is admonished by Nathan the Prophet, that not he, but his sonne, shal build it; and be established in the Kingdome. 16. Dauid extoileth Gods benignitie towarus him and the people.

AND when Dauid dwelt in his house, he sayd to Nathan the Prophet : Behold I dwel in a house of cedar : and the Arke of the couenant of our Lord is vnder skins. 2. And Nathan sayd to Dauid : Al things, that are in thy hart doe : for God is with thee. 3. Therefore that night the word of God came to Nathan, saying : 4. Goe, and speake to Dauid my seruant : Thus sayth our Lord : Thou shalt not build me a house to dwell in. 5. For neither haue I remayned in house from the time, that I brought out Israel, vntil this day: but I haue been alwaies changing places of tabernacle, & in tēr, 6. abiding with al Israel. Did I speake to one, at the least, of al the iudges of Israel whom I cōmanded to reede my people, and did I say: Why haue you not built me a house of cedar? 7. Now therefore so shalt thou speake to my seruant Dauid: Thus sayth the Lord of hostes: I tooke thee, when in the pasture thou didest folow the flocke, that thou shouldest be Prince of my people Israel. 8. And I haue been with thee whither soeuer thou wentest: and I haue slayne al thine enemies before thee, and haue made thee a name as of one of the great ones, that are renoumed in the earth. 9. And I haue giuen a place to my people Israel: it shal be planted, and shal dwell therein, and shal be moued no more, neither shal the children of iniquitie consume them, as from the beginning, 10. since the dayes that I gaue Iudges to my people Israel, & humbled al thine enemies. I therefore tel thee, that our Lord wil build thee (a) a house. 11. And when thou shalt haue accomplished thy daies to goe to thy fathers, I wil rayse vp thy seed after thee, which shal be of thy children: and I wil establish his Kingdom. 12. He shal build me a house, and I wil confirme his throne for euer. 13. I wil be to him for a father, and he shal be to me for a sonne: and my mercie I wil not take from him, as I tooke from him, that was before thee. 14. And I wil establish him in my house, and in my Kingdom for euer: and his throne shal be most firme for euer. 15. According to al these words, and according to al this vision, so spake Nathan to Dauid. 16. And when King Dauid came, and sate before our Lord, he sayd: Who am I Lord God, and what is my house, that thou shouldest giue me such things? 17. But this also hath seemed little in thy sight, and therefore thou hast spoken concerning the house of thy seruant for time to come also: and hast made me renoumed aboute al men Lord God. 18. What can Dauid adde farther, wheras thou hast so glorified thy seruant, and knowen him? 19. Lord for thy seruant according to thy hart thou hast done al this magnificence, and would haue al thy great wonders to be knowen. 20. Lord, there is not the like to thee: and there is none other beside thee, of al whom we haue heard with our eares. 21. For what other is there, as thy people Israel, one nation in the earth, to the which God went, to deliuer it and make it his people, and with his greatnesse & terrours cast out the nations before the face of it, which he deliuered out of Ægypt? 22. And thou hast made thy people Israel to be thy people for euer, and thou Lord art made the God thereof. 23. Now therefore Lord, the word, which thou hast spoken to thy seruant, and concerning his house, be it confirmed for euer, and doe as thou hast spoken. 24. And let thy name remayne and be magnified for euer: and let it be sayd: The Lord of hostes is God of Israel, & the house of Dauid his seruant permanent before him. 25. For thou Lord my God hast reuiled the care of thy seruant, to build him a house: and therefore thy seruant hath found confidence, to pray before thee. 26. Now therefore Lord thou art God: & thou hast spoken to thy seruant so great benefits. 27. And thou hast begun to blesse the house of thy seruant, that it be alwaies before thee: for thee o Lord blessing it, it shal be blessed for euer.

(a) The lesser townes and village are commonly called the daughters of some great towne or citie to which they pertaine.

AND it came to passe after these things, that Dauid stricke the Philisthiims, and humbled them, and tooke away Geth, and her (a) daughters out of the hand of the Philisthiims, 2. and stricke Moab, & the Moabites were made Dauids seruants, offering him gifts. 3. At that time Dauid stricke Adarezer also the King of Soba of the countrie of Hemath, when he went on to dilate his empire as farre as the riuer Euphrates. 4. Dauid therefore tooke a thousand chariots of his, & seuen thousand horsmē, & twentie thousand footmē, & he houghnewed al the chariot horses, sauing an hundred chariots, which he reserued to himself. 5. And the Syrian also of Damascus came moreouer, to giue ayde to Adarezer the King of Soba, but Dauid stricke also of his two & twentie thousand men. 6. And he put souldires in Damascus, that Syria also should serue him, & bring gifts. And our Lord holpe him in al things, to the which he went. 7. Dauid also tooke the golden quyuers, which the seruants of Adarezer had, and he brought them into Ierusalem. 8. Moreouer of Thebath, and Chun, the cities of Adarezer, verie much brasse, of which Salomon made the brasen Sea, and pillers, and brasen vessels. 9. Which when Tou the King of Hemath had heard, to wit, that Dauid had stricken al the armie of Adarezer the King of Soba, 10. he sent Adoram his sonne to King Dauid, to desire peace of him, and to congratulate him that he had stricken, and had ouerthrowen Adarezer: for Tou was aduerfarie to Adarezer. 11. But al the vessel also of gold, and siluer, and brasse King Dauid (b) consecrated to our Lord, with the siluer and gold, which he had taken out of al the nations, as wel of Idu-mea, and Moab, and the children of Ammon, as of the Philisthiims & Amalec. 12. And Abisai the sonne of Saruia stricke Edom in the Vale of salt pittes, eighteen thousand: 13. and he appoynted a garryson in Edō, that Idumea should serue Dauid, and our Lord saued Dauid in al things to which he went. 14. Dauid therefore reigned ouer al Israel, & did iudgement and iustice to al his people. 15. Moreouer Ioab the sonne of Saruia was ouer the armie, and Iosaphat the sonne of Ahilud commenter.

(b) That which is dedicated to sacred vse, is consecrated to God.

AND it chanced that Naas the King of the children of Ammon died, and his sonne reigned for him. 2. And Dauid sayd: I wil doe mercie with Hanon the sonne of Naas: for his father hath done me pleasure. And Dauid sent messengers to comfort him vpon the death of his father. Who when they were come into the land of the children of Ammon, to comfort Hanon, 3. the Princes of the children of Ammon sayd to Hanon: Thou thinkest perhaps, that Dauid for honour sake toward thy father hath sent some that should comfort thee: neither markest thou, that his seruants are come to thee to espie, and seeke out, and search thy land. 4. Therefore Hanon made the seruants of Dauid balde, and shaued them, and cut away their cotes from the buttocks to the feet, and sent them away. 5. Who when they were gone, and had sent word to Dauid, he sent to meete them (for they had susteyned great reproch) and commanded them to tarie in Iericho, til their beard grew, and then they should returne. 6. And the children of Ammon seeing, that they had done iniurie to Dauid, as wel Hanon as the rest of the people, they sent a thousand talents of siluer, to hyre them chariots and horsemen out of Mesopotamia, and from Siria Maacha, and from Soba. 7. And they hyred two and thirtie thousand chariots, & King Maacha with his people. Who when they were come, camped ouer agaynst Medaba. The children of Ammon also being gathered together out of their cities, came to the battel. 8. Which when Dauid had heard, he sent Ioab, and al the host of valiant men: 9. and the children of Ammon issuing forth, put their armie in aray beside the gate of the citie: and the Kings, that were come to ayde him, stood apart in the field. 10. Ioab therefore vnderstanding that battel was made agaynst him before and behind, chose the most valiant men of al Israel, and marched on agaynst the Syrian. 11. And the rest of the people he gaue vnder the hand of Abisai his brother: and they went forth agaynst the children of Ammon. 12. And he sayd: If the Syrian thal ouercome me, thou shalt ayde me: and if the children of Ammon thal ouercome thee, I wil ayde thee. 13. Take courage, and let vs play the men for our people, and for the cities of our God: and our Lord wil doe that which is good in his sight. 14. Ioab therefore marched on, and the people that were with him, agaynst the Syrian to battel: and he put them to flight. 15. Moreouer the childre of Ammon seeing that the Syrian was fled, themselues also fled from Abisai his brother, and went into the citie: and Ioab also returned into Ierusalem. 16. But the Syrian seeing that he was fallen before Israel, sent messengers, and brought the Syrian, that was beyond the riuer: and Sophach the General of Adarezers warre, was their captayne. 17. Which when it was told Dauid, he gathered together al Israel, and passed Iordan, and fel vpon them, & directed his armie agaynst him, they fighting on the contrarie part. 18. And the Syrian fled from Israel: and Dauid slew of the Syrians seuen thousand chariots, and fourtie thousand foote men, and Sophach General of the armie. 19. And the seruants of Adarezer seeing themselues to be ouercome of Israel, fled to Dauid, and serued him: and Syria would no more giue ayde to the children of Ammon.

King Dauid prospereth in warre agaynst the Ammonites, 4. and Philisthims, 6. among whom Jonathan Dauids nephew by his brother, killeth a monstrous giant, which had twelue fingers and twelue toes.

AND it came to passe after the compasse of a yeare, at such time when Kings are wont to goe forth to battel, Ioab gathered together the armie and force of warre, and spoyled the land of the children of Ammon: and went on and besieged Rabba. Moreouer Dauid taried in Ierusalem, when Ioab struck Rabba, and destroyed it. 2. And Dauid tooke the crowne of Melchom from his head, and found in it a talent weight of gold, and most precious pearles, and he made himself therof a diademe: he tooke also the spoiles of the citie very much. 3. And the people that was therein, he brought forth: and he made harrowes, and sleds, and chariots shod with Iron to passe ouer them, so that they were cut a sunder, and broken in pices: so did Dauid to al the cities of the children of Ammon: and he returned with al his people into Ierusalem. 4. After these things there was warre begun in Gazer agaynst the Philisthians in which Sobochai the Hufathite strucke Saphai of the kinred of Raphaim, and humbled them. 5. An other battel also was fought agaynst the Philisthians, wherein Adcodatus the sonne of Saltus a Bethlehemite strucke the brother of Goliath the Getheite, the staffe of whose speare was as it were a weauers beame. 6. But an other batel also happened in Geth, wherein there was a verie long man, hauing fingers and toes by six & six, that is, together foure & twentie: who also was borne

And Dauid sayd to Ioab, and to the Princes of the people: Goe, and number Israel from Bersabee vnto Dan, and bring me the number that I may know. 3. And Ioab, answered: Our Lord increase his people an hundred fold more then they are: are they not my Lord King althy seruants? why doth my Lord seeke this, which may be reputed for a liane to Israel? 4. But the Kings word preuailed more: and Ioab went forth, and went about al Israel: and returned to Ierusalem. 5. And he gaue Dauid the number of thē, whom he had surneyed: and al the number of Israel was found a thousand thousand & an hundred thousand men that drew sword: and of Iuda foure hundred fcutientie thousand men of warre. 6. For Leui and Benjamin he numbred not: because Ioab vnwillingly executed the Kings commandment. 7. And that which was commanded displeased God: and he stricke Israel. 8. And Dauid sayd to God: I haue sinned exceedingly in that I would doe this: I beseech thee take away (b) the iniquitie of thy seruāt, because I haue done foolishly. 9. And our Lord spake to Gad the Seer of Dauid, saying: 10. Goe, & speake to Dauid, & tel him: Thus sayth our Lord: I giue thee the choyse of three things, choose one which thou wilt, & I wil doe it to thee. 11. And when Gad was come to Dauid, he sayd to him: Thus sayth our Lord: Choose which thou wilt: 12. either three yeares famine: or three months to fly from thine enemies, and not to be able to escape their sword: or three dayes the sword of our Lord, and pestilence to be in the land, & the Angel of our Lord to kil in al the costes of Israel: now therefore see what I shal answer him, that sent me. 13. And Dauid sayd to Gad: I am on euerie side in great dittresse: but it is better, that I fal into the hands of our Lord, because his mercies be manie, then into the hāds

He sent also an Angel into Ierusalē, to strike it : and when it was stricken, our Lord saw, and had compassion vpon the greatnesse of the euil, and commanded the Angel, that smote : It is sufficient, now let thy hand cease. Moreouer the Angel of our Lord stood beside the floore of Ornan the Iebuseite. 16. And Dauid lifting vp eies, saw the Angel of our Lord standing between heauen & earth, and a sword drawn in his hand, turned against Ierusalem : and they fel as wel he as the ancients clothed in heare cloths, flat on the earth. 17. And Dauid sayd to God : Am not I he, that commanded the people to be numbred? It is I that haue sinned : it is I that haue done the euil: this flocke what hath it deserued? Lord my God let thy hand be turned I beseech thee vpon me, and vpon my fathers house : and let not thy people be stricken. 18. And the Angel of our Lord commanded Gad to tel Dauid, that he should goe vp, and build an altar to our Lord God in the floore of Ornan the Iebuseite. 19. Dauid therefore went vp according to the word of Gad, which he had spoken to him in the name of our Lord. 20. Moreover Ornan when he had looked vp, and seen the Angel, and his foure sounes with him, they hid themselves. for at that time he threthed wheat in the floore. 21. Therefore when Dauid came to Ornan, Ornan beheld him, and went forth to meet him out of the floore, and adored him flatte on the ground. 22. And Dauid sayd to him : Giue me the place of thy floore, that I may build therein an altar to our Lord : so that thou take as much siluer as it is worth, and the plague may cease from the people. 23. And Ornan sayd to Dauid : Take it, and let my Lord the King doe whatsoever pleaseth him: yea the oxen also I giue for holocaust, and * the dreyes for wood, and wheat for sacrifice : I wil giue al things willingly. 24. And King Dauid sayd to him : It shal not be so, but I wil giue thee siluer as much as it is worth : for I may not take it from thee, and so offer to our Lord holocausts giue gratis. 25. Dauid therefore gaue Ornan for the place, six hundred sicles of gold of most iust weight. 26. And he built there an altar to our Lord: and he offered holocausts, and pacifikes, and he inuocated our Lord, and he heard him (e) in fyre from heauen vpon the altar of holocauste. 27. And our Lord commanded the Angel: & he turned his sword into the scabard. 28. Dauid therefore forthwith seeing that our Lord had heard him in the floore of Ornan the Iebuseite, immolated victimes there. 29. But the tabernacle of our Lord, which Moyses made in the desert, and the altar of holocausts, was at that time in the excelse of Gabaon. 30. And Dauid could not goe to the altar to pray God there: for he had been frightened with exceeding feare, seeing the sword of the Angel of our Lord.

Whorkemen and al necessaries being prepared, 6. Dauid commandeth Salomon to build the Temple, for so God hath appointed. 13. Exhorteth him to serue God, 17. and other principal men to assist him.

AND Dauid sayd: This is the house of God, and this is an altar for holocaust to Israel. 2. And he commanded that the profelytes of the land of Israel should be gathered together, and he appoynted of them masons to hew stones and polish them, that the house of God might be built. 3. Dauid prepared also verie much yron for the nayles of the gates, and for the ioynings and ioynctures: & of brasse an innumerable weight. 4. The cedar-trees also could not be esteemed, which the Sidonians and Tyrians brought downe to Dauid. 5. And Dauid sayd: Salomon my sonne is yet a litle child and delicate, and the house which I would haue to be builded to our Lord, must be such as may be renowned in al countries: I therefore wil prepare him necessaries. And for this cause before his death he prepared al the expenses. 6. And he called Salomon his sonne: and commanded him that he should build a house to our Lord the God of Israel. 7. And Dauid sayd to Salomon: My sonne, it was my wil to haue built a house to the name of our Lord my God. 8. But the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: Thou hast shed much bloud, and fought verie manie battels, thou canst not build a house to my name, so much bloud being shed before me: 9. the sonne, which shall be borne to thee, shall be a most quiet man: for I wil make him rest from al his enemies round about: and for this cause, he shall be called (a) Peaceable: and I wil giue peace and quietnesse in Israel al his dayes. 10. He shall build a house to my name, and he shall be to me for a sonne, and I wil be to him for a father: and I wil establish the throne of his Kingdome ouer Israel for euer. 11. Now therefore my sonne, Our Lord be with thee, and doe thou prosper, and build the house to our Lord thy God, as he hath spoken of thee. 12. Our Lord also giue thee wisdom and vnderstanding, that thou mayst be able to rule Israel, and to keepe the law of our Lord thy God. 13. For then thou shalt be able to prosper, if thou shalt keepe the commandments, and iudgements, which our Lord commanded Moyse to teach Israel: take courage and play the man, feare not, neither be dismayd. 14. Behold I in my pouertie haue prepared the charges of the house of our Lord, of gold an hundred thousand talents, and of siluer a thousand thousand talents: but of brasse, & of yron there is no weight, for the number is surpassed with the greatnesse: timber & stones I haue prepared to al the charges. 15. Thou hast also verie manie artificers, hewers of stones, and masons, and carpenters, and of al occupations most shilful to make worke 16. in gold and siluer and brasse and yron, wherof there is no number. Rylse therefore, and doe it, and our Lord wil be with thee. 17. David also commanded al the Princes of Israel, thar they should help Salomon his sonne. 18. You see, quoth he, that our Lord your God is with you, and hath giuen you rest round about, and hath deliuered al your enemies into your hands, and the land is subdued before our Lord, and before his people. 19. Giue therefore your hart and your soules, to seeke our Lord your God: and arise, and build a sanctuarie to our Lord God, that the Arke of the copenant of our Lord, and the vessels consecrated to our Lord, may be brought into the house, which is built to the name of our Lord.

Againe King David calling at his states together, with commemoration of Gods singular fauour in electing him, and Salomon, 8. exhorteth them al, and namely his sonne to serue God sincerely: 10. and to build the temple, describing in what forme to make it.

(a) So Iacob prophesied, that the royal scepter should come to the tribe of Iuda, & therein remaine til Christ. Gen. 49.
 (b) It is here euident, that Salomon was sometime the true seruant and childe of God, keeping his precepts & as certaine, that he fell into great finnes, & lost Gods grace, & finally it is doubtful in what state he died. 3. Reg. 11. wherby is couiaced their vaine plancie that thinke, he who is once the child of God can neuer fal, nor become a wicked man.

DAVID therefore called together al the Princes of Israel, the Dukes of the tribes, and the heads of the companies, which ministred to the King: the tribunes also and the centurions, and them that were chiefe ouer the substance and possessions of the King, and his sonnes with the eunuches, and the mightie, and al the most valiant in the host of Ierusalem. 2. And when the King had risen vp, and stood, he sayd: Heare me my brethren, and my people: I meant to haue built a house, wherein the Arke of our Lord might rest, and the foot-stoole of the feet of our God: and to build it I prepared al things. 3. But God sayd to me: Thou shalt not build a house to my name: because thou art a man of warre, and hast shed blood. 4. Howbeit our Lord the God of Israel chose me of al the house of my father, to be King ouer Israel for euer: for (a) of Iuda he chose the Princes: moreouer of the house of Iuda, my fathers house: and of the sonnes of my father, it pleased him to choose me King ouer al Israel. 5. Yea and of my sonnes (for our Lord hath giuen me manie sonnes) he hath chosen Salomon my sonne, to sitte in the throne of the Kingdome of our Lord ouer Israel, 6. and he sayd to me: Salomon thy sonne shall build my house, and my courts: for him haue I chosen to me for a sonne, and I wil be to him for a father. 7. And I wil confirme his Kingdome for euer, if he shall perseuer to doe my precepts, and my iudgements, as (b) at this day. 8. Now then before al the assemblie of Israel in the hearing of our God, keep ye, and search al the commandments of our Lord God: that you may possesse the good land, & may leaue it to your childre after you for euer. 9. And thou Salomon my sonne, know the God of thy father, and serue him with a perfect hart, and a voluntarie mind: for our Lord searcheth al harts, and vnderstandeth al cogitations of minds. If thou seeke him, thou shalt find: but if thou forsake him he wil reiect thee for euer. 10. Now therefore because our Lord hath chosen thee to build the house of the Sanctuarie, take courage, and perfit it. 11. And David gaue to Salomon his sonne a description of the porch, and of the temple, and of the cellars, and of the vpper loft, and of the chambers in the inner roomes, and of the house of the propitiation, 12. moreouer also of al the courts, which he had thought vpon, and of the chambers round about, for the treasures of the house of our Lord, and for the treasures of the holie things, 13. and of the diuisions of the Priests and the Leuites, for al the works of the house of our Lord, and for al the vessels of the ministerie of the temple of our Lord. 14. Gold in weight for euerie vessel of the ministerie. A weight of siluer also according to the diuersitie of the vessels and works. 15. And for golden candlestickes also, and their lampes, gold according to the measure of euerie candlestick, and of the lampes. In like manner also for the siluer candlestickes, and for their lampes, according to the diuersitie of the measure, he deliuered a weight of siluer. 16. He gaue also gold for tables of proposition, according to the diuersitie of the tables: in like manner also siluer for other siluer tables. 17. For flesh-hooks also, and phials, and censars of most pure gold, and for little lions of gold, according to the qualitie of the measure he distributed a weight, for lyon and lyon. In like manner also for lyons of siluer he seperated a diuerse weight of siluer. 18. And for the Altar whereupon incense is burnt, he gaue most pure gold: that of it might be made a similitude of the chariot of the Cherubs spreading their wings, and couering the Arke of the coucnant of our Lord. 19. Al things, quoth he, came written with the hand of our Lord vnto me: that I might vnderstand al the workes of the patterne. 20. David also sayd to Salomon his sonne: Deale manfully, and take courage, and doe it: feare not, and be not dismayed: for our Lord my God wil be with thee, and wil not leaue thee, nor forsake thee, til thou perfite al the worke of the ministerie of the house of our Lord. 21. Behold the diuisions of the Priests and the Leuites, for euerie ministerie of the house of our Lord assilt thee, and are readie, and as wel the Princes know, as the people, to doe al thy precepts.

King Dauid once more by word, and exemple of his owne bountifulnes, inuiceth others to assist in building the temple, 6. wherto the Princes and people contribute much. 10. AND Dauid the King spake to al the assemblie: Salomon my sonne alone hath God chosen, as yet a child and a litle tender one: for the worke is great, neither is the habitation prepared for man, but for God. 2. And I with al my abilitie haue prepared the expenses of the house of my God. Gold for vessels of gold, and siluer for them of siluer, brasse for them of brasse, yron for them of yron, wood for them of wood: and onyx stones, and as it were * stibians, and of diuerse colours, and euerie precious stone, and marble of Paros most abundantly: 3. and aboue these things, which I haue offered into the house of my God, I giue (a) of myne one peculiar goods, gold & siluer vnto the tēple of my God, beside those things, which I haue prepared for the holie house: 4. Three thousand talents of gold of the gold of Ophir: and seuen thousand talents of most aproued siluer, to guilte the wals of the temple. 5. And whersoer there needeth gold, of gold: and whersoer there needeth siluer, of siluer: let the works be made by the hands of the artificers: and if any man offer voluntarily, let him fil his hand to day, and offer what he wil to our Lord. 6. The Princes therefore of the families promised, and the nobles of the tribes of Israel, the tribunes also and the centurions, and the Princes of the Kings possessions. 7. And they gaue vnto the works of the house of our Lord, of gold, siue thousand talents, and ten thousand solidos: of siluer ten thousand talents, and of brasse eighteen thousand talents: of yron also an hundred thousand talents. 8. And with whomsoer were found stones, they gaue them into the treasures of the house of our Lord, by the hand of Ianiel the Gersonite. 9. And the people reioysed, when they promised vowes of their owne accord: because they did offer them to our Lord with al their hart: yea and Dauid the King reioysed with great ioy. 10. And he blessed our Lord before al the multitude, and he sayd: Blessed art thou, o Lord the God of Israel, our father, frō eternitie vnto eternitie. 11. Thine o Lord is the magnificence, and might, and glorie, and victorie: and to thee is the prayse: for al things that be in heauen, and in the earth, are thine: thine o Lord is the Kingdō, & thou art ouer al Princes. 12. riches and thine is glorie : thou hast dominion ouer al , in thy hand is power and might : in thy hand greatnesse , and the empire of al things. 13. Now therefore our God we confesse to thee , and we prayse thy glorious name. 14. Who am I, and what is my people, that we can promise thee al these things : al are thine : and things that we receiued of thy hand, we haue giuen thee. 15. For we are pilgrimes before thee, and strangers, (b) as al our fathers. Our daies are as a shadow vpon the earth, and there is no abyding. 16. Lord our God, al this plentie , which we haue prepared that a house might be built to thy holie name , is of thy hand, and al things are thine. 17. I know my God that thou prouest the harts , and louest simplicitie , wherfore I also in the simplicitie of my hart , gladly haue offered al these things : and thy people, which is here found, I haue seen with great ioy offer thee donaries. 18. Lord God of Abraham, and Isaac, and Israel our fathers , keep for euer this wil of their hart, and let this mind remayne alwaies to the honour of thee. 19. To Salomon also my sonne giue a perfect hart , that he keep thy commandments, thy testimonies, and thy ceremonies, and doe al things : and build the house, the expenses wherof I haue prepared. 20. And they immolated victime to our Lord : and they offered holocausts the day following, oxen a thousand, rammes a thousand, lambs a thousands with their libaments , and with al rite most abundantly for al Israel. 22. And they did eate , and drinke before our Lord in that day with great ioy. And they anoynted the second time Salomon the sonne of Dauid. And they anoynted him to our Lord for the Prince, and Sadoc for the high Priest. 23. And Salomon sate vpon the throne of our Lord as King for Dauid his father, and he pleased al: and al Israel obeyed him. 24. Yea and al the Princes, and men of might, and al the sonnes of King Dauid gaue their hand , and were subiect to Salomon the King. 25. Our Lord therefore magnified Salomon ouer al Israel: & gaue him the glorie of a Kingdom, such as no King of Israel had before him. 26. Dauid therefore the sonne of Isai reigned ouer al Israel. 27. And the daies that he reigned ouer Israel , were fourtie yeares : in Hebron he reigned seuen yeares, and in Ierusalem three & thirtie yeares. 28. And he died in a good gold age, ful of daies , and riches, & glorie. And Salomon his sonne reigned for him. 29. But the actes of King Dauid the first and the last are written in the Booke of Samuel the Seer, and in the Book of (d) Nathan the Prophet, and in the Volume of Gad the Seer: 30. and of al his Kingdom , and strength, and of the times , that passed vnder him, either in Israel , or in al the Kingdoms of the earth.

THE ARGUMENT OF THE SECOND BOOK OF PARALIPOMENON.

The connexion of this book with the former.

The contents diuided into two parts.

AS the former booke sheweth, how after manie generations from the beginning of the world, God selecting one special nation for his peculiar people, and the same being afterwards made a Kingdome, the Scepter therof, both by Gods and the peoples election, came to Dauid, and his sonne Salomon: So this booke declareth that first Salomon reigned peaceably ouer the whole Kingdome. in the nine first chapters. Then, in the other twentie seuen chapters, relateth how the same Kingdome was diuided, ten tribes being taken away (the historie wherof is but heere briefly touched) and two only, with the title of the Kingdome of Iuda, were possessed, by succession of nineteene Kings, all of Dauids and salomons issue, in royal estate til the captiuitie in Babylon.

Salomon established in the throne, offereth a thousand hostes of sacrifice, 7. asking wisdom, 12. it is giuen him; with riches, and temporal glorie, which he asked not. 14. He provideth manie chariots and horsemen.

ALOMON therefore the sonne of David was strengthened in his Kingdom, and our Lord was with him, and magnified him on high. 2. And Salomon commanded al Israel, the tribunes, and the centurions, & the dukes, and iudges of al Israel, and the Princes of the families: 3. and he went with al the multitude into the Exclse of Gabaon, where was the tabernacle of the couenant of our Lord, which Moyfes the seruant of God made, in the wildernesse. 4. For David had brought the Arke of God from Cariathiarim into the place, which he had prepared for it, & where he had pitcht a tabernacle for it, that is, in Ierusalem: 5. The altar also of brasse, which Beseleel the sonne of Uri the sonne of Hur had made, was there before the tabernacle of our Lord: which also Salomon sought, and al the assemblie. 6. And Salomon went vp to the altar of brasse, before the tabernacle of the couenant of our Lord, and offered on it a thousand hostes. 7. And behold in that verie night God appeared to him, saying: Aske what thou wilt that I may giue it thee. 8. And Salomon sayd to God: Thou hast done great mercie with my father Dauid: and hast made me King for him. 9. Now therefore Lord God be thy word fulfilled, which thou hast promised to Dauid my father: for thou hast made me King ouer thy people great in number, which is so innumerable as the dust of the earth. 10. Giue me wisdome and intelligence, that I may come in and goe out before thy people: for who can worthily iudge this thy people, which is so great? 11. And God sayd to Salomon: Because this rather hath pleased thy hart, and thou hast not asked riches, and substance, and glorie, nor their liues that hate thee, no nor manie dayes of life: but hast desired wisdome and knowledge, that thou mayst be able to iudge my people, ouer which I haue made thee King: 12. Wisdome and knowledge are giuen thee: and riches, and substance, and glorie I wil giue thee, so that none among the Kings neither before thee, nor after thee shal be like thee. 13. Salomon therefore came from the Excelse of Gabaon into Ierusalem before the tabernacle of covenant, and reigned ouer Israel. 14. And he gathered to him chariots and horsemen, and there amounted to him a thousand foure hundred chariots, and twelue thousand horsemen: and he caused them to be in the cities of the chariots, and with the King in Ierusalem. 15. And the King gaue siluer and gold in Ierusalem (a) as stones, and cedar-trees as sycomores, which grow in the champayne in great multitude. 16. And there were horses brought him from Ægypt, and from Coa by the Kings merchants, which went, and brought by a price, 17. a chariote of foure horses for six hundred pieces of siluer, & an horse for an hundred fiftie: inlike manner of al the Kingdomes of the Hetheites, and of the Kings of Syria market was made.

CHAP. II.

Other workemen being provided to build the Temple, 7. Salomon procureth a cunning artificer from the King of Tyre, and special timber, 16. so he cutte, and sent from thence.

AND Salomon determined to build a house to the name of our Lord, and a palace for himself. 2. And he numbred seuentie thousand men that caried on their shoulders, and eightie thousand that should hew stones in the mountaynes, and ouerscers of them three thousand six hundred. 3. He sent also to Hiram the King of Tyre, saying: As thou didst with Dauid my father, and didst send him cedar-trees, to build

him a house, wherein also he dwelt : 4. so doe with me that I may build a house to the name of our Lord my God, that I may consecrate it to burne incense before him, and to perfume with aromatical spices, and to the euerlasting proposition of loaves, and for holocausts, morning and euening, on the sabbaths also, and the new moones, and the solemnities of our Lord God for euer, which are commanded Israel. 5. For the house which I desire to build, is great : for our God is great about all Gods. 6. Who then can be able to build him a worthie house? if heauen, and the heauens of heauens can not conteyne him : how great am I, that I may build him a house? but to this end only, that incense may be burnt before him. 7. Send me therefore a cunning man, that hath skil to worke in gold, and siluer, brasse, & yron, purple, scarlet, and hyacinth, and that knoweth to make engraued works with these artificers, which I haue with me in Iewrie, and Ierusalem, whom Dauid my father prepared. 8. But send me also cedar-trees, firre-trees, and pine-trees from Libanus : for I know that thy seruants haue skil to hew the timber of Libanus, and my seruants that be with thy seruants, 9. that manie trees may be prepared for me. For the house which I desire to build, is exceeding great, and glorious. 10. Moreouer to the workemen, that shall hew the trees, thy seruants, I wil giue for victuals of wheat twentie thousand cores, and of barley as manie cores, & of wine twentie thousand metretes, of oyle also twentie thousand fates. 11. And Hiram the King of Tyre by letters, which he sent to Salomon, sayd : Because the Lord loued his people, therefore hath he made thee to reigne ouer it. 12. And he added, saying : Blessed be the Lord the God of Israel, that made heauen & earth, who hath giuen to Dauid the King a sonne wise and learned, and of vnderstanding, and prudent, to build a house to the Lord, and a palace for himself. 13. I therefore haue sent thee a man wise and most skilful, Hiram (b) my father, 14. the sonne of a woman of the daughters of Dan, whose father was a Tyrian, who knoweth to worke in gold, and siluer, brasse, and yron, and marble, and in timber, in purple also, and hyacinth, and silke, and scarlet : and that knoweth to graue all engraving, and to deuise wisely whatsoeuer in the worke is necessarie with thy artificers, & with the artificers of my Lord Dauid thy father. 15. The wheat therefore, & barley, & oyle, and wine, which thou my Lord hast promised, send to thy seruants. 16. And we wil cut downe the trees out of Libanus, as manie as shall be necessarie for thee, and wil conuey them in boats by the sea vnto Ioppe: and it shall be thy part to transport them into Ierusalem. 17. Salomon therefore numbred all the men, that were proselytes in the land of Israel, after the numbring which Dauid his father numbred, and they were found an hundred fiftie three thousand & six hundred. 18. And he made of them seuentie thousand, that should carie burdens on their shoulders, and eightie thousand, that should cut stones out of the mountaynes: & three thousand and six hundred ouerseers of the worke of the people.

(b) It is probable that this man had instructed the King of Tyre in true religion of one God, whom he confessed, v. 11. 12. and that therefore the King called his father.

AND Salomon began to build the house of our Lord in Ierusalem, in mount (a) Moria, which had been shewed to Dauid his father, in the place, which (b) Dauid had prepared in the floore of Oran the Iebuseite. 2. And he began to build in the second month, in the fourth yeare of his Kingdome. 3. And these be the foundations, which Salomon layd, to build the house of God, of length in the first measure sixtie cubits, of bredth twentie cubits. 4. But the porch before the front, which was extended in length according to the measure of the bredth of the house, of twentie cubits: moreouer the height was of an hundred twentie cubits: and he did guild it on the inside with most pure gold. 5. Also the greater house he couered with wodden bords of firre tree, & he fastned on plates of fine gold throughout: and he graued in it palme-trees, and as it were litle chaines embracing one an other. 6. He paued also the floore of the Temple with most precious marble, in much beautie. 7. Moreouer it was most tried gold, of the plates wherof he couered the house, and the beames therof, and the posts, and the wals, and the doores: and he graued Cherubs in the wals. 8. He made also the house of Sanctum Sanctorum: the length according to the bredth of the house, of twentie cubits: and the bredth likewise of it twentie cubits: and he couered it with plates of gold, as it were six hundred talents. 9. Yea and he made nails of gold, so that euerie naile weighed fittie sicies a piece: the vpper chambers also he couered with gold. 10. He made also in the house of Sanctum Sanctorum two Cherubs of statuarie worke: and he couered them with gold. 11. The wings of the Cherubs were extended twentie cubits, so that one wing had five cubits, and touched the wal of the house: and the other hauing five cubits, touched the wing of the other Cherub. 12. In like manner the wing of the other Cherub, had five cubits, and touched the wal: and his other wing of five cubits, touched the wing of the other Cherub. 13. Therefore the wings of both the Cherubs were spred forth, and were extended twentie cubits: and they stood vpright on their feet, and their faces were turned to the vtter house. 14. He made also a veile of hyacinth, purple, scarlet, and silke: & woue in it Cherubs. 15. Before the doores also of the temple two pillers, which had five and

The pillers also themselues he put in the entrance of the temple , one on the right hand , and the other on the left : that which was on the right hand , he called Iachin : and that on the left hand, Boz.

HE made also an altar of brasse (a) of twentie cubits in length , and of twentie cubites in bredth , and of ten cubits in height. 2. (b) A Sea also cast, ten cubits from brimme to brimme, round in compasse : it had fiue cubits in height, and a corde of thirtie cubits did compasse it round about. 3. There was also vnder it the similitude of oxen , and certaine engrauiings of ten cubits on the outside compassed the belie of the Sea , as it were with two rewes. 4. And the oxen were cast : and the Sea it-self was sette vpon the twelue oxen , of the which three looked toward the North , and other three to the West : moreouer other three to the South , and the three that remayned , to the East , hauing the Sea put vpon them : and the hinder parts of the oxen were inward vnder the sea. 5. Moreouer the thickenesse therof had the measure of a palme , and the brimme therof was as it were the brimme of a chalice , or of a crisped lillie : and it held three thousand metretres. 6. He made also ten lauatories : and set fiue on the right hand , and fiue on the left , that they might wash in them al things , that they would offer for holocaust : moreouer in the Sea the Priests were washed. 7. And he made also (c) ten golden candlestickes , according to the fashion which they were commanded to be made by : and he set them in the temple , fiue on the right hand , and fiue on the left. 8. Moreouer also ten tables : and he set them in the temple , fiue on the right hand , and fiue on the left. Phials also of gold an hundred. 9. He made also the court of the Priests , and a great hal : and doores in the hal , which he covered with brasse. 10. Moreouer he set the Sea on the right side agaynst the East toward the South. 11. And Hiram made cauldrons , and flesh-hooks , and phials : and accomplished al the Kings worke Al the vessels did Hiram his father make for Salomon in the house of our Lord of most pure brasse. 17. In the countrie of Iordan did the King cast them, in a clay ground between Socot and Saredatha. 18. And the multitude of vessels was innumerable, so that the weight of the brasse was not knowen. 19. And Salomon made al the vessels of the house of God, and the golden altar, and the tables, and vpon them the losues of proposition, 20. the candlestickes also with their lamps to giue light before the oracle, according to the rite, of most pure gold : 21. and certayne flourishing things, and lamps, and golden tongs al were made of most fine gold. 22. Manie gifts are offered. 4. The Arke is brought with great solemnitie into the Temple. 6. Innumerable hosts are offered, 11, with excellent musick, and the Temple is replenshed with the glorie of God.

(a) Another Arke was not made, because that was most holie and most excellent, which Moyfes made. Likewise other holie things of the tabernacle were brought into the Temple with great solemnitic.

SALOMON therefore brought in al the things, that David his father had vowed, the siluer, & gold, & al the vessels he put in the treasures of the house of God. 2. After which things he gathered together al the ancients of Israel, and al the Princes of the tribes, and the heads of families, of the children of Israel into Ierusalem, to bring (a) the Arke of the couenant of our Lord from the Citie of Dauid, which is Sion. 3. There came therefore vnto the King al the men of Israel in the solemne day of the seuenth month. 4. And when al the ancients of Israel were come, the Leuites caried the Arke, 5. and brought it in, and al the furniture of the tabernacle. Morcouer the Priests with the Leuites did carrie the vessels of the Sanctuarie, which were in the tabernacle. 6. without anie number : for so great was the multitude of victimes. 7. And the Priests brought in the Arke of the couenant of our Lord into his place, that is, to the oracle of the temple, into Sancta sanctorum vnder the wings of the cherubs: 8. so that the cherubs spred their wings ouer the place wherin the Arke was set, and couered the Arke it selte with his barres. 9. And the heads of the barres, wherwith the Arke was caried, because they were a litle longer, appeared before the oracle: but if a man had been a litle outward, he could not see them. The Arke therefore was there vntil this present day. 10. And there was nothing in the Arke, but the two tables, which Moyfes had put in Horeb, when our Lord gaue the law to the children of Israel comming out of Ægypt. 11. And the Priests being gone out of the Sanctuarie (for al the Priests that could be found there, were sanctified, neither as yet at that time were the courses & the order of the ministeries deuided among them) 12. as wel the Leuites as the singing men, that is, both they which were vnder Asaph, and they which were vnder Heman, and they which were vnder Idithun, their sonnes, and brethren reuested with fine linnen cloths, sounded cymbals, and psalteries, and harps, standing at the East side of the Altar, and with them Priests an hundred twentie, sounding with trumpets. 13. Therefore al sounding together, both with trumpets, and voyce, and cymbals, and organs, and with diuerse kind of muscal instruments, and lifting vp their voice on high: the sound was heard far off, so that when they began to prayse our Lord, and to say: Confesse to our Lord, because he is good, because his mercie is for euer: the house of God was filled with a cloud, 14. that the Priests could not stand and minister for the darkenesse. For the glorie of our Lord had filled the house of God.

Salomon blesseth the people, 4. prayeth to God, giuing thanks for benefits receiued, 16. and requesting continual protection, and that God wil heare the prayers of the people, 32. yea also of strangers that pray in the Temple.

WHEN Salomon sayd: Our Lord promised that he would dwel (a) in darkenesse: 2. and I haue built a house to his name, that he might dwel there for euer. 3. And the King turned his face, and blessed al the multitude of Israel (for al the multitude stood attent) and sayd: 4. Blessed be our Lord the God of Israel, who in worke hath accomplished that, which he spake to Dauid my father, saying: 5. From the day, that I brought my people out of the Land of Ægypt, I chose not a citie of al the tribes of Israel, that a house might be built in it to my name: neither did I choose anie other man, to be Duke in my people Israel. 6. but I chose Ierusalem, that my name may be in it: and I chose Dauid, that I might appoynt him ouer my people Israel. 7. And wheras Dauid my father had meant to build a house to the name of our Lord the God of Israel; 8. our Lord sayd to him: Because thy wil was this, that thou wouldest build a house to my name, thou hast done wel certes to haue such a wil: 9. howbeit thou shalt not build the house, but thy sonne, which shall come out of thy loynes, he shall build a house to my name. 10. Our Lord therefore hath accomplished his word, which he spake: and I am risen for Dauid my father, and sit vpon the throne of Israel, as our Lord hath spoken: and haue built a house to the name of our Lord the God of Israel. 11. And I haue put in it the Arke, wherein is the couenant of our Lord, which he made with the children of Israel: 12. He therefore stood before the Altar of our Lord, ouer agaynst al the multitude of Israel, and stretched forth his hands. 13. For Salomon had made an eminent place of brasse, and had put it in the middes of the * temple, hauing five cubites of length, and bredth, & three of height: & he stood vpon it: and afterward (b) kneeling ouer agaynst al the multitude of Israel, and (c) his hands lifted vp toward heauen, 14. he sayd: Lord God of Israel, there is not the like God to thee in heauen and in earth: which keepest couenant and mercie with thy seruants, that walke before thee in al their hart: 15. which hast performed to thy seruant Dauid my father what things soeuer thou hadst spoken to him: and the things that by mouth thou hadst promised, in worke thou hast accomplished, as also the present time proueth. 16. Now therefore Lord God of Israel, fulfil to thy seruant my father Dauid, what soeuer thou didst speake to him, saying: There shall not faile of thee a man before me, to sit vpon the throne of Israel: yet so if thy children keep their waies, and walke in my law, as thou also hast walked before me. 17. And now Lord God of Israel, be thy word confirmed, which thou hast spoken to thy seruant Dauid. 18. Is it credibie then that God should dwel with men vpon the earth? If heauen & the heauens of heauens doe not take thee, how much more this house, which I haue built: 19. But to this end only it is made, that thou shouldest respect the prayer of thy seruant, & his supplication Lord my God: and mayst heare the prayers, which thy seruant powreth out before thee: 20. that thou open thine eies vpon this house daies and nights, vpon the place, wherein thou hast promised that thy name should be inuocated, 21. and wouldest heare the prayer, which thy seruant prayeth in it: and mayst heare the prayers of thy seruant, and of thy people Israel. Whosoever shall pray in this place, heare out of thy habitation, that is from the heauens, & be propitious. 22. If anie man shall sinne agaynst his neighbour, and come readie to sweare agaynst him, and bind himself with a curse before the altar in this house: 23. thou shalt heare from heauen, and shalt doe the iudgement of thy seruant, so that thou render to the vniust his way vpon his owne head, and reuenge the thou shalt heare from heauen thy most firme habitation, and shalt doe al things, for the which that pilgrime shal inuocate thee: that al the peoples of the earth may know thy name, and may feare thee, as thy peo-which I haue built. 34. If thy people shal goe forth to warre agaynst their aduersaries, by the way that thou shalt send them. shal adore thee agaynst the way wherein is this citie, which thou hast chose, & the house, which I haue built to thy name: 35. thou shalt from heauen heare their prayers, and petition, and doe thou reuenge. 36. And if they shal sinne to and deliuer them to the enemies, and they leade them captiue into a farre countrie, or which is neer at the least, 37. and being conuerted in their hart in the land, to the which they were led captiue, shal doe penance, and shal beseech thee in the land of their captiuitie, saying: We haue sinned, we haue done wickedly, we haue delt vniustly: 38. and shal captiuitie, to the which they were led, shal adore thee agaynst the way of

AND when Salomon had finished to powre out his prayers, fyre descended from heauen, and deuoured the holocausts & victimes: and the maieslie of our Lord filled the house. 2. Neither could the Priests enter into the Temple of our Lord, because the maieslie of our Lord had filled the temple of our Lord. 3. Yea and al the children of Israel saw the fyre descending, and the glorie of our Lord vpon the house: and falling flat on the earth vpon the pauement paved with stone, they adored, and praysed our Lord: Because he is good, because his mercie is for euer. 4. And the King and al the people immolated victimes before our Lord. 5. King Salomon therefore killed holts, of oxen twentie two thousand, of rammes an hundred twentie thousand: and the King and al the people dedicated the house of God. 6. And the Priests stood in their offices: and the Leuites with the instruments of the songs of our Lord, which Dauid the King made to prayse our Lord: Because his mercie is for euer, singing (4) the hymnes of Dauid by their hands: moreover the Priests sounded with trumpets before them, and al Israel stood. 7. Salomon also sanctified the middes of the court before the temple of our Lord: for he had offered there the holocausts, & the fatte of the pacifikes: because the brasen altar, which he had made, could not susteyne the holocausts and the sacrifices and the fatte. 8. Salomon therefore made a solemnitie at that time seuen daies, and al Israel with him, an assemblie verie great, from the entrance of Emath to the Torrent of Ægypt. 9. And he made in the eight day an assemblie, because he had dedicated the altar seuen daies, and had celebrated the solemnitie seuen daies. 10. Therefore in the three and twentieth day of the seventh month, he dismiss the people to their tabernacles, reioyng and being glad for the good, that our Lord had done to Dauid, and Salomon, and Israel his people. 11. And Salomon accomplished the house of our Lord, and the house of the King, and al that he had disposed in his hart to doe, in the house of our Lord, and in his owne house, and he prospered. 12. And our Lord appeared to him by night, and sayd: I haue heard thy prayer, and haue chosen this place to me for a house of sacrifice. 13. If I shal shut heauen, and rayne fal not, and shal bid and command the locust to deuour the land, and shal send pestilence into my people: 14. and my people being conuerted, vpon whom my name is inuocated, shal beseech me, and seeke out my face, and shal doe penance from their most wicked waies: I also wil heare from heauen, and wil be propitious to their sinnes, and wil saue their land. 15. Mine eies also shal be opened, and mine eares erected to his prayer, that shal pray in this place. 16. For I haue chosen, and haue sanctified this place, that my name may be there for euer, and mine eies and my hart may remaine there al daies. 17. Thou also if thou walke before me, as Dauid thy father walked, & shalt doe according to al things, which I haue commanded thee, and shalt keep my iustices and iudgements: 18. I wil rayse vp the throne of thy Kingdome, as I promised to Dauid thy father, saying: There shal not be taken away of thy stock a man, that shal be Prince in Israel. 19. But if you shal be turned away, and shal forsake my iustices, and my precepts, which I haue proposed to you, and going shal serue strange Gods, and adore them, 20. I wil pluck you out of my land, which I haue giuen you: and this house, which I haue sanctified to my name, I wil cast away from my face, and wil deliuer it for a parable, and an exemple to al peoples. 21. And this house shal be for a prouerbe to al passengers, and they shal say being attonished: Why hath the Lord done so to this land, and to this house? 22. And they shal answer: Because they forfooke the Lord the God of their fathers, who brought them out of the Land of Ægypt, and tooke hold of strange Gods, and adored them, and worhipped them: therefore are al these euils come vpon them.

Salomon buildeth diuers cities, 7. maketh the residue of the Chananites tributarie, 12. offereth the ordinarie hostes of sacrifices in the solemne feasts, 14. disposeth the Priests and Leuites in their offices, as Dauid had ordained: 17. and sendeth ships to fetch gold from Ophir.

AND twentie yeares being complete after that Salomon built the house of our Lord, and his owne house: 2. he built the cities, which Hiram had giuen to Salomon, and made the children of Israel dwell there. 3. He went also into Emath Suba, and obteyned it. 4. And he built Palmira in the desert, and he built other cities very well fenced in Emath. 5. And he built Beth horon the vpper, and Beth horon the nether, walled cities hauing gates and barrigates and locks. 6. Baalath also and al the strongest cities that were Salomons, and al the cities of the chariots, and the cities of the horsemen. Al things whatsoever Salomon would, and disposed, he built in Ierusalem, and in Libanus, and in al the land of his dominion. 7. Al the people that was least of the Hetheites, & Amorrhaites, & Pherezaites, and Heucites, & Iebuaites, which were not of the stocke of Israel, 8. of their children, & of the posteritie, which the children of Israel had not slaine, Salomon subdued to be tributaries, vntil this day. 9. Moreouer of the children of Israel he set not to serue the Kings works: for they were men of warre, and the chiefe Captaines, and Princes of his chariots, and horsemen. 10. And al the Princes of King Salomons armie were two hundred fittie, which taught the people. 11. But the daughter of Pharao he removed from the cite of Dauid, into the house which he had built for her. For the King sayd: My wife shall not dwell in the house of Dauid the King of Israel (.) because it is sanctified: because the Arke of our Lord is entred into it. 12. Then Salomon offered holocausts to our Lord vpon the altar of our Lord, which he had built before the porch, 13. that euerie day there might be offering on it, according to the precept of Moyses in the Sabbaths, and in the Calends, and in the festiual daies thrite a yeare, that is to say, in the Solemnie of Azymes, and in the Solemnie of weeks, and in the Solemnie of tabernacles. 14. And he appoynted according to the disposition of Dauid his father the offices of the Priests in their ministeries: and the Leuites in their order, that they should prayse, and minister before the Priests according to the rite of euerie day: and the porters in their diuisions by gate and gate: for so Dauid the man of God had commanded. 15. Neither did they transgresse of the Kings commandments as wel the Priests as the Leuites, touching al things, that he had commanded, and in the custodies of the treasures. 16. Salomon had al expenses prepared, from the day that he founded the house of our Lord, vntil the day wherein he perfitted it. 17. Then went Salomon into Afiongaber, and into Ailatn to the coast of the Red sea, which is in the Land of Edom. 18. And Hiram sent vnto him by the hands of his seruants, shippes, and cunning mariners, and they went with Salomons seruants into Ophir, and they tooke from thence foure hundred fiftie talents of gold, and brought it to King Salomon.

THE Queene of Saba also, when she had heard the fame of Salomon, came to proue him in hard propositions in Ierusalem, with great riches, and camels, which caried spices, and very much gold, and pretious stones. And when she was come to Salomon, she spake to him what things focuer were in her hart. 2. And Salomon expounded to her al things that she propounded: neither was there anie thing, that he made not playne vnto her. 3. Who after she saw, to wit, the wisdom of Salomon, and the house which he had built, 4. moreouer also the meafes of his table, and the habitations of his seruants, and the offices of his ministers, and their garments, the cup-bearers also, and their garments, and the victimes, which he immolated in the house of our Lord: there was no spirit in her anie longer, she was so astoniished. 5. And she sayd to the King: The word is true, which I heard in my countrie of thy vertues and wisdom. 6. I did not belieue them that told it, vntil my self was come, and mine eyes had seen, and I had proued scarce the half part of thy wisdom to haue been told me: thou hast passed the fame with thy vertues. 7. Blessed are thy men, and blessed are thy seruants, which assist before thee at al time, and heare thy wisdom. 8. Be the Lord thy God blessed, who would ordayne thee ouer his throne, King (a) of the Lord thy God. Because God loueth Israel, & wil preferue it for euer: therefore hath he sette thee King ouer it, to doe iudgements and iustice. 9. And she gaue to the King an hundred. twentie talents of gold, and spices exceeding much, and most pretious stones: there were not such spices, as these, which the Queene of Saba gaue to King Salomon. 10. But the seruants of Hiram also with the seruants of Salomon brought gold from Ophir, & Thymtrees, & most pretious stones: 11. wherof the King made, to wit, of the Thymtrees, stayers in the house of our Lord, and in the Kings house, harpes also and psalteries for the singing men: neuer there seen such trees in the Land of Iuda. 12. And King Salomon gaue to the Queene of Saba al things that she would, and that she asked, and manie moe things then she brought to him: who returning, went into her countrie with her seruants. 13. And the weight of the gold, that was brought to Salomon euerie yeare was six hundred sixtie six talents of gold: 14. beside that summe, which the legates of diuers nations, and the merchants were accustomed to bring, add al the Kings of Arabia, and the Dukes of the lands, which brought gold and siluer to Salomon. 15. King Salomon therefore made two hundred goldeu speares, of the summe of six hundred peeces of gold, which were spent in euerie speare: 16. also three hundred golden shields of three hundred peeces of gold, with which euerie shield was couered: and the King put them in the armarie, which was besette with a wood. 17. The King also made a great throne of iuorie, and couered it with most fyne gold. 18. Six steps also, wherwith the going vp was to the throne, and a foote-stoole of gold, and two litle armes on either side, and two lions standing by the litle armes, 19. yea and othertwelue litle lions standing vpon the steps on both sides: there was not such a throne in al kingdoms. 20. Al the vessels also of the Kings table were of gold, and the vessels of the house of the forest of Libanus of most pure gold. For siluer in those daies was reputed for nothing. 21. For the Kings ships went into Tharsis with the seruants of Hiram, once in thee yeares: and they brought from thence gold and siluer, and yuorie, and apes, and pecocks. 22. Salomon therefore was magnified aboue al the Kings of the earth for riches and glorie. 23. And al the Kings of the earth desired to see Salomons face, that they might heare the wisdom, which God had giuen in his hart. 24. And they brought him guits, vessels of siluer, and gold, and garments, and armour, and spices, horses, and mules, euerie yeare. 25. Salomon also had fourtie thousand horses in the stables, and of chariots, and horsemen twelue thousand, and he placed them in the cities of the chariots, and where the King was in Ierusalem. 26. He exercised also authoritic ouer al the Kings from the riuer Euphrates vnto the land of the Phiilisthians, and vnto the borders of Ægypt. 27. And he made so great plentie of siluer in Ierusalem as it were of itones: and of cedres so great a multitude as of sicomores, which grow in the champayne. 28. And horses were brought him out of Ægypt, & al countries. 29. But the reit of the works of Salomon the first and the last are writen in the words of Nathan the Propher, and in the Books of Ahias the silonite, in the Vision also of Addo the Seer, agaynst Ieroboam the sonne of Nabat. 30. And Salomon reigned in Ierusalem ouer al Israel fourtie yeares. 31. And he (b) slept with his fathers: and they buried him in the citie of Dauid: and Roboam his sonne reigned for him.

Roboam requested by Ieroboam and the people to lighten their yoke of seruice, 6. leauing the counsel of the ancient, and folowing yong counsellors, threatneth to presse the people: 16. wherupon manie reuolt from him.

AND Roboam went forth into Sichem: for thither al Israel was assembled, to make him King. 2 Which when Ieroboam the sonne of Nabat heard, who was in Ægypt (for he was fled thither from Salomon) forthwith he returned. 3. And they called him, and he came with al Israel & spake to Roboam, saying: 4. Thy father pressed vs with a most hard yoke, doe thou command lighter things then thy father, who layd vpon vs a heauie seruitude, and ease thou a litle of the burden, that we may serue thee. 5. Who sayd: After three daies returne ye to me. And when the people was gone, 6. he tooke counsel with the Anciēts, which stood before his father Salomon, whiles he yet liued, saying: What counsel giue you, that I may answer the people? 7. Who sayd to him: If thou wilt please this people, and pacifie them with words of clemencie, they wil serue thee at all times. 8. But he forsooke the counsel of the Ancients, and began to treat with yongmen, that had been brought vp with him, and were in his trayne. 9. And he sayd to them: What seemeth to you? or what shal I answer this people, which hath sayd to me: Ease the yoke which thy father layd vpon vs? 10. But they answered as yongmen, & brought vp with him in delicatenesse, and sayd: Thus shalt thou speake to the people, hat sayd to thee: Thy father aggravated our yoke, doe thou ease it: and thus shalt thou answer them: My least finger is thicker then the loynes of my father. 11. My father layd vpon you an heauie yoke, and I wil adde a greater weight: my father bette you with scourges, but I wil beate you with scorpions. 12. Ieroboam therefore came, and al the people to Roboam the third day, as he had cōmanded them. 13. And the King answered rough words, leauing the counsel of the Ancients: 14. and he spake according to the yongmens wil: My father laid vpon you a heauie yoke, which I wil make neauier: my father bette you with scourges, but I wilt beate you with scorpions. 15. And he condescended not to the peoples requets: for it was the wil of God, that his word should be accompiined, which he had spoken by the hand of Ahias the Silonite to Ieroboam the sonne of Nabat. 16. And al the people when the King spake rough words, said thus vnto him: We haue no part in Dauid, nor inheritance in the sonne of Isai. Returne into thy tabernacles o Israel, and doe thou feed thy house Dauid. And Israel went into their tabernacles. 17. But ouer the children of Israel, that dwelt in the cities of Iuda Roboam reigned. 18. And King Roboam sent Aduram, who was ouer the tributes, and the children of Israel stoned him, and he died: moreouer King Roboam made hast to get vp into his chariot, and fled into Ierusalem. 19. And Israel reuolted from the house of Dauid vntil this day.

Roboam intending by force to reduce al Israel to his subiection, is warned by a Prophet to cease from that enterprize. 5. He maketh walles about euery ci-ies, 11. furnisheth them with victuals, and munition. 13. Priests, Leuites, and manie others repaire to Ierusalem, because Ieroboam maketh a new religion, and new Priests. 18. Roboam taketh manie wiues, and concubines. 22. preferreth Abias aboute al his other sonnes.

AND Roboam came into Ierusalem, and called together al the house of Iuda and Benjamin, an hundred tourescore thousand chosen men and warriors, to fight agaynst Israel, and to conuert his Kingdom vnto him. 2. And the word of our Lord came to Semeias the man of God, saying: 3. Speake to Roboam the sonne of Salomon the King of Iuda, and to al Israel, that is in Iuda and Benjamin: 4. Thus sayth our Lord: You shal not goe vp, neither shal you fight agaynst your brethren: let euery man returne into his house, because this thing is done by my wil. Who when they had heard the word of our Lord, returned, neither went they forward agaynst Ieroboam. 5. And Roboam dwelt in Ierusalem, and built walled cities in Iuda. 6. And he built Bethlehem, and Etam, and Thecue, 7. Bethsur also, and Socho, and Odollam, 8. moreouer also Geth, and Maresa, and Ziph, 9. yea and Aduram, and Lachis, and Azeca, 10. Saraa also, and Aialon, and Hebron, which were in Iuda and Benjamin, most fenced cities. 11. And when he had inclosed them with walles, he put in them Princes, and store houses of victuals, that is, of oile and wine. 12. Yea and in euery citie he made armories of shields and speares, and he strengthened them with great diligence, and reigned ouer Iuda and Benjamin. 13. And the Priests and Leuites, that were in al Israel, came to him out of al their seates, 14. (*) leauing their suburbs, and their possessions, and passing to Iuda, and Ierusalem, because Ieroboam had cast them off, and their posteritie: that they should not execute the priesthood of our Lord. 15. Priests of the excelses, and of diuels, and of the calues which he had made. 16. Yea and of al the tribes of Israel, whosocuer had giuen their hart to seek our Lord the God of Israel, came into Ierusalem to immolate their victims before our Lord the God of their fathers. 17. And they strengthened the Kingdome of Iuda, and established Roboam the sonne of Salomon for three yeares: for they walked in the waies of Dauid and Salomon, onlie three yeares. 18. And Roboam took to wife Mahalath, the daughter of Ierimoth the sonne of Dauid: Abihail also the daughter of Eliab the sonne of Isai, 19. who bare him sonnes, Iehus, & Somorias, and Zoom. 20. After this woman also he took Maacha the daughter of Absalom, who bare him Abia, and Ethai, and Ziza, & Salomith. 21. And Roboam loued Maacha the daughter of Absalom aboute al his wiues and concubines: for he had married eighteen wiues, and threescore concubines: and he begat eight and twentie sonnes, and threescore daughters. 22. But he appointed for head Abias the sonne of Maacha duke ouer al his brethren: for he meant to make him King, 23. because he was wiser, and mightier aboute al his sonnes, and in al the costes of Iuda, and of Benjamin, and in al the walled cities: and he gaue them much meate, and he desired manie wiues.

C H A P. XII.

For the sinnes of Roboam and the people, manie strong cities, also Ierusalem, are taken and spoyled by the King of Ægypt. 8. They repent, and the Ægyptians depart, 9. but carie away the treasures. 13. Roboam dieth, and his sonne Abias reigneth.

AND when the Kingdom of Roboam was strengthened and fortified, he forsooke the law of our Lord, and al Israel with him. 2. And in the fifth yeare of the Kingdom of Roboam. came vp Sefac the King of Ægypt into Ierusalem (because they had sinned to our Lord); with a thousand two hundred chariots, and threescore thousand horsemen: neither was anie number of the common people, that came with him out of Ægypt, to wit, Lybians, and Troglodytes, and Æthiopians. 4. And he tooke the most fenced cities in Iuda, and came ouer vnto Ierusalem. 5. And Semeias the Prophet went to Roboam, and to the Princes of Iuda, that were gathered together in Ierusalem, flying from Sefac, and he sayd to them: Thus sayth our Lord: You haue least me, and I haue least you in the hand of Sefac. 6. And the Princes of Israel, and the King, being astonished, sayd: Our Lord is iust. 7. And when our Lord had seen that they were humbled, the word of our Lord came to Semeias, saying: Because they are humbled, I wil not destroy the, and I wil giue them a litle ayde, & my furie shal not drop vpon Ierusalem by the hand of Sefac. 8. But yet they shal serue him, that they may know the distance of my seruice, and of the seruice of the Kingdome of the earth. 9. Therefore Sefac the King of Ægypt retyred from Ierusalem, taking away the treasure of the house of our Lord, and of the Kings house, & he tooke al things with him, and the golden shields that Salomon had made, 10. for the which the King made brasen ones, and deliuered them to the Princes of the shield-bearers, which kept the entrance of the palace. 11. And when the King entred into the house of our Lord, the shield-bearers came, and tooke them, and brought them backe agayne to their armorie. 12. But yet because they were humbled, the wrath of our Lord was turned away from them, neither were they vtterly destroyed: for in Iuda there were found good works. 13. King Roboam therefore was strengthened in Ierusalem, and reigned: one & fourtie yeares old was he when he began to reigne, and he reigned seuenteen yeares in Ierusalem, the citie which our Lord chose, to confirme his name there, out of al the tribes of Israel: and the name of his mother was Naama an Ammonite. 14. And he did euil, and prepared not his hart to seeke our Lord. 15. But the works of Roboam the first and the last are written in the Books of Semeias the Prophet, and of Addo the Seer, and diligently expounded: and Roboam and Ieroboam fought one agaynst the other al their daies. 16. And Roboam slept with his father, and was buried in the citie of Daud. And Abias his sonne reigned for him.

CHAP. XIII.

Abias maketh warre agaynst Ieroboam, 4. exhorteth the people of Israel for iustice and religions sake to returne to him. 13. In the meane time Ieroboam inuironeth him with forces, but by Gods assistance Abias preuaileth, 21. and reigneth securely.

IN the eighteenth yeare of King Ieroboam, reigned Abias ouer Iuda. 2. Three yeares reigned he in Ierusalem, and his mothers name was Michaia, the daughter of Vriell of Gabaa: there was warre between Abias & Ieroboam. 3. And when Abias had begun battel, and had most warlike men, and of chosē ones four hundred thousand: Ieroboam put his armie in aray on the contrarie side, eight hundred thousand men, who themselues also were chosē men, & most valiāt to battels. 4. Abias therefore stood vpon mount Senerō, which was in Ephraim, and sayd: Heare Ieroboam, & al Israel: 5. Are you ignorant that our Lord the God of Israel gaue the kingdome to Daud ouer Israel for euer, to him & his childrē as a (4) couenāt of salt: 6. And there rose vp Ieroboam the sonne of Nabat, the seruant of Salomon the sonne of Dauid : and rebelled against his Lord. 7. And there were gathered to him al the most vayne men, and the children of Belial : and they preuayled agaynst Roboam the sonne of Salomon: moreouer Roboam was rude, and of a feareful hart, and could not resist them. 8. Now therfore you say that you are able to resist the Kingdome of our Lord, which he possesseth by the children of Dauid, and you haue a great multitude of people, and golden calues, which Ieroboam hath made you for Gods. 9. And you haue cast out the Priests of our Lord, the children of Aaron, & the Leuites: and you haue made you Priests, as al the peoples of the earth: who soeuer shal come and consecrate his hand in a bullock of oxen, and in seuen rammes, is made the Priest of them that are not Gods. 10. But our Lord is God, whom we forsake not, and the Priests doe minister to our Lord of the children of Aaron, and the Leuites are in their order. 11. Holocausts also they doe offer to our Lord, euerie day morning and euening, and incense made according to the precepts of the law, and the loaves are set forth on a most cleane table, and there is with vs the golden candlesticke, and the lampes therof, that they may be lighted alwaies at euening: for we keep the precepts of the Lord our God, whom you haue forsaken. 12. Therefore in our host God is the Pri. ce, & his Priests, which sound with trumpets, and resound agaynst you: children of Israel fight not against our Lord the God of your fathers, because it is not expedient for you. 13. He speaking these things, Ieroboam endeauoured to entrap him behind. And when he stood ouer against the enemies, he compassed Iuda vn-witting with his armie. 14. And Iudas looking backe, saw the battel at hand before and behind, and cryed to our Lord: and the Priests began to sound with trumpets. 15. And al the men of Iuda made a shout: and behold they crying, God terrified Ieroboam, and al Israel that stood agaynst Abias and Iuda. 16. And the children of Israel fled from Iuda, and our Lord deliuered them into their hand. 17. Abias therefore and his people stricke them with a great slaughter, and there fel wounded of Israel siue hundredth thousand valiant men. 18. And the children of Israel were humbled at that time, and the children of Iuda exceedingly encouraged, because they had trusted in our Lord the God of their fathers. 19. And Abias pursued Ieroboam flying, and he tooke his cities, Bethel and her daughters, & Iefana with her daughters, Ephron also and her daughters. 20. Neither was Ieroboam able to resist anie more, in the daies of Abias: whom our Lord struck, and he died. 21. Therefore Abias, his empire being strengthened, tooke fourteen wiues: and he begat two and twentie sonnes, & sixteen daughters. 22. But the rest of the words of Abias, and of his waies and words, are writen diligently in the Book of Addo the Prophet.

C H A P. XIII.

Abias dieth, and his sonne Afa reigneth, destroyeth idolatrie, 6. fortifieth his cities, 9. and ouercommeth, by Gods special helpe, the Ethiopians armie of a million of men.

AND Abias slept with his fathers, and they buried him in the Citie of Dauid: & Afa his sonne reigned for him, in whose daies the land was quiet ten yeares. 2. And Afa did that which was good and pleasing in the sight of his God, & he ouerthrew the altars of (a) strange seruice, and the excelses, 3. and brake the statues, and cut downe the groues. 4. And he commanded Iuda that they should seeke our Lord the God of their fathers, and should doe the law, and al the commandements. 5. And he took away out of al the cities of Iuda the altars, & temples, and reigned in peace. 6. He built also fenced cities in Iuda, because he was quiet, and there had no battels risen in his time, our Lord giuing peace. 7. And he sayd to Iuda: Let vs build these cities, and compasse them with wals, and strengthen them with towers, and gates, & locks, whiles things are quiet from battels, because we haue fought our Lord the God of our fathers, and he hath giuen vs peace round about. They therefore did build, and there was no impediment in building. 8. And Afa had in his armie of them that caried shields and speares, of Iuda three hundred thousand: and of Benjamin shield-bearers and archers, two hundred eightie thousand, al these were most valiant men. 9. And Zara the Ethiopian with his armie issued forth against them, ten hundred thousand, and with three hundred chariots: and he came as far as Maresa. 10. Moreouer Afa went on to meet him, and set his armie in aray to battel in the vale Sephata, which is neere Maresa. 11. And he inuocated our Lord God, and sayd: Lord there is no difference with thee, whether thou helpe in few, or in manie: helpe vs o Lord our God: for-hauing confidence in thee, & in thy name we are come against this multitude. Lord, thou art our God, let not man preuaile against thee. 12. Our Lord therefore terrified the Ethiopians before Afa and Iuda: & the Ethiopians fled. 13. And Afa pursued them, & the people that was with him, vnto Gerara: & the Ethiopians fel to vtter destruction because our Lord killing them, and his armie fighting, they were destroyed. They took therefore manie spoiles, 14. and they struck al the cities round about Gerara: for great terrour had inuaded al men: and they spoyled the cities, and caried away much prey. 15. Yea and destroying the sheepecotes of sheep, they took an infinit multitude of catel, and of camels: and returned into Ierusalem.

CHAP. XV.

Azarias prophesieth that Israel shall lack the true God, Priests, and the law, a long time. 8. Which King Afa hearing most seriously destroyeth idolatrie, 12. maketh couenant and oath to serue God. 16. And deposeth his mother for offering sacrifice to Priapus.

AND Azarias the sonne of Oded, the Spirit of God coming vpon him, 2. went out to meete Afa, and sayd to him: Heare ye me Afa, and al Iuda and Benjamin: Our Lord is with you, (a) because you haue been with him. If you wil seeke him, you shal finde: but if you forsake him, he wil forsake you. 3. And manie daies shal passe in Israel without the true God, and without Priest a teacher, and without the Law. 4. And when they shal returne in their distresse to our Lord the God of Israel, and shal seeke him, they shal finde him. 5. At that time there shal not be peace to him that goeth out and commeth in, but terrours on euerie side in the inhabiters of the earth. 6. For nation shal fight agaynst nation, and citie agaynst citie, because our Lord wil trouble them with al distresse. 7. You therefore take courage, and let not your hands be dissolued: for there shal be reward to your worke. 8. Which when Afa had heard, to witte, the words, and the prophecie of Azarias the sonne of Oded the Prophet, he took courage, and took away the Idols out of al the land of Iuda, and out of Benjamin, and out of the cities, which he had taken, of mount Ephraim, and he dedicated the altar of our Lord, which was before the porch of our Lord. 9. And he gathered together al Iuda and Benjamin, & the strangers with them of Ephraim, and of Manasses, and of Simeon: for manie were fled to him of Israel, seeing that our Lord his God was with him. 10. And when they were come into Ierusalem the third month, in the fifteenth yeare of the reigne of Afa, 11. they immolated to our Lord in that day of the spoiles and the prey that they had brought, oxen seuen hundred, and rammes seuen thousand. 12. And he went in after the manner to establish the couenant, that they should seeke our Lord the God of their fathers in al their hart, and in al their soul. 13. And if anie man, quoth he, shal not seeke our Lord the God of Israel, let him die, from the least to the greatest, from man vnto woman. 14. And they sware to our Lord with a lowd voyce in iubilation, and in noyse of trumpet, and sound of maulnes, 15. al that were in Iuda, with execratiō: for in al their hart did they sweare & with al their wil did they seeke him, & found him, & our Lord gaue thē rest round about. 16. Yea & Maacha the mother of King Afa he deposeth frō the royal empyre, because she had made in a groue the idol of Priapus:

(a) Cooperation with Gods grace meriteth increase of grace.

(b) King Afa destroyed the places where Idols were serued, c. 14. v. 2. but tollera- ted the places where some offered sacri- fice to God, be- side the proper altar in Ierusa- lem, because this was dis- pensable & not the other.

which he wholly destroyed, and breaking into pieces, burnt it in the Torrent eedron. 17. But the (b) Excelses were leaft in Israel: neuerthe- lesse the hart of Afa was perfect al his daies. 18. And those things which his father had vowed, and himself, he brought into the house of our Lord, gold and siluer, and of vessels diuers furniture. 19. And there was no warre vnto the fise and thirtith yeare of the reigne of Afa.

Agaynst the King of Israel. King Afa procureth helpe of the Assyrians, 7. which a Prophet reproveth in publick fetters. 11. Afa dieth, with discafe of his seete, and is buried with pompe.

AND in the six and thirtith yeare of his reigne, came vp Baafa the King of Israel into Iuda, and with a wal compassed Rama, that none could safely goe out and come in of the Kingdō of Afa. 2. Afa therefore brought forth siluer and gold, out of the treasure house of our Lord, and of the Kings treasures, and he sent to Benadad the King of Syria, who dwelt in Damascus, saying: 3. There is league between me and thee, my father also & thy father had concord, wherfore I haue sent thee siluer and gold that breaking the league, which thou hast with Baafa the King of Israel, thou make him retire from me. 4. Which being knowen, Benadad sent the Princes of his hosts to the cities of Israel: who strucke Ahion, and Dan, and Able- maim, and al the walled cities of Nephthali. 5. Which when Baafa had heard, he ceased to build Rama, & intermitted his worke. 6. Moreover Afa the King tooke al Iuda, and caried away the stones out of Rama, and the timber that Baafa had prepared for the building: & he built of them Gabaa, & Maspha. 7. At that time came Hanani the Prophet to Afa the King of Iuda, & said to him: Because thou hast had cōfidēce in the King of Syria, and not in our Lord thy God, therefore hath the armie of the King of Syria escaped out of thy hand. 8. Were not the Æthiopians, and Lybians, manie moe in chariots, and horsemen, and a multitude exceed- ing great: whom, when thou didst belieue in our Lord, he deliuered into thy hand? 9. For the eies of our Lord behold al the earth, and giue strength to them, that with perfect hart belieue in him. Thou therefore hast done foolishly, and for this cause from this present time shal battels arise agaynst thee. 10. And Afa being angrie agaynt the Seer, comman- ded him to be cast into fetters: for he tooke indignation exceeuingly vpon this thing: & he slew of the people at that time verie manie. 11. But the works of Afa the first & the last are written in the Book of the Kings of Iuda and Israel. 12. Afa also fellicke in the nine and thirtith yeare

And he slept with his fathers: and he died the one and fourtith yeare of his reigne. 14. And they buried him in his sepulchre, which he had digged for himself in the Citie of Dauid: and they layd him vpon his bed ful of spices and odoriferous oyntments, which were made by the arte of apothecaries, and they burnt ouer him with exceeding ambition.

Iosaphat succeeding in the Kingdom preuaileth in battel agaynst the King of Israel, 6. destroyeth Idolaters, and sendeth Priests and Leuites to instruct the people 11. The Philistians and Arabians send presents to King Iosaphat, 13. The leaders of the armie and souldiers are numbred.

AND Iosaphat his sonne reigned for him, and grew strong agaynst Israel. 2. And he appoynted numbers of souldiers in al the cities of Iuda, that were compassed with walles. And he placed garrisons in the land of Iuda, & in the cities of Ephraim, which Asa his father had taken. 3. And our Lord was with Iosaphat, because he walked in the first waies of Dauid his father: and he trusted not in Baalim, 4. but in the God of his father, & went forward in his precepts, and not according to the sinnes of Israel. 5. And our Lord confirmed the Kingdom in his hand, and al Iuda gaue guits to Iosaphat: and there grew to him infinite riches, and much glorie. 6. And when his hart had taken courage (a) for the waies of our Lord, he tooke away also the Excelses and groues out of Iuda. 7. And in the third yeare of his Kingdom, he sent of his Princes Benhail, and Abdias, and Zacharias, and Nathanael, and Micheas, that they should teach in the cities of Iuda: 8. and with them Leuites, Semeias, & Nathanas, and Zabadias, Asael also, and Semiramoth, and Ionathan, and Adonias, and Tobias, and Thobadonias Leuites, and with them Elifama, and Ioram Priests. 9. And they taught the people in Iuda, hauing the booke of the law of our Lord: and they went about al the cities of Iuda, and instructed the people. 10. Therefore the dread of our Lord came vpon al the Kingdoms of the lands, that were round about Iuda, neither durst they make battel agaynst Iosaphat. 11. Yea and the Philistians brought guits to Iosaphat, and tribute of siluer, the Arabians also brought cattel, of rammes seuen thousand seuen hundred, and bucke goats as manie. 12. Iosaphat thertore grew, & was magnified on high: and he built in Iuda houses like to toures, and walled cities. 13. And he prepared manie workes in the cities of Iuda: there were After him Iohanen the Prince, and with him two hundred eightie thousand. 16. After him also Amasias the sonne of Zechri, consecrated to our Lord, and with him two hundred thousand of valiant men. 17. Him followed Eliada valiant to battels, and with him of them that held bow and shield two hundred thousand. 18. After this man also Iozabad, and with him an hundred eightie thousand readie fouldiers. 19. Al these were at the hand of the King, beside others, whom he had put in walled cities, in al Iuda.

CHAP. XVIII.

Iosaphat ioyned in affinitie with wicked Achab King of Israel, goeth with him against Ramoth Galaad, foure hundred false Prophets promising victorie. 4. Micheas prophesying the contrarie, 28. is put in prison. 28. Achab (notwithstanding he changeth his attire, and leaueth Iosaphat in danger) 33. is slaine.

IOSAPHAT therefore was rich and verie glorious, & was ioyned in affinitie to Achab. 2. And he went downe to him after certaine yeares into Samaria: at whose comming Achab killed muttons and oxen very manie for him and the people that came with him: & he perswaded him to goe vp into Ramoth Galaad 3. And Achab the King of Israel sayd to Iosaphat the King of Iuda: Come with me into Ramoth Galaad. To whom he answered: As I am thou also: as thy people, so my people also: and (*) we will be with thee in battel. 4. Iosaphat sayd to the King of Israel: Consult I beseech thee presently the word of our Lord. 5. Therefore the King of Israel gathered together of the Prophets foure hundred men, & sayd to them: Shal we goe into Ramoth Galaad to fight, or sit stil? But they said: Goe vp, say they, & God wil deliuer it into thy had. 6. And Iosaphat sayd: Is there not heer a Prophet of our Lord, that we may enquire also of him? 7. And the King of Israel sayd to Iosaphat: There is one man, of whom we may aske the wil of our Lord: but I hate him, because he doth not prophesie me good, but euil at al times: and it is Micheas the sonne of Iemla. And Iosaphat sayd: Speake not in this manner, o King. 8. The King of Israel therefore called one of the Eunuchs, and sayd to him: Call quickly Micheas the sonne of Iemla. 9. Moreouer the King of Israel, and Iofaphat the King of Iuda, both fate in their thrones, clothed with kinglie attyre, and they fate in the court beside the gate of Samaria, and al the Prophets prophecied before them. 10. But Sedecias the sonne of Chanaana made him hornes of yron, and sayd: Thus sayth our Lord: With these shalt thou strike Syria, til thou destroy it. 11. And al the Prophets in like manner prophecied, and sayd: Goe vp into Ramoth Galaad. and thou shalt prosper, and our Lord wil deliuer them into the Kings hand. 12. And the messenger that went to cal Micheas, sayd to him: Behold the words of al the Prophets with one mouth tel the King good things: I beseech thee therfore that thy word also dissent not from them, and that thou speake prosperous things. 13. To whom Micheas answered: Our Lord liueth, whatfoeuer my God shal say to me, that wil I speake. 14. He therfore came to the King. To whom the King sayd: Micheas, shal we goe into Ramoth Galaad to fight, or sit stil? To whom he answered (b) Goe ye vp: for al things shal fall out prosperous, and the enemies shal be deliuered into your hands. 15. And the King sayd: Agayne and agayne I adiure thee, that thou speake not to me, but that which is true in the name of our Lord. 16. But he sayd: I saw al Israel disperst in the mountaines, as sheep without a shepheard: & our Lord sayd: These haue no maisters: let euerie man returne into his house in peace. 17. And the King of Israel sayd to Iofaphat: did I not tel thee that this man did not prophecie me anie good, but those things that be euil? 18. But he sayd: Heare ye therfore the word of our Lord: I saw our Lord sitting in his throne, and al the host of heauen assisting him on the right hand and on the left. 19. And our Lord sayd: who shal deceiue Achab the King of Israel, that he may goe vp and fall in Ramoth Galaad? And when one sayd in this manner, and an otherwise: 20. there came forth a spirit, and stood before our Lord, & sayd: I wil deceiue him. To whom our Lord sayd: wherein wilt thou deceiue him? 21. But he answered: I wil goe forth, and wil be a lying spirit in the mouth of al his Prophets. And our Lord sayd: Thou shalt deceiue, and shalt preuaile: goe forth, and doe so. 22. Now therfore, behold our Lord hath giuen the spirit of lying in the mouth of al thy Prophets, and our Lord hath spoken of thee euil things. 23. And Sedecias the sonne of Chanaana came, and strucke the checke of Micheas, and sayd: Which way passed the spirit of our Lord from me, that it should speake to thee. 24. And Micheas sayd: Thou thy self shalt see in that day, when thou shalt enter into chamber out of chamber, to be hid. 25. And the King of Israel commanded, saying: Take Micheas, and lead him to Amon the gouernour of the citie, and to Ioab the sonne of Amelech. 26. And you shal say: Thus sayth the King: Cast this felow into prison, and giue him a litle bread, and a litle water, til I returne in peace. 27. And Micheas sayd: If thou returne in peace, our Lord hath not spoken in me, and he said: Heare al ye peoples. 28. Therfore the King of Israel, & Iofaphat the King of Iuda, wet vp into Ramoth Galaad. 29. And the King of Israel said to Iofaphat: I wil change my habite, and fo I wil goe to the fight, but be thou clothed with thine owne garments. And the King of Israel changing his habit came to the battel. 30. And the King of Syria had commanded the captaynes of his horsemen saying: Fight not against the least, or against the greatest, but agaynst the King of Israel only. 31. Therefore when the Princes of the horsemen saw Iofaphat, they sayd: This is the King of Israel. And they compassed him fighting: but he cried to our Lord, and he holpe him, and turned them away from him. 32. For when the captaynes of the horsemen saw, that it was not the King of Israel, they leaft him. 33. And it chanced that one of the people shot an arrow at aduenture, and stricke the King of Israel between the necke & the shoulders, & he sayd to his cochere: Turne thy hand, & carie me out of the battel, because I am wounded. 34. And the fight was ended in that day: moreouer the King of Israel stood in his chariot against the Syrians vntil eueing, and died at the sunne set.

(a) Precisian Donatistes holding it vnlawful to conuerse with sinners, amongst other Scriptures alleadged this reprehension of Iofaphat for his societic with Achab. To whom S. Augustin answereth, that he was not blamed for other conuersation with Achab, but for ayding him, and ioyning with him in the act of sinne, when he contemning Micheas the true Prophet of God, and belieuing false Prophets went to battel: & herein both Kings offend d, but with differēce; so one was slaine, though he seemed to be secure, the other was faued in great danger, and repenting was pardoned. li. 2. c. 8. cons. epist. Iofaphat therefore dwelt in Ierusalem: and he went forth to the people agayne from Bersabee vnto mount Ephraim, and recalled them to our Lord the God of their fathers. 5. And he appoynted iudges of the land in al the fenced cities of Iuda, in euerie place, 6. and commanding the iudges, he sayd: Take heed what you doe: for you exercise not iudgement of man, but of our Lord: and whatsoever you shall iudge, it shall redound to you. 7. Let the feare of our Lord be with you, and with diligence doe al things: for there is no iniquitie with the Lord our God, nor acception of persons, nor desire of gifts. 8. Our God, wilt not thou therefore iudge them? In vs in deed there is not so great strength, that we can resist this multitude, which cometh violently vpon vs. But whereas we are ignorant what we ought to doe, this onlie we haue leaft, that we direct our eies to thee: 13. And al Iuda stood before our Lord with their litle ones, and wiues, and their children. 14. To morrow you shal goe downe agaynst them: for they wil come vp by the steep named Sis, and you shal finde thē in the vtmost part of the torrent, which is against the wildernesse of Ieruel. 17. It shal not be you that shal fight, but onlie stand confidently, & you shal see the helpe of our Lord ouer you, O Iuda, and Ierusalem: feare not, neither dread ye: to morrow you shal goe out agaynst thē, & our Lord wil be with you. 18. Iofaphat therefore, and Iuda, & al the inhabitants of Ierusalē fel flat on the earth before our Lord, & adored him. 19. Moreouer the Leuites of the children of Caath, & of the children of Core, praysed our Lord the God of Israel with a lowd voice, on high. 20. And when they had risen early in the morning, they went forth by the desert of Thecua: and they being gone forth, Iofaphat standing in the middes of thē, sayd: Heare me ye men of Iuda, & al the inhabters of Ierusalem: (c) belieue in the Lord your God, & you shal be secure: belieue his Prophets, & al things shal fal out prosperous. 21. He gaue counsel also to the people, & appointed the singing men of our Lord, that they should prayse him in their companies, & should goe before the host, & with agreeable voice should say: Confesse to our Lord, because his mercie is for euer. 22. And when they began to sing prayses, our Lord turned their embuiments vpon themselues, to wit, of the children of Ammon, & of Moab, & of mount Seir, who were gone forth to fight against Iuda, & were stricken. 23. For the children of Ammō, & of Moab, rose together against the inhabitants of mount Seir, to kil & destroy them: & when they had in worke atchieued this, being turned also against themselues, they fel wounded one of an other. 24. Iofaphat therefore reigned ouer Iuda, and he was ſiue and thirtie yeares old when he began to reigne : and he reigned ſiue & twentie yeares in Ieruſalem : & the name of his mother was Azuba the daughter of Selahi. 32. And he walked in the way of his father Aſa, neither declined he from it, doing the things that were pleaſing before our Lord. 33. But (d) yet the excelses he took not away, & as yet the people had not directed their hart to our Lord the God of their fathers. 34. But the reſt of the actes of Iofaphat, the firſt & the laſt are writé in the words of Iehu the ſone of Hanani which he diſpoſed into the Books of the Kings of Iſrael. 35. After theſe things Iofaphat the King of Iuda entred freindſhip with Ochozias the King of Iſrael, whoſe workes were moſt impious. 36. And he was partaker to make ſhippes, which ſhould goe into Thariis : and they made a nauie in Aſiongaber. 37. brethren with the sword, and certain of the Princes of Israel. 5. Two and thirtie yeare old was Ioram when he began to reigne: and he reigned eight yeares in Ierusalem. 6. And he walked in the waies of the Kings of Israel, as the house of Achab had done: for Achabs daughter was his wife, and he did euil in the sight of our Lord. 7. But our Lord would not destroy the house of Dauid for the couenant which he had made with him: and because he had promised that he would giue him a lampe, and to his sonnes for euer. 8. In those daies Edom rebelled, from being subiect to Iuda, and made themselues a King. 9. And when Ioram had passed with his Princes, and al the horsemen, that were with him, he rose in the night, and struck Edom, which had compassed him, and al the captaynes of his horsemen. 10. But yet Edom rebelled, from being vnder the dominion of Iuda vntil this day: at that time Lobna also reuolted, from being vnder his hand. For he had forsaken our Lord the God of their fathers: 11. moreouer he built also excelses in the cities of Iuda, and he made the inhabitants of Ierusalem to fornicate, and Iuda to transgresse. 12. And there were letters brought him (a) from Elias the Prophet, in which was Writen: Thus sayth our Lord the God of Dauid thy father: Because thou hast not walked in the waies of Iosaphat thy father, and in the waies of Asa the King of Iuda, 13. but hast gone by the waies of the Kings of Israel, and hast made Iuda to fornicate, and the inhabitants of Ierusalem, hauing imitated the fornication of the house of Achab, moreouer also hast killed thy brethren, the house of thy father, better men then thou: 14. behold our Lord wil strike thee with a great plague with al thy people, and children, and thy wiues, and al thy substance. 15. And thou shalt be sicke of a very sore disease of thy belie, til thy vital parts come forth by litle and litle euerie day. 16. Our Lord therefore raised vp agaynst Ioram the spirit of the Philisthians, and of the Arabians, which are borderers to the Æthiopians. 17. and they went vp into the Land of Iuda, and wasted it, and they spoyled al the substance, that was found in the Kings house, moreouer also his sonnes, and wiues: neither was there a sonne left him but Ioachaz, who was the yongest. 18. And beside al these things our Lord struck him with an incurable disease of the belie. 19. And when day succeeded day, and the spaces of times passed about, the circuite of two yeares was complete: and so being wasted with a long consumption, so that he voyed euen his very bowels, he was rid of the disease, and of his life together. And he died in an exceeding vile infirmitie, and the people made him not exequies according to the manner of burning, as they had done to his ancelters. 20. He was two and thirtie yeares old, when he began to reigne, and he reigned eight yeares in Ierusalem. And he walked not rightly, and they buried him in the Citie of Dauid: but yet not in the sepulchre of the Kings.

Ochozias reigning one yeare, 3. is slaine together with Ioram King of Israel, by King Iehu. 10. Athalia killeth the Kings children (onise Ioas being saved by his aunt) and vsurpeth the Kingdom six yeares.

AND the inhabitants of Ierusalem made Ochozias his least sonne King for him: for al the elders, that had been before him, the rouers of the Arabians had slayne, which inuaded the campe: and Ochozias the sonne of Ioram the King of Iuda reigned. 2. Two & (a) fourtie yeares old was Ochozias when he began to reigne, & he reigned one yeare in Ierusalem, and the name of his mother was Athalia the daughter of Amri. 3. But he also went by the waies of the house of Achab: for his mother forced him to doe impiously. 4. He therefore did euil in the sight of our Lord, as the house of Achab: for they were his counsellers after the death of his father, to his destruction. 5. And he walked in their counsels. And he went forth with Ioram the sonne of Achab King of Israel, into battel agaynst Hazael King of Syria, into Ramoth Galaad: and the Syrians wounded Ioram. 6. Who returned to be cured into Iezrael: for he had takē manie woundes in the foresayd battel. Therefore Ochozias the sonne of Ioram King of Iuda, went downe to visit Ioram the sonne of Achab in Iezrael being sicke. 7. For it was the wil of God agaynst Ochozias, that he should come to Ioram: and when he was come he should goe out also agaynst Iehu the sonne of Namsi, whom our Lord anoynted to destroy the house of Achab. 8. When Iehu therefore ouerthrew the house of Achab, he found the Princes of Iuda, and the sonne of the brethren of Ochozias, which serued him, and he slew them. 9. Searching also for Ochozias himself, he tooke him lying hid in Samaria: and being brought vnto him, he killed him, and they buried him: because he was the sonne of Iosaphat, who had sought our Lord in all his hart (b) neither was there anie more hope that anie should reigne of the stocke of Ochozias. 10. For Athalia his mother, seeing that her sonne was dead, arose, & slew al the Kings stocke of the house of Ioram. 11. Sauiug that Iosabeth the Kings daughter tooke Ioas the sonne of Ochozias, and stole him out of the middes of the Kings sonnes, when they were slayne, and she hid him with his nource in the bedde chamber: and Iosabeth that hid him, was the daughter of King Ioram, the wife of Ioiada the high Priest, the suster of Ochozias, and therefore Athalia did not kil him. 12. He therefore was with them in the house of God six yeares, in the which Athalia reigned ouer the Land.

Ioiada the High Priest annoynteth and crowneth Ioas King, 12. causeth Athalia to be slaine, 16. idolatrie to be destroyed, 18. and Gods seruice aduanced.

AND in the seuenth yeare Ioiada taking courage, tooke the centurions, to wit, Azarias the sonne of Ieroham, and Ismahel the sonne of Iohanen, Azarias also the sonne of Obed, and Maazias the sonne of Adaias, and Elisaphat the sonne of Zechri: and made a couenant with them. 2. Who going about Iuda, gathered together the Leuites out of al the cities of Iuda, and the Princes of the families of Israel, and they came into Ierusalem. 3. Therefore al the multitude made a couenant with the King in the house of God: and Ioiada sayd to them: Behold the Kings sonne shal reigne, as our Lord hath spoken, vpon the sonnes of Daud. 4. This (a) therefore is the thing which you shal doe. 5. The third part of you that come to the * Sabbath of the Priests, and of Leuites, and of porters, shal be in the gates: and a third part at the Kings house: and a third at the gate, which is called of the Foundation: but al the rest of the common people be in the courtes of the house of our Lord. 6. Neither let anie other enter into the house of our Lord, but the Priests, and they that minister of the Leuites: let them onlie goe in, because they are sanctified, and let al the rest of the multitude obserue the watches of our Lord. 7. And let the Leuites enuiron the King, hauing euerie one their weapons: (and if anie other shal enter into the temple, let him be slayne) and let them be with the King both comming in, and going out. 8. The Leuites therefore, and al Iuda did according to al things, which (b) Ioiada the high Priest had commanded, and they tooke euerie one the men that were vnder them, and came by the order of the Sabbath, with them that had fulfilled the Sabbath, and were to goe forth. For Ioiada the high Priest permitted not the companie to depart, which were accustomed to succeed one another euerie weeke. 9. And Ioiada the Priest gaue to the centurions the speares, and the shields, and targets of King Daud, which he had consecrated in the house of our Lord. 10. And he appoynted al the people of them that held weapons on the right side of the temple, vnto the left side of the temple, before the altar, and the temple, round about the King. 11. And they brought forth the Kings sonne, and put the crowne vpon him, and the testimonie, and gaue the law to be in his hand, and they made him King: Ioiada also the high Priest, and his sonnes annoynted him: and they wished him wel, and said: God saue

And when ſhe had ſeen the King ſtanding vpon the ſtep in the entrance, and the Princes, and the companies about him, and al the people of the land reioyſing, and ſounding with trumpets, and playing on instruments of diuerſe kind, & the voice of them that prayſed, ſhe rent her garments, and ſayd: Treason, treason. 14. And Ioiada the high Prieſt going forth to the centurions, and captaines of the armie, ſayd to them: Bring her forth without the precinct of the temple, and let her be killed with the ſword without. And the Prieſt commanded that ſhe ſhould not be killed in the houſe of our Lord. 15. And they layd hands vpon her necke: and when ſhe was entred within the gate of the houſe of the Kings houſe, they killed her there. 16. And Ioiada made a couenant between himſelf, and al the people, and the King, that they would be the people of our Lord. 17. Al the people therefore entred into the houſe of Baal, and deſtroyed it: and they brake his altars and (c) his * imagas: Mathan alſo the Prieſt of Baal they ſlew before the altars. 18. And Ioiada appoynted ouerſeers in the houſe of our Lord, vnder the hands of the Prieſts, and the Leuites, which Dauid diſtributed in the houſe of our Lord: that they ſhould offer holocausts to our Lord, as it is writen in the law of Moyſes, in ioy and ſongs, according to the diſpoſition of Dauid. 19. He appoynted alſo porters in the gates of the houſe of our Lord, that the vncleane in anie thing ſhould not enter in. 20. And he tooke the centurions, and the moſt valiant men and Princes of the people, and al the common people of the land, and they made the King to goe downe from the houſe of our Lord, and to enter by the middes of the vpper gate into the Kings houſe, and placed him in the royal throne. 21. And al the people of the land reioyſed, and the citie was quiet: moreouer Athalia was ſlayne with the ſword.

C H A P. XXIIII.

Ioas reigning piously, so long as Ioiada liueth, causeth the Temple to be repayed, 14. and new sacred vessels to be made. 15. Ioiada an hundred thirtie yeares old dieth. 17. Ioas falleth to idolatrie: 20. causeth Zacharias to be slayne in the court of the Temple. 23. A few Syrians kil the chief men about the King, and carie away great preyes. 25. Ioas is slayne by his owne men, and his sonne Amasias reigneth.

EVEN yeares old was Ioas when he began to reigne: and he reigned forty yeares in Ierusalem, the name of his mother was Sebia of Bersabee. 2. And he did that which is good before our Lord at the dayes of Ioiada the Priest. 3. And Ioiada tooke for him two wiues, of whom he begat sonnes & daughters. 4. After which things it pleased Ioas to repayre the house of our Lord. 5. And he assembled the Priests, & the Leuites, & sayd to them: Goe ye forth to the cities of Iuda, & gather of al Israel money for the reparation of the temple of your God, yeare by yeare, and doe this in hast: moreouer the Leuites did negligently. 6. And the King called Ioiada the Prince, and sayd to him: why hast thou had no care to constrayne the Leuites to bring in out of Iuda and Ierusalem the money, that was (a) appointed of Moyses the seruant of our Lord, that al the multitude of Israel should bring it in into the tabernacle of testimonie? 7. For the most impious Athalia, & her children haue destroyed the house of God, and of al things that had been sanctified in the temple of our Lord, they adorned the temple of Baalim. 8. The King therefore commanded and they made a chest: and set it by the gate of our Lord on the out side. 9. And it was proclaymed in Iuda and Ierusalem, that euery man should bring the price to our Lord, which Moyses the seruant of God appoynted ouer al Israel, in the desert. 10. And al the Princes reioysed, and al the people: and going in they contributed into the chest of our Lord, and cast in so that it was filled. 11. And when it was time that they should bring the chest before the King by the hands of Leuites (for they saw much money) the Kings Scribe went in, and he whom the high Priest had appoynted: & they powred out the money that was in the chest, and recaried it to his place: and so did they from day to day, and there was gathered infinite money. 12. Which the King and Ioiada gaue to them, that ouersaw the workes of the house of our Lord: but they hired with it hewers of stones, and artificers of al workes, to repayre the house of our Lord: smiths also of yron and brasse, that that which began to fall might be upheld. 13. And they that wrought did industriously, and the breach of the walls was closed by their hands, and they raised the house of our Lord into the old state, and made it stand firmly. 14. And when they had accomplished all the works, they brought the rest of the money before the King and Ioiada: of the which were made vessels of the temple to the ministerie, and for holocausts, phials also, and other vessels of gold and siluer, and holocausts were offered in the house of our Lord continually all the daies of Ioiada. 15. But Ioiada became old being full of dayes, and died when he was an hundred and thirtie yeares old. 16. And they buried him in the citie of Dauid with the Kings, because he had done good with Israel, and with his house. 17. And after that Ioiada was dead, the Princes of Iuda went in, and adored the King, who being altered by their seruiceablenesse, agreed to them. 18. And they forsooke the temple of our Lord the God of their fathers, and serued groues, and sculpils, & there came wrath agaynst Iuda, and Ierusalem for this sinne. 19. And he sent them Prophets, that they should returne to our Lord, whom, protesting, they would not heare. 20. The spirit of God therefore inuelted Zacharias the sonne of Ioiada the Priest, and he stood in the sight of the people, and sayd to them: Thus sayth our Lord God: Why transgresse you the precept of our Lord, which thing shall not profit you, and haue forsaken our Lord, that he should forsake you? 21. Who being gathered against him, they threw stones according to the Kings commandement, in the court of the house of our Lord. 22. And Ioas the King did not remember the mercie, that Ioiada his father had done with him, but he killed his sonne. Who when he died, sayd: Our Lord see, and require it. 23. And when a yeare was come about, the armie of Syria came vp against him: and it came into Iuda and Ierusalem, & slew all the Princes of the people, and all the prey they sent to the King into Damascus. 24. And whereas there was come a very smal number of the Syrians, our Lord deliuered into their hands an infinit multitude, for that they had forsaken our Lord the God of their fathers: on Ioas also they exercised ignominious iudgements. 25. And departing they left him in great diseases: and his seruants rose against him, (b) for reuenge of the blood of the sonne of Ioiada the Priest, and they slew him in his bed, & he dyed: and they buried him in the Citie of Dauid, but not in the Kings sepulchres. 26. And there conspired against him Zabad the sonne of Semmaath an Ammonitess, and Iozabad the sonne of Semarith a Moabitess. 27. Moreouer his children, and the summe of money, which was gathered vnder him, and the repaying of the house of God are written more diligently in the Book of Kings: and Amalias his sonne reigned for him.

(b) He that killed his spiritual father was slaine by his owne seruants.

C H A P. XXV.

Amasias killeth those that slew his father. 5. Besides his owne people, byreth souldiers of israel, but by aduise of a Prophet dismisseth them, 11. and with his owne overthroweth the idumeans, whose idols taken in battel (13. the dismissed souldiers in the meane time spoyling his countrie) he adoreth. 15. Concerning admonition, 17. and prouoking the King of Israel to warre, 22. is taken in battel and spoyled. 27. Fearing treason in Ierusalem flyeth, and is slaine in Lachis.

FIVE and twentie yeares old was Amasias when he began to reigne, and he reigned nine & twentie yeares in Ierusalem, the name of his mother was Ioaden of Ierusalem. 2. And he did good in the sight of our Lord: but yet not in a perfect hart. 3. And when he saw his Kingdome strengthened, he put to death the seruants, that had slayne the King his father, 4. but their children he slew not, as it is written in the Book of the law of Moyse, where our Lord commanded, saying: The fathers shal not be slayne for the children, nor the children for their fathers, but euerie one shal die in his owne sinne. 5. Amasias therefore gathered together Iuda, and appoynted them by families, and tribunes, and centurions, in al Iuda, & Benjamin, and he numbred from twentie yeares vpward, & found three hundred thousand of yong men that went forth to battel, and held speare and shield. 6. He hyred also for wages of Israel an hundred thousand strong men, for an hundred talents of siluer. 7. But a man of God came to him, and sayd: O King, let not the host of Israel goe forth with thee, for our Lord is not with Israel, and al the children of Ephraim: 8. and if thou thinke that battels consist in the force of an armie, God wil make thee to be ouercome of the enemies: for it perteyneth to God both to helpe, and to put to flight. 9. And Amasias said to the man of God: What shal become then of the hundred talents, which I haue giuen the souldiers of Israel? And the man of God answered him: Our Lord hath wherby he is able to giue thee much more then this. 10. Amasias therefore separated the host, that came to him out of Ephraim, that they should returne into their place: but they being wrath exceedingly against Iuda, returned into their countrie. 11. Moreouer Amasias brought forth his people confidently, and went into the Vale of salt pits, and struck the children of Seir, ten thousand. 12. And other ten thousand men did the children of Iuda take, and bring to the steep of a certaine rocke, and cast them down headlong from the top, who burst in sunder euerie one. 13. But that armie which Amasias had sent backe, from going with

But Amasias after the slaughter of the Idumeans, sette vp the Gods of the children of Seir, which he had brought thence, for his Gods, & adored them, and burnt incense to them. 15. For which thing our Lord being angrie against Amasias, sent a Prophet vnto him, which should say to him: Why hast thou adored Gods, that haue not deliuered their owne people out of thy hand? 16. And when he spake these things, he answered him: Art thou the Kings counseler? be quiet, lest I kil thee. And the Prophet departing, sayd: I know that God as minded to kil thee, because thou hast done this euil, & besides hast not agreed to my counsel. 17. Therefore Amasias the King of Iuda taking verie il counsel, sent to Ioas the sonne of Ioachaz the sone of Iehu, the King of Israel, saying: Come, let vs see one an other. 18. But he sent backe the messengers, saying: A thistle that is in Libanus sent to a cedar of Libanus, saying: Giue thy daughter to my sonne to wife: & behold the beasts that were in the wood of Libanus passed, and trode downe the thistle. 19. Thou hast sayd: I haue struken Edom, and therefore thy hart is extolled into pryte, sit in thy house, why dost thou prouoke cuil against thee, that both thou mayest fal, and Iuda with thee. 20. Amasias would not heare, because it was our Lords wil, that he should be deliuered into the hands of the enemies-^(a) for the Gods of Edom. 21. Ioas therefore the King of Israel went vp, and they gaue themselues one the sight of the other: and Amasias the King of Iuda was in Bethsames of Iuda: 22. and Iuda fel before Israel, and fled into their tabernacles. 23. Moreouer Ioas the King of Israel in Bethsames took Amasias the King of Iuda, the sonne of Ioas, the sonne of Ioachas, and brought him into Ierusalem: and destroyed the wal therof from the gate of Ephraim, to the gate of the corner, foure hundred cubits. 24. Al the gold also, and siluer, and al the vessels, that he found in the house of God, and with Obedom in the treasures also of the Kings house, moreouer he brought backe the somes of the hostages into Samaria. 25. And Amasias the sonne of Ioas the King of Iuda liued, after that Ioas died the sonne of Ioachaz the King of Israel fifteen yeares. 26. But the rest of the words of Amasias the first and the last are written in the Book of the Kings of Iuda and Israel. 27. Who after he reuolted from our Lord, they lay in waite agaynst him in Ierusalem. And when he had fled into Lachis, they sent, and slew him there. 28. And caryng him backe vpon horses, buried him with his fathers in the Citie of Dauid.

Ozias seruing God, 6. preuaileth in battel against the Philistians, Arabians, and Ammonites: 9. prospereth in honour and wealth. 16. Then waxing proud offereth incense on the altar, is stricken with leprosie, expelled out of the Temple, and citie: 20. and his sonne Ioathan ruleth the Kingdom.

AND al the people of Iuda made his sone Ozias sixteen yeares old, King for Amasias his father. 2. He built Ailath, & restored it to the dominion of Iuda, after that the King slept with his fathers. 3. Sixteen yeares old was Ozias when he began to reigne, and he reigned two and fittie yeares in Ierusalem, the name of his mother was Iechelia of Ierusalem. 4. And he did that which was right in the eies of our Lord, according to al things, which Amasias his father had done. 5. And he sought our Lord in the daies of Zacharias that vnderstood and saw God: and when he sought our Lord, (a) he directed him in al things. 6. Moreouer he went forth, and fought against the Philisthims, and destroyed the wal of Geth, and the wal of Iabinia, and the wal of Azotus: he built also townes in Azotus, and among the Philisthims. 7. And God did helpe him against the Philisthims, and against the Arabians, that dwelt in Gurbaal, & against the Ammonites. 8. And the Ammonites gaue gifts to Ozias: and his name was renowned vnto the entrance of Egypt for his often victories. 9. And Ozias built towers in Ierusalem ouer the gate of the corner, and ouer the gate of the valley, and the rest, in the same side of the wal, and strengthened them. 10. He built towers also in the wildernesse, and digged manie cisterns, because he had much cattel as wel in the champaine, as in the vastitie of the desert: he had also vineyards and dressers of vines in the mountaynes, and in Carmel: for he was a man giuen to husbandrie. 11. And the host of his warriors, which wet forth to battels, was vnder the hand of Ichiel the scribe, and Maasias the doctor, and vnder the hand of Hananias, who was of the Kings dukes. 12. And al the number of the Princes by families of valiant men, was two thousand six hundred. 13. And vnder them al the host of three hundred and seuen thousand five hundred: which were apt to battels, and fought for the King against the aduersaries. 14. Ozias also prepared for them, that is to say, for al the armie, shields, and speares, and helmets, and coates of mayle, and bowes, and slings to cast stones. 15. And he made in Ierusalem engines of diuerse kind, which he placed in the towers, and in the corners of the walles, to shoot arrowes, & great stones: and his name went forth farre, for that our Lord did ayde him, and had strengthened him. 16. But when he was strengthened, his hart was cleuated to his destruction, and he neglected our Lord his God : and entering into the temple of our Lord , he would burne (b) incense vpon the altar of incense. 17. And incontinent Azarias the Priest going in after him , and with him the Priests of our Lord eightie , most valiant men , 18. they resisted the King, and sayd: It is not thy office Ozias, to burne incense to our Lord, but of the Priests , that is , of the children of Aaron, which are consecrated to this King of ministeric : goe out of the Sanctuarie, contemne not : because this thing shall not be reputed to thee for glorie of our Lord God. 19. And Ozias being angrie , and holding in his hand the censar to burne incense, threathed the Priests. And forthwith there rose a leprosie in his forehead before the Priests , in the house of our Lord vpon the altar of incense. 20. And when Azarias the high Priest had beheld him , and al the rest of the Priests , they saw the leprosie in his forehead , and in hast they thrust him out. Yea and himself being sore afrayd, made hast to goe out, because he felt by and by the plague of our Lord. 21. Ozias therefore the King was a leper vntil the day of his death, and he dwelt in a house apart full of the leprosie, for the which he had been cast out of the house of our Lord. Moreouer Ioathan his sonne gouerned the Kings house , and iudged the people of the land. 22. But the rest of the words of Ozias the first and the last wrote Isaias the sonne of Amos, the Prophet. 23. And Ozias slept with his fathers , and they buried him in the (c) Kings sepulchres field , because he was a leper: and Ioathan his sonne reigned for him.

And Ioathan slept with his fathers, and they buried him in the Citie of Dauid: And Achaz his sonne reigned for him.

CHAP. XXVIII.

For his great wickednes Achaz is taken in battel, his cuntry spoiled, and manie slayne by the Kings of Syria, and Israel: 9. yet God suffereth not the Kingdom to be subdued. 16. Then requiring helpe of the Assyrians, 17. is spoiled by the Idumeans, Philisthians, and Assyrians. 22. After al which plagues he committeth more idolatrie. 26. dieth, and his sonne Ezechias reigneth.

TWENTIE yeares old was Achaz when he began to reigne, and he reigned sixteen yeares in Ierusalem: he did not right in the sight of our Lord as Dauid his father. 1. but walked in the wayes of the Kings of Israel, moreouer also he did cast statues to Baalim. 3. He it is that burnt incense to the Valebenennom, and he consecrated his sonnes in fire according to the rite of the nations, which our Lord slew in the comming of the children of Israel. 4. He sacrificed also, & burnt incense in the excelses, and on hilles, and vnder euerie tree ful of greene leaues. 5. And our Lord his God deliuered him into the hands of the King of Syria, who stricke him, and tooke a great prey out of his Kingdom, and brought into Damascus: to the hāds also of the King of Israel was deliuered, & striken with a great plague. 6. And Phacee the sonne of Romelia slew of Iuda an hundred twentie thousand in one day, al men of warre: for that they had forsaken our Lord the God of their fathers. 7. At that time Zechri a mightie man of Ephraim, slew Maasias the Kings sonne, and Ezricam the gouernour of his house, Elcana also second from the King. 8. And the children of Israel tooke of their brethren two hundred thousand of women, of boyes, and of wenches, and an infinite praye: & they brought it into Samaria. 9. At that time there was a Prophet of our Lord, named Oded: who going forth to meete the armie comming into Samaria, said to them: Behold our Lord the God of your fathers being angric against Iuda, hath deliuered them into your hands, and you haue slayne them cruelly, so that your crueltie did reach to heauen. 10. Morcouer the children of Iuda and Ierusalem you wil subdue vnto you for bondmen and bond women, which needeth not to be done: for you haue sinned hereupon to our Lord your God. 11. But heare ye my counsel, and carie backe the captiues, that you haue brought of your brethren, because the great furie of our Lord hangeth ouer you. 12. There stood therefore Princes of the children of Ephraim, Azarias the sonne of Iohanen, Barachias the sonne of Mosollomoth, Ezechias the sonne of Sellum, and Amasa the sonne of Hadali, against them that came out of the battel, 13. and they sayd to them: You shal not bring in the captiues hither, lest we sinne to our Lord. Why wil you adde vpon our sinnes, and heape vp old offences? for it is a great sinne, and the anger of the furie of our Lord hangeth ouer Israel. 14. And the men of warredismist the prey, and al the things that they had taken, before the Princes and al the multitude. 15. And the men, whom we mentioned aboue, stood, and taking the captiues, and al that were naked they clothed and shod them with the spoyles: and when they had clothed and refreshed them with meat and drinke, & annoynted them because of their labour, and had looked carefully to them: as manie as could not walke, and were of a weake bodie, they set on beasts, and brought them to Iericho the Citie of palme trees to their brethren, and themselves returned into Samaria. 16. At that time King Achaz sent to the King of the Assyrians asking helpe. And the Idumeans came and struck manie of Iuda, and tooke a great praye. 17. The Philisthiims also were spred abroad by the cities of the champayne, and toward the South of Iuda: and they tooke Bethfames, and Aialon, and Gaderoth, Socho also, and Thamnan, and Gamzo, with their villages, and dwelt in them. 19. For our Lord had humbled Iuda because of Achaz the King of Iuda, for that he had made it naked of helpe, and had contemned our Lord. 20. And he brought agaynst him Theglathphalnasar the King of the Assyrians, who also afflicted him, and spoyled him no man resisting. 21. Therefore Achaz spoyling the house of our Lord, and the house of the Kings, and of the Princes gaue gifts to the King of the Assyrians, and yet it did nothing profite him. 22. Moreouer also in the time of his distresse he increased contempt agaynst our Lord, King Achaz himself by himself, 23. immolated victimes to the Gods of Damascus that strucke him, and sayd: The Gods of the Kings of Syria doe helpe them, whom I wil pacifie with hosts, and they wil ayde me, wheras on the contrarie part they were his ruine, and al Israels. 24. Achaz therefore hauing spoyled al the vessels of the house of God, and broken them, shut the gates of the temple of God, and made him altars in al the corners of Ierusalem. 25. In al the cities also of Iuda he built altars to burne frankincense, and he prouoked to wrath our Lord the God of his fathers. 26. But the rest of his words, & al his works the first and the last are written in the Booke of the Kings of Iuda and Israel. 27. And Achaz slept with his fathers, and they buried him in the Citie of Ierusalem: for they receiued him not into the sepulchres of the Kings of Israel. And Ezechias his sonne reigned for him.

C H A P. XXIX.

Ezechias repayreth the Temple, and diuine seruice. 5. Zelously exhorteth offenders to repentance: 12. the Temple is purified in sixteen daies. 18. The King and nobles offer holts, which the Priests immolare, 25. with solemne musick (ordained by King Dauid) and great ioy of al the people.

HERFORE Ezechias began to reigne, when he was five and twentie yeares old, & he reigned nine and twentie yeares in Ierusalem: the name of his mother was Abia, the daughter of Zacharias. 2. And he did that which was pleasing in the sight of our Lord, according to all things that Dauid his father had done. 3. He in the first yeare & month of his reigne opened the doores of the house of our Lord, and repayed them. 4. And he brought the Priests and the Leuites, & assembled them in the East street. 5. And he sayd to them: Heare me ye Leuites, and be sanctified, cleanse the house of our Lord the God of your fathers, and take away all vncleannes out of the Sanctuarie. 6. Our fathers haue sinned and done euil in the sight of our Lord God, forsaking him: they haue turned away their faces from the tabernacle of our Lord, & giuen the backe. 7. They haue shut the doores, that were in the porch, and put out the lamps, and haue not burnt incense, and haue not offered holocausts in the Sanctuarie of the God of Israel. 8. Therefore was the furie of our Lord stirred vp vpon Iuda and Ierusalem, and he hath deliuered them into commotion, and into destruction, and to be hissed at, as your schewes see with your eyes. 9. Behold, our fathers haue fallen by the swords, our sonnes, and our daughters, and wiues are led captiue for this wickednesse. 10. Now chertore it pleaseth me that we make a couenant with our Lord the God of Israel, and he wil turne away the furie of his wrath from vs. 11. My children be not negligent: our Lord hath chosen you to stand before him, and to minister to him, and to worship him, and to burne incense to him. 12. The Leuites therefore arose: Mahath the sonne of Amasai, and Icel the sonne of Azarias, of the children of Caath: moreouer the children of Merari, Cis the sonne of Abdi, and Azarias the sonne of Ialalcel. And of the children of Gerson, Ioah the sonne of Zemma, and Eden the sonne of Ioah. 13. But of the children of Elisaphan, Samri, and Taniel. Also of the children of Asaph, Zacharias, and Mathanias. 14. Moreouer also of the children of Heman, Taniel, and Semei: yea and of the children of Idithun, Semeias, and Oziel. 15. And they gathered together their brethren, and were sanctified, and went in according to the commandment of the King, and the precept of our Lord, to purge the house of God. 16. The Priests also going into the Temple of our Lord to sanctifie it, brought out all vncleannes, which they found within the entrance of the house of our Lord, which the Leuites took, and caried to the Torrent cedron without. 17. And they began to clesse it the first day of the first month, and in the eight day of the same month they entred into the porche of the temple of our Lord, and they purged the temple in eight dayes, and in the sixteenth day of the same month, they accomplished that which they began. 18. They entred in also to Ezechias the King, and sayd to him: We haue sanctified all the house of our Lord, and the altar of holocaust, and the vessels thereof, moreouer also the table of propoition with all the vessels thereof, 19. and all the furniture of the temple, which King Achaz in his reigne had polluted, after that he transgressed; and behold all things are set forth before the altar of our Lord. 20. And Ezechias the King rising early, assembled all the Princes of the citie, & went vp into the house of our Lord: 21. and they offered together seuen oxen, and seuen rammes, seuen lambs, and seuen buckgoats for sinne, for the Kingdome, for the sanctuarie, for Iuda, and he sayd to the Priests the children of Aaron, that they should offer them vpon the altar of our Lord. 22. They killed therefore the oxen, & the Priests took the blood, and powred it vpon the altar, they killed also the rammes, and their blood they powred also vpon the altar, and they immolated the lambs, and powred the blood vpon the altar. 23. They brought the buckgoats for sinne before the King, & the whole multitude, & they put their hands vpon the: 24. & the Priests immolated the, & sprinkled their blood on the altar for an expiation of all Israel: for the King had commanded for all Israel, that holocaust should be made, & for sinne. 25. He appointed also the Leuites in the house of our Lord with cymbals, and psalteries, and harpes according to the disposition of Dauid the King, and of Gad the Seer, and of Nathan the Prophet: for it was the precept of our Lord by the hand of his Prophets. 26. And the Leuites stood, holding the instruments of Dauid, and the Priests trumpets. 27. And Ezechias commanded that they should offer holocausts vpon the altar: and when holocausts were offered, they began to sing prayes to our Lord, and to sound with trumpets, and on diuerse instruments, which Dauid the King of Israel had prepared for to sound. 28. And all the multitude adoring, the singing men, and they that held the trumpets, were in their office, whiles the holocaust was accomplished. 29. And when the oblation was ended, the King bowed, and all that were with him, and adored. 30. And Ezechias, and the Princes commanded the Leuites, that they should prayse our Lord in the words of Dauid, and Asaph the Seer: who praysed him with great ioy, and bowing the knee adored. 31. But Ezechias added these words also: You haue filled your hands to our Lord, come, and offer victimes, and prayes in the house of our Lord. All the multitude therefore offered holts, and prayes, and holocausts with a deuout mind. 32. Moreouer the number of the holocausts, which the multitude offered, was this, oxen seuentie, rammes an hundred, lambs two hundred. 33. And they sanctified to our Lord oxen six hundred, and sheep three thousand. 34. But the Priests were few, neither could they suffice to draw off the skaines of the holocausts: wherefore the Leuites also their brethren holpe them, til the worke was accomplished, and the Priests were sanctified, for the Leuites are sanctified with an easier rite then the Priests. 35. There were holocausts therefore verie many, the fat of pacifikes, and the libaments of the holocausts, and the seruice of the house of our Lord was accomplished. 36. And Ezechias reioyced, and al the people, because the ministerie of our Lord was accomplished. For it pleased them that the things should be done of a sodain.

C H A P. XXX.

Ezechias by messengers and letters exhorteth the people both of Iuda & Israel, to make Pasch in Ierusalem: 11. which some of Israel, and al Iuda performe, 18. the fourteenth day of the second month, though al could not be purified according to the law. 23. They make an other feast of Azymes seven dayes more, the King and Princes giuing hosts to the people.

EZECHIAS also sent to al Israel and Iuda: and he wrote letters to Ephraim & Manasses, that they should come to the house of our Lord in Ierusalem, and should make a Phase to our Lord the God of Israel. 2. Counsel therefore being taken of the King and the Princes, and of al the assemblie of Ierusalem, they decreed to make the Phase the second month. 3. For they could not make it in his time, because the Priests that might suffice, had not been sanctified, and the people had not as yet been gathered into Ierusalem. 4. And the word pleased the King, and al the multitude. 5. And they decreed to send messengers into al Israel from Bersabee vnto Dan, that they should come, and make the Phase to our Lord the God of Israel in Ierusalem: for manie had not made it as is prescribed by the law. 6. And the posts went forth with letters of commandment from the King and his Princes, into al Israel and Iuda, according to that which the King had commanded, proclaiming: Children of Israel returne ye to our Lord the God of Abraham, and Isaac, and Israel: and he wil returne to the remnant, that hath escaped the hand of the King of the Assyrians. 7. Become not as your fathers, and brethren, which haue reuolted from our Lord the God of their fathers, who hath deliuered them into destruction, as your selues see. 8. Harden not your neckes, as your fathers : giue hand to our Lord, and come to his Sanctuarie, which he hath sanctified for euer: serue our Lord the God of your fathers, & the wrath of his furie shal be turned away from you. 9. For if you shal returne to our Lord, your brethren, and children shal haue mercie before their Lords, that haue led them captiue, and they shal returne into this land: for our Lord your God is merciful, and wil not turne away his face from you, if you shal returne to him. 10. Therefore the postes went forward speedily from citie to citie, through the land of Ephraim, & of Manasses, as farre as Zabulon, they mocking and skorning them. 11. Neuerthelesse certaine men of Aser, and Manasses, and Zabulon, condescending to the counsel came to Ierusalem. 12. But the hand of God was in Iuda, to giue them one hart to doe the word of our Lord, according to the precept of the King and of the Paines. 13. And much people was gathered into Ierusalem to make the solemnitie of Azimes in the second month: 14. And rising they destroyed the altars that were in Ierusalem, and ouerthrowing al things wherein incense was burnt to idols, they threw it into the Torrent cedron. 15. And they immolated the Phafe the fourteenth day of the second month. The Priests also and the Leuites at length being sanctified offered holocausts in the house of our Lord. 16. And they stood in their order according to the disposition and law of Moyses the man of God: but the Priests receiued the blood to be powred out of the hands of the Leuites, 17. because a great multitude was not sanctified: and therefore the Leuites immolated the Phafe for them that came not in time to be sanctified to our Lord. 18. For a great part of the people of Ephraim, and Manasses, and Issachar, and Zabulon, that had not been sanctified, did eate the Phafe, not according to that which is written: and Ezechias prayed for them, saying: Our good Lord wil be merciful 19. to al them (a) that in al their hart seeke our Lord the God of their fathers: & wil not impute it to them that they are not sanctified. 20. Whom our Lord heard, and was pacified to the people. 21. And the childre of Israel, that were found in Ierusalem, made the solemnitie of Azimes seuen daies in great ioy, praying our Lord euerie day. The Leuites also and the Priests by instruments, that agreed to their office. 22. And Ezechias spake to the hart of al the Leuites, that had good vnderstanding concerning our Lord: & they did eate during the seuen daies of the solemnitie, immolating victimnes of pacifikes, and praying our Lord the God of their fathers. 23. And it pleased the whole multitude to celebrate it (b) other seuen daies. which also they did with great ioy. 24. For Ezechias the King of Iuda had giuen the multitude a thousand oxen, and seuen thousand sheep: but the Princes had giuen the people oxen a thousand, and sheep ten thousand: there was sanctified therefore a verie great multitude of Priests. 25. And al the multitude of Iuda was full of mirth, as wel of the Priests and Leuites, as of al the assemblee, that came out of Israel, of the profelites also of the land of Israel, and them that dwelt in Iuda. 26. And there was made a great solemnitie in Ierusalem, such as had not been in that cite from the dayes of Salomon the sonne of Dauid the King of Israel. 27. And the Priests and the Leuites rose vp blessing the people: and their voice was heard: and their prayer came into the holie habitation of heauen.

Idols being destroyed in al Iuda and part of Israel, Priests and Leuites freely execute their functions. 4. Tithes and first fruits are payed in such abundance, 15. that they are put in store houses, and distributed by officers.

AND when these things had been ritely celebrated, al Israel that was found in the cities of Iuda, went forth, and they brake the idols, & cut downe the groues, ouerthrew the excelses, and destroyed the altars, not onlie out of al Iuda and Benjamin, but out of Ephraim also and Manasses, til they vtterly destroyed them: and al the children of Israel returned into their possessions and cities. 2. And Ezechias appoynted companies of Priests, and of Leuites, by their diuisions, euerie man in his owne office, to wit, as wel of the Priests, as of the Leuites, for the holocausts, and pacifikes, that they should minister, and (a) confesse, and sing in the gates of the campe of our Lord. 3. And the Kings part was, that of his proper substance holocaust should be offered, morning alwaies and euening, in the Sabbaths also, and the Calends, and in other solemnities, as it is written in the law of Moyses. 4. He commanded also the people that dwelt in Ierusalem, to giue portions to the Priests, and the Leuites, that they might attend the law of our Lord. 5. Which when it was noyed in the eares of the multitude, the children of Israel offered very manie first fruits of corne, of wine, and of oyle, of honie also: and of al things, which the ground bringeth forth, they offered tithes. 6. Yea and the children of Israel and Iuda, that dwelt in the cities of Iuda, offered tithes of oxen, and sheep, and tithes of sanctified things, which they had vowed to our Lord their God: and carying them al, made manie heaps. 7. The third month they began to lay the foundations of the heaps, and in the seuenth month they finished them. 8. And when Ezechias and his Princes came in, they saw the heaps, and blessed our Lord, and the people of Israel. 9. And Ezechias asked the Priests and the Leuites, why the heaps lay so: 10. Azarias the high Priest of the stock of Sadoc answered him, saying: Since first fruits began to be offered in the house of our Lord, we haue eaten, and haue been ful, and very much hath remayned, because our Lord hath blessed his people: and of the remaynes this is the aboundance, which thou seest. 11. Ezechias therefore commanded that storehouses should be prepared in the house of our Lord. Which when they had done, 12. they brought in as wel the first fruits, as the tiths, and whatsoever they had vowed, faithfully. And the ouerfeer of them was Chonenias a Leuite, & Semei his brother the second, 13. after whom Iahiel, and Azarias, and Nahath, and Afael, and Ierimoth, Iosabad also, and Eliel, and Iesmachias, and Mahath, and Banaias, ouerfeers vnder the hand of Chonenias, and Semei his brother, by the commandment of Ezechias the King, and Azarias the high Priest of the house of God, to whom al things apperteyned. 14. But Core the sonne of Iemna a Leuite, and porter of the east gate, was ouerfeer of those things, which were voluntarily offered to our Lord, and of the first fruits and the things consecrated for Sancta sanctorum. 15. And vnder his charge Eden, and Benjamin, Iesue, and Semeias, Amarias also, and Sechenias, in the cities of the Priests, that they should faithfully distribute to their brethren portions, to the lesser and greater: 16. sauing the men children from three yeares and aboue, to al that entred into the temple of our Lord, and whatsoever day by was profitable in the ministerie, and the obseruances according to their diuisions, 17. to the Priests by families, and to the Leuites from the twentieth yeare and vpward, by the orders and companies, 18. and to al the multitude, as wel their wiues, as their children of both sex, meates were giuen faithfully of these things, that had been sanctified. 19. Yea and of the children of Aaron by the fields and the suburbs of euerie citie, there were men ordayned, that should distribute portions, to al the male sexe, of the Priests and the Leuites. 20. Ezechias therefore did al things which we haue sayd in al Iuda: and wrought good and right, and truth before our Lord his God, 21. in al the seruice of the ministerie of the house of our Lord, according to the law and the ceremonies, willing to seeke his God in al his hart, and he did it and prospered.

C H A P. XXXII.

Sennacherib King of Assyria inuading Iuda, King Ezechias encourageth the people, and prouideth to defend the countrie. 9. The Assyrians threaten the people, and blaspheme God. 20. Ezechias and Isaias pray. 21. An Angel destroyeth the Assyrians armie, so their King returning home, is slayne in his idols temple by his owne sonnes. 22. Ezechias reigneth in peace, 24. falleth into deadlie sicknes, but miraculously recouereth, offendeth in pryde, and repenteth: 27. is exceeding rich, which he imprudently sheweth to strangers: 32. dieth, and Manasses succeedeth.

AFTER which things, and this manner of truth, came Sennacherib the King of the Assyrians, and entring into Iuda, besieged the fenced cities, desirous to take them. 2. Which when Ezechias had seen, to witte, that Sennacherib was come, and the whole force of the battel to be turned agaynst Ierusalem, 3. taking counsel with the Princes, and the most valiant men, to stop vp the heads of the fountaynes, that were without the citie: and the sentence of them al decreeing this, 4. he gathered a very great multitude, & they stopped vp al the fountaynes, and the riuer that ranne in the middes of the land, saying: Lest the Kings of the Assyrians come, and finde aboundance of waters. 5. He built also doing industriously euerie wal that had been destroyed, and built towers vpon them, & an other wal without: and he repayred Mello in the citie of Dauid, and made armour and shields of al sorts: 6. And he appointed Princes of warryers in the armie: and he called them al together in the streete of the gate of the citie, and spake to their hart, saying: 7. Doe manfully, & take courage: feare not, neither dread ye the King of the Assyrians, and al the multitude, that is with him: for there are manie moe with vs, then with him. 8. For with him is an arme of flesh: with vs the Lord our God, which is our helper, and fighteth for vs. And the people was encouraged with these manner of wordes of Ezechias the King of Iuda. 9. Which things after they were done, Sennacherib the King of the Assyrians sent his seruants to Ierusalem (for himself with al his armie besieged Lachis) to Ezechias the King of Iuda, and to al the people, that was in the citie, saying: 10. Thus sayth Sennacherib the King of the Assyrians: In whom hauing affiance, doe you sit besieged in Ierusalem? 11. Hath Ezechias deceiued you, to deliuer you to death in hunger and thirst, affirming that the Lord your God can deliuer you from the hand of the King of the Assyrians? 12. Why, is not this Ezechias, that hath destroyed his excelses, and altars, and hath commanded Iuda and Ierusalem, saying: Before one altar you shall adore, and on it you shall burne incense: 13. Are you ignorant what things I haue done, and my fathers to all the peoples of the lands? haue the Gods of nations, and of all lands been able to deliuer their countrie out of my hand? 14. Who is there of all the Gods of the nations, which my fathers wasted, that could deliuer his people out of my hand, that your God also can deliuer you out of this hand? 15. Let not therefore Ezechias deceiue you, nor delude you with vayne persuasion, neither belieue ye him. For if no God of all nations & Kingdomes could deliuer his people out of my hand, and out of the hand of my fathers, consequently neither shall your God be able to deliuer you out of my hand. 16. Yea & manie other things did his seruants speake against our Lord God, and against Ezechias his seruant. 17. Letters also he wrote full of blasphemie against our Lord the God of Israel, and he spake against him: as the Gods of their nations could not deliuer their people out of my hand, so the God also of Ezechias can not deliuer his people out of this hand. 18. Moreouer also with a lowd crie, in the Iewes tongue, he sounded against the people that sate on the wals of Ierusalem, that he might terrifie them, and take the citie. 19. And he spake agaynst the God of Ierusalem, as agaynst the Gods of the peoples of the earth, the works of mens hands. 20. Ezechias therefore the King, and Isaias the Prophet the sonne of Amos, prayed agaynst this blasphemie, and cried out euen to heauen. 21. And our Lord sent an Angel, which stricke euerie strong man, and warryer, and Prince of the armie of the King of the Assyrians: and he returned with ignominie into his countrie. And when he was entred into the house of his God, his sonnes that were come forth of his wombe, slew him with the sword. 22. And our Lord saued Ezechias and the inhabitants of Ierusalem, out of the hand of Sennacherib the King of the Assyrians, and out of the hand of all, and gaue them rest round about. 23. Manie also brought hostes, and sacrifices to our Lord into Ierusalem, and gifts to Ezechias the King of Iuda: who was exalted after these things before all nations. 24. In those daies Ezechias was sick euen to death, and he prayed our Lord: and he heard him, and gaue him a signe. 25. But not according to the benefits which he receiued, did he recompense, (a) because his hart was cleaued: & wrath came agaynst him, and agaynst Iuda and Ierusalem. 26. And he was humbled afterward, because his hart had been exalted, both he & the inhabitants of Ierusalem: and therefore the wrath of our Lord came not vpon the in the daies of Ezechias. 27. And Ezechias was rich & glorious exceedingly, & gathered to himselfe great treasures of siluer and of gold, and of pretious stone, of spices, & of armour of all kinde, and of vessels of great price. 28. Storehouses also of corne, of wyne, and of oyle, and stals of all beasts, and foldes of cattel, 29. and six cities he built to himselfe: for he had flocks of sheep, & of heardes innumerable, because our Lord had giuen him substance exceeding much. 30. of Gihon, and turned them away vnderneath toward the West of the Citie of Dauid: in al his workes he did prosperously what he would. 31. But yet in the embassie of the Princes of Babylon, that were sent to him, to aske of the wonder, that had chanced vpon the earth, God lett him that he might be tempted, and al things might be made knowen, that were in his hart. 32. But the rest of the words of Ezechias, and of his mercies, are writen in the vision of Isaias the sonne of Amos the Prophet, and in the booke of the Kings of Iuda and Israel. 33. And Ezechias slept with his fathers, and they buried him in the chiefe sepulchres of the children of Dauid: and al Iuda celebrated his funerals, and al the inhabitants of Ierusalem: and Manasses his sonne reigned for him.

C H A P. XXXIII.

Manasses for his manifold wickednes is led captiue into Babylon: 12. repenteth in prison, is restored to his kingdom, and destroyeth idolatry: 18. dieth, 21. and Amon succeeding, 24. is slayne by his seruants, and Iosias reigneth.

WELVE yeares old was Manasses when he began to reign, & he reigned fittie fve yeares in Ierusalem. 2. And he did euil before our Lord, according to al the abominations of the nations, which our Lord ouerthrew before the childre of Israel: 3. and being turned, he reedified the excelses which Ezechias his father had destroyed: and he built altars to Baalim, and made groues, and he adored al the host of heauen, & worshipped it. 4. He built also altars in the house of our Lord, wherof our Lord had sayd: In Ierusalem shal my name be for euer. 5. And he built them to al the host of heauen in the two courts of the house of our Lord: 6. And he made his sonnes to passe through fire, to the Valebenennom: he obserued dreames, folowed southsayings, gaue himself to magike arts, he had with him magicians, and iuchanters: and he wrought manie euils before our Lord, to prouoke him. 7. Also a grauen and a molten signe he put in the house of God, wherof our Lord spake to Dauid, and to Salomon his sonne, saying: In this house, and in Ierusalem, which I haue chosē of al the tribes of Israel, wil I put my name for euer. 8. And I wil not make the foote of Israel to moue out of the land, which I haue deliuered to their fathers: yet so if they shal obserue to doe that I haue commanded them, and al the law, and the ceremonies, and iudgements by the hand of Moyse. 9. Manasses therefore seduced Iuda, & the inhabitants of Ierusalem, that they did euil aboue al the nations, which our Lord had ouerthrowen before the face of the children of Israel. 10. And our Lord spake to him, and to his people, and they would not attend. 11. Therefore he brought vpon them the Princes of the hoſt of the King of the Affyrians : and they took Manaffes , and led him bound with chaynes , and fetters into Babylon. 12. Who after that he was in diſtreſſe , prayed our Lord his God : and did penance exceedingly before the God of his fathers. 13. And he deſired him , and beſought him earneſtly : (a) and he heard his prayer , and brought him agayne to Ieruſalem into his Kingdome , and Manaffes knew that our Lord he was God. 14. After theſe things he built a wal without the citie of Dauid , on the weſt of Gihon in the valley , from the entrance of the fiſh gate round about vnto Ophel , and rayſed it exceedingly : and he appoynted Princes of the hoſt in al the fenced cities of Iuda : 15. and he took away ſtrange Gods , and the idol out of the houſe of our Lord : the altars alſo which he had made in the mount of the houſe of our Lord , and in Ieruſalem ; and he threw al without the citie. 16. Moreouer he reedified the altar of our Lord , and immolated vpon it viſtims , and pacifikes , and prayſe : and he commanded Iuda to ſerue our Lord the God of Iſrael. 17. Neuertheleſſe as yet the people immolated in the excelses to our Lord their God. 18. But the reſt of the actes of Manaffes : and his obſecration to his God : the words alſo of the Seers , that ſpake to him in the name of our Lord the God of Iſrael, are conteyned in the words of the Kings of Iſrael. 19. His (b) prayer alſo , and his obtayning , and al his finnes , and contempt , the places alſo wherein he built excelses , and made groues , and ſtatues before he did penance , are written in the words of Hozai. 20. Manaffes therefore ſlept with his fathers , and they buried him in his houſe : and his ſonne Amon reigned for him. 21. Amon was two & twentie yeares old when he began to reigne , & he reigned two yeares in Ieruſalem. 22. And he did ſuil in the ſight of our Lord , as Manaffes his father had done : & he immolated to al the idols , which Manaffes his father had made , and ſerued them. 23. And he did not reuerence the face of our Lord , as Manaffes his father did reuerence it , and he committed farre greater finnes. 24. And when his ſeruants had conſpired againſt him , they flew him in his owne houſe. 25. Moreouer the reſt of the multitude of the people , hauing thins them that ſtrucke Amon , made Iofias his ſonne King for him.

(a) A pregnant example of the effect of hartie repentance.

(b) This prayer is not extant in the Hebrew but in Greeke and Latin, as yet neither receiued for canonical by the Church, nor reſufed.

Iosias destroyeth idolstrie, 8. repaireth the Temple. 14. The Book of the law found in the Temple is reade before him. 19. Wherby vnderstanding the sinnes of the people, 23. a Prophet foresheeweth their punishment, 26. but not in his daies. 29. He reneweth the couenant between God and the people.

EIGHT yeares old was Iosias when he began to reigne and he reigned thirtie and one yeares in Ierusalem. 2. And he did that which was right in the sight of our Lord, and walked in the waies of Dauid his father: he declined not neither to the right hand, nor to the left. 3. And in the eight yeare of his reigne, when he was yet a child, he began to seek the God of his father Dauid: & the twelfth yeare after he began to reigne, he cleansed Iuda and Ierusalem from excelses, and groues, and idols, and sculptils. 4. And they destroyed before him the altars of Baalim, & the idols that had been set vpon them, they destroyed: the groues also and sculptils he cut downe and brake in pieces: and ouer their tombs, that were accustomed to immolate vnto them, he strawed the fragments. 5. Moreouer the bones of the Priests he burnt on the altars of the idols, and he clenfed Iuda and Ierusalem. 6. Yea and in the cities of Manasses, and of Ephraim, and of Simeon, vnto Nephthali he ouerthrew al. 7. And when he had destroyed the altars, and the groues, and had broken the idols into pieces, and had ouerthrowen al profane temples out of al the land of Israel, he returned into Ierusalem. 8. Therefore in the eighteenth yeare of his reigne, the land now clenfed, and the temple of our Lord, he sent Saphan the sonne of Eselias, and Maaias the gouernour of the citie, and Ioha the sonne of Ioachaz Commenter, that they should repayre the house of our Lord his God. 9. Who came to Heicias the high Priest: and taking of him the money, which had been brought into the house of our Lord, and which the Leuites and porters had gathered together of Manasses, and Ephraim, and of al the remnant of Israel, of al Iuda also, and Benjamin, and the inhabitants of Ierusalem, 10. they deliuered in their hands, that ouersaw the workemen in the house of our Lord, that they mould repayre the temple, and mend al weake parts. 11. But they gaue it to the artificers, and to the masons, that they mould bye stones out of the quarries, and timber for the ioyntures of the building, and for making the roofe of the houses, which the Kings of Iuda had destroyed. 12. Who did al things faithfully. And the ouerseers of the workemē were Iahath and Abasias of the children of Merari, Zacharias and Mosollam of the children of Caath, which vrged the work: al Leuites skillful to sing on bes, & masters of the Leuites, & porters. 14. And when they caried forth the money, that had been brought into the temple of our Lord, Helcias the Priett found the Booke of the law of our Lord (a) by the hand of Moyfes. 15. And he sayd to Saphan the Scribe: I haue found the Book of the law in the house of our Lord: and deliuered it to him. 16. But he brought in the volume to the King, and told him, saying: Al things, which thou gauest into the hand of thy seruants, loe are accomplished.

17. The siluer that was found in the house of our Lord they haue gathered into a masse: and it was giuen to the ouerseers of the artificers, and of them that make diuerse works. 18. Moreouer Helcias the Priett deliuered me this Book. Which when he had read in the Kings presence, 19. and he had heard the words of the law, he rent his garments:
20. and he commanded Helcias, and Ahicam the sonne of Saphan, and Abdon the sonne of Micha, Saphan also the scribe, and Asra the Kings seruant, saying: 21. Goe, and pray our Lord for me, and for the remnant of Israel, and Iuda, concerning al the words of this Book, which is found: for the great furie of our Lord hath distilled vpon vs, for that our fathers haue not kept the words of our Lord, to doe al things that are written in this volume. 22. Helcias therfore went, and they that were sent together by the King, to Oлда a Prophetesse, the wife of Sellum the sonne of Thecuath, the sonne of Hasra keeper of the garments: who dwelt in Ierusalem in the second part: and they spake to her the words, which we haue aboue mentioned. 23. But she answered them: Thus sayth our Lord the God of Israel: Tel the man, that sent you to me: 24. Thus sayth our Lord: Behold I wil bring euils vpon this place, and vpon the inhabitants therof, and al the curses, that are written in this Book, which they redde before the King of Iuda. 25. Because they haue forsaken me, and haue sacrificed to strange Gods, that they might prouoke me to wrath in al the works of their hands, therfore shal my furie drop vpon this place, and shal not be extinguished.
26. But to the King of Iuda that sent you to beseech our Lord, thus speake ye: Thus sayth our Lord the God of Israel: Because thou hast heard the words of this volume, 27. and thy hart is mollified, & thou art humbled in the sight of our Lord for these things, which are spoken against this place, and the inhabitants of Ierusalem, and reuerencing my face hast rent thy garments, and wept before me: I also haue heard thee, sayth our Lord. 28. (b) For now wil I gather thee to thy fathers, & thou shalt be brought into thy graue in peace: neither shal thine eies see al the euil that I wil bring in vpon this place, and vpon the inhabitants therof. They therfore reported to the King al things that he had sayd.
29. But he calling together al the anciērs of Iuda and Ierusalem, 30. went vp into the house of our Lord, and al the men of Iuda, and the inhabitants of Ierusalem, Prietts and Leuites, and al the people from the least to the greatest. In whose hearing in the house of our Lord, the King read al the words, of the volume. 31. And standing on his tribunall seate, he made a couenant before our Lord, that he would walke after him, and keep his precepts, and testimonies, and iustifications in al his hart, and in al his soule, and would doe the things that were written in that volume, which he had read. 32. He adiured also vpon this. al that were found in Ierusalem, and Benjamin: and the inhabitants of Ierusalem did according to the couenant of our Lord the God of their fathers. 33. Iosias therefore tooke away al abominations of al the countries of the children of Israel: and made al, that were left in Israel, to serue our Lord their God. Al his daies they reuolted not from our Lord the God of their fathers.

Iosias celebrateth a most Solemne Pasch. 20. Is slaine by the King of Ægypt, al Iuda lamenting him, 25. most specially Ieremias.

4) This Pasche or Pasch made by Iosias is famous, partly for that this feast had been omitted some yeares, but specially for the great and extraordinary solemnitie made at this time.

N.D Iosias made in Ierusalem (1) a Pasche to our Lord, which was immolated the fourteenth day of the first month. 2. And he appoynted the Priests in their offices, & exhorted the that they would minister in the house of our Lord. 3. To the Leuites also, at whose instruction al Israel was sanctified to our Lord, he spake: Put the Arke in the Sanctuary of the temple, which Salomon built the sonne of Dauid the King of Israel, for you shal carie it no more: but now minister to our Lord your God, & to his people Israel. 4. And prepare your selues by your houses & kinreds in the diuisions of euerie one, as Dauid the King of Israel commanded, & Salomon his sonne described. 5. And minister ye in the Sanctuary by families and Leuitical companies, 6. and being sanctified immolate the Pasche, prepare also your brethren, that they may doe according to the words, which our Lord spake in the hand of Moyses. 7. Moreouer Iosias gaue to al the people, that was found there in the solemnitie of the Pasche, lambes and Kiddes of the flocks, and of the rest of the cattel thirtie thousand, of oxen also three thousand, al these things of the Kings substance. 8. His dukes also voluntarily offered that which they vowed, aswel to the people, as to Priests and the Leuites. Moreouer Helcias, and Zacharias, and Iahiel, Princes of the house of our Lord, gaue to the Priests to make the Pasche, cattel, one with an other two thousand six hundred, and oxen three hundred. 9. And Chonenias, & Semeias, also Nathanael, his brethren, moreouer Hasabias, & Iehiel, and Iozabad Princes of the Leuites, gaue to the rest of the Leuites to celebrate the Pasche fife thousand sheep, and oxen fife hundred. 10. And the ministerie was prepared, and the Priests stood in their office: the Leuites also in companies, according to the Kings commandement. 11. And the Phafe was immolated: and Priests sprinkled the blood with their hand, and the Leuites drew of the skinnes of the holocausts: 12. and they separated them to giue them by the houses and families of euerie one, and to be offered to our Lord, as it is written in the Booke of Moyfes, of oxen also they did in like manner. 13. And they rosted the Phafe vpon fyre, according to that which is written in the law: but the pacifike hostes they boyled in cauldrons, and kettles, and pots, & in hast they distributed it to al the people. 14. And for themselves and for the Priests they prepared afterward: for in oblation of holocaustes and of fatte the Priests were occupied vntil night: wherfore the Leuites prepared for themselves, and for the Priests the children of Aaron last. 15. Moreover the singing men the children of Asaph stood in their order, according to the precept of Dauid, and Asaph, and Heiman, and Idithun the Prophets of the King: and the porters watched at euerie gate, so that they departed not a moment from the ministerie. for the which cause also their brethren the Leuites prepared meates for them. 16. Therefore al the seruice of our Lord was ritely accomplished that day, so that they made the Phafe, and offered holocausts vpon the altar of our Lord, according to the precept of King Iofias. 17. And the children of Israel that were found there, made the Phafe at that time, and the solemnitie of Azymes seuen dayes. 18. There was not a Phafe like to this in Israel, from the daies of Samuel the Prophet: neither did anie of al the Kings of Israel make a Phafe as Iofias, to the Priests, and the Leuites, and to al Iuda, and Israel, that was found, and to the inhabitants of Ierusalem. 19. In the eightieth yeare of the Kingdome of Iofias was this Phafe celebrated. 20. After that Iofias had repayed the temple, came vp Nechao the King of Ægypt to fight in Charcamis beside Euphrates: and Iofias went forth to meet him. 21. But he sending messengers vnto him, sayd: What haue I to doe with thee King of Iuda? I come not agaynst thee this day, but I fight agaynst another house, to the which God hath commanded me to goe in hast. leaue to doe agaynst God, who is with me, lest he kil thee. 22. (b) Iofias would not returne, but prepared battel agaynst him, neither did he agree to the words of Nechao from the mouth of God, but went forward to fight in the fiede of Mageddo. 23. And there being wounded of the Archers, he sayd to his seruants: Carie me out of the battel, because I am sore wounded. 24. Who remoued him from one chariote into an other chariote that folowed him after the manner of Kings, and they caried him away into Ierusalem, & he died, & was buried in the monument of his fathers, and al Iuda & Ierusalem (c) mourned for him. 25. Ieremie mozt of al: whose lamentations al the singing men and singing women repeate vntil this present day vpo Iofias, & it is growen as it were a law in Israel: Behold it is sayd to be written in the lamentations. 26. But the rest of the words

(b) Iofias thought that the King of Ægypt intended to inuade his Kingdome. And it was Gods wil he should be slaine, and not see the euils that should happen to the people.

Ioachaz reigneth three months. 4. His brother Eliakim (named Ioakim) eleuen yeares, 9. his sonne Ioachin three months, 11. his vnckle Sedecias eleuen yeares. 14. Most Priests and people contemning the admonitions of Prophets, 17. manie are slaine by the Chaldees, the temple and Ierusalem spoiled and burnt. 20. The sayd Kings successiuelly and people are caryed captiue into Babylon. 22. After seuentie yeares Cyrus King of Persia, releaseth the captiuitie, and giuesh leaue to reedifie the Temple.

HE people therefore of the land tooke Ioachaz the sonne of Iofias, and made him King for his father in Ierusalem. 2. Three and twentie yeares old was Ioachaz, when he began to reigne, and he reigned three months in Ierusalem. 3. And the King of Ægypt when he came into Ierusalem, depofed him, and condemned the land in an hundred talents of filuer, and a talent of gold. 4. And he made Eliakim (a) his brother King for him, ouer Iuda and Ierusalem: and he turned his name Ioakim: but he tooke Ioachaz himself with him, and caried him away into Ægypt. 5. Fiue and twentie yeares old was Ioakim when he began to reigne, and he reigned eleuen yeares in Ierusalem: and he did euil before our Lord his God. 6. Agaynst him came vp Nabuchodonofor the King of the Chaldees, and brought him bound in chaynes into Babylon. 7. Whither he transported also the vessels of our Lord, and put them in his temple. 8. But the rest of the words of Ioakim, and of his abominations which he wrought, and the things that were found in him, are conteyned in the Booke of the Kings of Iuda and Israel. And Ioachin his sonne reigned for him. 9. Eight yeares old was Ioachin when he began to reigne, and he reigned three months and ten dayes in Ierusalem, and he did euil in the sight of our Lord. 10. And when the compasse of a yeare was come about, Nabuchonofor the King sent some, that brought him into Babylon, the most precious vessels of the house of our Lord being caried away withal: But he made Sedecias his vnckle King ouer Iuda and Ierusalem. 11. One and twentie yeares old was Sedecias when he began to reigne: and he reigned eleuen yeares in Ierusalem. 12. And he did euil in the eyes of our Lord his God, neither did he reuerence the face of Ieremie the Prophet speaking to him from the mouth of our Lord. 13. He reuolted also fro King Nabuchodonofor, who had adiuured him by God: & he hardned his necke & his hart, that he would not returne to our Lord the God of Israel. 14. Yea and al the chiefe of the Priests, and the people transgressed vnlawfully according to al the abominations of the Gentils: and they polluted the house of our Lord, which he had sanctified to him in Ierusalem. 15. And our Lord the God of their fathers sent to them by the hand of his messengers rising by night, and daily admonishing them: for that he spared his people and his habitation. 16. But they mocked the messengers of God, and litle esteemed his words, and scorned the Prophets, vntil the furie of our Lord ascended vpon his people, and there was no amendment. 17. For he brought vpon them the King of the Chaldees, & slew their yong men with the sword in the house of his sanctuarie, he pitied not yong man, and virgin, and old man, no neither him that stouped for age, but he deliuered al into his hands. 18. And al the vessels of the house of our Lord, as wel greater as lesser, and the treasures of the temple, and of the King, and the Princes, he transported into Babylon. 19. The enemies set fyre on the house of God, & destroyed the wal of Ierusalem, al the towres they burnt, and whatsoever was precious, they destroyed. 20. If anie man escaped the sword, being led into Babylon he serued the King and his sonnes, ti^l the King of the Persians reigned. 21. That the word of our Lord by the mouth of Ieremie might be accomplished, and the land might celebrate their Sabbaths: for al the daies of the desolation she kept a Sabbath, til the seuentie yeares were expyred. 22. But in (b) the first yeare of Cyrus King of the Persians, to fulfil the word of our Lord, which he had spoken by the mouth of Ieremie, our Lord rayfed vp the spirit of Cyrus King of the Persians: who commanded to be proclaymed in al his Kingdom, yea by writing, saying: 23. Thus sayth Cyrus King of the Persians: Al kingdomes of the earth hath the Lord the God of heauen giuen me, and he hath commanded me that I should build him a house in Ierusalem, which is in Jewrie: who of you is there in al his people? The Lord his God be with him, and let him goe vp.

This being the onlie ordinarie place for Sacrifice, there were for other vses of daylie prayer, preaching, and hearing the word of God other Synagogues built (as it were Paroch churches) in great number: in Ierusalem: self foure hundred and foure score, and manie more in the whole Kingdom, as the Hebrew Traditions testifie. Honour of other Saints, and their Intercession is proued a Maiori. For so much as honour was religiously exhibited to spiritual power and excellencie, in men yet liuing in this world. So a Noble man adored Elias the Prophet, being farre greater then he in ciuil and worldlie respects. 3. Reg. 18. Elifeus also was adored by his disciples, not for anie worldlie authoritie or eminence, but for his spiritual power and superioritie amongst them. 4. Reg. 2. Likewise al Prophets and Priests were religiously honoured for their holie and spiritual functions. 3. Reg. 13. Much more saints are rightly honoured, being immortal and in eternal glorie. It appeareth also that Elias seuen yeares after that he was translated from humane conuersation (when Elifeus was chiefe Prophet, 4. Reg. 3. which was in or before the eightie. nth yeare of Iosaphat, who reigned siue and twentie, 3. but stil believed and professed in the Church alwaies viable and incontaminate, notwithstanding some boughes and branches became unfruitful, and rotten: others brake off and were separated from this vine. For when Salomon falling to luxurie, multiplying manie wiues and concubines, was by them seduced and brought to spiritual fornication and idolatrie, making altars, and offering sacrifices to Idols, the Priests, Prophets, and people generally persevered in Gods law and service. 3. Reg. 11. After whose death Ieroboam his servant, of the tribe of Ephraim, possessing Ten Tribes (called the Kingdom of Israel) to maintaine his new state, fearing that if the people resorted to Ierusalem for religions sake, they would depart from him, and returne to the right heyres of David and Salomon, made an egregious Schisme, setting vp two golden calves in Bethel and Dan, 3. Reg. 12. made temples, altars, and Priests to serve them, al opposite to Gods ordinance. But not only the other Two Tribes, called the Kingdom of Iuda, but also the greatest part of Israel, especially Priests, Leuites, and deuoutest people, repayed stil to Ierusalem, not yealding to that schisme and idolatrie. 2. Par. 11. Moreouer God raised vp and sent special Prophets to confirme the weak and recal the seduced.

Ieroboams wicked policie.

For Ieroboam had no sooner set vp his new altar in Bethel, and begunne to offer incense vpon it, but a Prophet came out of Iuda in the word of our Lord, and cried against that altar, foretelling that whereas for that present they burne frankincense vpon it, the time should come, when the false Priests should be burned there, confirming by present miracles that which he auerred in words, the Kings hand suddainly withering, and restored againe by the Prophets prayer, and the new altar cleauing in sunder, that the ashes fel out. 3. Reg. 13. Further an other Prophet called Ahias foreshewed the destruction and utter extirpation of Ieroboams familie, for his enormous wickednes, and namely (which is most often inculcate) for making Israel to sinne, by deuising and setting abroch a new religion. 3. Reg. 14. which ruine happened very shortly. For himself reigning twentie two yeares (3. Reg. 14.) one of his sonnes died presently according to the Prophets word. v. 18. An other called Nadab succeeding to his father, reigned only two yeares, and was slaine together with their whole race and kindred, by Baasa of the tribe of Issachar. 3. Reg. 15. Likewise Baasa following the bad steps of Ieroboam was forewarned by Iehu a Prophet, that his house should also be destroyed. And accordingly when he had reigned foure and twentie yeares, his sonne Ela reigning but two yeares, was slaine by his servant Zambri, and al his kindred destroyed. Which Zambri reigned but seven dayes. For being forthwith besieged by Amri, of the tribe of Benjamin, he desperately burned himself together with the Kings palace. Neyther did Amri then possesse the Kingdom with peace. For he being chosen King by the armie only, whereof he was General, another part of the people chose & followed Thebni. Wherof arose ciuil Warre between the Anti-Kings, continuing three yeares: til Thebni died, and so Amri reigned alone, but wickedly as his

To him notwithstanding God sent manie admonitions by sundrie Prophets, and bestowed great benefites vpon him, wherupon he did some notorious penitential workes, but not perseuering in anie good thing, returned to his wickednes. 3. Reg. 22. hauiug reigned twentie two yeares. 3. Reg. 16. His sonne Ochozias reigning but two yeares fel through a window, and died of the hurt. 4. Reg. 1. He also caused seuentie sonnes of Ioram to be slaine, and vtterly destroyed al Achabs house. 4. Reg. 10. For which seruice he was established in the Kingdom, for foure generations, v. 30. So himselfe reigning twentie eight yeares, 3. Reg. 10. after him reigned successuely his sonne Ioachaz seuenteen yeares, his sonne Ioas sixteen yeares, 4. Reg. 13. his sonne Ieroboam one and fourtie yeares. Lastly his sonne Zacharias, whom his seruant Sellum, of an other race, killed when he had reigned but six months, 4. Reg. 15. And after one month Sellum was slaine by Manahen of an other progenie. Who reigned ten yeares. Then his sonne Phaceia reigning two yeares, was slaine by Phacee of an other generation. He reigning twentie yeares, manie of his people were carried captiue into Assiria, and himselfe was slaine by Osee of an other kinred. 4. Reg. 15. Finally the Assirians taking Samaria by three yeares siege, in the ninth yeare of Osee possessed the Kingdom of Israel, and led al the principal persons captiues into Assiria: about two hundred fourtie two yeares after that Ieroboam first reigned ouer the Ten Tribes. Thus there were in al nineteen Kings. Besides Thebni, who onlie reigned in part against an other. Of which the first Ieroboam, and Iehu were aduanced by Gods ordinance, for punishment of others. Amis was chosen by the arme, the rest of the people choosing Thebni. Six invaded by mere force, killing their predecessors. The rest succeeded, by such titles as their fathers had. And though some were better some worse then others, al were wicked, and at last ouerthrowen.

Contrariwise in the Kingdom of Iuda standing after the separation of tenne tribes about foure hundred yeares, though some Kings were wicked, yet some were good, and in them al God preferued Dauids seed, by the line of Salomon, in this direct succession: Roboam, Abias, Asa, Iosaphat, Ioram, Ochozias, Ioas (in whose infancie, his granamother Achalia vsurped the Kingdom six yeares) Amalias, Ozias, Ioathan, Achaz, Ezechias, Manasses, Amon, Iosias, Ioachaz (hitherto the sunne euer succeeding his father) then Ioakim (brother of Ioachaz) Ioachim otherwise called Iechonias, sonne of Ioachaz. And finally his Vnkle Sedecias, who was carried captiue into Babylon. But Iechonias by Gods special prouidence, was fauoured & exalted by a new King of Babylon, whither he was led captiue before. In whose line Davids offspring continued though not with title of Kings, yet in eminent state, and estimation. As respects to be noted in the sixth age of the world.

The progenie also of Aaron continued in their office and function of Priesthood, with succession of High Priests, as before from Aaron to Sadoc, partly in the line of Eleazar, partly of Ithamar, both Aarons sonnes, so from Sadoc, by the like succession of both families. For of Eleazar is recorded this Genealogie 1. Parol. 6. Sadoc, Achimaas, Azarias, Iohanan, Azarias, Amarias, Achitob, Sadoc, Sellum, Helcias, Azarias, Zariaas, and Iosedech, who was High Priest in the captiuitie (1. 15.) being caried into Babylon in the first transmigration with King Iechonias, before the general captiuitie of al, as it seemeth 4. Reg. 24. his father Zariaas yet lining, who was slaine nine yeeres after by Nabuchodonosor, 4. Reg. 25. And amongst these there were some High Priests of Ithamars line. To wisse, Ioram, Ioiada, (4. Reg. 11. 2. Par. 23.) Ioathan, Vrias, (4. Reg. 16.) and some others, or els some of the aboue mentioned, had other names, recited by Iosephus lib. 10. cap. 11. Antiq. and Nicephorus lib. 2. cap. 4. Hist. Eccles.

Moreover besides this ordinarie succession of Priests, there was an extraordinary mission of Prophets: to supply more fullie the office of preaching the truth, and admonishing offenders. And these God inspired and sent, most especially when and where errours sprong, and sinnes most abounded: giuing them extraordinary grace and most excellent vertues, to counterpoise the enormities of wicked men. Such were in the times of Achab and Iezabel, in the Kingdome of Israel, besides manie others, th. two famous great Prophets Elias, & Eliseus. whose admirable liues and holie conuersation were a mirror to the world, and great terrour to the wicked, whose workes and miracles miraculously confirmed the wel disposed, encouraged the weak, conuerted manie transgressors, confounded false prophets, iustified their owne preaching, and much glorified God. Elias 1. shutte the heauen, that it rayned not in three yeeres. 2. was fedde by rauen. 3. Multiplied a poore widowes meale and oile. 4. Raised her dead sonne to life (3. Reg. 17.) 5. Brought fire from heauen, to burne his sacrifice: thereby confounding foure hundred and fiftie false prophets of Baal. 6. By prayer procured rayne. (3. Reg. 18.) 7. Fasted without eating or drinking fourtie daies and nights together. (3. Reg. 19.) 8. Procured fire from heauen, which deuoured two insolent captaines, and their hundred men (4. Reg. 1.) 9. Diuided the riuer of Iordan with his cloke, that himselfe and Eliseus passed ouer the drie shanel. 10. Was assumed in a fire chariot into some place, where he yet liueth. And parting away obtained of God the like double spirit (of prophetic and miracles) to Eliseus. In like manner Eliseus 1. diuided Iordan againe by Elias cloke, and so returned to his disciples. 2. Amended the bitternes of certaine waters, by casting in salte. 3. Boies being cursed by him, for deriding him, were forth with torne by beares (4. Reg. 2.) 4. He procured water without rayne for three Kings in the campe (4. Reg. 3.) 5. Multiplied a poore widowes oile. 6. By his prayers a barren woman became fruteful. 7. He raised her sonne from death. 8. Made the bitter broth of his disciples sweet. 9. Fed le manie with few loaves (4. Reg. 4.) 10. Cured Naaman of leprosie. 11. Strucke Giezi with the same (4. Reg. 5.) 12. Made yron to swimme. 13. Knew the secret counsels of the syrian King. 14. Made one see horse-men, and fire chariots, which to others were inuisible. 15. Made the Syrians blinde, that were sent to apprehend him, and so leade them into Samaria. 16. Foresheved v unexpected plentie of corne the next day, with the death of a great man, that would not belieue it (4. Reg. 7.) 17. And after his death another mans dead bodie touching his bones was reuiued. 4. Reg. 13.

Religion not wholly destroyed in the Kingdom of Israel.

Other Prophets wrought also miracles, but these for example may suffice to shewe, that God preferued religion also in the Kingdome of Israel. Which himselfe further testified, euen in most desolate times, when Elias lamented that he was left alone (3. Reg. 19.) For God answered, that seuen thousand (meaning thereby a great multitude) had not bowed their knees to Baal, nor so much as in outward shewe conformed themselues to infidelitie or idolatrie. Iehu in his time destroyed al the worhippers of Baal (4. Reg. 10.) But none at anie time could wholly destroy true Israelites. For God would not suffer it. 4. Reg. 14. v. 27.

Heresies in the Kingdom of Israel.

Yea notwithstanding diuers notorious heresies were preached, & folowed in that Kingdome of the Ten tribes, yet al did not fall, nor embrace them: Ieroboam not onlie made and set vp golden calves, but also taught that they were Gods, saying: Behold thy Gods, O Israel, which brought thee out of the land of Ægypt. 3. Reg. 12. making temples, altars, and imaginarie Priests, which were not of the children of Leui. Also a feast the fiftenth day of the month, after the similitude of the solemainie, that was celebrated in Iuda. At which the holie scripture saith: He forged of his owne hart. That very propertie of Arch-heretickes. But the true Priests, Leuites, & manie others, that had giuen their hart to seek our Lord, went into Ierusalem, to immolate their victimes before our Lord the God of their fathers. 2. Par. 11. Yea Naaman a stranger of Syria, and a Neophite in religion, taught by his example, that none may yeald conformitie, nor otherwise communicate with Infidels, then Gods Priests or Prophets approue for lawfull. 4. Reg. 5.

Ieroboamites.

Manie constant in true religion.

Iezabelites.

Vnto this heresie of Ieroboam, Achab by Iezabels persuasion added the worshipping of Baal as God, 3. Reg. 16. making both temple and altar to him in Samaria. Ieroboams Priests seruing fitly this purpose. Though al the former heretikes no more agreed to this new heresie, then Lutherans now admitt of Calvinisme. For Iehu a Ieroboamite destroyed al Iezabelites that he could by a stratageme gette together. 4. Reg. 10. v. 28. 29. Much lesse aid al Israel serue Baal.

Samaritanites, diuided into manie Sectes.

Again, after that Salmanaxar King of Assyria had taken Samaria, and placed there a new people, 4. Reg. 17. they learning the rites of the Israelites religion, mixed their Paganisme therewith, and made a new heresie, or rather manie new heresies. For being diuers nations they had in seuerall conuenticles their particular Gods, and so manie diuers Sects. The Babylonians, Cutheites, Emathites, Heueites, and Sapharuaimites. 4. Reg. 17. But as the Priests, which taught them rites of true religion, allowed not of this mixture, so doubtles some people harkened to their admonitions, and kept religion simply and sincerely. And at this very time of the Ten tribes captiuitie, holic Tobias who was carried captiue with the rest, neither before nor after the captiuitie, left the law of God. But went to Ierusalem (when others serued Ieroboams golden calves) to the Temple of our Lord, and there adored the Lord God of Israel. And in captiuitie bestowed himselfe in workes of mercie towards the liuing and dead of his nation. Tob. 1.

As for the Kingdom of Iuda, it was more free from heresies. For very few or none of those Kings that fel to other grosse enormities, yea to manifest idolatrie, became heresikes, as is probably collected by that Isaias the Prophet being sent to Achaz, admonished him, conuersed and dealt with him, as with one that believed wholly and solidly true religion: assuring him that God would protect Ierusalem, bidding him not to feare the two smoking firebrands, in the wrath of Rasin King of Syria, and of Phacee King of Israel. Isa. 7. Further bidding him aske a signe of God, he answered, though forwardly, yet not as an infidel: I wil not aske: and I wil not tempt our Lord. Yea though Vrias the High Priest by commandment of the same King (4. Reg. 16.) made a new altar in place of Gods Altar, yet he erred not in faith, nor in doctrine, as teaching in Moyse chayre, but in fact onely, and of frailtie for feare of the King, as the King offended in his external act, to flatter the King of Syria. And in this case God sent Isaias to admonish the King, which Vrias neglected, or durst not doe. Likewise Ioram (4. Reg. 8. 2. Par. 21.) Ochozias (2. Par. 22.) Ioas in the latter part of his life, 2. Par. 24. Manasses in the former part of his reigne (4. Reg. 2. 2. Par. 33.) and some other Kings of Iuda committing idolatrie, and making others to fall with them, either were not wholie peruerted, or at least drew not al with them. For not onlie Prophets, in whose hand (or ministrerie) God spake, and reprobued these sinnes, but manie others kept their Zele of true religion. as appeared in their promptnes to serue God, when by good Kings Asa, Iosaphat, Ezechias, Iosias, and others, they were exhorted, or admitted so to doe. 4. Reg. 18. 23. 2. Par. 15. 17. 29. 30, 31. 33. 34. &c.

Finally, wheras diuers good Princes disposed, things belonging to Diuine seruice in the temple, correcting faults, and punishing offenders in that behalfe (3. Reg 15. 4. Reg. 18. 23.) they did the same without preiudice of the High Priests supremacie in spiritual causes, and their gouerne adtes make nothing for the English Paradox of Layheadship. For superiour authoritie and ordinarie power is not proued by factes good or euil, but rather by Gods ordinance and institution. For as the factes of vsurpers make no lawful prescription, so neither the factes of good men, doe change Gods general ordinance and law: But are done either by waie of execution, or sometimes by dispensation. Often also by commission and special inspiration of God. As King Dauid by dispensation did eate the holie bread, which was ordained for Priests onlie. 1. Reg. 21. He disposed of Priests and Leuites offices about the Arke of God. Par. 15. 19. by way of execution according to the law. And of the like offices in the Temple (when it should be built) 1. Par. 23. 24. 25. 26. by diuine inspiration. And Salomon by commission from God deposed Abiathar the High Priest from his office, and put Sadoc in his place. 3. Reg. 2. Wherefore albeir good Kings did excellently wel in calling together the Priests, and disposing them in their offices, for execution of Gods seruice, yea in commanding what they should doe 4. Reg. 18. 19. 22. and in punishing Priests (4. Reg. 23.) yet they did such things as Gods Commissioners, not as ordinarie Superiours in spiritual causes, and stil the ordinarie subordination made by the law, Deut. 17. Num. 27. stood firme and inuioleable, the High Priest supreme Iudge of al doubts in faith, causes, and quarrels in religion, when other subordinate inferiour Iudges varied in their iudgements. Of which offices Malachias the Propheet (c. 2.) admoniseth Priests in his time, that wher as they were negligent, not performing their dutie, their sinne was the greater, for that their authoritie stil remained, and the perpetual Rule of the law, that the lips of the Priest shal keep knowledge, and they (other men generatly) shal require the law of his mouth, because he is the Angel of the Lord of hosts. And al Princes & others were to receiue the law at the Priests hand of the Leuitical Tribe. This was the warrant of stabilitie in truth of the Synagogue in the old Testament. Much more the Church and Spouse of Christ, whose excellencie and singular priuiledges Salomon describeth in his canticle of canticles, hath such warrant. Of this Spouse al the Prophets write, & that more plainly then of Christ himselfe, foreseeing more aduersaries bending their forces against her, as S. Augustine obserueth, then against Christ her dead. And the same holie father in manie places teacheth, that she neither perisheth nor loseth her beautie for the mixture of euil members, in respect of whom she is blacke, but fayre in respect of the good, Cantic. 1. Norwithstanding therefore sinners remaining within the Church, schismatikes and heretikes breaking from the Church, stil she remaineth the pillar and firmament of truth, the virgin daughter of Sion.

THE ARGUMENT OF THE BOOKS OF ESDRAS.

7.

ESDRAS a holie Priest and Scribe, of the stocke of AARON, by the line of Eleazar, writeth the historie of Gods people, in and presently after their captiuitie in Babylon: which Nehemias an other godlie Priest prosecuteth, whose Book is also call'd the second of Esdras, because in the Hebrew and Greek they are but one Book, relating the acts of them both. The other two books called the third and fourth of Esdras, touching the same matter, are not in the Hebrew, nor receiued into the Canon of holie Scripture, though the Greeke Church hold the third Book as Canonical, and placeth it first, because it conteyneth things done before the other.

Panin.

In the two here following, which are vnaubtealy holie Scripture, S. Ierom sayth, that Esdras and Nehemias (to witte the Helper, & Comforter from God) restored the Temple, and built the wals of the citie; adding that al the troope of the people returning into their countrie, also the description of Priests, Leuites, Israelites, Profelites, and the works of wals and towres diuided by feveral families, aliud in cortice praeserunt, aliud in medulla retinent, shew one thing in the barke, keepe an other thing in the marrow: signifying that this historie hath both a literal, and a mystical sense. According to the letter, this first Book sheweth the reduction of Gods people from Babylon; in the first six chapters. in the other foure, their instruction by Esdras after their returne.

The two Books of Esdras and Nehemias are but one in the Hebrew.

The third and fourth are not canonical.

This historie hath also a spiritual sense.

Cyrus King of Persia moued by diuine inspiration, releaseth Gods people from captiuitie, with license to returne and build the Temple in Ierusalem: 7. restoring the holie vessels, which Nabuchodonosor had taken from thence.

IN the first yeare of Cyrus King of the Per-mouth of Ieremie might be accomplished, our Lord rayfed vp the spirit of Cyrus King of the Persians: & he made proclamation in al his Kingdome, yea by wryting, saying: 2.

 Thus sayth Cyrus King of the Persians: Al
 the Kingdomes of the earth hath the Lord the God of heauen giuen me, and he hath commanded me that I should build him a house in Ierusalem, which is in Iewrie. 3. Who is there among you of al his people? His God be with him. Let him goe vp into Ierusalem, which is in Iewrie, and build the house of the Lord the God of Israel, he is the God that is in Ierusalem. 4. And let al the rest in al places whersoever they dwel, let euery man of his place help him, with siluer and gold, and substance, and cattel, besides that which they offer voluntarily to the temple of God, which is in Ierusalem. 5. And there rose vp the Princes of the fathers of Iuda and Benjamin, and the Priests, and Leuites, and euerie one, whose spirit God rayfed vp, to goe vp to build the temple of our Lord, which was in Ierusalem. 6. And al that were round about,

An Altar is built for sacrifice: 4. The feast of Tabernacles solemnly celebrated. 8. And in the second yeare (after their returne) the Temple is founded with great ioy of the people, and mourning of some.

AND now the seuenth month was come, and the children of Israel were in their cities: the people therefore was gathered together as it were one man into Ierusalem. 2. And Iosue the sonne of Iosedec rose vp, and his brethren the Priests, and Zorobabel the sonne of Salathiel, and his brethren, and they built the altar of the God of Israel, that they might offer on it holocausts, as it is written in the law of Moyfes the man of God. 3. And they placed the altar of God vpon his feet, the people of the lands round about putting them (a) in feare, and they offered vpon it holocaust to our Lord morning and euening. 4. And they made the solemnitie of tabernacles, as it is written, and holocaust euery day by order according to the precept, the worke of the day in his day. 5. And after these things the continual holocaust, as wel in the Calendes, as in al the solemnities of our Lord, that were consecrated, and in al wherein there was offered voluntarily a giuft to our Lord. 6. Frō the first day of the seuenth month they began to offer holocaust to our Lord: moreouer the temple of God was not yet founded. 7. And they gaue money to hewers of stoncs and to maions: meate also and drinke, and oyle to the Sidonians & Tyrians, that they should bring ceder trees from Libanus to the sea vnto Ioppe, according to that which Cyrus the King of the Persians had commanded them. 8. And in the second yeare of their comming to the temple of God in Ierusalem, the second month, began Zorobabel the soune of Salathiel, and Iosue the sonne of Iosedec, and the rest of their brethren the Priests, and the Leuites, and al that were come from the captiuitie into Ierusalem, & they appoynted Leuites from twentie yeares and vppward, that they should hasten forward the worke of our Lord. 9. And Iosue stood and his sonnes, and his brethren, Cedmihel, and his sonnes, and the children of Iuda, as it were one man, that they might be instant vpon them, that did the worke in the temple of God: the sonnes of Henadad, and their sonnes, & their brethren Leuites. 10. The temple therefore of our Lord being founded by the masons, the Priests stood in their attyre with trumpets: and the Leuites the children of Asaph in cymbals, to prayse God (b) by the hands of Dauid the King of Israel. 11. And they sang together in hymnes, and confession to our Lord: Because he is good, because his mercie is for euer vpon Israel. Al the people also made a shout with a loud erie in praying our Lord, because the temple of our Lord was founded. 12. Verie manie also of the Priests and the Leuites, and the Princes of the fathers, and the ancients, that had seen the former temple, when they saw this temple founded, (c) they wept with a loud voyce: and manie shouting in ioy, lifted vp their voyce. 13. Neither could anie man discern the voice of the erie of them that reioyced, and the voice of the weeping of the people: for one with another the people shouted with a loud erie, and the voice was heard far off.

The schismatical Samaritans, because they are not admitted to communicate with the Iewes, endeauour to hinder the building of the Temple. 5. Which neuertheless proceedeth at the dayes of King Cyrus: 7. but is hindered by Artaxerxes, til the second yeare of Darius.

(a) Schismatices and Heretikes may not be admitted to communicate in sacrifice with Catholikes.

BV the enemies of Iuda and Benjamin heard that the children of the captiuitie built a temple to our Lord the God of Israel. 2. And comming to Zorobabel, & the Princes of the fathers, they sayd to them: Let vs build with you, because (a) euen as you, so doe we seek your God: Behold we haue immolated victi-nes from the dayes of Asor Haddan the King of Assur, which brought vs hither. 3. And Zorobabel sayd to them, and Iosue, and the rest of the Princes of the fathers of Israel: It is not for you and vs to build a house to our God, but but we our selues alone wil build to the Lord our God, as Cyrus the King of the Persians hath cōmanded vs. 4. It came to passe therefore that the people of the land hindred the hands of the people of Iuda, & troubled them in building. 5. And they hyred counsellers agaynst them, to destroy theyr counsel al the dayes of Cyrus the King of the Persians, and vntil the reigne of Darius the King of the Persians. 6. And in the reigne of Assuerus, in the begining of his reigne, they wrote an accusation against the inhabitants of Iuda and Ierusalem. 7. And in the dayes of Artaxerxes, Beselam, Mithridates, & Thabeel, and the rest that were in theyr counsel writ to Artaxerxes King of the Persians: and the epistle of the accusation was written in Syriake, and was read in the Sirian language. 8. Reum Beelteem, and Samfai scribe wrote one epistle from Ierusalem to Artaxerxes the King, of this tenure: 9. Reum Beelteem, and Samfai scribe, and the rest of their counsellers, the Dineites, and the Apharsathaceites, the Terphaieites, the Apharsaites, the Erhueites, the Babylonians, the Sufanecneites, the Dieuities, and the Aelamites, 10. and the rest of the Gentiis, which Asenaphar the great and glorious transported: and made them dwell in the cities of Samaria, and in the rest of the countries beyond the Riuer in peace (11. this is the copie of the epistle, which they sent to him:) To Artaxerxes the King, thy seruants, the men that are beyond the Riuer, send greeting. 12. Be it knowen to the King, that the Iewes, which came vp from thee to vs, are come into Ierusalem, a rebellious & naughtie citie, which they build, making the rāpires thereof, & repayring the wals. 13. Now therefore be it knowen to the King, that if that citie shal be built, & the wals therof repayred, they wil not giue tribute, and tole, and yearly rents, and this damage wil come cuen to the Kings. 14. But we mindful of the salt that we haue eaten in the palace, and because we count it heynous to see the Kings harmes, therefore we haue sent and certified the King, 15. that thou recount in the Books of the histories of thy fathers, and thou shalt finde written in the commentaries, and shalt know that that citie is a rebellious citie, and hurtful to the Kings, and prouinces, and battels are rayfed in it of old time: for the which cause also the citie it-selfe was destroyed. 16. We certifie the King, that if that citie shal be built, and the wals therof repayred, thou shalt haue no possession beyond the Riuer. 17. The King sent word to Reum Beelteem, and Samfai scribe, and to the rest that were in their counsel inhabitants of Samaria, and to the rest beyond the Riuer, sending greeting and peace. 18. The accusation, which you haue sent to vs, was openly read before me. 19. and I gaue commandment: and they recounted, and haue found, that that citie of old time rebelleth agaynst the Kings, & seditiōs and battels are rayfed in it. 20. For there haue been also most vaiiant, Kings in Ierusalem, which also had dominiō ouer al the countrie that is beyond the Riuer. They tooke also tribute, & tole, and rentes. 21. Now therefore heare the sentēce: Prohibite ye those men, that that citie be not built,

built, til it perhaps shal be commanded by me. 22. See that you doe not negligently accomplish this thing, and by litle there grow cuil against the Kings. 23. Therefore the copie of the edict of Artaxerxes the King was read before Reum Beelteem, and Samsai the scribe, and their counsellers: and they went in hast into Ierusalem to the Iewes, and prohibited them with arme and strength. 24. Then was the worke of the house of our Lord in Ierusalem intermitted, and was not done vntil the second yeare of the reigne of Darius the King of the Persians.

C H A P. V.

By the exhortation of Aggaus, and Zacharias, the people proceede in building the Temple. 3. Which their enemies struing to binder, for decision of the cause, both parties write to King Darius.

AND there prophesied Aggaus the Prophete, and Zacharias the sonne of Addo, prophesying to the Iewes, that were in Iewrie and Ierusalem, in the name of the God of Israel. 2. Then rose vp Zorobabel the sonne of Salathiel, and Iosue the sonne of Iosedec, and began to build the temple of God in Ierusalem, and with them the Prophets of God helping them. 3. But at the same time there came to them. Thathanai, who was Prince beyond the Riuer, and Stharbuzanai, and their counsellers: and sayd thus to them: Who hath giuen you counsel to build this house, and to repayre the wals? 4. Wherto we answered them, what the names were of the men that were authours of that building. 5. And (a) the eye of theyr God was set vpon the ancients of the Iewes, and they could not inhabite them. And it pleased them that the matter should be referred to Darius, and then they would satisfie agaynst that accusation. 6. The copie of the epistle, which Thathanai Prince of the countrie beyond the Riuer sent, and Stharbuzanai, and his counsellers the Arphasacheites, which were beyond the Riuer, to Darius the King. 7. The word, which they sent him, was written thus: To Darius the King al peace. 8. Be it known to the King, that we went to Iurie, the prouince, to the house of the great God, which is in building with stone vnpolished, and timber is put in the wals: and that worke is in building diligently, and groweth in their hands. 9. We therefore demanded of those ancients, and thus we sayd to them: Who hath giuen you authoritie to build this house, and to repaire these wals? 10. Yea and their names we asked of them, that we might certifie thee: and we write the names of those men, that are the chiefe amongst them. 11. And they answered vs these words, saying: We are the seruants of the God of heauen and earth, and we doe build a temple, that was built these manie yeares before, and which a great King of Israel built and set vp. 12. But after that our fathers prouoked the God of heauen to wrath, he deliuered them into the hands of Nabuchodonosor the King of Babylon the Chaldee: this house also he destroyed, and his people he transported into Babylon. 13. But in the first yeare of Cyrus the King of Babylon, Cyrus the King put forth an edict, that this house of God should be built. 14. For the vessels also of the temple of God, of gold and of siluer, which Nabuchodonosor had taken out of the temple that was in Ierusalem, and had caried them into the temple of Babylon, Cyrus the King brought forth out of the temple of Babylon, and they were giuen to Saffabasar so called, whom also he appointed the chiefe, 15. and sayd to him: Take these vessels, and goe, and put them in the temple, that is in Ierusalem, and let the house of God be built in his place. 16. Then therefore came this Saffabasar, and layd the foundations of the temple of God in Ierusalem; & from that time vntil now it is in building, & is not yet finished. 17. Now therefore if it seem good to the King, let him search in the Kings librarie; which is in Babylon, whether it hath been commanded by Cyrus the King, that the house of God in Ierusalem should be built, and let him send the Kings pleasure concerning this thing vnto vs.

 C H A P. V I.

Darius finding in the register, that Cyrus gaue licence to build the Temple, commandeth that none hinder it: & giueth also money towards the charges, and holts for sacrifice.

WHEN Darius the King commanded, and they searched in the librarie of the Books, that were layd vp in Babylon, 2. and there was found in Ecbatanis, which is a castle in the prouince Medena, one volume, & there was such a cōmentarie writen therein; 3. In the first yeare of Cyrus the King, Cyrus the King decreed, that the house of God should be built, which is in Ierusalem, in the place where they immolate holts, & that they lay the foundatiōs supporting the height of threescore cubits, & the bredth of threescore cubits, 4. three rewes of stones vnpolished, and so rewes of new timber: and the colts shal be giuen out of the Kings house. 5. Yea and the vessels of the temple of God, of gold and of siluer, which Nabuchodonosor had taken out of the Temple of Ierusalem, and had brought them into Babylon, let them be restored, and brought backe into the temple of Ierusalem vnto their place, which also were put in the temple of God. 6. Now therefore Thathanai Prince of the countrie, that is beyond the Riuer, Stharubazanai, and your counsellers the Apharsacheites, which are beyond the Riuer, depart farre from them, 7. and suffer that temple of God to be made of the Duke of the Iewes, and of their ancients, that they may build that house of God in his place. 8. Also there is commandment giuen from me what must be done of those ancients of the Iewes, that the house of God may be built, to wit, that of the Kings coffers, that is, of the tributes that are giuen out of the countrie beyond the Riuer, the charges be diligently giuen to those men, lest the worke be hindred. 9. And if it shal be necessarie, calues also, and lambs, and kids, for holocaust to the God of heauen, wheat, salt, wyne, and oyle, according to the rite of the Priests that are in Ierusalem, let there be giuen them day by day, that there be no complaynte in any thing. 10. And let them offer oblations to the God of heauen, and pray for the life of the King, and of his children. 11. By me therefore there is a decree made: That euerie man, which shal alter this commandment, there be a beame taken of his house, and set vp, and he be fast hanged vpon it, and his house be confiscate. 12. And the God, that hath made his name to dwel there, destroy al Kingdoms, and the people that shal extend theyr hand to resist, and to destroy the house of God, that is in Ierusalem. I Darius haue made the decree, which I wil to be diligently accomplished. 13. Therefore Thathanaï the Prince of the countrie beyond the Riuer, and Scharbuzani, and his counsellers, according to that which Darius the King had commanded, so did execute it diligently. 14. And the ancients of the Iewes built, and prospered according to the prophecie of Aggeus the Prophet, and of Zacharias the sonne of Addo: and they built & set vp, the God of Israel commanding, and (4) Cyrus commanding, and Darius, and Artaxerxes the Kings of the Persians. 15. And they were finishing this house of God, vntil the third day of the month of Adar, which is the sixth yeare of Darius the King. 16. And the children of Israel, the Priests and the Leuites, and the rest of the transmigration, made the dedication of the house of God in ioy. 17. And they offered in the dedication of the house of God, calues an hundred, rammes two hundred, lambs foure hundred, buck-goats for the siene of al Israel twelue, according to the number of the tribes of Israel. 18. And they set the Priests in their orders, and the Leuites in their courses ouer the works of God in Ierusalem, as it is written in the Book of Moyse. 19. And the childrē of Israel of the trāsmigration made the Phase, the fourtiath day of the first month. 20. For al the Priests and the Leuites were purified as it were one man: al cleane to immolate the Phase for al the children of the transmigration, and for their brethren the Priests, and themselues. 21. And the children of Israel that were returned from the transmigration, did eate, and al that had separated themselues from the coinquination of the Gentils of the earth vnto them to seek our Lord the God of Israel. 22. And they made the solemnitie of Azymes seuen dayes in ioy, because our Lord hade made them ioyful, and had turned the hart of the King of Assur to them,

And they came into Ierusalem the fifth month, that is the seuenth yeare of the King. 9. For in the first day of the first month he began to goe vp from Babylon, and in the first day of the fifth month he came into Ierusalem, according to the good hand of his God vpon him. 10. For Esdras prepared his hart to search the law of our Lord, & to doe and to teach in Israel precept & iudgement. 11. And this is the copie of the epistle of the edict, which King Artaxerxes gaue to Esdras the Priest, the learned scribe, in the words and precepts of our Lord, & his ceremonies in Israel. 12. Of the children of Azgad, Ioanan the sonne of Eccetan, and with him an hundred and ten men. 13. Of the children of Adonicam, which were the last: and these are theyr names: Elipheleth, and Iehiel, and Samaias, and with the sixtie men. 14. Of the children of Begui, Vthai and Zachur, and with them seuentie men. 15. And I gathered them to the riuer, which runneth downe to Ahaua, and we taried there three daies: and I sought among the people and among the Priests for the children of Leui, and found none there. 16. Therefore I sent Eliezer, and Ariel, and Semeias, and Elnathan, & Iarib, and another Elnathan, and Nathan, and Zacharias, and Mofollam Princes: and Ioarib, and Einathan, wise men. 17. And I sent them to Eddo, which is chiefe in the place of Chasphia, and I did put in theyr mouth the words that they should speake to Eddo, and his brethren the Nathineites in the place of Chasphia, that they should bring vs ministers of the house of our God. 18. And they brought vs by the good hand of our God vpon vs a most learned man of the children of Mocholi the sonne of Leui the sonne of Israel, and Sarabias and his sonnes, and his brethren eighteen, 19. and Hafabias, and with him Isaias of the children of Merari, and his brethren, and his sonnes twentie. 20. And al the Nathineites, which Dauid gaue, and the Princes for the ministeries of the Leuites, Nathineites two hundred twentie: al these were called by their names. 21. And I proclaymed there (b) a fast beside the Riuer of Ahaua, that we might be afflicted before the Lord our God, and might desire of him a right way for vs and our children, and al our substance. 22. For I was ashamed to aske the King ayde and horsemen, that might defend vs from the enimie in the way: because we had sayd to the King: The hand of our God is vpon al them, that seeke him in goodnesse: and his empire and strength, and furie vpon al them that forsake him. 23. And we fasted, and besought our God hereby: and it fel out prosperously vnto vs. 24. And I separated twelue of the chief Priests, Sarabias, and Hasabias, and with them ten of theyr brethren. 25. And I weyed vnto them the siluer and gold, and the consecrated vessels of the house of our God, which the King had offered and his counsellers, and his Princes, and al Israel of them that were found: 26. and I weyed in theyr hands of siluer six hundred fiftie talents, and vessels of siluer an hundred, of gold an hundred talents: 27. and cups of gold twentie, which had a thousand solides, and two vessels of the best shyning brasse, fayre as gold. 28. And I sayd to them: You are the holie of our Lord, and the vessels are holie, and the siluer and gold, that is voluntarily offered to our Lord the God of our fathers: 29. Watch & keep it, vntil you deliuer it by weight before the Princes of the Priests, and of the Leuites, & the Princes of the families of Israel in Ierusalem, into the treasure of the house of our Lord. 30. And the Priests and the Leuites receiued the weight of the siluer and gold, and of the vessels, to carie it to Ierusalem into the house of our God. 31. We therefore did sette forward from the riuer of Ahaua the twelfth day of the first month to goe on to Ierusalem: and the hand of our God was vpon vs, & deliuered vs from the hand of the enimie, and the lye in wayte by the way. 32. And we came to Ierusalem, and we taried there three dayes. 33. And in the fourth day the siluer was weyed, and the gold, and the vessels in the house of our God by the had of Meremoth the sonne of Vrias the Priest, and with him Eleazar the sonne of Phinees, and with them Iozabed the sonne of Iosue, and Noadaia the sonne of Bemai Leuites, 34. according to the number and weight of al: and al the weight was described at that tyme. 35. Yea & the childre of the transmigration that were come from the captiuitie, offered holocausts to the God of Israel, calues twelue for al the people of Israel, rammes nyntie six, lambs seuentie seuen, buck-goats for sinne twelue: al for holocaust to our Lord. 36. And they gaue the Kings edicts to the Princes, that were ouerseers for the King, and the dukes beyond the Riuer, and they advanced the people and the house of God.

(4) This great number which by Esdras persuasion came from Babylon, signified the great fruit of soules conuerted from sinne by the exhortation of holy preachers. S. Beda li. 2. in Esdr. c. 10.

(b) It sufficeth not to part from Babylon (that is, from sinne) but we must also doe workes of satisfaction, and therefore Esdras here proclaimed an extraordinary fast to those that were come from captiuitie.

C H A P. I X

For marriages and other association which the Iewes had with Gentiles, Esdras lamenteth, 5. and confessing the peoples iniquitie, prayeth God to conserue them from vicer destruction.

AND after these things were accomplished, the Princes came to me, saying: The people of Israel, and the Priests and Leuites ^(a) are not separated from the people of the lands, and from the abominations of them, to wit, of the Chananeite, and Hetheite, and Pherezeite, and Iebuseite, and of the Ammonites, and Moabites, and the Ægyptians, and Amorrheites. 2. For they haue taken of their daughters to them and to their sonnes, and haue mingled the holie seede with the people of the lands. The hand also of the Princes and magistrates hath been first in this transgression. 3. And when I had heard this word, I rent my cloke and my coate, and plucked off the haire of my head and beard, and sate mourning. 4. And there assembled to me al that feared the God of Israel, for the transgression of them that were come from the captiuitie, and I sate sorowful, vntil the euening sacrifice. 5. And at the euening sacrifice I rose out of my affliction, and my cloke and coate being rent I fel vpon my knees, and spred forth my hands to our Lord my God, 6. and said: My God I am confounded and ashamed to lifte vp my face to thee: because our iniquities are multiplied ouer our head, and our sinnes haue growen euen vnto heauen, 7. from the dayes of our fathers: yea and we our selues also haue sinned grieuouly vnto this day, and in our iniquities haue we been deliuered, our selues, and our Kings, and our Priests, into the hand of the Kings of the lands, and into the sword, and into captiuitie, and into spoyle, and into confusion of countenance, as also at this day. 8. And now as it were a litle, and for a momēt was our prayer made before the Lord our God, that a remnant might be left vs, and ^(a) a nayle might be giuen vs in his holie place, and that our God would illuminate our eies, and would giue vs a litle life in our bondage. 9. Because we are bondmen, and in our bondage our God did not forsake vs, but he inclined mercie vpon vs before the King of the Persians, to giue vs life, & to aduance the house of our God, & to build the desolatiō thereof, & to giue vs a hedge in Iuda & Ierusalem. 10. And now what shal we say, o our God, after these things: because we haue forsaken thy commandments, 11. which thou hast commanded in the hand of thy seruants the Prophets, saying: The lād, to the which you enter to possesse it, is an vnclane land, according to the vnclannesse of peoples, and of other lands, by the abominations of them that haue filled it from mouth vnto mouth in their coinquination. 12. Now therefore giue not your daughters to their sonnes, and their daughters take not for your sonnes, and doe ye not seeke their peace, and their prosperity for euer: that you may be strengthened, and may eate the goods that are of the land, and may haue your children heyres for euer. 13. And after al things that come vpon vs in our most wicked works, and our most great sinne, because thou our God hast deliuered vs from our iniquitie, and hast giuen vs health as it is at this day, 14. that we shal not turne away, & make frustrate thy commandements, neither should ioyne matrimonies with the peoples of these abominations. Why, art thou angrie with vs vnto vtter destruction, not to leaue vs a remnant vnto saluation? 15. Lord God of Israel thou art iust: because we are left, which should be saued as at this day. Behold we are before thee in our sinne, for there can be no standing before thee vpon this.

C H A P. X.

Esdra calling the people together commandeth them to dismise the strange women, which they haue married: 14. appointing officers to see it executed. 18. and recureth those which had married such women.

ES DRAS therefore thus praying, and beseeching, and weeping, and lying before the temple of God, there was gathered to him of Israel an exceeding great companie of men and women and children, and the people wept with much lamentation. 2. And Sechenias the sonne of Iehiel of the children of Aelam answered, and said to Esdras: We haue transgressed against our God, and haue taken to wines strange women of the peoples of the land: and now if there be penance in Israel vpon this, 3. let vs make a couenant with the Lord our God, to put away al the wiues, and them that are borne of them, according to the wil of our Lord, and of them that feare the precept of the Lord our God: be it done according to the law. 4. Arise, it is thy part to discerne, and we wil be with thee: take courage, and doe it. 5. Esdras therefore rose vp, and adiured the Princes of the Priests and of the Leuites, & al Israel, that they should doe according to this word, and they sware. 6. And Esdras rose vp before the house of God, & went to the chamber of (a) Iohanah the sonne of Eliasib, and entred into it: he did eate no bread & dranke no water: for he mourned for the transgression of them that were come out of the captiuitie. 7. And there was a proclamation sent in Iuda and Ierusalem to al the children of the transmigration, that they should assemble together into Ierusalem.

Esdras being extraordinarily sent by God to correct the people, repayeth to the high Priests sonne, by his authoritie calleth the people together, & so proceedeth to make reformation. So S. Paul conferred with other Apostles. Gal. 2.

8. And euerie one that shal not come within three dayes, according to the counsel of the Princes & ancients, al his subitance shal be taken away and himselfe shal be cast out of the companie of the transmigration. 9. There assembled therefore al the men of Iuda, and Benjamin into Ierusalem within three dayes, that is the ninth month, the twentieth day of the month: and al the people sate in the street of the house of God, trembling for the sinne, and ^(b) the rayne. 10. And Esdras the Priest a rose, and sayd to them: You haue transgressed, and taken strange women to wife, to adde vpon the sinne of Israel. 11. And now giue confession to our Lord the God of your fathers, and doe his pleasure, and be separated from the peoples of the land, and from your wiues the strangers. 12. And al the multitude answered, and sayd with a lowd voice: According to thy word vnto vs. so be it done. 13. Neuerthelesse because there is much people, and a tyme of rayne, and we can not abyde to stand without, and it is not a worke of one day or two (for we haue exceedingly sinned in this thing). 14. let there be Princes appointed in al the multitude: & let al. in our cities that haue taken strangers to wife, come at set tymes, and with them the ancients by citie and citie, and the iudges therof, vntil the wrath of our God be turned away from vs for this sinne. 15. Therefore Jonathan the sonne of Azahel, and Iazia the sonne of Thecua were appointed ouer this, and Mesollam and Seberhai Leuites did helpe them: 16. and the children of the transmigration did so. And Esdras the Priest, and the men, Princes of the families, went into the houses of their fathers, & al by their names, and they sate in the first day of the tenth month to search out the matter. 17. And al the men were fully counted that had taken strangers to wife, vnto the first day of the first month. 18. And there were found of the sonnes of the Priests that had taken strangers to wife. Of the children of Iosue the sonne of Iosedec, and his brethren, Maasia, and Eliezer, and Iarib, and Godolia. 19. And they gaue their hands to put away their wiues, & to offer for their offence a ramme of the flock. 20. And of the children of Emmer, Harrani, and Zebedia. 21. And of the children of Harim, Maasia, and Elia, and Semcia, and Iehiel, and Ozias. 22. And of the children of Phethur, Elionai, Maasia, Ismael, Nathanael, Iozabed, and Elasa. 23. And of the children of the Leuites, Iozabed, and Semei, and Celaia, the same is Calita, Phataia, Iuda, & Eliezer. 24. And of the singing men Eliasib: and of the porters, Sellum, and Thelem, and Vri. 25. And of Israel, of the children of Pharos, Remeia, and Iezia, and Melchia, and Miamin, and Eliezer, and Melchia, and Banea. 26. And of the children of Aelam, Mathania, Zacharias, and Iehiel, and Abdi, and Ierimoth, and Elia. 27. And of the children of Zethua, Elioenai, Eliasib, Mathania, Ierimuth, and Zabad, and Aziza. 28. And of the children of Bebai, Iohanam, Hanamia, Zabbai, Arthalai. 29. And of the children of Bani, Mofollam, and Melluch, and Adaia, Iasub, and Saal, and Ramoth. 30. And of the children of Pha-

THE ARGUMENT OF THE BOOK OF NEHEMIAS.

Double title of this Book.

The contents.
Diuided into three parts.

NHIS Book beareth Title both of the author Nehemias, who writ it, and of the second Book of Esdras, who in the former writ the historie of the Israelites after their relaxation from captiuitie, to the building againe of the Temple, with other things done the same time. Whereunto Nehemias ioyneth things succeeding, especially the new erection of wals and towers about the citie of Ierusalem: Ana it may be diuidea into three parts. In the two first chapters, he sheweth his compassion of his countries miserie: and his comming to assist them. In the ten folowing, he reciteth the good effects in repaying, and strengthening the citie with wals and people. In the last chapter, the correction of errors and euil manners, which he found amongst them.

 CALLED: THE SECOND OF ESDRAS.

CHAP. I.

Nehemias hearing the miserable state of his country-men in Iurie, 4. lamenteth; fasteth, and prayeth God for their relief.

THE words of (a) Nehemias the sonne of Helehias. And it came to passe in the month of Casleu, the twentieth yeare, and I was in Sulis the castel. 2. And Hanani one of my brethen came, himselfe and men of Iuda, and I asked them of the Iewes, that remayned, and were left aliue of the captiuitie, and of Ierusalem. 3. And they sayd to me: They that remayned, and are left of the captiuitie there in the prouince, are in great affliction, and in reproche: and the wal of Ierusalem is broken downe, and the gates therof are burnt with fire. 4. And when I had heard these manner of words, I sate, and wept, and mourned many dayes: and fasted, and prayed before the face of the God of heauen. 5. And I sayd: I beseech thee Lord God of heauen, strong, great, and terrible, which keepest couenant and mercie with them that loue thee, and keep thy commandments: 6. let thine eares be harkning, and thine eyes open, to heare the prayer of thy seruant, which I pray before thee this day, night and day for the children of Israel thy seruants: and I confesse for the sinnes of the children of Israel, in which they haue sinned to thee: I and my fathers house haue sinned, 7. we haue been seduced with vanitie, & haue not kept the commandments & ceremo-

(a) Nehemias by his leg-cie, being sent fro a King; by his name which signifieth comforter from our Lora; & by his building againe the wals of Ierusalem; prefigured our Sauiour, who was sent from God the Father, him selfe being the comforter of mankind: & the sender of another comforter the Holie Ghost, to remaine with his Church. nies & iudgement, which thou hast commanded to Moyses thy seruant. 8. Remember the word, that thou didst command vnto Moyses thy seruant, saying: When you shal transgresse, I wil depresse you into peoples: 9. and if you returne to me, and keepe my precepts, and doe them, although you shal be led away to the vttermost parts of heauen, thence wil I gather you, and bring you backe into the place, which I haue chosen that my name should dwel there. 10. And they are thy seruants, and thy people whom thou hast redeemed in thy great strength, and in thy mighty had. 11. I beseech thee Lord, let thine care be attent to the prayer of thy seruant, and to the prayer of thy seruants, which wil feare thy name: and direct thy seruant this day, and giue him mercy before this man, for I was the Kings cup-bearer.

CHAP. II.

Nehemias obtaining commission from King Artaxerxes cometh to Ierusalem: 11. secretly vieweth the broken walles and ruines of the citie, 17. and exhorteth al the Iewes to the reedifying thereof.

AND it came to passe in the month of Nisan, the twentieth yeare of Artaxerxes the King: and there was wine before him, and I lifted vp the wine, and gaue to the King: and I was as it were languishing before his face. 2. And the King sayd to me: Why is thy countenance sad, whereas I doe not see thee sicke? this is not without cause, but some euil I know not what, is in thy hart. And I was very much & exceedingly afraid: 3. and I sayd to the King: O King for euer mayst thou liue: why should not my countenance be heauie, because the citie of the house of the sepulchres of my fathers is desolate, & the gates thereof are burnt with fire? 4. And the King sayd to me: For what thing makest thou request? And I prayed the God of heauen, 5. and I sayd to the King: If it seeme good to the King, and if thy seruant doe please before thy face, that thou send me into Iewrie to the citie of the sepulchre of my father, & I wil build it. 6. And the King said to me, & the Queene that sate by him: Vnto what time wil thy iourney be, and when wilt thou returne? And it pleased before the King, and he sent me: and I appoynted him a time. 7. And I sayd to the King: If it seeme good to the King, let him giue me letters to the gouernours of the country beyod the Riuer, that they conduct me, til I come into Iewrie: 8. and a letter to Asaph the keeper of the Kings forest, to giue me timber that I may couer the gates of the towre of the house, and the wals of the citie, and the house that I shal enter into. And the King gaue according to the good hand of my God with me. 9. And I came to the dukes of the countrie

beyond the Riuer, and gaue them the Kings letters. And the King had sent with me captaynes of soldiers, and horsemen. 10. And Sanaballat an Horonite, and Tobias a seruant an Ammanite heard it, and (a) were grieued with great affliction, that a man was come, which sought the prosperitie of the children of Israel. 11. And I came to Ierusalem and was there three dayes. 12. And I arose in the night, I and a few men with me, and I told not anie man what God had put in my hart to doe in Ierusalem, and there was no beast with me, but the beast wheron I fate. 13. And I went out by the gate of the valley by night, and before the fountayne of the dragon, and to the gate of the dung, and I viewed the wal of Ierusalem broken downe, and the gates therof consumed with fire. 14. And I passed to the gate of the fountayne, and to the Kings conduite, and there was no place for the beast where on I sat, to passe. 15. And I went vp by the torrent in the night, and viewed the wal, and going backe I came to the gate of the valley, and returned. 16. But the magistrates knew not whither I went, or what I did: yea and to the iewes, and the Priests, and the nobles, and the magistrates, and the rest that did the worke, vntil then I had shewed nothing. 17. And I sayd to them: You know the affliction wherin we are, because Ierusalem is made desolate, and the gates thereof are consumed with fire: Come, and let vs build the walles of Ierusalem, and let vs be no longer a reproch. 18. And I shewed them (b) the hand of my God, that it was good with me, and the Kings words, which he had spoken to me, and I sayd: Let vs rise, and let vs build. And their hands were encouraged in good. 19. But Sanaballat the Horonite, and Tobias the seruant an Ammanite, and Gosem an Arabian heard of it, and they scorned vs, and despyfed vs, and sayd: What is this thing that you doe? Why doe you rebel against the King? 20. And I answered them, and sayd to them: The God of heauen he helpeth vs, and we are his seruants: let vs rise and build: but you haue no part, nor iustice, nor memorie in Ierusalem.

(a) Infidels and Heretikes are grieued, that others endeavour to repayre the ruines of the Church in any cōtrie.

(b) Gods hand was cleerly shewed in the effect of obtaining the Kings fauourable letters.

C H A P. IIII.

Notwithstanding the enemies rage and oppose against the building of the wals, 4. the Iewes build with one hand, & hold their swords in the other. Nehemias encourageth them, and the work proceedeth.

2) It was Gods providence that the enemies mocking at the reparation of Ierusalem did not so furiously resist, til the worke was performed: so sometimes heretikes scoffe at the endeauours of poore Priests labouring to restore Catholike religion: but whether they scoffe or rage, Gods holie worke proceedeth and prospereth.

AND it came to passe, when Sanaballat had heard that we builded the wal, he was very angrie: and being moued exceedingly he scorned the Iewes, 2. and sayd before his brethren, and the multitude of the Samaritans: What doe (a) the fillie Iewes? Wil the gentils let the alone? Shal they sacrifice and accomplish in one day? Why, are they able to build vp the stones out of the heaps of dust, that are burnt? 3. Yea Tobias also the Ammanite his neighbour sayd: Let them build: if a fox come vp, he shal leape ouer their stone wal. 4. Heare our God, because we are had in dispise: turne the reproch vpon their head, and giue them into dispise in a Land of captiuitie. 5. Couer not their iniquitie, and let not their sinne be put out before thy face, because they haue mocked thy builders. 6. Therefore we built the wal, and ioyned together the whole vnto the halfe part: and the hart of the people was prouoked to work. 7. And it came to passe when Sanaballat had heard, and Tobias, and the Arabians, and the Ammanites, and the Azotians, that the breach of the wal of Ierusalem was closed vp, and the gates began to be stopped, they were wrath exceedingly. 8. And they were assembled together to come, and to fight against Ierusalem, and to prepare ambushments. 9. And we prayed our God, and set watchmen vpon the wal day and night against them. 10. And Iudas sayd: The strength of him that carrieth is weakned, and the mortar is very much, and we shal not be able to build the wal. 11. And our enemies sayd: Let them not know, and let them be ignorant, til we come into the midst of them, and kil them, and make their worke to cease. 12. And it came to passe, the Iewes that dwelt beside them, comming and telling vs ten times, out of al places from whence they came to vs, 13. I set the people in a place behind the wal round about in order, with their swords, and speares, and bowes. 14. And I looked and rose vp: and I sayd to the Princes and magistrates, and to the rest of the common people: Be not afraid at their face: Remember our Lord great and terrible, and fight for your brethren, your sonnes, and your daughters, and your wiues, and your houses. 15. And it came to passe, when our enemies had heard that it was told vs, God defeated their counsel. And we returned al to the walles, euery man to his worke. 16. And it came to passe from that day, the halfe part of their yongmen did the worke, and halfe was ready to

And they builded, and founded with the trumpet neere me. 19. And I said to the Princes, & to the magistrates, & to the rest of the common people: The worke is great and broad, and we are separated in the wal one far from an other: 20. in what place soeuer you shal heare the sound of the trumpet, thither runne together vnto vs: our God will fight for vs. 21. And let vs our selues doe the worke: and let the halfe part of vs hold speares from the ryling of the morning, til the starres appeare. 22. At that time also I sayd to the people: Let euery man with his seruant tarry in the middes of Ierusalem, and let there be courses among vs by day and night to worke. 23. And I and my brethren, & my seruants, and the watchmen that were behind me, did not put off our cloths: euery man was made bare only to washing.

AN D there was (a) a great crie of the people, and of their wiues against their brethren the Iewes. 2. And there were that said: Our sonnes and our daughters are verie manie: let vs take corne for the price of them, and let vs eate, & liue. 3. And there were that sayd: Let vs pledge our fields, & vineyards, and our houses, and let vs take corne in famine. 4. And others sayd: Let vs borow money for the Kings tributes, and let vs giue our fields and vineyards, 5. and now as the flesh of our brethren, so is our flesh: and as their children so also our children. behold we subdue our sonnes and our daughters into bondage, and our daughters there are bond women, neither haue we wherewith they may be redeemed, and our vineyards other men doe possesse. 6. And I was exceeding angrie, when I had heard their crie according to these words. 7. And my hart thought with my self: and I rebuked the Princes and magistrates, and sayd to them: Doe you euery one exact vsuries of your brethren? and I gathered against them a great assemble, 8. and I sayd to them: We as you know, haue redeemed our brethren the Iewes, that were sold to the gentils, according to our abiitie: & wil you therefore sel your brethren, and shal we redeeme them? And they held their peace, neither did they

I also & my brethren, and my seruants , haue lent money and corne to very manie : let vs not aske this againe in common , let vs remit them the debt , that is due to vs. 11. Restore ye to them their fields this day , and their vineyards, & their oliuets , and their houses : yea the hundreth part also of money, corne, wine, and oyle, which you were wont to exact of them , giue it rather for them. 12. And they sayd : We wil restore , and we wil seek nothing of them : and we wil doe so as thou speakest. And I called the Priests, and adiured them to doe according to that which I had sayd. 13. Moreouer I hook my bosome, and sayd : God so shake euery man, that shal not accomplish this word , out of his house , and out of his labours , so be he shaken out , and made emptie. And al the multitude sayd : Amen. And they prayd God. And the people did as it was sayd. 14. And from that day , wherein the King commended me to the Duke in the land of Iuda , from the twentieth yeare til the two and thirtith yeare of Artaxerxes the King, for twelue yeares , I and my brethren did not eate the yearely allowance , that was due to the Dukes. 15. But the former Dukes, that had been before me, burdned the people , & took of them in bread, & wine, and money, euery day fourtie sicles : yea & their officers oppressed the people. But I did not so for the feare of God. 16. Yea I builded rather in the worke of the wal , and field I bought not , and al my seruants were gathered together to the worke. 17. The Iewes also & the magistrates an hundred fiftie men, and they that came to vs out of the nations, that were round about vs, were at the table. 18. And there was prepared for me day by day one oxe, six chosen rammes, beside foules, and within ten dayes diuers wines, and many other things did I giue. Moreouer also the yearely allowance of my dukedome I sought not , for the people was very much empouerished. 19. The enemies guilefully offer to make league with the Iewes. 3. But Nehemias proceedeth in building the wals : 16. and al bordering nations feare them.

AND it came to passe , when Sanaballat had heard , and Tobias, and Gossen the Arabian , and the rest of our enemies, that I did build the wal , and there was no breach remaying in it (howbeit at that time I had not put the doores in the gates) 2. Sanaballat and Gossen sent to me , saying : Come , and

(a) let

(4) let vs make a league together in the villages, in the field of Ono: But they thought to doe me euil. 3. I sent therefore messengers to them, saying: I am doing a great worke, and I can not goe downe, lest perhaps it be neglected when I shal come and descend to you. 4. But they sent to me according to this word, foure times: and I answered them according to the former word. 5. And Sanaballat sent his seruant to me the fifth time according to the former word, and he had a letter in his hand written in this manner: 6. Among the Gentiles it is heard, and Gossen hath sayd, that thou and the Iewes meane to rebel, and therefore thou buildest the wal, and wil aduance thy selfe King ouer them: for which cause, 7. thou hast set vp Prophets also, which should preach of thee in Ierusalem, saying: There is a King in Iurie: The King wil heare of these things: therefore come now, that we may take counsel together. 8. And I sent to them, saying: It is not done according to these words, which thou speakest: for thou framest these things of thine owne hart. 9. For al these terrified vs, thinking that our hands would cease from the worke, and we would leaue off. For which cause I did the more strengthen my hand: 10. and I entred into the house of Samaia the sonne of Dalaiia the sonne of Metabeel secretly, who sayd: Let vs consult with our selues in the house of God in the middes of the temple: and Let vs shut the doores of the temple, because they wil come to kil thee, and in the night they wil come to to slea thee. 11. And I sayd. Doth any man that is like vnto me flye? and who being as I am, wil goe into the temple, and liue? I wil not goe in. 12. And I vnderstood that God had not sent him, but as it were prophicying he had spoken to me, and Tobias, and Sanaballat had hyred him. 13. For he had taken a price, that I being terrified should doe it, and sinne, and they might haue some euil to vpbraid me withal. 14. Remember me Lord for Tobias and Sanaballat, according to such their works. Yea and Noadias the Prophet, and the rest of the Prophets that terrified me. 15. But the wal was finished the five and twentieth day of the month of Elul, in two and fiftie dayes. 16. It came to passe therefore when al our enemies had heard it, that al nations which were round about vs, feared, and were dismayed within themselues, and knew that this worke was done of God. 17. But in those dayes also many letters of the principal Iewes were sent to Tobias, and from Tobias there came to them. 18. For there were many in Iurie sworne vnto him, because he was the sonne in law of Sechenias the sonne of Area, and Iohan an his sonne had taken the daughter of Mosollam the soune of Barachias. 19. Yea and they prayfed him before me, and they reported my words vnto him: and Tobias sent letters to terrifie me.

AND after the wal was built, and I had put on the doores, and numbred the porters, and singing men, and Leuites :
 2. I commanded Hanani my brother, and Hananias Prince of the house of Ierusalé (for he seemed as it were a true man, & one that feared God aboute the rest) 3. and I sayd to them : Let not the gates of Ierusalem be opened vntil the heate of the sunne. And when they yet stood by, the gates were shut, and barred : and I sette (4) watchmen of the inhabitants of Ierusalem, euery one by their courses, and euery man against his house. 4. And the citie was exceeding large and great, and the people few in the middes therof, and there were no houses built. 5. ND al the people was gathered together as it were one man to the street, which is before the water, & they sayd to Esdras the scribe, that he should bring the booke of the law of Moyses, which our Lord had commanded Israel. 2. Esdras therefore the Priest (a) brought the law before the multitude of men and women, and al that could vnderstand, in the first day of the seuenth month. 3. And he read it playnly in the street that was before the water gate, from morning vntil midday, in the presence of the men, and women, & of those that vnderstood: & the cares of al the people were attent to the booke. 4. And Esdras the scribe stood vpon a step of wood, which he made to speake vpon: & there stood by him Mathathias, & Semeia, & Ania, and Vria, & Helcia, and Maasia, on his right hand: and on the left: Phadia, Misael, and Melchia, and Hasum, and Hasbadana, Zacharia, and Mosollam. 5. And Esdras opened the Book before al the people : for he appeared aboue al the people : and when he had opened it, al the people stood. 6. And Esdras blessed our Lord the great God : and al the people answered : Amen, amen : lifting vp their hands, and they bowed, and adored God flat on the earth. 7. Moreouer Iosue, and Bani, and Serebia, Iamin, Accub, Septhai, Odia, Maasia, Celita, Azarias, Iozabed, Hanan, Phalaia, Leuites, made silence in the people to heare the law: and the people stood in their degree. 8. And they read in the Book of the law of God distinctly and plainly, for to vnderstand : and they vnderstood when it was read. 9. And Nehemias said (the same is (b) Atherfatha) and Esdras the Priest and scribe, and the Liuites interpreting to al the people : It is a day sanctified to the Lord our God, mourne ye not, and weep not. For al the people wept, when they heard the words of the law. 10. And he said to them : Goe, eate fat things, and drinke the sweet wine, and send portions to them, that haue not prepared for themselues, because it is the holie day of our Lord, and be not sadde : for the ioy of our Lord is our strength. 11. And the Leuites made silence in al the people, saying: Hold your peace, because the day is holie, & be not sorrowful. 12. Therefore al the people went to eate and drinke, and to send portions, and to make great ioy : because they vnderstood the words, that he had taught them. 13. And in the second day were gathered the Princes of the families of al the people, the Priests and Leuites to Esdras the scribe, that he should interpret vnto them the words of the law. 14. And they found written in the law, that our Lord commanded in the hand of Moyles, that the children of Israel should dwel in tabernacles, on the soleinne day, the seuenth month : 15. and that they should proclame and publish a voice in al their cities, and in Ierusalem, saying: Goe ye forth into the mount, and fetch branches of the oliue tree, and branches of the most fayre tree, branches of the mittle tree, & boughes of the palme trees, and branches of the thicke leaued tree, that tabernacles may be made, as it is written. 16. And the people went forth, and brought. And they made themselues tabernacles euery man in his house top, and in his courts, and in the courts of the house of God, and in the street of the water gate, and in the street of the gate of Ephraim. 17. Therefore al the Church of them that were returned from the captiuitie, made tabernacles, and dwelt in tabernacles. For from the daies of Iosue the sonne of Nun the children of Israel had not done it in such sort, vntil that day: and there was exceeding great ioy. 18. And he reade in the booke of the law of God day by day, from the first day til the last, and they made the solemnitie seuen dayes, & in the eight day a collect according to the rite.

AND in the foure and twentieth day of the month the children of Israel came together in fasting and sackcloths, and earth vpon them. 2. And the seed of the children of Israel was (a) separated from euerie strange child: and they stood, and confessed their sinnes, and the iniquities of their fathers. 3. And they rose vp to stand: and they read in the volume of the law of our Lord their God foure times in a day, and foure times they confessed, and adored our Lord their God. 4. And there arose vpon the step of the Leuites Iosue, and Bani, Cedmihel, Sabania, Bonni, Sarebias, Bani, and Chanani: and they cried with a loud voice to our Lord their God. 5. And the Leuites Iosue and Cedmihel, Bonni, Hasebnia, Serebia, Odaia, Sebnia, and Phathahia, said: Arise, Blesse our Lord your God from eternitie to cternitie: and let them blesse the high name of thy glorie in al blessing and praise. 6. Thou the same, o Lord, alone thou hast made heauen, and al the host therof: the earth and al things that are in it: the seas and al things that are therein: and thou dost giue life to al these things, and the host of heauen adoreth thee. 7. Thou the same o Lord God, which didst choose Abram, and broughtest him out of the fire of the Chaldees, and gauest him the (b) name Abraham. 8. And thou didst find his hart faithful before thee: and thou madest a couenant with him, that thou wouldest giue him the land of the Chananeite, of the Hetheite, and of the Amorrheite, and of the Pherezeite, and of the Iebuseite, and of the Gergeseite, to giue vnto his seed: and thou hast fulfilled thy words, because thou art iust. 9. And thou sawest the affliction of our fathers in Ægypt: and their crie thou didst heare vpon the Red sea. 10. And thou gauest signes and wonders in Pharao, and in al his seruants, and in al the people of his land: for thou didst know that they had done proudly againt them: and thou madest thy self a name, as also at this day. 11. And thou didst diuide the sea before them, and they passed through the midst of the sea in drie land: but their persecutours thou threwest into the depth, as a stone into the rough waters. 12. And in a pillar of a cloud thou wast their leader by day, and in a pillar of fire by night, that the way might appeare to them, by the which they went. 13. To mount Sinai also thou didst descend, and spakest with them from heauen, and thou gauest them right iudgements, and the law of truth, ceremonies, and good precepts.

14. Thy sanctified Sabbath thou didst shew them, and the commandments, and ceremonies, and the law thou didst command them in the hand of Moyse thy seruant. 15. Bread also from heauen thou gauest them in their hunger, and water out of the rocke thou didst bring forth to them thirsting, and thou saidest to them that they should enter in and possesse the land, vpon which thou didst lift vp thy hand to deliuer it them. 16. But they and our fathers did proudly, and hardened their necks, and heard not thy commandments. 17. And they would not heare, and they remembered not thy merueilous works which thou hast done to them. And they hardened their necks, and gaue the head to returne to their seruitude, as it were by cōtention. But thou a propitious God, & gracious, and merciful, long suffering and of much compassion, didst not forsake them. 18. Yea and when they had made to themselues a molten calfe, and had said: This is thy God, which brought thee out of Egypt: and they did great blasphemies. 19. But thou in thy manie mercies didst not leaue them in the desert: the pillar of the cloud departed not from them by day to lead them into the way, and the pillar of fire by night to shew them the way by which they should goe. 20. And thou gauest them thy good spirit, which should teach them, and thy Manna thou didst not withhold from their mouth, and thou gauest them water in thirst. 21. Fourtie yeares didst thou feed them in the desert, and nothing was wanting to them, their garments waxed not old, & their feet were not worne. 22. And thou gauest them King Iomes, & peoples, and didst part lots vnto them: and they possessed the land of Schon, and the land of the King Hesebon, and the land of Og the King of Basan. 23. And thou didst multiplie their children as the starres of heauen, and brought them to the land wherof thou hadst said to their fathers, that they should enter and possesse it. 24. And the children came, and possessed the land, and thou didst humble before them the inhabitants of the land the Chananeites, and gauest them into their hād, & their Kings, & the peoples of the land, that they might doe to thē as it pleased them. 25. They therefore tooke the fenced cities, and fat ground, and possessed houses ful of al goods; cysternes made by others, vineyards, and oliuets, and manie trees that bare fruit: and they did eate, and were filled, and became fat, and abounded with delicious things in thy great goodnes. 26. But they prouoked thee to wrath, and departed from thee, and threw thy law behind their backs: and they killed thy Prophets, which admonished them earnestly to returne to thee: and they did great blasphemies. 27. And thou gauest them into the hands of their enemies, and they afflicted them. And in the time of their tribulation they cried to thee, and thou from heauen didst heare, and according to thy manie compassions gauest them sauiours, that should saue them from the hand of their enemies. 28. And when they had rested, they returned to doe euil in thy sight: and thou didst leaue them in the hand of their enemies, and they possessed them. And they returned , and cried to thee : and thou heardest from heauen , and deliueredst them in thy mercies manie times. 29. And thou didst admonish them that they should returne to thy law. But they did proudly, and heard not thy commandments, and sinned in thy iudgements, which a man should doe, and shal liue in them, and they gaue the reuolting shoulder, & hardned their necke, neither did they heare. 30. And thou didst prolong manie yeares ouer them, and didst testifie to charge them in thy spirit by the hand of thy Prophets : and they heard not, & thou didst deliuer them into the hand of the peoples of the nations. 31. But in thy very many mercies thou madest them not into consumption, neither didst thou forsake them : because a God of compassions and gracious art thou. 32. Now therefore o our God., great, strong, and terrible, keeping couenant and mercie, turne not away from thy face at the labour which hath found vs, our Kings, & our Princes, and our Priests, and our Prophets, and our fathers, and al the people from the daies of the King of Assur, vntil this day. 33. And thou art iust in al things, that haue come vpon vs : because thou hast done truth, but we haue done wickedly. 34. Our Kings, our Princes, our Priests, and our fathers haue not done thy law, and haue not attended thy commandments, and thy testimonies which thou hast testified among them. 35. And they in their reignes, and in thy manifold goodnes, which thou gauest them, and in the land most large and fat, which thou didst deliuer in their sight, serued not thee, nor returned from their most wicked diuises. 36. Behold we our selues this day are bondmen : and the land, which thou gauest our fathers, that they should eate the bread therof, and the good things that are therof, and our selues are seruants in it. 37. And the fruits therof are multiplied to the Kings, whom thou hast set ouer vs for our sinnes, and they haue dominion ouer our bodies, and ouer our beasts, according to their wil, and we are in great tribulation. 38. Therefore vpon al these things we our selues make a couenant, and write, and our Princes, our Leuites, and our Priests signe it.

And the Princes of the Levites, Hasebia, Serebia, and Iosue the sonne of Cedmihel: and their bretheren by their courses, to praise and confesse according to the precept of Dauid the man of God, and to waite equally in order. 25. Mathanias, and Becbecca, Obedia, and Mosollam, Telmon, Accub, keepers of the gates and of the entrances before the gates. 26. These were in the daies of Ioacim the sonne of Iosue, the sonne Iosedec, and in the daies of Nehemias the duke, and of Esdras the Priest, and Scribe. 27. And in the dedication of the wal of Ierusalem they sought Levites out of al other places, to bring them into Ierusalem, and to make the dedication and ioy in giuing of thanks, and song, and in cimbals, psalteries and harpes. 28. And the children of the singing men were gathered together out of the champaine about Ierusalem, and out of the townes Nethuphati, 29. and from the house of Galgal, and from the countries of Geba and Azmaueth: because the singing men did build themselves villages round about Ierusalem. 30. And the Priests and Leuites were cleansed, and they cleansed the people, and the gates, & the wal. 31. And I made the Princes of Iuda goe vp vpon the wal, and I set two great quyers of them that should praise. And they went on the right hand vpon the wal to the gate of the dunghill. 32. And after them went Ofaraz, & the halfe part of the Princes of Iuda, 33. and Azarias, Esdras, & Mosollan, Iudas, & Benjamin, & Semeia, & Ieremias. 34. And of the children of the Priests with trumpets, Zacharias the sonne of Ionathan, the sonne of Semeia, the sonne of Nathania, the sonne of michaia, the sonne Zechur, the sonne Asaph, 35. and his bretheren Semeia, and Azareel, Malalai, Galalai, Maai, Nathanael, and Iudas, and Hanani, with the instruments of the song of Dauid the man of God: and Esdras the scribe before them in the gate of the fountayne. 36. And against them there went vp in the stayers of the citie of Dauid, in the rising of the wal aboute the house of Dauid, and vnto the gate of waters toward the East. 37. And the second quyer of thankes-giuers went on the contrarie side, and I after it, & the halfe part of the people vpon the wal, & aboute the tower of the fornaces, and vnto the brodest wal, 38. and aboute the gate of Epraim, and aboute the old gate, and aboute the gate of fishes and the towre of Hananeel, and the towre of Emath, and vnto the gate of the flocke: and they stood in the gate of the watch, 39. and there stood two quyers of them that prayed in the house of God, and I, and the halfe part of the magistrates with me. 40. And the Priests, Eliachim, Maasia, Miamin, Micka, Elioenai, Zacharia, Hanania with trumpets, 41. and Maasia, & Semeia, & Eleazar, & Azzi, & Iohanan, and Melchia, and Aeiain, and Ezer. And the singing men sang alowd, and Iezraia the ouerseer: 42. and they immolated in that day great victimes, and reioyced: for God had made them ioyful with great ioy: yea their wiues also & children reioyced, & the ioy of Ierusalem was heard far off. 43. They numbred also in that day men ouer the storehouses of the treasure, for the libaments, and for the first fruits, & for the tythes. that the Princes of the citie might bring in by them in the honour of thâkes-giuing, Priests and Leuites: because Iuda was made ioyful in the Priests and Leuites standing by. 44. And they kept the watch of their God, and the obseruance of expiation, and the singing men, and the porters, according to the precept of Dauid, and of Salomon his sonne, 45. because in the daies of Dauid and Asaph from the beginning there were Princes appoynted of the singing men in song praying and confessing to God. 46. And all Irael, in the daies of Zorobabel, and in the daies of Nehemias gaue portions to the singing men, and to the porters day by day, and they (b) sanctified the Leuites, and the Leuites sanctified the children of Aaron.

(b) As others gaue tithes to the Leuites: so they gaue to Priests. Num. 18. v. 21. 28.

AND in that day there was read in the volume of Moyses the people hearing it: and there was found written in it, that the Ammonites and the Moabites should not enter into the Church of God for ever: 2. for that they met not the children of Israel with bread and water: and they hyred against them Balaam to curse them: and our God turned the cursing into blessing. 3. And it came to passe, when they had heard the law, they separated euerie stranger from Israel. 4. And ouer this thing was Eliasib the Priest, who had been made ouerseer in the treasure of the house of our God, and neere a-kin to (a) Tobias. 5. He therefore made to himselfe a great treasure, and they were there before him laying vp guifts, and frankincense, and vessels, and the tythe of corne, of wine, and of oyle, the portions of the Levites, and of the singing men, and of the potters, and the first fruits of the Priests. 6. But in al these things I was not in Ierusalem, because in the two and thirtieth yeare of Artaxerxes the King of Babylon I came to the King, and in the end of certaine dayes I desired the King. 7. And I came to Ierusalem, and I vnderstood the euil that Eliasib had done to Tobias, to make him a treasure in the entrances of the house of God. 8. And it seemed to me exceeding euil. And I threw forth the vessels of the house of Tobias out of the treasure: 9. and I commanded and they clesed the treasure: and I brought thither againe the vessels of the house of God, the sacrifice, and the frankincense. 10. And I knew that the portions of the Levites had not been given: and that euerie man was fled into his countrie of the Levites, and the singing men, and of them that ministred: 11. and I pleaded the matter against the magistrates, and said: Why haue we forsaken the house of God? And I assembled them, and I made them to stand in their standings. 12. And al Iuda caried the tythe of the corne, wine, and oyle into the store-houses. 13. And we appoynted ouer the store-houses Selmias Priest, and Sadoc scribe, and Phadaia of the Levites, and next to them Hanan the sonne of Zachur, the sonne of Mathania: because they were approued faithful, and to them were committed the portions of the brethren. 14. Remember me my God for this thing, and wipe not out my mercies, which I haue done in the house of my God, and in his ceremonies. 15. In those daies I saw them in Iuda treading the presses on the Sabbath, carying heapes, and loding vpon asses wine, and grapes, and figges, and al manner of burthen, and bringing it into Ierusalem on the Sabbath day. And I charged them, that they should sel on a day that it was lawful to sel in. 16. And the Tyrians dwelt in it, bringing fishes, and al things to sel: and they sold on the Sabbaths to the children of Iuda in Ierusalem. 17. And I rebuked the Princes of Iuda, and said to them: What is this euil thing, that you doe, and prophane the day of the Sabbath? 18. Why, did not our fathers these things, and our God brought vpon vs al this euil, and vpon this citie? And you adde wrath vpon Israel in violating the Sabbath. 19. And it came to passe, when the gates of Ierusalem had rested on the Sabbath day, I spake: and they shut the gates, and I commanded them that they should not open them til after the Sabbath: and of my seruants I appoynted ouer the gates, that none should bring in burdens in the Sabbath day. 20. And the merchants, and they that sold al merchandise, taried without Ierusalem once and againe. 21. And I charged them, and I said to them: Why tarie you ouer-against the wal? if you shal doe so the second time, I wil lay my hand vpon you. Therefore from that time they came not on the Sabbath. 22. I spake also to the Leuites that they should be cleansed, and should come to keep the gates, and to sanctifie the day of the Sabbath: therefore for this also remember me my God, and spare me according to the multitude of thy mercies. 23. But in those daies also I saw the Iewes marrying wiues women of Azotus, and of Ammon, and of Moab. 24. And their children spake, the halfe part the Azotian tongue, and they could not speake the Iewes language, and they spake according to the language of the people and people. 25. And I rebuked them, and cursed them. And I beat of them some men, & shaued them bald, & adiured them by God, that they should not giue their daughters to their sonnes, nor take their daughters for their sonnes, and for themselves, saying: 26. Did not Salomon the King of Israel sinne in this kind of thing? and surely in manie nations, there was not a King like to him, and he was beloued of his God, and God set him King ouer al Israel: him therefore also foren women brought to sinne. 27. And thal we also being disobedient persons doe al this great euil, to transgresse against our God, and to marie foren women? 28. And Sanabaiat the Horonite was sonne in law to one of the sonnes of Ioiada, the sonne of Eliasib the high Priest, whom I draue from me. 29. Remember o Lord my God against them, that pollute the Priesthood, and the right of Priests and Leuites. 30. Thertore I separated from them al strangers, & I appoynted the courtes of the Priests and Leuites, euerie man in his ministerie: 31. and in the oblation of woode at times appoynted, and in the first fruits: (a) Remember me my God vnto good. Amen.

The third and fourth Books of Esdras, with the prayer of Manasses, follow after the Machabees.

ANNOTATIONS

Concerning the Book of TOBIAS, IVDITH, WISDOM, ECCLESIASTICVS, and MACHABEES.

Heretikes denie some scriptures because they conuince their errours.

The Churches canon of more authority thē the Iewes.

A Canon is an infallible rule of direction.

The Ghospel is knowne by the Church.

Books doubted or before the Churches definition are not doubtful after.

PROTESTANTS and other Sectaries of this time denie these Books to be diuine Scripture, because they are not in the Iewes Canon, nor were accepted for canonical in the primitive Church. But indeed the chiefe cause is, for that some things in these Books are so manifest against their opinions, that they haue no other answer, but to reiect their authoritie: An old shift noted and refused by S. Augustin, touching the Book of Wisdome, which some refused, pretending that it was not canonical, but indeed because in conuincing their errours. For otherwise who seeth not, that the Canon of the Church of Christ is of more authority with al true Christians, then the Canon of the Iewes? And that the Church of Christ numbred these Books amongst others of diuine and infallible authoritie, is euident by the testimonie and definition, not only of later general Councils, of Trent, Sess. 4. and Florence Instructio Armenorum, of Pape Innocentius, Epist. ad Exuperium, and Gelasius; Decreto de libris sacris; but also the Council of Carthage An. Dom. 419. S. Augustin lib. 2. Doct. Christ. cap. 8. Isidorus lib. 6. Etymol. cap. 1. Cassiodorus lib. 1. Diuinarum Lectioinum, Rabanus, lib. 2. de Institutione Clericorum, and others testifie the same, as we shal further note scuerally of euerie book in their particular places. And for so much as our aduersaries acknowledge these Books to be Holy, and worthie to be read in the Church, but not sufficient to proue and confirme points of faith: the studious reader may consider that the Council of Carthage calleth them Canonicis, and Diuine, which sheweth that they are of infallible authoritie. For a Canon is an assured rule and warrant of direction, whereby (saith S. Augustin lib. 11. contra Faustum cap. 1. & lib. 2. contra Cresconium cap. 31.) the infirmitie of our defect in knowledge is guided, & by which rule other books are likewise knowne to be Gods word. His reason is, because we haue no other assurance that the books of Moyse, the foure Ghospels, and other books are the true word of God, but by the Canon of the Church. Whereupon the same great Doctour vttered that famous saying: that he would not believe the Ghospel, except the authoritie of the Catholike Church moued him therunto. contra Epist. Fundamenti ca. 5.

True it is that some Catholike Doctours doubted whether these Books were Canonical or no, because the Church had not then declared that they were; but since the Churches declaration no Catholike doubteth. So S. Ierom testifieth, that the Booke of Iudith (among the rest) seemed to him not canonical, til the Council of Nice declared it to be Likewise the Epistle to the Hebrewes, the Epistle of S. Iames, the second of S. Peter, the second and third of S. Iohn, S. Iudes Epistle, and the Apocalyps were sometimes doubted of, yet were afterwards declared to be Canonical. And most Protestants, namely English, admitte them al, as the assured word of God though they were not alwaies so reputed by al, but as S. Ierome affirmeth of S. Iames Epistle, Paulatim tempore procedente meruit auctoritatem: By litle and litle in proccesse of time merited authoritie.

THE ARGUMENT OF THE BOOK OF TOBIE.

BESIDES the testimonies of Councils and Fathers before mentioned; S. Cyprian, de Oratione Dominica alleadging this book (cap. 12.) saith: Diuine Scripture instructeth vs, that prayer is good with fasting and almes. S. Ambrose (li. de Tobia, c. 1.) calleth this Book, by the common name of Scripture, saying he will briefly gather the vertues of Tobie, which the Scripture in historical manner layeth forth at large. Where he also calleth this historie Prophetical, and Tobie a Prophet. And lib. 3. of f. cap. 14. alleadgerth this Book as he doth other holie Scriptures, to proue that the vertues of Gods seruants farre excel the Moral Philosophers. S. Chrysostom ho. 15. ad Heb. alleadgerth Tobias as Scripture, denouncing curse to contemners. S. Augustin made a special sermon of Tobias, as he did of Iob, which is the 226. sermon de tempore. Gregorie parte 3. pastor. curæ admon. 21. alleadgerth it as holy Scripture. And Venerable Bede expoundeth this whole Book mystically, as he doth other holy Scripture. S. Ierom translated it out of the Chaldee language, wherein it was written, iudging it more meete to displease the Pharisaical Iewes, who reiect it, then not to satisfie the wil of holie Bishops, vrging to haue it. Epist. ad Chromat. & Heliodorum. to. 3.

The authour is vncertaine: but S. Athanasius (in Synopsi) reporteth the contents at large. And S. Augustin (li. quest. ex vtroque testamento, q. 119.) deliuereth both the contents, and cause of writing it, briefly thus: The seruant of God holie Tobias, is giuen to vs after the law for an example, that we might know how to practise the things, which we reade. And if tentatiōs come vpon vs, not to depart from the feare of God, nor expect help from anie other then from him. It may be diuided into three parts. The first foure chapters shew the holie and sincere manner of life of old Tobias. The eight folowing relate the iourney and affayres of yong Tobias, accompanied and directed by the Angel Raphael. In the two last chapters they praise God. And old Tobias propheseth better state of the commonwealth.

Tobias of the tribe of Nephthali, neuer communicateth in Ieroboams schisme. 9. Teacheth his sonne to feare God, and fly sinne. 11. Being in captiuitie eateth not forbidden meates, as others doe. 13. Amongst other works of mercie, he lendeth ten talents of siluer to Gabelus. 21. Is persecuted and spoyled. 24. Shortly the King being slaine, he recouereth libertie and his goods.

This booke is read at Martins the third weeke of September.

The first part. Tobias his holie manner of life.

Not absolutely al, but very manie: for some of the same tribe and kinred did also feare God. c. 2. v. 2.

TOBIAS of the tribe and citie of Nephthali (which is in the vpper parts of Galilee aboue Naasson, beyond the way that leadeth to the west, hauing on the right hand the citie Sepher) 2. when he was captiue in the daies of Salmanasar the King of the Assyrians, yet being in captiuitie, he forsooke not the way of truth, 3. so that he imparted al things that he could make dayly to his brethren captiues with him, which were of his kinred. 4. And whereas he was yonger then al the tribe of Nephthali, yet did he no childish thing in his worke. 5. Finally, when (4) al went to the golden calues, which Ieroboam the King of Israel had made, he alone fled the companies of al, 6. and went into Ierusalem to the temple of our Lord, and there adored our Lord God of Israel, offering faithfully al his first fruits, and his tithes, 7. so that in the third yeare he ministred al the tithing to the profelytes and strangers. 8. These things and the like to these did he obserue being a childe according to the law of God. 9. But when he was a man, he tooke to wife Anna of his owne tribe, and he begat a sonne of her, giuing him his owne name. 10. Whom from his infancie he taught to teare God, and to abstayne from al sinne. 11. Therefore when by the captiuitie he was come with his wife and sonne into the citie of Ninive, with al his tribe, 12. (when al did eate of the meates of the Gentils) he kept his soule, and neuer was contaminated in their meates. 13. And because he was mindful of our Lord in al his hart, God gaue him grace in the sight of Salmanasar the King, 14. and he gaue him leauē to goe whithersoever he would, hauing libertie to doe what things soeuer he would. 15. He therefore went to al that were in the captiuitie, and gaue them hole some admonitions. 16. And when he was come into Rages a citie of the Medes, and had ten talents of siluer of these wherwith he had been honoured of the King: 17. and when in a great multitude of his kinred, he saw Gabelus stand in need, who was of his tribe, vnder a bil of his hand he gaue him the sayd weight of siluer. 18. But after much time, Salmanasar the King being dead, when Sennacherib his sonne reigned for him, & esteemed the children of Israel odious in his sight: 19. Tobias daiily went through al his kinred, and comforted them, and diuided to euerie one, as he was able, of his goods: 20. the hungrie he nourished, and to the naked he gaue clothes, and the dead, and them that were slayne, he buryed carefully. 21. Finally when King Sennacherib was returned flying from Iewrie the slaughter, that God had made about him for his blasphemie, & being angrie slew manie of the children of Israel, Tobias buryed their bodies. 22. But when it was told the King, he commanded him to be slayne, and tooke al his substance. 23. But Tobias flying with his sonne and with his wife, nakedly lay hid, because manie loued him. 24. But after fourtie fīue dayes the King was slaine of his owne sonnes, 25. and Tobias returned into his house, and al his substance was restored to him.

C H A P. II.

Tobias to burie an Israelite that is slaine in the street, leaueth his dinner and ghests. 10. Is made blind by Gods permission, for manifestation of his patience. 19. His wife getteth her liuing by worke, 22. and for a scrupulous word, reprocheth his sinceritie.

BV T after these things, when there was a festiual day of our Lord, and a good dinner was made in Tobias house, 2. he sayd to his sonne: Goe, and bring some of our tribe (a) that feare God, to make merie with vs. 3. And when he had gone, returning he tolde him, that one of the children of Israel lay slayne in the street. And he forthwith leaping vp from his place at the table, leauing his dinner, came fasting to the bodie: 4. and taking it vp carried it to his house secretly, that when the sunne should be downe, he might warily burie him. 5. And when he had hid the bodie, he ate bread with mourning & trembling, 6. remembring that word which our Lord sayd by Amos the Prophet: Your festiual dayes shal be turned into lamentation & mourning. 7. But when the sunne was downe, he went and buried him. 8. And al his neighbours rebuked him, saying: Euen now thou wast commanded to be slayne because of this matter, and thou didst scarce escape the commandment of death, and (b) doest thou burie the dead agayne? 9. But Tobias more fearing God then the King, in hast tooke the bodies of them that were slayne, and hid them in his house, & at midnight buried them. 10. And it happened that on a certayne day, being wearied with burying, comming into his house he had cast himself downe by the wal, and slept, 11. and as he was sleeping, hot dung out of the swallowes nest fel vpon his eyes, and he was made blind. 12. And this tentation therefore our Lord permitted to chance vnto him, that an example might be giue to posteritie of his paciēce, as also of holie Iob. 13. For whereas he feared God alwaies from his infancie, and kept his commandments, he grudged not agaynt God for that the plague of blindnes had chanced to him, 14. but continued immouable in the feare of God, giuing thanks to God at the dayes of his life. 15. For as the Kings insulted against blessed Iob, so his (c) parents and cosins derided his life, saying: 16. Where is thy hope, for the which thou didest bestow almes & burials? 17. But Tobias rebuked them, saying: Speake not so: 18. because we are the children of holie ones, and looke for that life, which God wil giue to them, that neuer change their faith from him. 19. But Anna his wife went dayly to weauing worke, and she brought the gaines of her handie labour, which she could get. 20. Whereby it came to passe, that she receiuing a kid of goates had brought it home: 21. the voice whereof bleating when her husband had heard, he sayd: Take heed, lest perhaps it be stollen, restore ye it to his owners, because it is not lawful for vs either to eat anie thing of theft or to touch it. 22. To these words his wife being angrie answered: Thy hope is become vayne manifestly, and thine almes now haue appeared. 23. And with these, and other such like words she vpbrayded him.

The prayer of Tobias, 7. and Sara, in their seueral afflictions, 24. are heard by God, and the Angel Raphael is sent to relieue them.

WHEN Tobias lamented, and began to pray with teares, 2. saying: Thou art iust o Lord, and al thy iudgements are iust, & al thy waies mercie, & truth. & iudgement. 3. And now Lord be mindful of me, and take not reuenge of my sinnes, neither remember the sinnes of me, or of my parents. 4. Because we haue not obeyed thy commandments, therefore we are deliuered in spoile, and captiuitie, and death, and into a fable, and into reproch to al nations, in which thou hast disperfed vs. 5. And now Lord great are thy iudgements, because we haue not done according to thy precepts, & haue not walked sincerely before thee: 6. and now Lord according to thy wil doe with me, and command my spirite to be receiued in peace: for it is expedient for me to die, rather then to liue. 7. The verie same day therefore it chanced that Sara the daughter of Raguel in (c) Rages a citie of the Medes, she also heard reproch of one of her fathers hād-mayds, 8. because she had been deliuered to seuen husbands, and the diuel named (d) Asmodeus had killed them forthwith as they were entred in vnto her. 9. Therefore when she rebuked the wench for her fault, she answered her, saying: Let vs no more see sonne of thee, or daughter vpon the earth, thou murderer of thy husbands. 10. What, wilt thou kil me also, as thou hast now killed seuen husbands? At this voice she went into an higher chamber of her house: and three dayes and three nights did not eate, nor drinke: 11. but continuing in prayer with teares besought God, that he would deliuer her from this reproch. 12. And it came to passe the third day, while she accōplished her prayer, blessing our Lord, 13. she sayd: Blessed is thy name o God of our fathers: who when thou hast been angrie, wilt doe mercie, and in the time of tribulation forgieuest thē their sinnes, that inuocate thee. 14. To thee o Lord I turne my face, to thee I direct myne eyes. 15. I desire Lord that thou loose me frō the bond of this reproch, or els take me away frō the earth. 16. Thou knowest Lord that I neuer coueted a husbād, & haue kept my soule cleane frō al cōcupiscence. 17. Neuer haue I cōpanied my self with sporters: neither haue I made my selfe partaker with thē that walke in lightnesse. 18. But a husband I consented to take, with thy feare, not with my luit. 19. And either I was vnworthie of thē, or they perhaps were not worthie for me: because perhaps thou hast kept me for an other mā. 20. For thy counsel is not in mans power. 21. But this hath euerie one for certayne, that worshipping thee, that his life, if it be in probation, shall be

For thou art not delighted in our perditions: because after a tempest thou makest a calme, and after teares and weeping thou powrest in ioyfulness. 23. Be thy name God of Israel blessed for euer. 24. At that time the prayers of both were heard in the sight of the glorie of the high God: 25. and the holie Angel of our Lord Raphael was sent to cure the both, whose prayers at one time were (c) recited in the sight of our Lord.

CHAP. III.

Tobias thinking he shall dye, giueth his sonne godlie admonitions: 7. especially exhorteth him to giue almes diligently, 13. to fly al fornication, pride, and fraud. 21. And selleth him of money lent to a freind.

(a) As Moyses to the people Deut. 32. and Dauid to Salomon. 3. Reg. 2. so Tobias gaue holie admonitions to his sonne in al fourteen, noted in the inner margin. (b) The same doctrine of good workes, and reward, is taught Daniel 4. v. 24.

HERFORE when Tobias thought his prayer to be heard that he might haue died, he called to him Tobias his sonne, 2. and sayd to him: (a) Heare my sonne the words of my mouth, and lay them as a foundation in thy hart. 3. When God shall take my soule, * burie my bodie: & thou shalt doe * honour to thy mother al the dayes of her life: 4. for thou must be mindful what perils, and how great she suffered for thee in her wombe. 5. And when she also shall haue accomplished the time of her life, burie her beside me. 6. And al the dayes of thy life * haue God in thy mind: and beware thou consent not to sinne at anie time, and pretermitt the precepts of our Lord God. 7. * Of thy substāce (b) giue almes, & turne not away thy face from anie poore person: for so it shall come to passe that neither the face of our Lord shall be turned from thee. 8. As thou shalt be able, so be merciful. 9. If thou haue much, giue abundantly: if thou haue litle, studie to impart also a litle willingly. 10. For thou doest treasure vp to thy self a good reward in the day of necessitie. 11. Because almes deliuereth from al sinne, and from death, and wil not suffer the soule to goe into darkenesse. 12. Great confidence before God most high shall almes be to al them that doe it. 13. * Take heed to thy self my sonne of al fornication, and beside thy wife neuer abide to know crime. 14. * Neuer permit pryde to rule in thy word: for in it al perdition tooke his beginning. 15. * Whosoever hath wrought anie thing for thee, pay him his hyre immediately, and let not the hyre of thy hyred seruant remaine with thee at al. 16. * That (c) which thou hatest to be done to thee by another, see thou doe it not to another at anie time. 17. Eat thy bread with the hungrie & needie, and of thy garments couer the naked. 18. * See thy bread, and thy wine vpon (d) the burial of a iust man, and doe not eat and drinke therof with sinners.

Yong Tobias seeking a guide for his tourney, Raphael the Angel in shape of a man presenteth himself, and vndertaketh this office. 23. The mother lamenteth the absence and danger of her sonne.

THEN Tobias answered his father, and sayd : I wil doe all things, father, whatsoever thou hast commanded me. 2. But how I shal require this money, I can not tel, he knoweth not me, and I know not him : what token shal I giue him? Yea neither the way which leadeth thither did I euer know. 3. Then his father answered him, & sayd : I haue the bil of his hand with me, which when thou shalt shew him he wil forthwith restore it. 4. But goe now, and seeke thee out some faythful man, that may goe with thee, being sure of his hyre : that thou mayst receiue it, whiles I yet liue. 5. Then Tobias going forth, found a (a) goodlie yong man, standing girded, and as it were readie to walke. 6. And not knowing that it was an Angel of God, he saluted him, and sayd : From whence haue we thee, good yong man? 7. But he answered : Of the children of Israel. And Tobias sayd to him : Knowest thou the way, that leadeth vnto the countrie of the Medes? 8. To whom he answered : I know it : and al the wayes therof I haue often walked, and I haue taried with Gabelus our brother, who abydeth in Rages a citie of the Medes, which is situate in the Mount Ecbatanis. 9. To whom Tobias sayd : Stay for me I beseech thee, til I tel these same things to my father. 10. Then Tobias going in told al these things to his father. Whereupon his father marueling, requested that he would come in vnto him. 11. Going in therefore he saluted him, and sayd : Ioy be to thee alwaies. 12. And Tobias sayd : What manner of ioy shal be to me, which sitte in darkenes, and see not the light of heauen? 13. To whom the yong man sayd : Be of good cheere, it is very neere that thou mayst be cured of God. 14. Tobias therefore sayd to him : Canst thou bring my sonne to Gabelus into Rages a citie of the Medes? and when thou shalt returne, I wil pay thee thy hyre. 15. And the Angel sayd to him : I wil

To whom (b) Raphael the Angel sayd: Seekest thou the kinred of an hyred seruant, or an hyred seruant himself, that may goe with thy sonne? 18. But lest perhaps I make thee careful, I am Azarias the sonne of Ananias the Great. 19. And Tobias answered: Thou art of a great kinred. But I pray thee be not angrie that I would know thy kinred. 20. And the Angel sayd to him: I wil lead thy sonne safe, and bring him to thee againe safe. 21. And Tobias answering, sayd: Wel may you walke, & God be in your iourney, and his Angel accompanie you. 22. Then all things being readie that were to be caried in the way, Tobias bid his father and his mother fare wel, & they walked both together. 23. And when they were departed, his mother began to weep, and to say: Thou hast taken the staffe of our old age, and sent him away from vs. 24. I would the money had neuer been, for the which thou hast sent him. 25. For our pouertie sufficed vs, that we might account this thing riches, that we saw our sonne. 26. And Tobias sayd to her: Weep not, our sonne shal come thither safe, and shal returne safe to vs, and thyne eies shal see him. 27. For I belieue that (c) the good Angel of God doth accompanie him, & doth wel dispose all things that are done about him, so that he shal returne to vs with ioy. 28. At this voyce his mother left weeping, and held her peace.

CHAP. VI.

By the Angels aduise yong Tobias apprehendeth a fish, that assaulteth him: 5. reserueth the hart, gal, and liuer for medicines. 10. They lodge at the house of Raguel, wh. se daughter Sara Tobias is to marie. 14. A diuel hath heretofore slaine her seuen husbands, 16. but shal not hurt him.

AND Tobias went forward, and a dog folowed him, and he made his first abode by the riuer of Tygris. 2. And he went out to waih his feet, and behold an huge fish came forth to deuoure him. 3. Of whom Tobias being affrayd, cryed out with a loud voice, saying: Sir, he inuadeth me. 4. And the Angel said to him: Take him by the gille, and draw him to thee. Which when he had done, he drew him on the drie land, and he began to struggle before his feet. 5. Then sayd the Angel to him: Take out the entrailles of this fish, and his hart, and gal, and liuer keep to thee: for these are necessarie & profitable for medecines. 6. Which when he had done, he rosted the (c) flesh therof, and they tooke it with them in the way: the rest they salted which might suffice them, til they came to Rages the citie of Medes. 7. Then Tobias asked the Angel, & said to him: I beseech thee brother Azarias, tel me what remedies shal these these things haue, which thou hast

And the Angel answering, sayd to him: If thou put a litle peece of his * hart vpon coales, the (d) smoke therof driueth out al kinde of diuels, either frō man or from woman, so that it cōmeth no more vnto them. 9. And the gale is available to annoynt the eies, in which there shal be white blemish, and they shal be healed. 10. And Tobias sayd to him: Where wilt thou that we tarie? 11. And the Angel answering, sayd: Here is one named Raguel, a nere kinsman of thy tribe, and he hath a daughter named Sara, and he hath neither man child, nor anie woman child beside her. 12. Al his substance is due to thee, and thou mayst take her to wife. 13. Aske her therefore of her father, and he wil giue her thee to wife. 14. Then Tobias answered, and sayd: I heare that she hath been deliuered to seuen husbands, and they are dead: yea and I haue heard, that a diuel killed them. 15. I am afrayd therefore, lest these things may happen to me also: & whereas I am the onlie childe of my parents, I may bring downe their old age with sorow vnto (e) hel. 16. Then the Angel Raphael sayd to him: Heare me, and I wil shewe thee who they are, on whom the diuel can preuaile. 17. For they that so receiue matrimonie, that they exclude God from themselves, & from their mind, & so giue themselves to their lust, as horse and mule, which haue not vnderstanding, ouer them the diuel hath power. 18. But thou when thou shalt take her, entering into the chamber, for three daies be continent from her, and thou shalt giue thy self to nothing els but to prayers with her. 19. And the same night, the * liuer of the fiend set on the fyre, the diuel shall be driuen away. 20. But the (f) second night thou shalt be admitted in the copulation of the holie Patriarchs. 21. And the third night thou shalt obreyne a blessing that sound children may be procreated of you. 22. And when the third night is past, thou shalt take the virgin with the feare of our Lord, moued rather for loue of children then for lust, that in the seed of Abraham thou mayst obtayne blessing in children.

And Raguel put forth himselfe, and with teares kissed him, and weeping vpon his necke, sayd: Blessing haue thou my sonne, because thou art the sonne of a good and most vertuous man. 8. And Anna his wife, and Sara their daughter wept. 9. And after they had talked, Raguel commanded a wether to be killed, and a banket to be prepared. And when he desired them to sitte downe to dinner, 10. Tobias sayd: I wil not eate nor drinke here this day, vnlesse thou first assure my petition, and promise to giue me Sara thy daughter. 11. Which word Raguel hearing, was sore afrayd, knowing what had chaced to those seuen husbands, which went in vnto her: and he began to feare lest perhaps it might chance to him also in like manner: and when he doubted, and (a) gaue no answer to him demanding, 12. the Angel sayd to him: Feare not to giue her to this man, for to him fearing God is thy daughter due to be his wife: therefore an other could not haue her. 13. And I belieue that therefore he hath made you come to me, that this mayde might be ioyned to her kinred, according to the law of Moyse: and now haue no doubt but I wil deliuer her to thee. 15. And taking his daughter by the right hand, gaue it into the right hand of Tobias, saying: The God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Iacob be with you, and he ioyne you together, and fulfil his blessing in you. 16. And taking paper they made a writing of the mariage. 17. And after these things they made merie, blessing God. 18. And Raguel called to him Anna his wife, and commanded her to prepare an other chamber. 19. And she brought Sara her daughter in thither, and she wept. 20. Tobias bruling part of the fishes liuer , Raphael bindeth the diuel. 4. Tobias and Sara pray. 11. Raguel fearing that Tobias is dead , maketh a graue for him, but vnderstanding that he is wel, filleth it vp againe , 21. prepareth a feast, giuerb the half of his goods presently for Saraes dowrie , the other halfe after her parents death.

AND after they had supped , they brought in the yong man to her. 2. Tobias therefore remembering the Angels word, brought forth out of his bag part of (a) the liuer, & layd it vpon liue coales. 3. Then Raphael the angel tooke the diuel , & bound him in the desert of higher Ægypt. 4. Then Tobias exhorted the virgin, & sayd to her: Sara arise, & let vs pray to God to day, and to morow, and the next morow: because these three nights we are ioyned to God: & when the third night is past, we wil be in our wedlocke. 5. For we are the children of holie men, and we may not be ioyned together as gētiles, that know not God. 6. And they rising together, prayed both together that health might be giuen them. 7. And Tobias sayd: Lord God of our fathers, the heauens, and the earth, and the sea, and fountaynes, and riuers, and al thy creatures that are in them, blesse thee. 8. Thou madest Adam of the slime of the earth, and gauest him Eue an helper. 9. And now Lord thou knowest, that not for fleishlie lust doe I take my silter to wife, but only for the loue of posteritie, in the which thy name may be blessed for euer & euer. 10. Sara also sayd. Haue mercie on vs Lord, haue mercie vpon vs, and let vs grow old both together in health. 11. And it came to passe about the cocks crowing, Raguel bad his seruants to be called for , and they went with him together to dig a graue. 12. For he sayd: Lest perhaps it may chance to him, as also to the other seuen husbands that went in vnto her. 13. And when they had prepared the pitte, Raguel returning to his wife, sayd to her: 14. Send one of thy handmayds, & let her see if he be dead, that I may burie him before it be day. 15. But she sent one of her handmayds, who going into the chamber, found them safe & sound, sleeping both together. 16. And returning she brought good tydings: and they blessed our Lord , to wit, Raguel & Anna his wife, 17. & said: We blesse thee Lord God of Israel, because it hath not chanced as we thought. 18. For thou hast done thy mercie with vs, & hast excluded from vs the enemy, that persecuted vs. 19. And thou hast taken pitie vpon two the (b) only children. Make them Lord blesse thee more fully, & to offer vp to thee a sacrifice of thy prayse, and of their health, that al nations may know , that thou art God onlie in al the earth. 20. And forthwith Raguel commanded his seruants, that they should fil vp the pitte which they had made , before it were day. 21. And he bad his wife make readie a feaft, and prepare al things, that for victuals were necessarie to them that goe a iourney. 22. He caused also two fatte kyne, and foure wethers to be killed, and great chere to be prepared for al his neighbours and al his freinds. 23. And Raguel adiured Tobias, that he should abide with him two weeks. 24. And of al things which Raguel possessed , he gaue the halfe part to Tobias , and made this writing, That the halfe part, which was remainyng after their decease, should come to the dominion of Tobias.

CHAP. IX.

The Angel Raphael goeth to Gabelus, receiueth the money , and bringeth him to the mariage. 8. They salure ech other , and Gabelus wisheth al prosperitie to yong Tobias and his spouse.

WHEN Tobias called the Angel to him, whom he thought to be a man, and he sayd to him : Brother Azarias , I pray thee harken to my words: 2. If I should deliuer my self to be thy seruant I inal not deserue thy prouidence. 3. Howbeit I beseech thee , that thou take vnto thee beasts and seruants , and goe to Gabelus into (a) Rages the cities of Medes : and render him his hand writing, and receiue of him the money , and desire him to come to my mariage. 4. For thy self knoweit that my father numbred the dayes : and if I slacke one day more , his soule is made sorowful. 5. And surely thou seest how Raguel hath adiured me, whose adiuring I can not dispise. 6. Then Raphael taking foure of Raguels seruants, and two camels, went into Rages the citie of Medes: & finding Gabelus gaue him his hand writing , and receiued of him al the money. 7. And he told him of Tobias the sonne of Tobias, al things that were done: & made him come with him to the mariage. 8. And when he was entred into Raguels house , he found Tobias sitting at the table : and he leaping vp, they kissed ech other : and Gabelus wept, and blessed God, 9. and sayd: The God of Israel blesse thee, because thou art the sonne of a verie good man, and iust, and that feareth God , and doth almes deeds: 10. and blessing be giuen vpon thy wife, and vpon your parents : 11. and that you may see your children , and your childrens children , vnto the third and fourth generation : and your seed be blessed of the God of Israel, who reigneth for euer and euer. 12. And when al had sayd, Amen, they went to the feaft: but with the feare of our Lord also did they celebrate the feaft of the mariage.

(a) The Angel went to the citie it-selfe called Rages, Tobias remaining in the territorie or prouince therof with Raguel, which place is also called Rages. 6. 3. 7. 7.

C H A P. X.

The parents lament the long absence of their sonne Tobias. 8. Whom when Raguel can not perswade to stay longer, 11. he wisheth much good vnto him and his wife, admonishing her to be dutiful in al things.

BV T when Tobias taried long¹¹ because of the mariage, Tobias his father was careful, saying: Why thinkest thou doth my sonne tarie, or why is he held there? 2. Is Gabelus dead thinkest thou, and no man wil restore him the money? 3. And he began to be sorowful exceedingly himselfe, and Anna his wife with him: & (4) they begā both to weep together: because their sonne did not returne to the day appointed. 4. His mother therefore wept with discomfortable teares, & sayd: Woe, woe is me, my sonne, why sent we thee to goe to a strange countrie, the light of our eies, the staffe of our old age, the comfort of our life, the hope of our posteritie? 5. We hauing al things together in thee onlie, ought not to haue let thee goe frō vs. 6. To whom Tobias said: Hold thy peace, and be not troubled, our sonne is safe, that man with whom we sent him is faithful enough. 7. Howbeit she could by no meanes be comforted, but dayly running out looked about, and went about al waies by which there seemed hope he would returne, that she might see him a far off, if it were possible, comming. 8. But Raguel sayd to his sonne in law: Tarie here, and I wil send a messenger to Tobias thy father, that thou art in health. 9. To whom Tobias sayd: I know that my father and my mother doe now count the dayes, and their spirite is tormented in them. 10. And when Raguel desired Tobias in manie words, and he by no meemes would heare him, he deliuered Sara vnto him, & the halfe part of al his substance in maen seruāts, & women seruants, in cattel, in camels, and in kine, and in much money and dismissed him safe and ioyful from him, 11. saying: The holie Angel of our Lord be in your iourney, and bring you through safe, and that you may finde al things wel about your parents, and myne eies may see your children before I die. 12. And the parents taking their daughter, kissed her, and let her goe: 13. admonishing her to honour her father and mother in law, to loue her husband, to rule the houthold, to gouerne the house, and to shew her selfe irreprehensible.

(4) Such of the Iewes as be- lieue in Christ hartily lament that he tarieth so long from their nation: Some more assuredly with old Tobias, others more doubtfully with his wife, expect his returne. S. Beda in Tobiam. Euen so the remnant of Catholikes in countries fallen to heresie haue great aduer and continual sorow in their hart (Rom. 9.) wishing (with what temporal losse soeuer) the saluation of their brethren, kinsmen, and countrymen: some hoping more confidently & comforting others that Christ wil againe illuminate our whole nation, as light was restored to old Tobias.

Tobias and Sara.

T. Varied long because of the Mariage.] Out of this example of a holie Mariage between yong Tobias and Sara, described in the five precedent Chapters, some special good lessons may be briefly gathered, for the instruction and consolation of such as are to marie, or be already married. Not that either al, or onlie the same obseruations pertheyne now to Christian Mariage, but that al Christians may see, how orderly godlie persons proceeded in making and performing this holie contract in the old Testament, and therby learne, that more perfection is required in Christian Marrimonie, being now (as then it was not) a holie Sacrament, signifying the Vnion between Christ and his Church: and giuing peculiar Grace to the parties (if themselues hinder it not) to beare more easily the incident burdens, and rightly to fulfil the proper duties of man and wife, according to the godlie instruction of the Roman Catechisme. Al that we thal here note, may be reduced to two heads, or principal parts. For in this Mariage there were certaine necessarie, and as it were essential points, without which it had not been a lawful nor right contract: Other accessarie ceremonies and Rites were also very conuenient, for the more solemnitic and better performance therof. As the like of both forts are now, but more perfect in Christian Mariages. In the former kind, first of al, the end of the Mariage was proposed by the Angel, and desired by the parties. chap. 6. v. 22. c. 8. v. 9. not for pleasure but for children and posteritie, by which God might be blessed and serued: Secondly, Mariage must be between lawful persons: For the seruants of God could not lawfully match, neither with Insidels, nor with ouer nere kinred, but in conuenient degrees, and that ordinarily in the same Tribe. chap 6. v. 11. ch. 7. v. 14. as the law of Moyses prescribed. Thirdly, the parties must giue and exprosse their mutual consent, and the good wil of parents was also requisite ch. 7. v. 10. 15. 20. These principal points premised; for the due solemnization other Rites were also adioyned. First, Raguel the maides father gaue his daughter taking her by the right hand, and so deliuered her into the right hand of Tobias. ch. 7. v. 15. as with vs the father, or neer freind of the woman, giueth her to be married to such a man. Secondly, her father prayed that it might wel succeed, ibidem and so dee al freinds now, especially the Priest by the publike prayers of the Church. The third rite, the couenants of Mariage were made, with assignement of dowrie, also written, ch. 7. v. 16. & sealed, as the * Hebrew and Greeke text witneise. The fourth, Inuitation of freinds to the Mariage. ch. 8. v. 2. ch. 5. v. 3. The fifth, They made a feast which commonly dured seuen dayes, but here fourteen. ch. 8. v. 23 for the double ioy of the marriage, & expulsion of the diuel. But though the feast continued long, yet was it most moderate and sober, with feare of our Lora the: celebrated the feast of the Mariage ch. 9. v. 12. Platon a heathen Philosopher, li. 6. de legibus, prescribeth what temperance in meate & drinke, and what modestie of behauiour, are required in marriage feasts. Whose excellent sentence F. Serrarius in Tob. 10 reciteth. The sixth rite, the bringing of the bride to her chamber ch. 7. v. 19. The Catholike Church hath a particular forme of blessing the bridal chamber. The seuenth, Tobias and Sara obserued three dayes continencie after the Mariage. ch. 6. v. 18. ch. 8. v. 4. which now is commended by way of counsel, not of precept. The eight, Tobias obserued that which the Angel aduised him, in burning the luer of the fish vpon Leauing Sara with the rest of the companie, and the flocke to sobow, the Angel Raphael and Tobias goe before, 5. are ioyfully receiued, 8. Tobias annointeth his fathers eies with the fishes gal, and he seeth. 18. Sara arriveth seven dayes after with her familie and cattle.

AND when they returned they came to Chacan, which is in the mid-way against Ninive, the eleuenth day. 2. And the Angel said: Brother Tobias thou knowest how thou didest leaue thy father. 3. If it please thee therefore, let vs goe before, and let the families folow softly after vs, together with thy wife, and with the beasts. 4. And when this pleased him that they should goe, Raphael sayd to Tobias: Take with thee of the gal of the fish: for it shal be necessarie. Tobias therefore tooke of that gal and they departed. 5. But Anna fate beside the way dayly, in the top of a hil, from whence she might see a far off. 6. And whiles she watched his comming out of that place, she saw a far off, and by and by perceiued her sonne comming: and running she told her husband saying: Behold thy sonne commeth. 7. And Raphael said to Tobias: But when thou art entred into thy house forthwith adore our Lord thy God: and giuing thanks to him goe to thy father, and kisse him. 8. And immediately annointe vpon his eies of this gal of the fish, which thou cariest with thee. For know thou that forthwith his eies shal be opened, and thy father shal see the light of heauen, and shal reioice in the sight of thee. 9. Then ranne (a) the dog before, which had been with them in the way, and comming as it were a messenger with the fawning of his taylor reioyced. 10. And his father that was blind ryng vp began to runne stumbling with his teet: and giuing a seruant his hand, went to meet his sonne. 11. And receiuing him kissed him, with his wife, and they began both to weep for ioy. 12. And when they had adored God, and giuen thanks, they fate downe together. 13. Then Tobias taking of the gal of the fish, annoynted his fathers eies. 14. And he stayed as it were almost haife an houre: and the white blemish began to come out of his eies, as it were the skin of an egge. 15. Which Tobias taking drew from his eies, and immediately

(b) he receiued sight. 16. And they glorified God, to wit, himself and his wife, and al that knew him. 17. And Tobias sayd: I blesse thee Lord God of Israel, because thou hast chastised me, and thou hast saued me: and behold I see Tobias my sonne. 18. After seuen daies also came in Sara his sones wife, & al the familie safe, & cartel, & the camels, and much money of his wiues: and that money also, which he had receiued of Gabelus: 19. and he told his parents al the benefits of God, which he had done to him by the man that conducted him. 20. And Achior and Nabath Tobias sisters sonnes came, reioycing at Tobias, and congratulating him for al good things that God had shewed towards him. 21. And for seuen daies making good chere, they reioyced al with great ioy.

C H A P. XII.

Old Tobias and his sonne offer the halfe of al the goods which they had newly receiued, to Raphael, for his wages. 6. Who then declareth to them that he was sent from God to helpe them, 15. and that he is an Angel. 20. He parteth away, and they render thanks to God.

(a) Grateful Tobias recounteth seuen benefits received by the companion of his journey, and that they haue received (not manie but) al good things by him.

(b) Fasting and almes are as two wings with which prayer flyeth into heauen.

THEN Tobias called to him his sonne, and sayd to him: What my we giue to this holie man, that is come with thee? 2. Tobias answering, said to his father: Father what reward that we giue him? or what can be worthie of his benefits? 3. He hath * led me & brought me agayne safe, he * receiued the money of Gabelus, he * caused me to haue my wife, and the * euil spirit he chased from her, he * made ioy vnto her parents, my self he * deliuered from being deuoured of the fish, * thee also he hath made to see the light of heauen, and we are replenished with (a) al good things by him. What can we giue him worthie for these things? 4. But I beseech thee my father, that thou desire him, if perhaps he wil voutsafe to take vnto him the one halfe of al things which are brought. 5. And they calling him, to wit the father and the sonne, tooke him aside: and began to desire him that he would voutsafe to accept the halfe part of al things, that they had brought. 6. Then he sayd to them secretly: Blesse ye the God of heauen, and before al that liue confesse to him, because he hath done mercie with you. 7. For to hide the secret of a King is good: but to reueale and confesse the works of God is an honourable thing. 8. (b) Prayer is good with fasting and almes, rather then to lay vp treasures of gold: 9. because almes deliuereth from death, and that is it which purgeth sinnes, and maketh to finde mercie and life euerlasting. 10. But they that commit sinne and iniquitie, are enemies to their owne soule. 11. I open therefore vnto you the truth, and I wil not hide frō you the secret word. 12. When thou didst pray with teares, and didst burie the dead, and left thy dinner, and didest hide the dead by day in thy house, and by night didst burie them, " I (c) offered thy prayer to our Lord. 13. And because thou wast acceptable to God, it was necessarie that tentation should proue thee. 14. And now our Lord sent me to cure thee, and to deliuer Sara thy sonnes wife from the diuel. 15. For I am Raphael an Angel, one of the seuen, which assist before our Lord. 16. And when they had heard these things, they were troubled, and trembling fel vpon the ground on their face. 17. And the Angel sayd to them: Peace be to you, feare not. 18. For when I was with you, by the wil of God I was so: blesse ye him, and sing to him. 19. I seemed indeed to eat with you, and to drinke: but I vse an inuisible meate and drinke, which cannot be seen of men. 20. It is time therefore that I returne to him, that sent me: but blesse ye God, and tel al his maruelous works. 21. And when he had sayd these things, he was taken from their sight, and they could see him no more. 21. Then prostrate for three houres vpon their face, they blessed God: and rising vp, they told al his maruelous workes.

c) O how sweet (or excellent) a thing is it (saith S. Aug. serm. 3. de Natiuit.) when Angels guardians of our life offer our vōves (or resolution to flye vices and embrace vertues) before the sight of Gods Maicesty!

C H A P. XII.

12. I offered thy prayer to our Lord.] Here the Angel Raphael reporteth certaine good offices, which he had done for Tobias. He did other like for his sonne, and for Raguel, and his daughter, which are likewise recorded in this Book. And the whole world, especially Gods seruants, receiue continual great benefits by holie Angels, as partly may be gathered in this holie historie, and more els-where. For first the office of Angels is, to assist, or be alwayes readie, as most diligent seruitours of God, expecting what his diuine goodnes wil appoint them, whither to goe, and what to doe for the benefite of men: as holie Raphael was sent, when yong Tobias wanted a guide. Secondly, Angels offer the prayers of the faithful, or as the Greeke text readeth, v. 15. Angels present the prayers of Saints, that is, of godlie men and women to God: so Raphael testifieth here himself, that he offered Tobias prayers to our Lord. Thirdly, Angels ayde and assist those that loue puritie of life, sincere seruice of God, hate vice, embrace vertue, and doe works of mercie; so Raphael assisted Tobias, when he traueled to burie the dead, flying from the Kings turie, and hiding himself, ch. 1. v. 21. 23. Fourthly, Angels exhort to good works, as in this chapter, v. 6. 8. 9. 10. 18. Fifthly, they suggest and instruct what to doe, ch. 6. v. 4. 5. Raphael taught yong Tobias to take the fish, vnbowel him, reserue parts thereof, v. 11. 12. 13. aduised him to lodge at Raguels house, to demand Sara to wife, and v. 6. 17. instructed him, against whom diuels haue power. Sixthly, they expel diuels from persons, and places, ch. 8. v. 3. Raphael tooke and bound the diuel Asmodeus in the desert of higher Egypt. Sevently, they deliuer men from dangers & euils, c. 6. v. 3. as when the great fish assaulted Tobias, & Sara from molestation and slander, and old Tobias from blindnes. chap. 3 v. 10. ch. 11. v. 8. ch. 12. v. 14.

Confesse to our Lord in thy good things, and blesse the God of the worlds, that he may (c) reedefie his tabernacle in thee, and may cal backe al the captives to thee, and thou mayst reioyce for euer and euer. 13. Thou shalt shine with a glorious light: and al the coasts of the earth shall adore thee. 14. Cursed shall they be that shall contemne thee: and damned shall they be that shall blaspheme thee: and blessed shall they be that shall build thee. 17. And thou shalt reioyce in thy children, because they shall al be blessed, and shall be gathered together to our Lord. 18. Blessed are al that loue thee, and that reioyce vpon thy peace. 19. My soule, blesse thou our Lord, because he hath deliuered Ierusalem his citie (d) from al her tribulations, the Lord our God. 20. Blessed shall I be if there shall remayne of my seed, to see the glorie of Ierusalem. 21. The gates of Ierusalem shall be built of Saphire and the Emeraude: and al the compasse of the wals therof of pretious stone. 22. C H A P. XIII.

Old Tobias dieth at the age of an hundred and two yeares, 5. exhorteth his sonne and nephewes to pietye, forshewing that Ninie shall be destroyed, and Ierusalem reedified. 14. Yonger Tobias returneth with his familie to Raguel, and dieth happily as he had liued.

AND the words of Tobias were ended. And after that Tobias was restored to his sight, he liued two and fourtie yeares, and saw the children of his nephewes. 2. Therefore an hundred and two yeares being accomplished, he was buried honourably in Niniue. 3. For being six and fiftie yeares old he lost the sight of his eyes, and being threescore he received it agayne. 4. And the rest of his life was in ioy, and with great increase of the feare of God he went forward in peace. 5. And at the houre of his death he called vnto him Tobias his sonne, and his feuen yong sonnes, his nephewes, and sayd to them: 6. The destruction of Niniue is neere: for the word of our Lord fayleth not: and our brethren, which are disperfed from the land

And al the desert land therof shal be replenished, & the house of God which is burnt in it, shal agayne be reedified: and thither shal al returne that feare God, 8. and the Gentiis shal forsake their idols, and shal come into Ierusalem; and shal inhabite in it, 9. and (a) al the Kings of the earth shal reioyce in it, adoring the King of Israel. 10. Heare ye therefore my children your father: serue our Lord in truth, and: (b) seeke to doe the things that please him: 11. and command your children that they doe iustices, and almes-deeds, that they be mindful of God, and blesse him at al time in truth, and in al their power. 12. Now therefore children heare me, and doe not tarie here: but what day soeuer you shal burie your mother by me in one sepulchre, from thenceforth direct your steps to depart hence: 13 for I see that the iniquitie therof wil giue it an end. 14. And it came to passe after the death of his mother, Tobias departed out of Ninieue with his wife, and children, and childrens children, and returned to his father and mother in law. 15. And he found them in health in good old age: and he tooke care of them, and he closed their eies: and al the inheritance of Raguels house he receiued: and he saw the fifth generation, his childrens children. 16. And nintie nine yeares being accomplished in the feare of our Lord, with ioy they buried him. 17. And (c) al his kintred, and al his generation continued in good life, and in holie conuersation, so that they were acceptable both to God, and to men, and to al the inhabitants in the land.

THE ARGUMENT OF THE BOOK OF I V D I T H.

*S*AINTE Ierom sometime supposed this booke not to be canonical, but afterwarā finding that the Council of Nice accounted it in the number of holie Scriptures, he so esteemea it, and therupon not only translated it into Latin, out of the Caldee tongue, wherein it was first written, but also as occasion required alleadged the same as diuine Scripture, and sufficient to conuince matters of faith in controuersie. For otherwise his opposing the authoritie of the Nuē Council, shoulta proue nothing at al against the lewes, seeing also they acknowledge this booke amōgst Agiographa (or holie writtes) but lesse fitte (say they) to strēgthen those things which come into cōtentiō. whereby is clere that S. Ierom thenceforth held it for diuine Scripture. As further appeareth in his cōment.

S. Ierome for the aurnoricie of the Council of Nice, held this Book to be canonical, which before he did not.

caries in Isaie 14. more expressly Epist. ad Principiā, he counted it in rāke with other Scriptures wherof none doubteth, saying: Ruth, Esther, Iudith were of so great renoume, that they gaue the names to sacred volumes. And in this Preface doubted not to say: that the rewarder of Iudiths chastitie (God himself) gaue her for imitation not only to women, but also to men: gaue her such vertue that she ouerthrew him, whom none could ouercome, and conquered the inuincible. Also B-fore the Council, Origen in c. 14. Iudith, Tertullian de Monogamia c. vlt. and diuers whom S. Hilarie citeth, and dissenteth not from them, Prologo in Psalmos, held this Book for Canonical. Manie more writers likewise about the same Council, and after so account it. Prudentius in Phychomachia pudicitia & libidinis: Chromatius in c. 6. Mat. Paulinus in Natali. 10. S. Chrysofom hom. 10. in Math. S. Ambrose li. 3. Offic. c. 13. Epist. 82. & li. de vitiis. S. Augustin (or some other good author) writte two sermons of Iudith, 228. 229. Cassiodorus diuini lect. c. 6. Concerning the time, and authour, it seemeth most probable that these things happened whe Manasses King of Iuda was either in prison in Babylon, or newly restored to his Kingdom, who as it seemeth permitted the gouernemēt to the high Priest Eliachim (Ch. 4.) otherwise called Ioachim (ch. 15.) who also writte this Book, as Philos Chronologie, li. 2. reporteth. From which time they had no warres til the reigne of Ioachaz: about 80. yeares, conformable to the long peace mentioned chap. 16. v. 30. In summe we haue here, not a poetical Comedie (as Martin Luther shameth not to call it, in Simposiacis, c. 29. and in his German Preface of Iudith) but a sacred Historie (as al aforementioned esteemed it, & the Iewes confesse) of a most valiant Matrons fact, deliuering the people of God from persecution of a cruel Tyrant. The first three chapters shew the occasion of this danger: the next foure describe the difficulties & distresses thereof: other seuen with part of the 5. how Iudith deliuered them from it. In the rest Iudith is much praysed, and she with the whole people prayse God.

Other Doctours both before and after the council of Nice accounted this Book canonical.

The first part.

The occasion of the Jewes persecution at this time.

(a) The author being resolved to write this historie, joyneeth his narration to his internal purpose saying:

Arphaxad therefore &c. S. Greg. 10. 2. in Izech.

b Thou foole this night they shall take thy life from thee, & these things whose shall they be? Lnc. 12. v. 20.

Nabuchodonosor King of the Assyrians overcommeth Arphaxad King of the Medes: 7. summoneth manie other nations to submit themselves to his Empire: 11. which they refusing he threatmeth reuenge.

ARPHAXAD (a) therefore King of the Medes had subdued manie nations to his empire, and he built a most mightie citie, which he called Ecbatanis, 2. of stones squared and hewed: he made walles therof in height seuentie cubits, and in breadth thirtie cubits, and the towers therof he made in height an hundred cubits. 3. But each side of them was in foure square twentie foote long, and he made the gates therof according to the height of the towers: 4. and he (b) gloried as mightie in the force of his armie, and in the glorie of his chariots. 5. In the twelfth yeare of his reigne: Nabuchodonosor the King of the Assyrians, who reigned in Niniue the great citie, fought against Arphaxad, and ouercame him 6. in the great field, which is called Ragau, about Euphrates, and Tigris, and Iadalon in the field of Erioch the King of the Elicians. 7. Then was the Kingdom of Nabuchodonosor exalted, and his hart was eleuated: and he sent to al that dwelt in Cilicia and Damascus, and Libanus, 8. and to the nations, that are in Carmelus, and Cedar, and the inhabitants of Galilee in the great field of Esdreton, 9. and to al that were in Samaria, and beyond the riuer Jordan euen to Ierusalem, and al the land of Iesse til you come to the borders of Æthiopia. 10. To al these Nabuchodonosor King of the Assyrians sent messengers: 11. Who al with one mind said nay, and sent them backe emptie, and reiected them without honour. 12. Then Nabuchodonosor the King taking indignation against al that land, swore by his throne and Kingdome that he would * reuenge himselfe of al those countries.

Nabuchodonosor sendeth Holofernes his General to wast al countries of the west, 7. with a great armie, and abundant munition. 11. They subdue manie places, and others are strucken with great feare.

N the thirteenth yeare of King Nabuchodonosor, the two and twentieth day of the first month, the word was giuen out in the house of Nabuchodonosor the King of the Assyrians, that he would reuenge himself. 2. And he called al the ancients, & al the captaynes, and his men of warre, and communicated with them the secret of his counsel: 3. & he said that his cogitation was vpon that, to subdue al the earth to his empire. 4. Which saying when it had pleased them al, Nabuchodonosor the King called Holofernes the General of his warres, 5. and said to him: Goe forth against euerie Kingdome of the west, and against them espeially, that contemned my cōmandment. 6. (4) Thyne eie shal spare no Kingdome, and euerie fenced citie thou shalt subdue to me. 7. Then Holofernes called the captaynes and magistrates of the power of the Assyrians: and he mustred men for the expedition, as the King commanded him, an hundred twentie thousand fighting men on foot, and twelue thousand archers horsemen. 8. And he made al his expedition to goe before in a multitude of innumerable camels, with those things that might suffice the armies abundantly, heards of oxen also, & flocks of sheep, which had no number. 9. He appointed corne to be prepared out of al Syria in his passage. 10. But gold & siluer he took out of the Kings house exceeding much. 11. And he went forth and al the armie, with the chariots, & horsemen, & the archers, which couered the face of the earth as locusts. 12. And when he had passed through the coasts of the Assyrians he came to the great mountaines of Ange, which are on the left hand of Cilicia: and he went vp into al their castles, and wonne euerie fortresse. 13. And he brake downe the renowned citie of Melothus, and spoyled al the children of Tharsis, and the children of Ismael, which were against the face of the desert, and on the south of the land of Cellon. 14. And he passed ouer Euphrates, & came into Mesopotamia: & he brake al the high cities, that were there, from the torrent of Membre, til ye come to the sea: 15. and he tooke the borders therof, from Cilicia vnto the coasts of Iapheth, which are toward the south. 16. And he caried away al the children of Madian, & spoyled al their riches, and al that resisted him he slew in the edge of the sword. 17. And after these things he went downe into the fields of Damascus in the daies of haruest, and he set al the corne on fire, & he made al the trees and vineyards to be cut downe; 18. and the feare of him fel vpon al the inhabitants of the land.

WHEN the Kings and Princes of al cities and Prouinces, namely of Syria and Mesopotamia, and Syria Sobal, and Libya, and Cilicia sent their embassadours, which comming to Holofernes, sayd: 2. Let thy indignation toward vs cease: For it is better that liuing we feare Nabuchodonosor the great King, and be subiect to thee, then dying, we should with our destruction suffer the damages of our seruitude. 3. Euerie citie of ours, and al our possession, al mountaynes, and hils, and fields, and heards of oxen, and flocks of sheep, and goats, and of horses, and camels, and al our goods, and families are in thy sight: 4. let al our things be vnder thy law. 5. We also, and our children are thy seruants. 6. Come to vs a peaceable Lord, and vse our seruice, as it shall please thee. 7. Then went he downe fro the mountaynes with horsemen in a great power, and tooke euerie citie, and euerie inhabiter of the land. 8. And of al the cities he tooke to helpe him valiant men, and chosen for battel. 9. And so great feare lay vpon al those Prouinces, that the inhabitants of al cities, Princes, and honourable persons, together with the people went out to meet him comming, 10. receyuing him with garlands, and torches, dauncing with timbrels, and thaulmes. 11. Neither doing these things, could they for al that mitigate the fiercenesse of his stomacke: 12. for he did both destroy their cities, and cut downe their groues. 13. For Nabuchodonosor the King had commanded him, that he should destroy al the Cods of the earth, that. (4) he only might be called God of those nations, which could be subdued with the might of Holofernes. 14. And passing through al Syria Sobal, and al Apamea, and al Mesopotamia, he came to the Idumeians into the land of Gabaa, 15. and tooke their cities, and sate there for thirtie dayes, in which daies he commanded al the armie of his power to be vnitied.

The children of Israel exceedingly fearing Holofernes forces. 3. prouide to resist him, by the exhortation of the High Priest, vsing both humane 8. and diuine meanes.

HEN the children of Israel, which dwelt in the Land of Iuda, hearing these things, were fore afrayd of his presence. 2. Trembling also, & horroure inuaded their senses, lest he would doe that to Ierusalem and to the temple of our Lord, which he had done to other cities, & their temples. 3. And they sent into al Samaria round about, as far as Iericho, and preoccupied al the toppes of mountaynes: 4. and they compassed their townes with wals, and gathered together corne for prouision of battel. 5. Eliachim (4) the Priest wrote to al, that were againt Efdrelon, which is againt the face of the great field beside Dothain, and to al, by whom there might be passage of way, 6. that they should take the ascets of the mountaynes, by which there might be way to Ierusalem, and should keep watch, where the way was narrow between the mountaynes. 7. And the children of Israel did according as the Priest of our Lord, Eliachim had appointed them. 8. And al the people cried to our Lord with great instance, and they humbled their soules in fastings, and prayers, they and their wiues. 9. And the Priests put on haire-cloths, and they laide the infants prostrate againt the face of the temple of our Lord, and the altar of our Lord they couered with haire-cloth: 10. and they cried to our Lord the God of Israel with one accord, that their infants might not be giuen into praye, and their wiues into spoile, & their cities into destruction, and their holie things into pollution, and they be made a reproch to the Gentiles. 11. Then Eliachim the high Priest of our Lord went about al Israel and spake to them, 12. saying: Know ye, that our Lord wil heare your prayers, if continuing you continue in fastings and prayers in the sight of our Lord. 13. Be mindful of Moyse the seruant of our Lord, who ouerthrew Amalec trusting in his power, and in his might, and in his armie, & in his shields, and in his chariots, and in his horsemen, not by fighting, but with holie pray-

They therefore at this exhortatiō of his, beseeching our Lord, continued in the fight of our Lord, 16. so that they also which offered the holocausts to our Lord, did offer the sacrifices to our Lord girded with haire-clothes, and there were ashes vpon their head. 17. And they al prayed God with al their hart, that he would visite his people Israel.

Holofernes hearing that the Israelites prepare to resist him, in great rage demandeth diuers particulars concerning that people. 5. Achior an Ammonite telleth the meruelous works of God towards them, 22. aduiseth him not to fight against them. 26. The chief capitaines are offended, and threaten Achior.

AND it was told Holofernes the General of the warres of the Assyrians, that the children of Israel prepared themselves to resist, and had shut vp the wayes of the mountaynes, 2. and with exceeding furie he chafed in great anger, & called al the Princes of Noab and dukes of Ammon, 3. and he sayd to them: Tel me (4) what is this people which besetteth the mountaynes: or what, and of what sort, and how great their cities are: also what their power is, or what is their multitude: or who is the King of their warfare: 4. and why aboue al that dwel in the East, haue these contemned vs, & haue not come forth to meet vs, that they might receiue vs with peace? 5. The Achior capitaine of al the children of Ammon answering, said: If thou voutlate my Lord to heare, I wil tel the truth in thy sight, of this people, which dwelleth in the mountaynes, & there shall not a false word come forth of my mouth. 6. This people is of the progenie of the Chaldees. 7. The same dwelt first in Mesopotamia, because they would not folow the Gods of their fathers, which were in the land of the Chaldees. 8. Forsaking therefore the ceremonies of their fathers, which were in multitude of Gods, 9. they worshipped one God of heauen, who also commanded them that they should depart from thence, and should dwel in Charan. And when there was famine ouer al the land, they went downe into Ægypt, and there for foure hundred yeares were so multiplied, that the host of them could not be numbred. 10. And when the King of Ægypt oppressed them, and in the buildings of his cities had subdued them in brick and claye, they cried to their Lord, and he stricke the whole Land of Ægypt with diuers plagues. 11. And when the Ægyptians had cast them out from them, and the plague had ceased from them, and they would take them againe, and cal them backe to their seruice, 12. these flying away, the God of heauen opened the sea, so that the waters were * consolidated as a wal, on either side, and they walking through the botome of the sea passed drie-foot. 23. In which place whiles an innumerable armie of the Egyptians pursued them, they were so ouerwhelmed with the waters, that there was not one remayning, to tel the fact to posteritie. 14. Also being past the red sea, they possessed the deserts of Mount Sinai, in which neuer man could dwel, or sonne of man rested. 15. There bitter fountaines were made sweet for them to drinke, and for fourtie yeares they receiued meate from heauen. 16. Wherefoeuer they entered without bow and arrow, and without shielde and sword, their God fought for them, and ouercame. 17. And there was not that did insult against this people, but when they departed from the worship of the Lord their God. 18. But as often as beside their owne God they worshiped another, they were giuen to prey, and into the sword, and to reproch. 19. And as often as they were penitēt for that they reuolted from the worship of their God, the God of heauen gaue them power to resist. 20. Finally the King of the Chananites, and of the Iebuseites, and of the Pherezeites, and of the Hetheites, and of the Heueites, and of the Amorrhites, and al the mightie in Hesebon they ouerthrew, and they possessed their lands, and their cities: 21. and as long as they sinned not in the sight of their God, it was wel with them, for their God hateth iniquitie. 22. For (v) these yeares also past when they had reuolted from the way, which God had giuen them, that they should walke in it, they were destroyed in battels by manie nations, and verie manie of them were led captiue into a strange land. 23. But of late returning to the Lord their God, from the disperion wherein they were disperfed, they are vnited and are come vp into al al these mountaynes, and possesse Ierusalem againe where their Holies are. 24. Now therefore my Lord, search if there be any iniquitie of theirs in the sight of their God: and let vs goe vp to them, because their God deliuering wil deliuer them to thee, and they shal be subdued vnder the yoke of thy power: 25. but if there be no offence of this people before their God, we can not resist them, because their God wil defend them:

 and we shal be a reproch to the whole earth. 26. And it came to passe, when Achior had ceased to speake these words, al the great men of Holofernes were angrie, and they thought to kil him, saying to each other: 27. (c) who is this, that sayth the children of Israel can resist King Nabuchodonosor, and his armies, men vnarmed, and without force, and without skil of the feates of warre? 28. That Achior therefore may know that he deceiueth vs, let vs goe vp into the mountaynes: and when their mightie ones shal be taken, then shal he with them be strucken through with the sword: 29. that euerie nation may know that Nabuchodonosor is God of the earth, and besides him there is none other.

Holofernes in great rage sendeth Achior to Bethulia, that he may there be slaine with the Israelites. 8. He is left bound to a tree, 10. from whence the Israelites taking him, he telleth them the cause. 14. They entertaine him courteously, and earnestly pray to God for helpe.

Nabuchodonosors vassals would haue no other God but him. And God Almighty is also ielous and wil haue no God but himselfe.

AND it came to passe when they had ceased to speake, Holofernes being sore offended, said to Achior: 2. Because thou hast prophesied vnto vs saying, that the nation of Israel is defended of their God, that I may shew thee (4) that there is no God but Nabuchonosor, 3. when we shal haue stricke them al as one man, then thy self with them shalt die by the sword of the Assyrians, & al Israel with thee shalt perish by destruction: 4. and thou shalt proue that Nabuchonosor is Lord of the whole earth: and then the sword of my warfare shal passe through thy sides, & pearced thou shalt fall among the wounded of Israel, & thou shalt no more fetch breath, til thou be destroyed with them. 5. But if thou thinke thy prophesie true, let not thy countenance quaille, and the palenesse that is in thy face, let it depart from thee, if thou thinke these my words can not be accomplished. 6. And that thou mayst know that thou shalt proue these things together with them, behold from this houre thou shalt be associate to their people, that whiles they shal receiue worthie punishment of my sword, thou withal may be subiect to the vengeance. 7. Then Holofernes comanded his seruants that they should take Achior, and lead him into Bethulia, & should deliuer him into the handes of the children of Israel. 8. And the seruants of Holofernes taking him, went through the champaine: but when they came nere the mountaynes, the slingers came forth against them. 9. And they returning out of the way by the side of the mountayne, tyed Achior to a tree hand and foote, and so left him bound with withes, and returned to their Lord. 10. Moreouer the children of Israel descending from Bethulia, came to him. Whom loosing they brought to Bethulia, and setting him in the middes of the people, demanded what was the matter, that the Assyrians had left him bound. 11. In those dayes the Princes there, were Ozias the sonne of Micha of the tribe of Simeon, and Charmi, who also is Gothoniel. 12. In the middes therefore of the ancients, and in the sight of al, Achior told al things that he had spoken being asked of Holofernes: and how the people of Holofernes would haue killed him for this word, 13. and how Holofernes himselfe being angric comanded him to be deliuered for this cause to the Israelites: that when he should ouercome the children of Israel, then he might command Achior also himself to die by diuerse torments, for this that he had said: The God of heauen is their defender. 14. And when Achior had declared al these things, al the people fel on their face, adoring our Lord, and with common lamentation and weeping they powred out their prayers with one accord to our Lord, 15. saying: Lord God of heauen and earth, behold (b) their pride, and haue regard to (c) our humilitie, and attend (d) the face of thy saints, and shew that (e) thou forsakest not them that presume of thee, and that thou humblest them that presume of themselues, and glorie of their power. 16. Their weeping therefore being ended, and the peoples prayer by the whole day being finished, they comforted Achior, 17. saying: The God of our fathers, whose power thou hast set forth, he wil giue thee this recompence, that thou rather shalt see their destruction. 18. And when the Lord our God shal giue this libertie to his seruants, be God with thee also in the middes of vs: that as it shal please thee, so thou with al thine maist conuerse with vs. 19. Then Ozias, the counsel being ended, receiued him into his house, and made him a great supper. 20. And al the ancients being called, they refreshed theselues together after the fasting was ended. 21. But afterward al the people was called together, & al the night long within the Church, they prayed desiring helpe of the God of Israel.

Holofernes besiegeth Bethulia, 6. cutteth their conduite of water, 9. keepeth their fountaines. 12. The people murmure ana mutenie, 18. yet they pray to God, 23. and the high Priest determineth, if aide come not within five dayes, to deliuer the citie to the Affyrians.

VT Holofernes the next day commanded his armies, that they should goe vp against Bethulia. 2. And there were of warre foote-men an hundred twentic thousand, and horse-men two and twentic thousand, besides the preparations of those men, whom the captiuitie had taken, and had been led away out of the Prouinces & cities, of al youth. 3. Al prepared themselues together to the fight agaynst the children of Israel, and they came by the hil side vnto the top, which looketh toward Dothaim, from the place which is called Belma vnto Chelmon, which is against Esdrelon. 4. But (a) the children of Israel, as they saw the multitude of them, laid themselues prostrate vpon the earth, casting athes vpon their heads, praying with one accord, that the God of Israel would shew his mercie vpon his people. 5. And taking their weapons of warre, they sate at the places, which by a narrow path-way lead directly between the mountaynes, and they were keeping them all day and night. 6. Moreouer Holofernes, whiles he compasseth round about, found that the fountayne which ranne in, went directly to their conduit on the south side without the citie: and he commanded their conduit to be cut asunder. 7. Neuerthelesse there were fountaynes not far from the wals, out of which secretly they seemed to draw water to refresh themselves, rather then to drinke. 8. But the children of Ammon and Moab came to Holofernes, saying: The children of Israel trust not in speare, nor in arrow, but the mountaynes defend them, and the hills standing meruelous stipe gard them. 9. Therefore that thou mayst overcome them without ioyning battel, set keepers of the fountaynes, that they may not draw water of them, and without sword thou shalt kil them, or at the least being wearied they wil yeald their citie, which they thinke being set in the mountaynes, can not be overcome: 10. And these words pleased Holofernes and his souldiers, and he placed round about an hundred men at euerie fountayne. 11. And when that watch had been fully kept for twentie dayes, the cisternes fayled, and the collections of waters to al the inhabitants of Bethulia, so that there was not within the citie wherof they might be satisfied, no not for one day, because water was dayly giuen to the people by measure. 12. Then al the men, and women, yong men, and children, being gathered together to (b) Ozias, al together with one voice, 13. said: God iudge between vs and thee, because thou hast done euil agaynst vs, in that thou wouldest not speake peaceably with the Assyrians, and for this cause God hath sold vs into their hands. 14. And there is none to helpe, wheras we lye prostrate before their ctes in thirst, and great destruction. 15. And now assemble ye al, that are in the citie, that we may of our owne accord yeald vs al to the people of Holofernes. 16. For it is better, that captiues we blesse our Lord liuing, then we should die, and be a reproch to al flesh, when we shal see our wiues and our infants die before our eyes. 17. We cal to witnes this day heauen and earth, and the God of our fathers, which taketh vengeance of vs according to our sinnes, that now you deliuer the citie into the hand of Holofernes armie, that our end may be short in the edge of the sword, which is made longer in the drought of thirst. 18. And when they had said these thing, s there was made great weeping and howling of al in the assembly, and for manie houres with one voice they cried to God, saying: 19. We haue sinned with our fathers, we haue done vniustly, we haue committed iniquitie. 20. Thou because thou art gracious, haue mercie vpon vs, or in thy scourge reuenge our iniquities, and deliuer not them that trust in thee to a people, that knoweth thee not, 21. that they say not among the Gentils: Where is their God? 22. Iudith a most vertuous , rich , sayre , and renowned widow , 9. rebuketh the high Priest and ancients , for their determination to deliuer the citie , if ayde come not in five daies : 14. exhorteth al to penance. 28. They al agree to her godlie advise, 30. praying for good successe of her intencion , which they yet know not.

The third part. Iudith deliuereth her whole nation frō persecution.

AND it came to passe, when Iudith a widow had heard these words, which was the daughter of Merari, the sonne of Idox, the sonne of Ioseph, the sonne of Ozias, the sonne of Elai, the sonne of Iamnor, the sonne of Gedeon, the sonne of Raphaim, the sonne of Achitob, the sonne of Melchias, the sonne of Enan, the sonne of Nathanas, the sonne of Salathiel, the sonne of Simeon, the sonne of Israel: 2. and her husband was Manasses, who died in the daies of barley haruest: 3. for he was occupied with them that bound sheues in the field, and the heate came vpon his head, and he died in Bethulia his citie, and was buried there with his father. 4. And Iudith was leaft his widow now three yeares & six months. 5. And in the higher parts of her house she made her self (a) a secret chamber, in which she abode shut vp with her maides, 6. and hauing (b) cloth of haire vpon her loynes, she (c) fasted al the dayes of her life, but Sabbaths, and * new moones, and the feasts of the house of Israel. 7. And she was of an exceeding beautiful countenance, to whom her husband had leaft much richesse, & a great familie, and possessions ful of heards of oxen, and flocks of sheep. 8. And she was among al most famous, because she feared our Lord very much, neither was there that spake an il word of her. 9. When she therefore had heard that Ozias had promised, that after the fifth day were past he would yeald the citie, she sent to the ancients Chabri & Charani. 10. And they came to her, and she said to them: What is this word, wherein Ozias hath consented, to yeald the citie to the Assyrians, if within five daies there come no ayde to vs? 11. And what are you, that tempt our Lord? 12. This is no word that may prouoke mercie, but rather that may rayse vp wrath, and inflame furie. 13. You (a) haue set a time for the mercie of our Lord, and according to your pleasure, you haue appointed him a day. 14. But because our Lord is patient, let vs be penitent for this same thing, and shedding teares let vs desire his pardon:

a) In three special obseruances this holie widow led a most religious life: In much priuate prayers; (b) in wearing haire-cloth; (c) and in much fasting: as it were a perpetual lent, at dayes but Sabbaths & feasts excepted. d) In this especially they offended, that they prefixed a time, meaning then to yeald the citie, for they should rather haue fought against theemie, then deliuer Gods people to a Tyrant, holie things into prophane hands, and by their example put Ierusalem and the temple in like danger. Rabans.

(e) S. Paul 1. Cor. 10. v. 10. alleadging that happened to the people of Israel in the desert, addeth this word destroyer, which is only in this place, and not Num. 17. nor 14. nor els in the old Testament: which is an other argument that this booke is Canonical.

(f) Some thinke Abra was a proper name, but whether it was or no, it signifieth an handmaide of more honour, as we speake: A maide of honour.

15. for not as man, so wil God threaten, neither as the sonne of man wil he be inflamed to anger. 16. And therefore let vs humble our soules to him, & being settled in an humble spirit, seruing him: 17. let vs say weeping to our Lord, that according to his wil so he doe his mercie with vs: that as our hart is troubled in their pride, so also we may glorie in our humilitie: 18. because we haue not folowed the sinnes of our fathers, which forsooke their God, and adored strange Gods, 19. for which abomination they were giuen into the sword, & into confusio to their enemies: but we know no other God but him. 20. Let vs humbly expect his consolation, and he wil require our bloud of the afflictions of our enemies, and he wil humble al Nations, what soeuer thal rise vp against vs, and the Lord our God wil make them without honour. 21. And now brethren, because you are ancients in the people of God, and their soules depende of you: by your speach comfort their harts, that they be mindful, that our fathers were tempted to be proued, whether they did worhip their God truly. 22. They must be mindful how our father Abraham was tempted, and by many tribulations proued was made the freind of God. 23. So Isaac, so Iacob, so Moyse, and al that haue pleased God, through manie tribulations haue passed faithful. 24. But they that did not receiue the tentations with the feare of our Lord, and vttered their impatience and reproch of their murmuring against our Lord, 25. were destroyed of (e) the destroyer, and perined by serpents. 26. And we therefore let vs not reuenge our selues for these things, which we suffer, 27. but reputed these verie punishments to be the scourges of our Lord lesse then our sinnes, wherwith as seruants we are chastised, let vs thinke them to haue chanced to our amendment, and not to our destruction. 28. And Ozias and the ancients sayd to her: Al things which thou hast spoken be true, and there is no reprehention in thy words. 29. Now therefore pray for vs, because thou art a holie woman, and fearing God. 30. And Iudith said to them: As you know, that which I could speake to be of God, 31. so that which I haue disposed to doe, proue if it be of God, and pray that God establiu my counsel. 32. You shal stand at the gate this night, and I wil goe out with myne (f) Abra: and pray ye, that as you haue said, in five dayes our Lord respect his people Israel. 33. But I wil not that you search my doing, and til I bring you word, let nothing els be done, but pray for me to our Lord God. 34. And Ozias the Prince of Iuda said to her: Goe in peace, and our Lord be with thee to the reuenge of our enemies. And returning they departed.

Judith in haire-cloth & ashes prayeth for the deliuerie of the people, rembring like benefits of God: 12. Craueth power to ouerthrow Holofernes.

WHEN going away, Judith^(a) went into her oratorie: and clothing her self with haire-cloth, put ashes vpon her head: and falling prostrate to our Lord, she cried to our Lord, saying: 2. Lord God of my father Simeon, who gauest him a sword for defence against strangers, which were rauishers in their coinquination, & discouered the virgine vnto confusion: 3. and gauest their women into prey, and their daughters into captiuitie: and al the prey to be diuided to thy seruants, which were zelous in ^(b) thy zeles: heipe I beseech thee, o Lord God, me a widow. 4. For thou hast done the things heretofore, and hast purposed one thing after an other: and that hath been done which thou wouldest. 5. For al thy wayes are ready, and thy iudgements thou hast put in thy prouidence. 6. Looke vpon the campe of the Assyrians now, as thou didst voutsafe to see the campe of the Ægyptians, when they ran armed after thy seruants, trusting in chariots, and in their horsemen, and in a multitude of men of warre. 7. But thou didst looke ouer their campe, and darkenesse wearied them. 8. The depth held their feet, and the waters ouerwhelmed them. 9. So let these also be made o Lord, which trust in their multitude, and in their chariots, and in pikes, and in shields, and in their arrowes, and glorie in their speares, 10. and know not thy self art our God, which destroyest warres from the beginning, and Lord is thy name. 11. Lift vp thyne arme as fro the beginning, & dash their power in thy power: let their power fall in thy wrath, which promise that they wil violate thy holie things, and pollute the tabernacle of thy holie name, & with their sword throw downe the horne of thyne altar. 12. Bring to passe Lord, that his pride be cut off with his owne sword, 13. ^(c) let him be caught with the snares of his eyes in me, & thou shalt strike him from the lips of my charitie. 14. Giue me constancie in mind, that I may contemne him: and power that I may ouerthrow him. 15. For this shal be a memorial of thy name, when the hand of a womã shal ouerthrow him. 16. For not in multitude is thy power o Lord, neither in strength of horses is thy wil, neither haue the proud pleased thee from the beginning: but the prayer of the humbled and meeke hath alwayes pleased thee. 17. God of the heaucens, creatour of the waters, & Lord of euerie creature, heare me wretch, praying and presuming of thy mercie. 18. Remember Lord thy testament, and giue a

AND it came to passe, when she had ceased to crie to our Lord, she rose from the place, wherein she lay prostrate to our Lord. 2. And she called her (a) Abra, and going downe into her house she tooke from her the haire-cloth, & put off the garments of her widowhood, 3. and washed her bodie, and anoynted her self with ointement, and plaited the haire of her head, and put a crowne vpon her head, and clothed her selfe with the garments of her ioyfulness, and put * pantofles on her feete, & tooke bracelets, and Lilies, and earelets, and rings, and with al her ornaments she adorned her self. 4. To whom also (b) our Lord gaue beautie: because al this trimming did not depend of sensualitie, but of vertue: and therefore our Lord amplified this beautie on her, that she might appeare to al mens eyes of incomparable comelines. 5. She therefore layd vpon her Abra (c) a bottel of wyne, and a vessel of oyle, and * polent, and drie figs, and bread, and cheefe, and went forward. 6. And when they were come to the gate of the citie, they found Ozias expecting, and the ancients of the citie. 7. Who when they saw her, being astonished maruailed at her beautie exceedingly. 8. Yet asking her no question, they let her passe, saying: The God of our fathers giue thee grace, and strengthen al the countel of thy hart, with his power, that Ierusalem may glorie vpon thee, and thy name may be in the number of the holie and iust. 9. And they that were there said al with one voyce: So be it, so be it. 10. But Iudith praying our Lord, passed through the gates she & her Abra. 11. And it came to passe, when she went downe the hill, about breake of day the watchmen of the Assyrians met her, & held her, saying: whence comest thou: or whither goest thou? 12. Who answered, I am a daughter of the Hebrews, therefore am I fled frō their face (d) because I knew it should come to passe, that they should be giue you vnto spoyle, because that cōtemning you, they would not of their owne accord yeald theselues, that they might find mercie in your sight. 13. For this cause I thought with my self, saying: I wil goe to the presence of the Prince Holofernes, that I may tel him their secrets, and shew him by what entrance he may winne the, so that there shal not fal one man of his armie. 14. And when those men had heard her words, they considered

And they said to her: Thou hast saued thy life, in that thou hast found such counsel, that thou wouldest come downe to our Lord. 16. And this know thou, that when thou shalt stand in his sight, he wil deale wel with thee, and thou shalt be most gracious in his hart. And they brought her to the tabernacle of Holofernes, telling him of her. 17. And when she was entred before his face, forthwith Holofernes was caught in his eyes. 18. And his guard said to him: Who can contemne the people of the Hebrewes, which haue (e) so beautiful women, that we should not worthily fight against them for these? 19. Iudith therefore seeing Holofernes sitting in a canopie, which was wouen of purple, and gold, and emerauld, and precious stones: 20. and when she had looked in his face, she adored him, falling prostrate vpon the ground. And the seruants of Holofernes lifted her vp, their Lord commanding it.

WHEN Holofernes said to her: Be of good cheere, and feare not in thy hart: because I haue neuer hurt man, that would serue Nabuchodonosor the King. 2. And thy people, if they had not contemned me, I would neuer haue lifted vp my speare ouer them. 3. But now tel me, for what cause hast thou departed from them, and it hath pleased thee to come to vs? 4. And Iudith said to him: (a) Take the words of thy handmayd, for if thou wilt folow the words of thy handmayd, our Lord wil doe with thee a perfect thing. 5. For Nabuchodonosor the King of the earth liueth, and his power liueth which is in thee to the chastising of al straying soules: that not onlie men serue him by thee, but also the beasts of the field obey him. 6. For the industrie of thy mind is reported to al nations, and it is declared to al the world, that thou onlie art good, and mightie in al his Kingdom, and thy discipline is bruted to al prouinces. 7. Neither is that vnknowne which Achior spake, neither are we ignorant of that thou hast commanded to come vpon him. 8. For it is certaine that our God is so offended with sinnes, that he hath sent word by his Prophets to the people, that he wil deliuer them for their sinnes. 9. And because the children of Israel know they offended their God, thy dread is vpon them. 10. Moreouer also famine hath inuaded them, and for drought of water they are now esteemed among the dead. 11. Finally, they ordayne this, to kil their cattel, and to drinke the blood of them, 12. and the holie things of our Lord their God, which God commanded not to be touched, in corne, wine, and oile, these haue they purposed to bestow, and they wil consume the things which they ought not to touch with their hands: therefore because they doe these things, it is sure that they shal be giuen into perdition. 13. Which I thy handmayde knowing, am fled from them, & our Lord hath sent me to tel thee these verie things. 14. For I thy handmayde worship God, euen now being with thee, and thy handmayde wil goe forth, and I wil pray God, 15. and he wil tel me when he wil repay them their sinnes, and I comming wil tel thee, so that I may bring thee through the middes of Ierusalem, and thou shalt haue al the people of Israck, as sheep that haue no pastour, & there shalt not so much as one dog barke against thee: 16. because these things are told me by the prouidence of God. 17. And because God is angrie with them, I am sent to tel these verie things to thee. 18. And at these words pleased Holofernes, and his seruants, and they marueled at her wisdom, and one said to an other: 19. There is not such a woman vpon the earth in looke, in beautie, and in sense of words. 20. And Holofernes sayd to her: God hath done wel, which sent thee before the people, that thou mightest giue them into our hands: 21. and because thy promise is good, if thy God shal doe this for me, he shal also be my God, and thou shalt be great in the house of Nabuchonosor, and thy name shal be renoumed in al the earth.

To whom Holofernes said: If these things which thou hast brought with thee shal fayle thee, what shal we doe to thee? 4. And Iudith said: Thy soule liueth my Lord, that thy handmayde shal not spend al these things, til God doe by my hand these things, which I haue purposed. day to prayer, & to beseech our Lord. 6. And he commanded his chamber-laynes, that as it pleased her, she should goe out & come in to adore her God for three daies. 7. And she went forth in the nights in to the vale of Bethulia, & washed her self in a fountaine of water. 8. And as she came vp, she prayed our Lord the God of Israel, that he would direct her way to the deliuerie of his people. 9. And going in, she remayned (b) pure in the tabernacle, vntil she tooke her owne meat in the euening. 10. And it came to passe in the fourth day, Holofernes made a supper to his seruants, and sayd to Vagao his eunuch: Goe, and persuaue that Hebrew woman, that she consent of her owne accord to dwell with me. 11. For it is a foule thing with the Assyrians, if a woman mocke a man in doing, that she passe free from him. 12. Then Vagao went into Iudith, & sayd: Let not the good * yong maid feare to goe in to my Lord, that she may be honoured before his face, that she may eat with him & drink wine in ioyfulness. 13. To whom Iudith answered: Who am I, that I should gayne say my Lord? 14. Al that shal be good & best before his eyes, wil I doe. And whatsoever shal please him, that shal be best to me al the dayes of my life. 15. And she arose, and decked herself with her garmets, and going in she stood before his face. 16. And the hart of Holofernes was stricken: for he burnt in the concupiscence of her. 17. And Holofernes said to her: Drinke now, & sit downe in ioyfulness, because thou hast found gracc before me. 18. And Iudith said: I wil drinke my Lord, because my soule is magnified this day aboue al my dayes. 19. And she tooke, and did eat, & dranke before him those things, which her hand-mayd had prepared her. 20. And Holofernes was made pleasant toward her, & dranke wine exceeding much, so much as he had neuer drunke in his life:

AND when it was waxen late, his seruants made hast to their lodgings, and Vagao shut the chamber doores, and went his way. 2. And they were al ouerladen with wine. 3. And Iudith was alone in the chamber. 4. Moreouer Holofernes lay in his bed, fast asleep with very much (a) drunkennes. 5. And Iudith said to her mayd the at she should stand without before the chamber, & watch. 6. And when she had sayd these things, she went to he pillar, that was at his beds head, and his sword that hong tyed on it, she loosed. 9. And when she had drawen it out, she tooke him by the haire of his head, and sayd: Confirme me, o Lord God, in this houre, 10. and she strucke twise vpon his necke, and cut off his head, and tooke his canopie from the pillars, and rolled aside his bodie a trunk. 11. And after a while she went out, and deliuered the head of Holoernes to her mayde, and bad her put it into her wallet. 12. And they two went forth, according to their custome, as it were to prayer, and they passed the campe, and compassing the valley, they came to the gate of the citie. 13. And Judith a far off said to the keepers of the wals: Open the gates, because God is with vs, which hath wrought power in Israel. 14. And it came to passe, when the men had heard her voyce, they called the ancients of the citie. 15. And they ran al to meet her, from the least to the greatest: because they hoped not that now she would come. 16. And they lighting lights gathered round about her euerie one: and the going vp into a higher place, commanded silence to be made. And when al had held their peace, 17. Judith said: Prayse yee the Lord our God, who hath not forsaken them that hope in him: 18. and in me his handmayde he hath fulfilled his mercie, which he promised to the house of Israel: and he hath killed by my hand the enemy of his people this night. 19. And bringing forth the head of Holoernes out of the wallet, she shewed it them, saying: Loe the head of Holoernes the General of the armie of the Assyrians, & behold his canopie, wherein he lay in his drunkennes, where the Lord our God strucke him by the hand of a woman. 20. But the same our Lord liueth, that his (c) Angel hath kept me, both going hence, and abyding there, and from thence returning hither: and our Lord hath not suffered me his handmayde to be defyled, but without pollution of sinne he hath called me backe to you, reioycing in this victorie, in my escape, and in your deliuerie. 21. Confesse ye al to him, because he is good, because his mercie is for euer. 22. And they al odoring our Lord, said to her: Our Lord hath blessed thee in his power, because by thee he hath brought our enemies to nothing. 23. Moreouer Ozias the Prince of the people of Israel, said to her: Blessed art thou daughter of our Lord the high God, about al women vpon the earth. 24. Blessed be our Lord, which made heauen & earth, which hath directed thee vnto the wounds of the head of the Prince of our enemies. 25. Because this day he hath so magnified thy name, that thy prayse shall not depart out of the mouth of me, which shall be be mindtul of the power of our Lord for euer, for that thou hast not spared thy life for the distresses and tribulation of thy kinred, but hast holpen the ruine before the presence of our God. 26. And al the people sayd: So be it, so be it.

27. Moreouer Achior being called came, and Iudith said to him: The God of Israel, to whom thou gauest testimonie, that he reuengeth himself of his enemies, he hath cut off the head of al the vofaithful this night by my hand. 28. And that thou mayst proue that it is so, loe the head of Holofernes, who in the contempt of his pride contemned the God of Israel: and threatned thee death, saying: When the people of Israel shal be taken, I wil command thy sides to be pearfed with a sword. 29. But Achior seeing the head of Holofernes, being in anguish for feare, fel on his face vpon the earth, and his soule was sore troubled. 30. But after taking spirit agayne he was refreshed, and fel downe at her feet, and adored her, and sayd: 31. Blessed art thou of thy God in euerie tabernacle of Iacob, because in euerie nation, which shal heare thy name, the God of Israel shal be magnified in thee.

AND Iudith sayd to al the people: Heare me brethren, hang ye this head vpon our wals: 2. and it shal be, when the sunne shal rise, let euerie man take his armour, & yssue ye forth with violence, not that you goe downe beneath, but as it were inuading violently. 3. Then the watchmen must of necessitie runne to rayse vp their Prince to batel. 4. And when the captaynes of them shal runne to the tabernacle of Holofernes, and shal find him headles rowled in bloud, feare wil fall vpon them. 5. And when you shal know that they fly, goe after them securely, because our Lord wil destroy them vnder your feet. 6. Then (a) Achior seeing the power, that God of Israel wrought, forsaking the rite of gentilitie, belieued God, and circumcised the flesh of his prepuce, and was ioyned to the people of Israel, and al the succession of his kinred vntil this present day. 7. And immediatly as day brake, they hong the head of Holofernes vpon the wals, & euerie man took his armour, & they went forth with great noyse & shouting. 8. Which the watchmen seeing, ranne to the tabernacle of Holofernes. 9. Moreouer they that were in the tabernacle coming, and before the dore of the tabernacle making a noyse to rayse him, they endeauoured by art to disquiet him, that Holofernes might awake not by them rayling him, but by them making a noyse. 10. For no man durst by knocking, or entering, to open the chamber of the chiefe of the Assyrians. 11. But when his Dukes and tribunes were come, and al the chiefe of the armie of the King of the Assyrians, they said to the chamberlayns: 12. Goe in, and awake him, because the mice yssuing out of their holes, haue presumed to prouoke vs to battel. 13. Then Vagao entring into his chamber, stood before the cortine, & made a clapping with his hands: for he thought that he slept with Iudith. 14. But when with the sense of his eares he perceiued no motion of person lying, he came neer to the cortine, and lifting it vp, and seeing the bodie without the head of Holofernes weltred in his bloud lye vpon the ground, cried out in a lowd voyce with weeping, and rent his garments. 15. And going into the tabernacle of Iudith, he found her not, and he lept forth to the people, 16. and sayd: One Hebrew woman hath made confusion in the house of King Nabuchodonosor: for behold Holofernes lyeth vpon the ground and his head is not vpon him. 17. Which when the Princes of the power of the Assyrians had heard, they al rent their garments, & intollerable feare and dread fel vpon them, and their minds were troubled exceedingly. 18. And there was made an incomparable crie in the middes of their campe.

The Assyrians fly for feare, 3. the Hebrews pursue them, 7. and are enriched by the spoiles. 9. The high Priest with others come from Ierusalem and praise Iudith. 14. The goods of Holofernes are given to her.

AND when al the armie heard that Holofernes was beheaded, courage and counsel fel from them, and being shaken with trembling onlie and feare, they helpe themselves by flight, 2. so that none spake with his neighbour, but hanging the head, al things left behind, they made hast to escape the Hebrews, whom they heard to come armed vpon them, flying by the waies of the fields, and the pathes of the hilles. 3. The children of Israel therefore seeing them flying, folowed them. And they went downe sounding with trumpets, and shouting after them. 4. And because the Assyrians were not vnited together, they went headlong into flight: but the children of Israel pursuing in one companie, discomfited al that they could find. 5. Ozias therefore sent messengers through al the cities and countries of Israel. 6. Euerie countrie therefore, and euerie citie sent chosen youth armed after them, and they pursued them in the edge of the sword, vntil they came to the extremitie of their borders. 7. And the rest that were in Bethulia, entred into the campe of the Assyrians, and tooke away the prey, which the Assyrians flying had leaft, and were loden exceedingly. 8. But they that were returned conqueres to Bethulia, tooke away with them althings that were theirs , so that there was no number in cattel, and beasts, and al their moucables, that from the least vnto the greatest al were made rich of their preyes. 9. And Ioachim the high Priest came from Ierusalem into Bethulia with al his an'ients to see Iudith. 10. Who when she was come out to him , they al blessed her with one voyce, saying: (a) Thou art the glorie of Ierusalem, thou the ioy of Israel, thou the honour of our people: 11. because thou hast done manfully, and thy hart was strengthened, for that thou hadst loued chastitie, and after thy husband not knowne any other: therefore also the hand of our Lord hath strengthened thee, and therefore shal thou be blessed for euer. 12. And al the people sayd: So be it, so be it. 13. And for thirtie daies, scarce were the spoyles of the Assyrians gathered of the people of Israel. 14. Moreouer al things, that were proued to be the peculiar goods of Holofernes, they gaue to Iudith, in gold, and siuer, and garments, and pretious stones, and al stufte, and al the things were deliuered her of the people. 15. And al the people reioyced with women, and virgins, and yongmen, on instruments and harps.

Iudith singeth a canticle of thanks-giuing to our Lord. 22. The people goe to Ierusalem and offer sacrifices. 25. She in great honour liueth a widow in her death in good old age. 30. The people haue long peace, and a feastiuall day is instituted in perpetual memorie of her fact.

H E N sang Iudith this song to our Lord, saying:

2. Begin ye to our Lord in timbrels, sing ye to our Lord in cymbals, tune to him a new Psalm, reioyce, and inuocate his name.
3. (a) Our Lord confoundeth battels, Lord is his name.
4. Who hath set his campe in the middes of his people, that he might deliuer vs from the hand of al our enemies.
5. Assur came out of the mountaines from the North in the multitude of his strength: whose multitude stopped vp the torrents, and their horses covered the valleyes.
6. He said that he would set my borders on fyre, and kil' my yong men with the sword, to giue my infants into prey, and virgins into captiuitie.
7. But our Lord omnipotent hath hurt him, and hath deliuered him into the hands of a woman, and hath pearshed him.
8. For, not by yong men is their mightie oue fallen, neither haue the soynes of (b) Titan strucken him, neither did the high (c) giants set themselves vpon him, but Iudith the daughter of Merari in the beautie of her face dissolued him.

26. After that her husband was dead.) As yong Tobias and Sara were notable patterns to married persons : so Iudith is a like good example to deuout widowes, excelling most part, in manie respects. For first, she professed this holie state of life in the old Testament, when it was most rare, the law prouiding that the brother, or next kinsman, should marie the widow of him that died without children, as it seemeth she had none, the Greeke text affirming that she gaue al her goods before her death to other kinred. ch. 16. v. 24. Secondly, she was only once married, ch. 15. v. 13 ch. 16. v. 26. whereas it is also commendable after twise or oftener marriage at last to abstaine. Thirdly, she was yong, about 36.
yeares : for three yeares and a half after that her husband was dead, she was called a yong maide, ch. 12. v. 12. Fourthly, she was of excellent beautie, ch. 8. v. 7.
Fifthly, exceeding rich. ibidem Sixtly, very noble, especially after the deliuerie of the people from such distresse. ch. 15. v. 10. Seuently, for this renowned fact, and for her other great vertues (ch. 3. v. 8.) manie principal men desired to marie her,

25. Nintly, she liued long in the state of widowhood, about threescore and nine yeares, from 36. to 105. ch. 15. v. 28. Tently, there was great and long peace in al Israel, after that she had relieued Bethulia. ch. 16. v. 30. Al which might easely haue inuited an other to haue married: but her great deuotion, and seruent desire to serue God in a retired austere life, fasting & praying, ch. 8. v. 6. cut off al incitements to marriage, and made her before the Gospel to embrace Euangelical

THE ARGUMENT OF THE BOOK OF ESTHER.

This whole book is canonical.

F the authoritie of this booke only two or three ancient writers doubted, before the Councils of Laodicea and Charrhage declared it to be Canonical. Al the rest did euer esteeme it as diuine Scripture. For albeit S. Ierome in his time found not certaine parts thereof in the Hebrew, and therefore transposed the same to the end of the booke, as now we haue them: yet in the Greeke he found al these sixteen chapters conteyned in ten. And it is not vnprouable, that these parcels were sometimes in the Hebrew, as were diuers whole bookes which are now lost. But whether they were at anye time in the Hebrew or no, the Church of Christ accoumeth the whole Booke of infallible authoritie, reauing as well these parts, as the rest in her publike office. And the Council of Trent (sess. 4.) for more expresse declaration defineth that al the bookes recited in the same Decree (amongst which is Esther) with al the parts thereof, as they are accustomed to be read in the Catholike Church, and be conteyned in the old vulgar latin Edition, are sacred and Canonical Scripture.

The contents

Written by Mardocheus.

Divided into four parts.

It conteyneth a particular great danger of the people of Israel, hapning (as is probable) shortly after their general relaxation, and returne of some from the captiuitie of Babylon; and their deliuerie from it, through the goodlie zeale and other vertues of Queen Esther, directed herein by Madocheus, who being also in imminent danger was deliuered and aduanced: and finally writ the historie. which may be diuided into foure parts, not by order of the chapters as they are here transposed, but in order of time. First the authour reporteth some things going before the peoples danger, in the 11. 1. 2. 12. chapters, and part of the 3. secondly, their danger and distresse, in the rest of the 3. and part of 13. chapters. Thirdly, their deliuerie, from the 4. chapter to the middes of the 9. and rest of the 13. and in the 14. 15. and 16. Fourthly, the things that ensued hereupon, in the other half of the ninth chapter, the 10. chapter, and first verse of the eleuenth.

W hoseuer wil please to read this historie, in order of the time as the things happened, adioyning the latter chapters, which are in the Greeke, and not in Hebrew, may follow the letters of the Alphabet, as here we haue placca them in the margin, beginning at the second verse of the 11. chapter, where he findeth the letter A. and when he cometh to B. returne where the same letter is noted. ch. 3. And so in the rest follow the same direction.

IN the daies of Assuerus, who reigned from India vnto Æthiopia ouer an hundred twen-tie seuen prouinces: 2. when he sate in the throne of his Kingdom, the citie Susan was in the beginning of his Kingdom: 3. In the third yeare therfore of his empyre he made a great feast to al the Princes, and to his seruants, to the most valiant of the Persians, and the nobles of the Medes, and the rulers of the Prouinces in his sight, 4. that he might shew the riches of the glorie of his Kingdom, and the greatnes, and vaunting of his might, a great time, to witte, an hundred and fourescore dayes. 5. And when the daies of the feast were accomplished, he inuited al people, that was found in Susan, from the greatest to the least: and commanded seuen daies a feast to be prepared in the entrance of the garden, & of the wood, which was planted with royal garnishing and with hand. 6. And there hong on euerie side hangings of skie-colour, and greene, and hyacinthine colour, held vp with cordes of silke, & of purple, which were put into rings of yuorie, and were held vp with marble pillers. Beds also of gold and siluer were placed in order vpon the floore pauered with the emerauld, pointed, making ech of his Princes ouerseer of euerie table, that euerie man might take what he would. 9. Vasthi also the Queen made a feast for the women in the palace, where King Assuerus had accustomed to remayne. 10. Therefore the seuenth day, when the King was merier, and after very much drinking was wel warmed with wine, he commanded Maumam, & Bazatha, & Harbona, & Bagatha, & Abgatha, & Zethar, & Charchas, the seuen eunuchs, that ministred in his sight, 11. that they should bring in Queen Vasthi before the King, the crowne set vpon her head, that he might inew her beautie to al the peoples and Princes: for she was exceeding beautiful. 12. Who refused, and contemned to come at the Kings commandment, which he had commanded by the eunuchs.

 Wherupon the King being wrath, & chaffed with (b) exceeding furie,
 13. asked the wisemen, which after the manner of a King were alwayes present with him, & he did al things by their counsel, which knew the lawes, and rights of the elders: 14. (and the chief & necest him were, Charfena, & sethar, and Admatha, & Tharsis, and Mares, and Marsana, and Mamuchan, seuen dukes of the Persians, and of the Medes, which saw the face of the King, & were wont to sit first after him) 15. to what sentēce Vasthi the Queene should be subiect, that would not doe Assue-rus the Kings cōmandment, which he had commanded by the ennuchs.
 16. And Mamuchan answered, the King hearing, and the Princes: (b) Queene Vasthi hath not only hurt the King, but also al peoples, & Princes, that are in al the prouinces of King Assuerus. 17. For the word of the Queene wil goe forth to al women, that they wil contemne their husbands, and wil say: King Assuerus commanded that the Queene Vasthi should come in to him, and she would not. 18. And by this exāple al the wiues of the Princes of the Persians and the Medes, wil little esteeme the commandments of their husbands: wherfore the Kings indignation is iust. 19. If it please thee, let an edict goe forth from thy face, and let it be written according to the law of the Persians and of Medes, which is not lawfull to be transgressed, that Vasthi come in no more to the King, but an other that is better then she, take her Kingdom. 20. And let this be published into al the empire of thy Prouinces (which is most large) and let al the wiues, as wel of the greater as of the lesser giue honour to their husbands. 21. His counsel pleased the King, and the Princes: and the King did according to the counsel of Mamouchan, 22. and he sent letters to al the Prouinces of his Kingdome, as euerie nation could heare and reade, in diuers languages and characters, that the husbands should be Princes and maisters in their houles: and that this should be published through al peoples.

Inquirie being made of the best and fairest virgins, 5. Esther the vnknowne neece of Mardocheus a Iew, is preferred, 18. and made Queen in place of Vasthi; a mariage feast made, and presents giuen. 21. Mardocheus detecteth traitours, and his seruice is recorded in the register.

TH E S E things so done, after the indignation of King Assuerus was asswaged, he remembered Vasthi, & what she had done, or what she had suffered: 2. and the Kings seruants and his ministers said: Let there be maydens sought for the King, virgins and beautiful, 3. and let there be sent that may view through al Prouinces beautiful maydens & virgins: and let them bring them to the citie of Susa, and deliuer them into the house of women vnder the hand of Egeus the eunuch, who is ouerfeer of the Kings women: and let them receiue womens ornaments, and other things necessaric to be vsed. 4. And which so euer among al thal please the Kings eyes, let her reigne for Vasthi. The word pleased the King: and so as they had suggested, he commanded to be done. 5. There was a man in the citie of Susa a Iew, named Mardocheus, the sonne of Iair, the sonne of Semei, the sonne of Cis, of the stocke of Iemini, 6. who had been transported from Ierusalem the same time that Nabucodonosor the King of Babylon transported Iechonias the King of Iuda, 7. who was the foster-father of his brothers daughter Edissa, which by an other name was called Esther: & she had lost both her parents: exceeding beautiful, and of comely face. And her father and mother beeing dead, Mardocheus adopted her for his daughter. 8. And when the Kings commandment was bruided abroad, and according to his commandment many fayre virgins were brought to Susa, and were deliuered to Egeus the eunuch: (a) Esther also among the rest of the maydens was deliuered to him, that she might be kept in the number of the women. 9. Who pleased him, and found grace in his sight. And he comanded the eunuch, that he should hasten the womens ornaments, and should deliuer her her parts, and seuen the most beautiful maydens of the kings house, and should adorne and decke both her and her wayting maydes. 10. Who would not tel. him her people & countrie. For Mardocheus had commanded her, that of this thing she should altogether keep silence: 11. who walked daily before the entrance of the house, wherein the chosen virgins were kept, taking care of Esthers welure, and desirous to know what should chance vnto her. 12. And when the time of euerie virgin in order was come, that they should goe in to the King, al things accomplished that perteyned to womens ornamēts, it was the twelfth month: yet so, that for six mōths they were anointed with oyle of myrtle, and other six months they vsed certayne payntings & sweet spices. 13. And going in to the King, what soeuer they asked that perteyned to adorning, they receiued: and being trimmed, as it pleased them, they passed frō the chāber of the women to the Kings chamber. 14. And she that went in at euening, came out in the morning, and from thence she was brought to the second house, that was vnder the hand of Susagazus the eunuch, who was chiefe ouer the Kings concubines: neither had she power to returne any more to the King, vnlesse the King had willed, and had commanded her to come by name. 15. And the time by order comming about, the day was at hand that Esther the daughter of Abihail the brother of Mardocheus, whom he had adopted for his daughter, should goe in to the King. Who sought not womens ornaments, but whatsoeuer Egeus the eunuch the keeper of the virgins would, those things he gaue her to her adorning. For she was exceeding fayre, and of incredible beautie, she seemed to al mens eies gracious and amiable. 16. She therefore was brought to the chamber of King Assuerus the tenth month, which is called Tebeth, in the seuenth yeare of his reigne. 27. And the King loued her more then al the women, and she had grace and mercie before him aboue al the women, and he put the crowne of the Kingdome on her head, and made her reigne in stead of Vasthi. 18. And he commanded a verie magnificent feast to be prepared to al the Princes, and to his seruants, for the coniunction and mariage of Esther. And gaue rest to al the Prouinces, and bestowed guifts according to princely magnificence. 19. And when virgins were sought the second time and gathered together, Mardocheus taried at the Kings gate: 20. neither had Esther as yet vttered her countrie, & people, according to his commandment. For whatsoeuer he commanded, Esther obserued: & she did al things so as she was wont at that time, when he nourished her a litle one. 21. At that time therefore, when Mardocheus abode at the Kings gate, Bagathan & Thares were angrie, two of the Kings eunuchs, that were porters, & were chiefe in the first entrie of the palace: and they would make insurrection against the King, and kil him. 22. Wherof Mardocheus (b) got notice, & immediately he told it to Queen Esther: & she to the King in the name of Mardocheus, who had reported the thing vnto her. 23. It was examined, and found: and they were both hanged on a gibbet. And it was put in the histories, and registred in the chronicles before the King. *

Aman advanced by the King, is much offended that Mardocheus doth not adore him, 6. and therefore procureth the Kings decree, to destroy the whole nation of the Iewes.

AFTER these things King Assuerus advanced Aman the sonne of Amadathi, which was of the stocke of Agag: and he put his throne aboue al the Princes which he had. 2. And al the Kings seruants, that were in the doores of his palace, bowed their knees, and adored Aman: for so the Emperour had commanded them: (a) only Mardocheus did not bow his knee, nor adore him. 3. To whom the Kings seruants, that were chiefe at the doores of the palace, said: Why doest thou aboue the rest not obserue the Kings commandment? 4. And when they said this often, and he would not heare, they told Aman, desirous to know whether he would perseuer in his sentence: for he had told them that he was a Iew. 5. Which when Aman had heard, & had proued by experience that Mardocheus bowed not his knee vnto him, nor adored him, he was angrie exceedingly. 6. And he counted it a matter of nothing to lay his hands vpon Mardocheus alone: for he had heard that he was of the Iewes, and he would rather destroy al the nation of the Iewes, that were in the Kingdom of Assuerus. 7. The first month (which is called Nisan) in the twelfth year of the reigne of Assuerus, the lot was cast into a pot which in Hebrew is called Phur, before Aman, (b) in what day and what month the nation of the Iewes should be slayne: and there came forth the twelfth month, which is called Adar. 8. And Aman said to King Assuerus: There is a people dispersed through al the Prouinces of thy Kingdom, and separated one from an other, vsing new lawes and ceremonies, moreouer also contemning the Kings ordinances: And thou knowest very wel that it is not expedient for thy Kingdom that they waxe insolent by libertie. 9. If it please thee, decree that they may perish, & I wil pay ten thousand talents to the cofferers of thy treasure. 10. The King therefore tooke the ring that he vsed, from his hand, and gaue it to Aman the sonne of Amadathi of the progenie of Agag, the enemy of the Iewes, 11. and he said to him: The siluer which thou doest promise, be it thine: but concerning the people doe that which pleaseth thee. 12. And the Kings scribes were called in the first month, Nisan, the thirteenth day of the same month: and it was written, as Aman had commanded, to al the Kings lieutenants, and iudges of the Prouinces, and of diuers nations, as cuerie nation could read,

V H I C H things when Mardocheus had heard, he rent his garments, and was clothed with sackcloth, sprinkling ashes on his head: and in the street of the middes of the citie he cried with a loud voyce, shewing the anguish of his mind, 2. and with this wayling going euen to the doores of the pallace: for it was not lawful for one clothed with sackcloth to enter the Kings court. 3. In al Prouinces also, townes, and places, to which the Kings cruel decree was come, there was (a) great mourning with the Iewes, fasting, howling, and weeping, manie vsing sack-cloth and ashes for their couch. 4. And Esthers maides and the eunuchs went in, & told her. Which she hearing was astonished: & she sent a garment, that the sack-cloth being taken away, they should put it on him: which he would not take. 5. And calling for Athach the eunuch, whom the King had giuen her for a seruant to Mardocheus, comanded him to goe and to learne of him, why he did this. 6. And Athach going forth went to Mardocheus standing in the street of the citie, before the palace doore: 7. who told him al things that had chanced, how Aman had promised, that he would bring siluer into the Kings treasures for the slaughter of the Iewes. 8. He gaue him also a copie of the edict which hong in Susa, that he should shew it to the Queen, and should admonish her to enter in to the King, and to intreate him for her people. 9. Athach returning told Esther al things, that Mardocheus had sayd. 10. Who answered him, and bad that he should say to Mardocheus:

11. Al the Kings seruants, and al the Prouinces that are vnder his domination, know, that whether man, or woman, not called, thal enter in to the Kings inner court, he must immediately be slayne without al delay: vnlesse perhaps the King stretch forth a golden rod vnto him, for a signe of clemencie, and so he may liue. I therefore how can I enter in to the King, which now these thirtie daies haue not been called vnto him? 12. Which when Mardocheus had heard, 13. he sent word to Esther agayne, saying: Thincke not that thou mayst deliuer thy owne life only, because thou art in the Kings house, aboue al the Iewes: 14. for if thou wilt now hold thy peace, (b) the Iewes shal be deliuered by an other occasion: and thou, and thy fathers house shal perilh. And who knoweth whether thou camest to the Kingdom therfore, that in such a time thou mightst be readie? 15. And agayne Esther sent to Mardocheus in these words: 16. Goe, and gather together al the Iewes, whom thou shalt find in Susan, and pray ye for me. Eate ye not, and drinke not in three dayes, and three nights: and I with my handmayds in like manner wil fast, and then wil I goe in to the King; doing agaynst the law, not called, and deliuering my self to death and to peril. 17. Mardocheus therfore went, and did al things that Esther had commanded him.*

b) Great confidence in Gods help when mans help fayleth: & indeed this meanes by mouing the Kings hart to grant Esthers petition was Gods special worke.

If I haue found grace in the Kings sight, and if it please the King to giue that which I aske, and to fulfil my petition: let the King and Aman come to the banquet which I haue prepared them, and to morrow I wil open my wil to the King. 9. Aman therefore went forth that day ioyful and merie. And when he had seen Mardocheus sitting before the doores of the palaçe, and not onlie not to haue risen vp to him, but not so much as to haue moued from the place where he sat, he was wrath exceedingly: 10. and dissembling his anger, and returning into his house, he called together vnto him his freinds, and Zares his wife: 11. and he declared to them the greatnesse of his riches, and the multitude of his children, and with how great glorie the King had aduanced him aboue al his Princes and seruants. 12. And after these things he said: Queen Esther also hath called none other to the banquet with the King, but me: with whom to morow also I shal dine with the King. 13. And wheras I haue al these things, I thinke I haue nothing, so long as I shal see Mardocheus the Iew sitting before the Kings doores. 14. And Zares his wife, and the rest of his freinds answered him: Command a great beame to be prepared, hauing fiftie cubits in height, and speake in the morning to the King, that Mardocheus may be hanged vpon it, and so thou shalt goe ioyful with the King to the banquet. The counsel pleased him, and he commanded an high gallowes to be prepared.

The King bearing the good seruice of Mardocheus in detelling traitours, read in the chronicle (for which he had yet no reward) 4. commandeth Aman to honour him next to the King, 11. which he performeth.

HAT night the King (a) passed without sleep, and he commanded the histories and chronicles of former times to be brought him. Which when they were read in his presence, 2. they came to that place where it was written, how Mardocheus had vttered the treason of Bagathan and Thares the eunuchs, coueting to kil King Assuerus. 3. Which whē the king had heard, he sayd: What honour and reward hath Mardocheus receiued for this fidelitie? His seruants & ministers said to him: He hath receiued no reward at al. 4. And the King by and by, Who is, quoth he, in the court? For Aman had entred the inner court of the Kings house, that he might suggest to the King, and he might command Mardocheus to be hanged fast on the gibbet, which was prepared for him. 5. The seruants answered: Aman standeth in the court. And the King said: Let him come in. 6. And when he was come in, he said to him: What ought to be done to the man, whom the King is

delirous to honour? But Aman (b) thinking in his hart, and supposing that the King would honour no other but himself, 7. answered: The man, whom the King desireth to honour, 8. ought to be clothed with the Kings garments, and to be set vpon the horse that is for the Kings saddie, and to take the Kings crowne vpon his head, 9. and let the chiefe of the Kings Princes and nobles hold his horse and going through the street of the citie crie and say: So shal he be honoured, whomsoeuer the King wil honour. 10. And the King said to him: Make hast, and taking a robe and a horse, doe that thou hast spoken, to Mardocheus the Jew, which sitteth before the doores of the palace: Beware thou pretermit nothing of those things, which thou hast spoken. 11. Aman therefore took a robe and a horse, and putting it on Mardocheus, & setting him on the horse, in the street of the citie went before him, and cried: This honour is he worthie of, whosoever the King is willing to honour. 12. And Mardocheus returned to the palace gate: & Aman made hast to goe into his house, mourning and his head couered: 13. and he told Zares his wife and his freinds al things that had chanced him. To whom the wise men whom he had in counsel, and his wife answered: (c) If Mardocheus be of the Iewes seede, before whom thou hast begun to fal, thou canst not resist him, but thou shalt fal in his sight. 14. As they were yet speaking, the Kings eunuchs came, and compelled him to goe quickly to the banket which the Queene had prepared.

Which he hearing (b) forthwith was astonished, not enduring to beare the countenance of the King and of the Queen. 7. But the King being wrath rose vp, and from the place of the banquet went into the garden set with trees. Aman also rose vp, to intreate Esther the Queen for his life, for he vnderstood that there was euil prepared him of the King. 8. Who when he was returned out of the garden set with trees, and had entred into the place of the banquet, he found Aman to haue fallen vpon the bed, wherein Esther lay, and he said: The Queen also he wil force in my presence, in my house. Neither was the word yet passed from the Kings mouth, and immediately they covered his face. 9. And Harbona, (c) one of the eunuchs which stood wayting on the King, sayd: Behold the gibbet, which he had prepared for Mardocheus, that spake for the King, standeth in Amans house, hauing in height fiftie cubits. 10. Esther informeth the King that Mardocheus is her vncl, he is aduanced in authoritie, 3. and contrarie letters are sent that the Iewes be saued, 11. and their enemies slayne, 15. Mardocheus is in high honour, and his whole nation is esteemed and feared by other people.

(a) Such honour is due to Kings, yea though they be Infidels, because they haue terrestrial maicstie and authoritie frō God. And the contrarie opinion and behaviour of heretikes, which in spite Dominion and blasphemie, is commended by Luke, in his Act. v. 8.

THAT day King Assuerus gaue vnto Esther the Queen the house of Aman the Iewes aduersarie, and Mardocheus went in before the Kings presence. For Esther confessed to him that he was her vncl. 2. And the King tooke the ring, which he had commanded to be taken agayne from Aman, and deliuered it to Mardocheus. And Esther appointed Mardocheus also ouer her house. 3. Neither content with these things, she (a) fell downe at the Kings feet, and she wept and speaking to him prayed him, that he would command that the malice of Aman the Agagite, and his most wicked deuises, which he had inuented agaynst the Iewes, should be of none effect. 4. But he after the manner put forth the golden scepter with his hand, by the which the signe of clemencie was shewed: and the ryng vp stood before him, 5. and said: If it please the King, and if I haue found grace in his eyes, and my request seeme not contrarie to him, I beseech thee, that the old letters of Aman the traytour and enemy of the Iewes, wherein he commanded that in al the Kings prouinces they should perith, may by new letters be corrected. 6. For how can I abide the murder and slaughter of my people? 7. And King Assuerus answered Esther the Queen, and Mardocheus the Jew: Amans house I have giuen to Esther, and himself I have commanded to be hanged on the gollowes, because he duril lay hands on the Iewes. 8. Write ye therefore to the Iewes as pleaseth you, in the Kings name, signing the letters with my ring. For this was the custome, that no man durst speake against the letters, which were sent in the Kings name, and were signed with his ring. 9. And the Kings scribes and secretaries being cald for (and it was the time of the third month, which is called Siban) the three and twentieth day thereof letters were written, as Mardocheus would, to the Iewes, and to the Princes, & the lieutenants and iudges, which were rulers ouer the hundred and seuen and twentie Prouinces, from India euen to Æthiopia: to Prouince and Prouince, to people and people, according to their languages and characters, and to the Iewes, according as they could read, and heare. 10. And the said letters, which were sent in the Kings name, were signed with his ring, and sent by ryding posts: which running through al the Prouinces, should preuent the old letters with the new messages. 11. To whom the King gaue commandment, that they should speake to the Iewes in euerie citie, and should command them to be gathered together in one, that they might stand for their liues, and might kil and destroy al their enemies with their wiues and children and al their houses, and to take the spoyle of them. 12. And there was appointed through al the Prouinces one day of reuenge, that is, the thirtieth of the twelfth month Adar. 13. And this was the content of the letter, that in al lands and peoples which were subiect to the empire of King Assuerus, it should be notified, the Iewes to be ready to be reuenged of their enemies. 14. And there went forth swift posts carying the messages, and the Kings edict hong in Susa. 15. HERFORE in the thirtinth day of the tweifth month, which we haue said now before to be called Adar, when slaughter was prepared for al the Iewes, and their enemies gaped after their bloud, " the case beeing changed to the contrarie, the Iewes began to be superiours, and (a) to reuenge themselves of their aduersaries. 2. And they were gathered together in euerie citie, and towne, & place, to extend their hand against their enemies and their persecutours. And none durit resist, because the feare of their greatnes did penetrate al peoples. 3. For both the iudges of the Prouinces, and captaynes, and lieutenants, and euerie dignitie that was chiefe ouer euerie place and worke, extolled the Iewes for feare of Mardocheus: 4. whom they knew to be Prince of the palace, and to be able to doe very much: the fame also of his name increased daily, and flew abroad through al mens mouths. 5. Therefore the Iewes struck their enemies with a great slaughter, and slew them, repaying them that which they had prepared to doe to them: 6. in so much that in Susa also they killed siue hundred men, besides the ten sonnes of Aman the Agagite the enemy of the Iewes: whose names be these: 7. And the King commanded that it should be so done. And forthwith the edict hong in Susa, and the ten sonnes of Aman were hanged. 15. The fourteenth day of the month Adar, the Iewes being gathered together, there were killed in Susa three hundred men: neither was their substance spoyled by them. 16. Which they ordayned to be solēne, so that in it at al times afterward they gaue themselves to good chere, mirth and bankets. 18. But they that made the slaughter in the citie of Susan, were occupied in the slaughter the thirteenth and fourtinth day of the same month: and in the fiftinth day they ceased to kil. And therefore they ordayned the same a solemne day of good chere and ioyfulness. 19. But those Iewes, that abode in townes not walled and villages, ordayned the fourtenth day of the month Adar for bankets and ioy, so that they reioyce in it, and send one an other portions of bankets and meates. 20. Mardocheus therefore wrote al these things, and being comprised in letters sent them to the Iewes, that abode in al the Kings Prouinces, as wel those that lay neere, as far off, 21. that they should take (c) the fourtinth and fiftinth day of the month Adar for feastes, and the yeare alwayes returning should celebrate them with solemne honour: 22. because in the same dayes the Iewes reuenged themselves of their enemies, and mourning and sorrow were turned into mirth and ioy, and that these should be dayes of good chere and gladnesse, and they should send one to an other portions of meates, and should giue gifts to the poore. 23. And the Iewes received into a solemne rite al things, which they had begun to doe at that time, and which Mardocheus by letters had commanded to be done. 24. For Aman, the sonne of Amadath: of the stock of Agag, the enemy & aduersarie of the Iewes, purposed euil against them, to kil them and destroy them: & he cast Phur, which in our language is turned, a lot. 25. And afterward Ester went in to the King, beseeching that his endeavours might by the Kings letters be made voyde: & the euil that he had intended against the Iewes, might returne vpon his owne head. Finally, they hong both him and his sonnes vpon the gallows, 26. and since that time these dayes are called Phurim, that is, of Lots: because Phur, that is, a lot, was cast into the pot. And al things that were done, are contayned in the volume of this epistle, that is, of this Book: 27. and the things that they susteyned, and that were afterward changed, the Iewes (d) tooke vpon themselves and their seede, & vpon al that would be ioyned to theyr religion, that it should be lawful for none to passe without solemnitie these dayes: which the writing testifieth, and certaine times require; as yeares continually succede one an other. 28. These are daies, which no obliuion shal euer put out: and al Prouinces in al the world shal celebrate throughout al generations: neither is there any citie, wherein the daies of Phurim, that is, of lottes, must not be obserued of the Iewes, and of their progenie, which is bound to these ceremonies. 29. r. The case being changed.] In this whole historie (as in manie other passages of holic Scripture) we see the meruelous change of the right hand of the Highest. First, in the verie instant of extreme danger, the Kings face with burning eyes shewing the furie of his breast, ch. 15. v. 10. was turned into mildnes towards Esther, v. 11. Secondly, proud Aman being advanced in honour & office, aboue al Princes of the Kings court, ch. 3. v. 1. was sodainly forced publikely to lead Mardocheus his horse, whom he most hated, ch. 6. v. 10. Thirdly, he was contrayned with loud voice to proclame his honour, whom he most despised and threatned. Fourthly, the same Aman, before called the father (as it were the onlie gouernour) of the King, ch. 13. v. 8. ch. 16. v. 11. was forthwith condemned for a traitour, ch. 7. v. 8. ch. 16. v. 18. Fifthly, He that could not abide to see Mardocheus, ch. 5. v. 13. afterward durst not looke vpon the King, nor could endure his countenance, ch. 7. v. 6. Sixtly, He was hanged on the same gallowes, which he had prepared for Mardocheus, ch. 7. v. 9. Seuently, Whereas he was not content with the death of Mardocheus alone, but procur'd the Kings decree to destroy the whole nation, ch. 3. v. 6. and so feasted with the King, when the Iewes mourned, v. 15. shortly after the King sent new letters for the Iewes satic, giuing them leaue to kil whomsoeuer they would of their enemies, ch. 8. v. 8. 11. Eightly, the same day which was designed for destruction, was made the day of ioy and exultation to the children of God, ch. 9. v. 1. 17. ch. 16. v. 21. &c. By which literal sense Gods meruelous prouidence is manifestly shewed, neuer suffering his Church to perish. It hath moreouer two special mystical senses. First, as satic of temporal life was procured to one nation by Esthers intercessio to King Assuerus, so general saluation is procured to al mankind by mediation of the Blessed Virgin Marie, crushing the serpens head; and the sentence of death is changed by new letters, granting euerlasting life, and glorie to al Gods true seruants. Esther also, as likewise Iudith, in figure of the Church (saith S. Ierom, Prologo in Sophon.) killed the aduersaries, and deliuered Israel from danger of perishing.

An Appendix and conclusion of this historie. 2. The dreame of Mardocheus.

The first part. The presage, & occasion of Esthers advancement and Amans persecuting the Iewes.

IN the fourth yeare when Ptolomee and Cleopatra reigned, Dositheus, which named himself a Priest, and of the Leuitical kinred, and Ptolomee his sonne brought this epistle of Phurim, which they sayd Lytimachus the sonne of Ptolomee did interpret in Ierusalem.

8. But Mardocheus besought our Lord , mindful of al his workes, 9. and said: Lord Lord King omnipotent, for in thy dominion are al things sea, and there is none that can resist thy wil, if thou determine to saue Israel. 10. Thou madst heauen and earth, and whatsoeuer is conteyned in the compasse of heauen. 11. Thou art Lord of al, neither is there that can resist thy maiestie. 12. Thou vnderstandest al things, and knowest that I haue not done this for pride and contumelie , and any desire of glorie , that I adored nor the proud Aman , 13. (for gladly would I be readie for the saluation of Israel to kisse euen the steps of his secte,) 14. but I feared lest I should transferre the honour of my God to a man, and lest I should adore any except my God. 15. And now o Lord King, the God of Abraham haue mercie vpon thy people, because our enemies wil destroy vs, and extinguish thyne inheritance. 16. Despise not thy portion , which thou hast redeemed to thy self out of Ægypt. 17. Heare my prayer, and be propitious to thy lot and cord, and returne our mourning into ioy, that liuing we may prayse thy name o Lord, and doe not shut the mouths of them that sing to thee. 18. Al Israel also with like mind and supplication cried to our Lord , because certaine death did hang ouer them.

Esther prayeth in humilitie of spirit, that God wil deliuer the people from the crueltie of Aman.

ESTHER also the Queen fled to our Lord, fearing the peril that was at hand. 2. And when she had laid off her royal garments, she took clothes meet for weeping and mourning, & for diuers oyntments, filled her head with ashes & dung, & her bodie she humbled with fasts: and al the places, in which before she was accustomed to reioyce, she filled with tearing of her haire. 3. And she besought our Lord the God of Israel, saying: My Lord, which onlie art our King, help me solitarie woman, and which haue no other helper beside thee. 4. My peril is in my hands. 5. I haue heard of my father that thou Lord didst take Israel out from al Gentils, and our fathers out of al their predecessours before, that thou mightst possesse an euerlasting inheritance, and thou hast done to them as thou hast spoken. 6. We haue sinned in thy sight, and therefore thou hast deliuered vs into the hands of our enemies: 7. for we haue worshipped their Gods. Thou art iust o Lord. 8. And now it suffiseth them not, that they oppresse vs with most hard seruitude, but imputing the force of their hands to the might of their idols, 9. they wil change thy promisses, and destroy thine inheritance, and shut the mouths of them that prayse thee, and extinguish the glorie of thy temple and aitar, 10. that they may open the mouths of Gentils, and prayse the strength of idols, and magnifie a carnal King for euer. 11. Deliuer not o Lord thy scepter to them (a) that are not, lest they laugh at our ruine: but turne their counsel vpon them, & destroy him, that hath begun to doe cruelly against vs. 12. Remember o Lord: and shew thy self to vs in the time of our tribulation, and giue me confidence Lord King of Gods, and of al power: 13. giue me speech wel framed in my mouth, in the presence of the lion, and turne his hart into the hatred of ouremie, that both himself may perish, and the rest that consent vnto him. 14. But deliuer vs in thy hand, and helpe me, hauing no other helpe but thee o Lord, which hast the knowledge of al things, 15. and knowest that I hate the glorie of the wicked, and (b) detest the bed of the vncircumcised, and of euerie stranger. 16. Thou knowest my necessitie, that I abhorre the signe of my pride & glorie, which is vpon my head in the daies of my ostentation, and detest it as the cloth of a woman in her monthlie floures, and weare it not in the daies of my silence, 17. and that I haue not eaten at Amans table, neither the Kings banquet hath pleased me, and that I haue not drunke the wine of liba-

HE great King Artaxerxes, from India to Æthiopia, to the dukes and Princes of an hundred-twentie seuen Prouinces, which obey our commandment, sendeth greeting. 2. Manie haue abused vnto pride the goodnes of Princes, and the honour, that hath been bestowed vpon them: 3. and they do not only endeauour to oppresse the Kings subiects, but not bearing the glorie that is giuen them, they worke treason against them that gaue it. 4. Neither are they content not to giue thanks for the benefits, and to violate in themselues the lawes of humanitie, but they thinke they can escape the sentence of God also who seeth al things. 5. And they haue burst forth into so great madnes, that such as obserue diligently the offices committed vnto them, and doe al things so that they are worthie of al mens prayse, them they endeauour to ouerthrow by subtil means of lies, 6. whiles with craftie fraude they deceiue the simple eares of Princes, and esteeming others by their owne nature. 7. Which thing is proued both out of old histories, and by these things, which are done daily, how (a) the entreprises of Kings are depraued by the euil suggestions of certaine men. 8. Wherefore we must prouide for the peace of al Prouinces. 9. Neither must you thinke, if we command diuers things, that it commeth of the lightnesse of our mind, but that we giue sentence according to the qualitie and necessitie of times, as the profite of the commonwealth requireth. 10. And that you may more plainly vnderstand, that which we say, Aman the sone of Amadathi, both in mind & countrie a Macedonian, & an alien to the Persians bloud, and with his crueltie staying our pietie, was receiued.

of vs a stranger: 11. and found our humanitie so great towards him, that he was called (b) our father, & was adored of al second after the King: 12. who was pufft vp with so great swelling of arrogancie, that he went about to deprime vs of Kingdom and life. 13. For by certaine new deuises and not heard of before he hath sought to kil Mardocheus, by whose fidelitie and benefits we liue, and Either the fellow of our Kingdom with al their nation: 14. thinking this that they being slayne, he might worke treason to our solitarines, and might transferre the Kingdom of the Persians to the Macedonians. 15. But we haue found the Iewes, which were by that most wicked of men appoynted to be slayne, in no fault at al, but contrariwise vsing iust lawes, 16. and the children of the highest and the greatest, and alwayes louing God, by whose benefite the Kingdom was giuen both to our fathers and to vs, and is kept vnto this day. 17. Whertore know ye those letters, which he directed in our name, to be of none effect. 18. For the which heinous fact, before the gates of this citie, that is of Susan, both himself that deuised it, and al his kinred hang on gibbets: not we, but God repaying him that which he hath deserued. 19. But this edict, which we now send, let it be set forth in al cities, that it be lawful for the Iewes to vse their owne lawes. 20. Whom you must help, that those which had prepared themselues to their slaughter, they may kil, the thirtieth day of the twelfth month, which is called Adar. 21. For God omnipotent hath turned this day of sadnes and mourning into ioy to them. 22. Whertore (d) count you also this day among other festiual daies, and celebrate it with al ioy, that hereafter also it may be knowne, 23. that al, which faythfully obey the Persians, receiue worthe reward for their fidelitie: and they that lie in wayte against their Kingdom, perish for their wicked fact. 24. And euerie Prouiace and citie, that will not be partaker of this solemnitie, let it perish by sword and fyre, and let it so be destroyed, that not onlie men, but also beasts haue no accesse therto for cuer, for an example of contempt, and disobedience. *

(c) As Mardocheus suggested, the King confirmed the obseruation of a feast in memorie of Gods benefite, and so both Iewes & Gentils kept it.

Prefat.
in Iob,

Iolie Iob, otherwise called Iobab (Gen. 36.) as S. Augu-stin, S. Chrysostom, S. Ambrose, S. Gregorie, and other fathers teach, the sonne of Zara, the sonne of Rahuel, the sonne of Esau, was King (or absolute Prince) of the Land of Hus. Who being perfect in religion, sincere in life, rich in wealth, and blessed with children, for an admirable example of patience, and to shew that a mortal man through Gods grace, may resist the diuels tentations, by Gods permission, suisantly lost all his goods and children, was stricken with horrible sores in all his bodie, reviled by his wife, and in stead of comfort which his special freinds presented towards him, was inuitously charged by them, with impatience, arrogancie, blasphemie, and other crimes, for which they iustly supposed he was so afflicted, affirming, and by diuers sophistical arguments, groundaed as they pretended vpon Gods iustice, wisdom, power, mercie, and goodnes, would proue that God suffereth none but wicked men to be so afflicted. But Iob constantly defendeth his owne iust innocencie, and that worlde calamities and prosperitie happen indifferently to good and bad in this life, and that the true rewarde of the iust, & punishment of the wicked, is to be expected in the other world. At last God, with due reprehension of Iob for some imperfections, sharply rebuketh the errors and insolencie of his aduerser freinds, giveth sentence on Iobs side, pardoneth them at his intercession, and restoreth all things to him double to that he had before.

Prefat.

By faies the literal sense, Iob in all his actions, sufferings, and whole life, was a special figure of Christ, shewing (sayth S. Gregorie) by those things which he did and susteyned, what our Redeemer should doe and suffer:
yea more particularly then most part of the Patriarchs, which S. Ierome (epist. ad Paulin.) also admireth, and testifieth, saying: what mysteries of Christ doth not this booke comprehend? Euerie word is full of sense. Moreouer this historie is replenished with moral documents, how to embrace vertue, and eschew vice: proposing the life of a right goodlie man, neither insolent in prosperitie, nor despising in aduersitie, alwayes resolute in Gods seruice, as wel in his prosperous Kingdome as in the miserable dunghil. Here also we haue the true manner of arguing, according to the rules of Logike, with detection of sophistrie, Iob prouing and disproving assertions by proposition, assumption, and conclusion, as S. Ierome obserueth, with profound knowledge of natural things and causes, as appeareth in very manie places. At which varietie and aboundance of matter, comprised in smal rowwe, make manie things hard and obscure, yet are the same so tempered with other things plaine and easie, that here is verified S. Augustin's obseruation (li. 2. c. 6. doct. Christ) certaine places of holie Scriptures serue as delectable meate to them that hunger and thirst diuine knowledge, and the obscure take away tediousnes from them, that loath vsual plaine doctrine.

It is most probable that Iob himself, inspired by the Holie Ghost, by whose grace he excelled al in right simplicitie (c. 1.) writ his owne historie, the most part in verse, only the two first chapters and the last in prose, in the Arabian tongue, which Moyses translated into Hebrew, for the consolation of the Israelites affl. And in Egypt.

And it may be diuided into three general parts. First, the change of Iob's state from prosperitie into affliction, with his lamentation for the same, are recorded in the three first chapters. In foure and thirtie chapters following are sundrie disputations, conflicts, and discourses between him and his friends, touching the cause of his so vehement affliction. In the five last chapters God discusseth the quarel, giueth sentence for Iob against his aduersaries, pardoneth them, and rewardeth him.

And when the dayes of feasting had passed about in course, Iob sent to them, and sanctified them: and rising vp early " offered holocaustes for euerie one. For he sayd: Lest perhaps my sonnes haue sinned, and haue blessed God in their harts. So did Iob al the dayes. 6. there is not the like to him in the earth, a man simple, and right, and fearing God, and departing from euill? 9. To whom Satan answering, said: Why, doth Iob feare God in vayne? 10. hast not thou fenced him, and his house, and al his substance round about, blessed the works of his hands, and his possession hath increased on the earth? 11. But stretch forth thy hand a litle, and touch al things that he possesseth, vnlesse he blesse thee in the face. 12. Our Lord therefore sayd to Satan: (b) behold, al things that he hath, are in thy hand, onlie vpon him extend not thy hand. And Satan went forth from the face of our Lord. 13. And when vpon a certaine day his sonnes and daughters did eate, and driake wine in the house of their eldest brother, 14. there came a messenger to Iob, which sayd: The oxen ploughed, and the she-asses fed beside them, 15. and the Sabeians came in vioiently, and haue taken al things, and haue stricken the seruants with the sword, and I onlie haue escaped to tel thee. 16. And when he yet spake, an other came, and sayd: The fire of God fel from heauen, and striking the sheep and the seruants hath consumed them, and I only haue escaped to tel thee. 17. But whilles he also was yet speaking, there came an other and said: The Chaldees made thre troupes, and haue inuaded the camels, and taken them, moreouer the seruants also they haue stricken with the sword, and I alone am fled to tel thee. 18. He yet spake, and behold an other came in, and said: Thy sonnes and daughters eating and drinking wine in the house of their eldest brother, 19. sodainly a vehement winde came vioiently from the countrie of the desert, and shooke the foure corners of the house, which falling oppressed thy children and they are dead, and I alone haue escaped to tel thee. 20. Then Iob rose vp, and rent his garments, & with poled head falling on the ground, adored, 21. and said: (c) Naked came I out of my mothers wombe, and naked shall I returne thither: Our Lord gaue, and our Lord hath taken away: as it hath pleased our Lord, so is it done: the name of our Lord be blessed. 22. As wel Iob as other Prophets writ their owne actes and prayfes. Good works are both Gods works & mens works.

1. Simple, right, and fearing God.) Moyses, Samuel, Esdras, and other Prophets writ there owne actes among others, also their owne prayfes, speaking of themselves in the third person, and so did holie Iob, humbly, truly, and simply, without vayne glorie, or arrogancie, as S. Gregorie noteth, saying: Blessed Iob, inspired with the Holie Ghost, might wel write his owne actes, which were the gifts of supernal inspiration. Moreover Moreouer Iobs singular patience and other vertues are likewise commended in other Scriptures and by ancient Doctours. Tobie 2. God permitted tentation to happen vnto Tobias, that example might be giuen to his followers of his patience, as of holie Iob, S. Iames (c. 5.) exhorting to patience, sayth: You haue heard the suffering of Iob, and you haue seen the end of our Lord. Tertullian (li. de patientia) admiring Iobs patience exclaimeth thus: O most happie man! whom neither the driuing a way of his flocks of catle, nor consuming of the rest with fire, nor the losse of his children, nor toments of his bodie, could driue from patience: but he stood immoueaible in the seruice of God, for example to vs. that we fal not for anie wordlie damage, losse of dearest friends, or corporal afflictions. And blessed be God, by whose bleisng we may now say: O happie English Catholikes, that patiently suffer the very same kinds of tribulation (though not in so great a degree) in our time! S. Cyprian (li. de bono patientie) Iob examined and proued by the vertue of patience, was aduenced to the very height of prayse, a rich Lord in possession, and a more rich father in children, so daingly was neither Lord, nor father: was also most grieuouly afflicted in his flesh: and that no tentation might be wanting, the diuel armed his wife against him, yet was he not moued, but by victorious patience thanked God for al. In like sort other holie fathers, for encouragement and contolation of the afflicted, write much of holie Iobs inuincible patience. Aboue al S. Gregorie, our Apostle, dilateth most excellently in thirtie and five whole books, describing and proposing his so great vertues to be imitated by al Christians, first of al (li. 1. c. 5.) obseruing how great a prayse it is to be good in such a place, in the middes of a crooked and peruerse nation, shining as a lichte in the world, dwelling in the gentils, where was the seate of Satan, a lillie amongst thornes.

Iobs patience inuincible in al sortes of affliction.

English Catholikes loose their goods & children, & are afflicted in bodie.

Great commendation to be good amongst the bad.

Sacrifice being of infinite vertue, yet the valure in application is limited.

To whom Satan answering, said: Skinne for skinnæ, and all things that a man hath, he wil giue for his life: 5. otherwise put thy hand, and touch his bone and flesh, and then shalt thou see that he wil blesse thee in the face. 6. Our Lord therefore sayd to Satan: Behold he is in thy hand, but yet saue his life. 7. And (b) his wife sayd to him: Doeest thou yet continue in thy simplicitie? blesse God and die. 10. Who sayd to her: Thou hast spoken like one of the foolish women: if we haue receiued good things of the hand of God, euil things why should we not receiue? In all these things Iob sinned not with his lippes. 11. Therefore Iobs three freinds hearing al the euil, that had chanced to him, came euerie one out of their place, Eliphaz a Themanite, and Baldad a Suhuite, and Sophar a Naamathite. For they had appointed, that comming together they would visite him, and comfort him. 12. These visiters of Iob were indeed his freinds, & professed true religion. They erred in Iobs particular case.

And prefigured Heretikes.

11. Iobs three freinds.] For better intelligence of these conflicts between holie Iob and his freinds, it may here be obserued, that they were indeed his freinds, as the text simply calleth them: that they believed rightly in God Almighty, and were not idolaters: that they came of freindly good affection to comfort him, though they fell into words of reproofing him (as S. Gregorie teacheth:) they alleadged also many excellent diuine sentences very truly, which therefore Iob reprobued not. But they erred in their conclusions against Iob: and that of ignorance rather than of set malice, concluding that Iob was guiltie of some enormous sinnes, because they saw him so grieuously punished, and heard him complain therof; his owne conscience known to him and hid to them (whereof they rashly iudged, testifying that he was innocent, in respect of so great crimes. And in this their particular error, though they were not heretikes, being not obstinate after that the truth was sufficiently reueiled vnto them, yet they prefigured heretikes, endeauouring by one truth to destroy an other, and by arrogating knowledge which they had not: promising also new things and unheard of, rather to draw others to admire them, then to edification.

Iob lamenteth, describing his owne, and the general calamities of man, 13. and shewing how they escape many miseries which either are neuer borne, or dye presently after their birth.

AFTER these things Iob opened his mouth, and (1) cursed his day, 2. and spake. 3. Perish may the day wherein I was borne, & the night wherein it was sayd: A man is conceiued. 4. Be that day turned into darknesse, God require it not from aboute, and let it not be lightened with light. 5. Let darkenes, and the shadow of death obscure it, let a mist possesse it, and be it wrapped in bitterness. 6. A darke some hurlewind possesse that night, be it not counted in the daies of the yeare, nor numbred in the months. 7. Be that night solitarie, nor prayse-worthie. 8. Let them curse it which curse the day, which are readie to raise vp Leviathan. 9. Let the starres be darkened with the mist therof: let it expect light and let it not see, neither the rising of the appearing morning. 10. Because it shut not vp the doores of the wombe that bare me, nor tooke away euils from myne eyes. 11. Why died I not in the matrice, perished not forth with being come forth of the wombe? 12. Why receiued vpon the knees? why nourced with the breasts? 13. For now sleeping I would be quiet, and should rest in my sleep: 14. With Kings and counsils of the earth, which build themselves solitarie places: 15. Or with Princes, that possesse gold, and replenish their houses with siluer: 16. Or as a thing vntimely borne that is hid I should not be, or as they that being conceiued haue not seen the light. 17. There the impious haue ceased from tumult, & there the wearied with strength haue rested. 18. And they sometime bound together without griefe, haue not heard the voyce of the exactor. 19. Little and great are there, and the seruant free from his master. 20. Why is there light giuen to a miserable man, and life to them, that are in bitterness of soule, 21. that expect death, and it commeth not, as they that dig vp treasure, 22. and they reioyce exceedingly when they haue found the graue? 23. To a man whose life is hid, and God hath compassed him with darknes? Before I ate I sigh: and as it were ouerfluying waters, so my roaring: 25. Because the feare which I feared, hath chanced to me. and that which I was afrayd of, hath happened. 26. Haue I not discumbered? haue I not kept silence? haue I not been at ease? and indignation is come vpon me.

After so long silence, at last Iob expresseth his grief before his friends, so be so great, that in respect therof he iustly curseth all euil things, as not made by God, but ioyned to mans life, being the effects of sinne, euen from his conception and birth: wishing that whatsoeuer concurred to his longer afflictions in this life & hindred his more speedy deliuerie from dangers &c. calamities had not been: for so he had been sooner at rest, as Gods goodness should dispose of him. At which was a lawfull desire & no sinne. at al. See i. Pineda in c. 2. Iob.

C H A P. III.

The second part.
 Divers discourses & disputes about the cause of Iobs afflictions.
 The first conflict, between Eliphaz & Iob.

Eliphaz blameth Iob as guiltie of impatience, arguing thereupon that he was not so perfect in vertue as he seemed, 7. and therefore is now punished by God, who (as Eliphaz falsely supposeth) afflicteth not innocent men: 12. alleading for prooffe an imaginarie vision.

(a) No innocent euer perished eternally: but innocēt Abel was slaine temporally, & innumerable others suffer calamities for their greater merite.

(b) Heretikes pretend such obscure visions more to get credit then to edifie others. S. Greg. l. 5. c. 18.

(c) Iob easely granteth that man may not compare nor contend with God, ch. 9. v. 1. Yet men may be innocent & free from grievous finnes.

VT Eliphaz the Themanite answering, sayd: 2. If we thal begin to speake to thee, perhaps thou wilt take it grievously, but the word conceiued who can hold? 3. Behold thou hast taught manie, and wearie hands thou hast strengthened. 4. Them that wauered thy words haue confirmed, and trembling knees thou hast strengthened: 5. But now a plague is come vpon thee, & thou hast faynted: hath touched thee, and thou art troubled. 6. Where is thy feare, thy strength, thy patience, and the perfection of thy wayes? 7. Remember I beseech thee, who euer being innocent hath (a) perished? or when haue the iust been destroyed? 8. Yea rather I haue seen them that worke iniquitie, and sow sorrowes, and reape them, 9. to haue perished by the blast of God, and with the spirit of his wrath to haue been consumed. 10. The roaring of the lion, and the voice of the lionesse, and the teeth of the welps of lions are bruised: 11. The tigre hath perished, because he had no prey, and the lions wheips are destroyed. 12. Moreouer (b) to me there was spoken a secret word, and as it were by stealth hath mine eare receiued the vaines of the whispering therof. 13. In the horror of a vision by night, when deep sleep is wont to hold men, 14. feare held me, and trembling, and al my bones were made sore afrayd: 15. And when the spirit passed in my presence, the haire of my flesh stood vpright. 16. There stood one, whose countenance I knew not, an image before mine eyes, and I heard the voyce as it were of a gentle winde: 17. What (c) shal man be iustified in comparison of God, or shal a man be more pure then his maker? 18. Behold they that serue him are not stable, and in his Angels he found wickednes: 19. How much more they that inhabit houses of clay, which haue an earthly foundation, shal be consumed as it were of the moth? 20. From morning vntil euening they shal be cut downe: and because none vnderstandeth, they shal perish for euer. 21. And they that shal be leaft, shal be taken away from them: they shal die, and not in wisdom.

C H A P. V.

Eliphaz prosecuteth his discourse to conuince Iob of great finnes, because he is so vehemently afflicted: 17. exhorteth him therefore to acknowledge his finnes, so all things shal succeed prosperously.

AL therefore (a) if there be that wil answer thee, and " turne to some of the Saints. 2. Anger indeed killeth the foolish, and enuie teacheth the litle one, 3. I haue seen a foole with firme roots, and I cursed his beautie by and by. 4. His children shal be made far from saluation, and shal be destroyed in the gate, and there shal be none to deliuer. 5. Whose haruest the hungrie shal eat, and the armed shal take him by violence, and the thirstie shal drinke his riches. 6. Nothing in the earth is done without a cause, and out of the ground sorrow shal not rise. 7. (b) Man is borne to labour, and the bird to flight. 8. For the which thing I wil beseech our Lord, and toward God I wil set my speach: 9. Who doeth great and vnsearchable and meruelous things without number: 10. Who giueth raine vpon the face of the earth, and watereth all things with waters: 11. Who setteth the humble on high, and them that are in heauinesse he comforteth with health: 12. Who dissipateth the cogitations of the malignant, that their hands can not accomplish that which they began: 13. Who apprehendeth the wise in their subtiltie, and dissipateth the counsel of the wicked: 14. By day they shal incurre darkenesse, and as it were in the night, so shal they grope at noone daies. 15. Moreouer the shal saue the needy from the sword of their mouth, and the poore from the hand of the violent. 16. And to the needie there shal be hope, but iniquitie shal draw together her mouth.
 17. Blessed is the man that is corrected of God: refuse not therefore the chastising of our Lord: 18. Because he woundeth, and cureth: striketh, & his hands shal heale. 19. In (c) six tribulations he shal deliuer thee, and in the (a) seuen: h euil shal not touch thee. 20. In famine he shal deliuer thee from death, and in battel from the hand of the sword. 21. From the scourge of the tongue thou shalt be hid; and thou shalt not feare calamitie when it commeth. 22. In waste and famine thou shalt laugh, & the beasts of the earth thou shalt not feare. 23. But with the stones of the lands thy couenant, and the bealts of the earth shal be peaceable to thee.
 24. And thou shalt know that thy tabernacle hath peace, and visiting thy beautie, thou shalt not sinne. 25. Thou shalt know also that thy seed shal be manifold, and thy progenie as the grasse of the earth. 26. Thou shalt enter into the graue in abouduance, as a heape of wheate is caryed in his time. 27. Behold, this is euen so, as we haue searched out: which thou hauing heard reuolue in thy mind.

Inuocation of Saints, especially Angels
in Iobs time.

1. Turne to some of the Saints.) Eliphaz prouoking Iob to produce some of his opinion, or to seeke the helpe and patronage of some Saint in his cause, plainly sheweth the common faith and practise of inuocating Saints in that time. Els it had been a friuolous speech, which is not to be imputed to a sensible wise man as he was. For it appeareth by the drift of his reasoning, that he supposed some of Gods special seruants would maintaine a good cause, but that Iobs cause was such as neither God, nor holie Angel, nor good man would defend, and therefore boldly prouoked him to this trial, presuming that he should finde no such patron. Nei ther did he wil Iob in these words to cal vpon God only, for he could not erre so grossly, as to cal God some of the Saints: but must meane some other holie person. And it is cleer by the Septuaginta Interpreters, that Eliphaz willed Iob to inuocate the Angels, saying: Inuocate if ame wil answer thee, or if thou canst behold any of the holie Angels. S. Gregorie expoundeth it to the same sence, that Saints were to be inuocated in a good cause, but that Eliphaz here diuising and deriding holie Iob, sayd to him: Thou canst not find Saints thy helpers in affliction, whom thou wouldest not haue thy felowes in prosperitie.

C H A P. VI.

Iob answereth the obiections of Eliphaz, shewing that indeed the calamities which he suffereth is much greater then his sinnes deserue; and ther, ore his lamentation is excusable: 8. wisheth (if it so please Goa) that he may dye: 13. complaineth that his freinds are become his aduersaries: 16. grauely expostulateth that they reprehend him, 12. and heipe him not.

(a) A man of sincere conscience confesseth the sinnes wherof he is guiltie, yet a knowledgeth no alwher with others may vniustly charge him.

VT Iob answering, sayd: 2. (a) Would God my sinnes were weyghed, wherby I haue deserued wrath, and the calamitie, which I suffer, in a balance. 3. "As the sand of the sea this would appeare heauier, wherfore my words also are full of sorow: 4. Because the arrowes of our Lord be in me, the indignation wereof driueth vp my spirit, & the terrours of our Lord warre agaynst me. 5. Wil the wilde alle roare when he hath grasse? or the ox loweth when he may stand before the full māger? 6. Or can an vnfaourie thing be eaten, that is not seasoned with salt? or can a man tast that which being tasted bringeth death? 7. The things which before my soule would not touch, now for anguish are my meats. 8. Who wil grant that my petition may come: and that God would giue me that which I expect? 9. And he that hath begun, the same would loose his hand, and cut me off? 10. And this might be my comfort, that afflicting me with sorrow, he spare not, nor I gaynesay the words of the Holie one. 11. For what is my strength, that I can susteyne it? or what is mine end, that I should doe patiently? 12. Neither is my strength the strength of stones, neither is my flein of brasse. 13. Behold there is no help for me in my self, and my familiar freinds also are departed from me. 14. He that taketh away mercie from his freind, forsaketh the feare of our Lord. 15. My brethren haue passed by me, as the torrent that passeth swiftly in the valleys. 16. They that feare the hoarefrost, snow thal sal vpō thē. 17. At the time, whē they thal be dissipated they thal perish: & after they waxe hote they thal be dissolved out of their place. 18. The paths of their steps are intangled: they thal walke in vaine, & thal perish. 19. Cōsider ye the paths (b) of Thema, the wayes of Saba, and expect a litle while. 20. They are confounded, because I haue hoped: they are come also euen vnto me, and are couered with shame. 21. Now you are come: and euen now seeing my plague you are afraid. 22. Haue I sayd: Bring ye to me, and of your substance giue to me? 23. Or deliuer me from the hand of the enemy, and out of the hand of the strong deliuer me? 24. Teach ye me, and I wil hold my peace: and if I perhaps haue been ignorant in anie thing, instruct ye me. 25. Why haue you detracted from the words of truth, whereas there is none of you that can controle me? 26. To rebuke only you frame speeches, and you vtter words in the wind. 27. You ruin in vpon a pupil, and you endeauour to ouerthrow your freind. 28. Notwithstanding accomplish that which you haue begun: giue eare, and see whether I lie. 29. Answer I beseech you without contention: and speaking that which is iust, iudge ye. 30. And you thal not finde iniquitie in my tongue, neither thal folie found in my iawes.

(b) Sandie was without water.

(c) Iobs aduersaries presumed to teach him, but because they erred in their applying of true assertions in his case, which himself vnderstood and not they, he accounted not their discourses for good doctrine.

ANNOTATIONS.

CHAP. VI.

3. As the sand of the sea. Scarce anie figure is more common in holie Scripture then Hyperbole: wherby our vnderstanding is drawne to conceiue the greatness of things that otherwise surpasse vulgar capacitie. So Iob signifieth here that his calamitie being weighed with his sinnes in a balance, would appeare heavier, not precisely in proportion of the number of the sands in the sea, but exceeding much in true comparison. Of which superabundance of paines patiently suffered by holie Iob, and other Saints, more then their sinnes deserued, especially of our B. Sauour, who could not sinne, and of our B. Ladie, who neuer sinned, remayneth an infinite treasure of satisfactorie workes, appliable by the

CHAP. VII.

Iob explicated in diuers calamities of mans life, and namely of his owne. 6. Supposing it not likely that he shall returne to former prosperous state, 15. desireth to dye.

a) A souldier must be alwayes readie to endure trauel, to be promptly obedient, content to be beaten by his superior without resistance, vpon paine of his life: he is alwayes subiect to cares, and to danger of death, & therefore must euer be readie to dye.

b) Iust Iob supposing he was at the point of death, prayed God to spare or cease to punish him more, & to accept of that affliction which he had already suffered. So the Church in behalf of soules departed in state of grace prayeth God to spare and cease from further punishing them, & to give them eternal rest.

THE life of man vpon earth is a (a) warfare, and his daies, as the daies of an hyred man. 2. As a seruant desireth the shadow, and as the hired man taryeth for the end of his worke: 3. so I also haue had vayne months, & haue numbered to my self laborious nights. 4. If I sleep, I shall say: When shall I arise? & agayne I shall expect the euening, & shall be replenished with sorowes euen vntil darkenes. 5. My flesh is clothed with rottenesse & filth of dust, my skinne is withered, & drawe together. 6. My daies haue passed more swiftly, then the web is cut of the weauer, and are consumed without anie hope. 7. Remember that my life is a winde, & myne eie shall not returne to see good things. 8. Neither shall the sight of man behold me: thine eies vpon me, and I shall not stand. 9. As a ciowde is consumed, and passeth away: so he that shall descend to hel shall not ascend. 10. Neither shall he returne anie more into his house, neither shall his place know him anie more. 11. Wherefore I also wil not spare my mouth, I wil speake in the tribulation of my spirit: I wil talke with the bitternesse of my soule. 12. Why, am I a sea, or a whale, that thou hast compassed me with a prison? 13. If I say: My litle bed shall comfort me, and I shall be relieved speaking with my self in my couch: 14. Thou wilt terrifie me by dreames, and by visions shake me with horroure. 15. For the which thing my soule hath chosen hanging, and my bones death. 16. I haue despayed. I shall now liue yo longer: (b) Spare me, for my daies are nothing. 17. What is man that thou magnifiest him? or why settest thou thy hart toward him? 18. Thou doest visite him early, and sodainly thou prouest him: 19. How long doest thou not spare me, nor suffer me that I swallow my spittle? 20. I haue sinned, what shall I doe to thee, o keeper of men? why hast thou sette me contrarie to thee, and I am become burdenous to my self? 21. Why doest thou not take away my sinne,

sinne, and why doest thou not take away mine iniquitie? Behold now I shal sleep in the dust: and if thou seek me in the morning, I shal not be.

C H A P. VIII.

Baldad chargeth Iob to haue spoken vniustly, exhorting him to turne to God, and so he shal prosper better then heretofore: 13. shewing that hypocrites shal not prosper, 20. inferresh (falsly) that God afflicteth not the sincere, nor helpeth the malignant.

V T Baldad the Suhite answering, sayd: (4) 2. How long wilt thou speake such things, & shal the spirit of the word of thy mouth be multiplied? 3. Why, doth God supplant iudgement? or doth the Omnipotent subuert that which is iust? 4. Although thy children haue sinned to him, and he hath leaft them in the hand of their iniquitie: 5. Yet if thou wilt arise early to God, & wilt beseech the Omnipotent: 6. If thou wilt walke cleane & vpright, he wil forthwith awake vnto thee, and wil make the habitation of thy iustice peaceable: 7. In so much, that if thy former things haue been litle, thy later things may be multiplied exceedingly. 8. For aske the old generation, and search diligently the memorie of the fathers (9. For we are but as yesterday, & are ignorant (6) that our daies vpon the earth are as a shadow,) 10. And they shal teach thee: they shal speake to thee, and from their hart shal vtter words. 11. Can the rush be green without moysture? or a seggie place grow without water? 12. When it is yet in his flowre, and is not plucked with the hand, it withereth before al hearbs: 13. Euen so the waies of al, that forget God, and the hope of the hypocrite shal perih: 14. His folie shal not please him, and his confidence as the spiders web. 15. He shal leane vpon his house, and it shal not stand: he shal stay it vp, and it shal not rise: 16. He seemeth moystned before the sunne come, & in his rising his blossome shal goe forth. 17. Vpon a heape of rocks his roots shal be thicke, and among stones he shal abide. 18. If he swallow him vp out of his place, he wil denie him, and wil say: I know thee not. 19. For this is the ioy of his way, that others may spring againe of the earth. 20. God wil not reiect the simple, nor reach his hand to the malignant. 21. Vntil thy mouth be filled with laughter, & thy lips with iubilation. 22. They that hate thee, shal be clothed with contusion: and the tabernacle of the impious shal not stand.

(a) The second conflict. This second disputer charged Iob to be obstinate; who indeed was constant in a true serled iudgement.

(c) Euen thus Heretikes imagine catholikes to be ignorant, & therefore fill their mouths & books with things that are not denied, & yet inferre much falshood sophistically applying ene truth against another, being themselues ignorant how to reconcile difficulties.

C H A P. IX.

*Job approueth that no man auouching his owne iustice before God is iustified.
22. Teacheth that affliction of the innocent standeth wel with Gous iustice, wisdome, and power.*

(a) Job here granteth that which was truly said by his aduersarie, and sheweth how he did wronge aplie true doctrine against him, and so stil defendeth his owne innocencie and iust quarel.

(b) Angels moue the spheres of heauen.

(c) Euen so S. Paul, though he was not guilty in conscience of any crime, yet he would not therein iustifie himself. Cor. 4.

(d) This is an assured true assertion, that God afflicteth both good & euil in this life.

(e) Feare on mans part, and hope in God, doe wel consist together. So both presumption and desperation are avoided.

AND Job answering, said: 2. (a) Indeed I know it is so, and that man is not iustified compared with God. 3. If he wil contend with him, he can not answer him one for a thousand. 4. He is wise of hart, and strong of force: who hath resisted him, and hath had peace? 5. He that transported mountaynes, and they whom he subuerted in his furie; knew not. 6. He that remoueth the earth out of her place, and the pillars thereof are thaken. 7. He that commandeth the sunne; and it riseth not: and shutteth vp the starres as it were vnder a seale: 8. He that alone spreadeth the heauen, & goeth vpon the waues of the sea: 9. He that maketh Arcturus, and Orion, and Hyades, and the inner parts of the south. 10. He that doth great things and incomprehensible, and merueilous, of the which there is no number. 11. If he come to me, I shal not see him: if he depart, I shal not vnderstand. 12. If suddenly he aske, who shal answer him? or who can say: Why doest thou so? 13. God whose wrath no man can resist, and vnder whom they stoop that (b) carie the world. 14. How great am I then, that I may answer him, and speake in my words with him? 15. Who although I haue anie iust thing, wil not answer, (c) but wil beseech my iudge. 16. And when he shal heare me inuocating, I doe not belieue that he hath heard my voice. 17. For in a hurlewind shal he breake me, and shal multiplie my wounds yea without cause. 18. He granteth not my spirit to rest, and he filleth me with bitternesse. 19. If strength be demanded, he is most strong: if equitie of iudgement, no man dare giue testimonie for me. 20. If I wil iustifie my self, mine owne mouth shal condemne me: if I wil shew my self innocent, he shal proue me wicked. 21. Although I shal be simple, the self-same shal my soul be ignorant of, and I shal be wearie of my life. 22. (d) One thing there is that I haue spoken, both the innocent and the impious he consumeth. 23. If he scourge, let him kil at once, and not laugh at the paynes of innocents. 24. The earth is giuen into the hands of the impious, he couereth the face of the iudges thereof: and if it be not he, who is it then? 25. My dayes haue been swifter then a poste: they haue fled and haue not seen good. 26. They haue passed by as ships carying fruits, as an eagle flying to meat. 27. When I shal say: I wil not speake so, I change my face, & am tormented with sorow. 28. I (e) feared al my works, knowing that thou didst not spare the offender. 29. But if so also I am impious, why haue I laboured in vayne? 30. If I be washed as it were with snow-waters, & my hands shal shine as most cleane: 31. Yet shal thou dippe me in filth, and my garments shal abhorre me. 32. For neither I wil answer a man that is like my self: nor that may be heard with me equally in iudgement. 33. There is none that may be able to reprove both, and to put his hand between both. 34. Let him take his rod from me, and let not his dread terrifie me. 35. I wil speake, and wil not feare him: for I can not answer fearing.

C H A P. X.

Job scarce able to speake, yet sheweth that there is no iniustice nor ignorance in God, neither is his sinne the cause of so great afflictions. 9. Acknowlegeth Gods loue and benefits towards himselfe, 15. and dreauleth his strict iudgement.

MY soule is wearie of my life, I wil let my speach passe agaynst my self. I wil speake in the bitterness of my soule: 2. I wil say to God: Condemne me not: tel me why thou iudgest me so. 3. Doth it seeme good to thee, if thou (a) calumniate me, and oppresse me the worke of thy hands, and helpe the counsel of the impious? 4. Hast thou eyes of flesh: or as a man seeth, that thou also see? 5. Are thy daies as the daies of man, and are thy yeares as the times of men: 6. That thou seekest my iniquitie, and searchest my sinne? 7. And thou mayst know that I haue done no impious thing, whereas there is no man that can deliuer out of thy hand. 8. (b) Thy hands haue made me, & framed me wholly round-about, & dost thou so sodainlie cast me downe headlong? 9. Remember I beseech thee that as clay thou madest me, & into dust thou wilt bring me agayne. 10. Hast thou not as milke milked me, and curded me as cheefe? 11. With skinned & flein thou hast clothed me: with bones and sinowes thou hast compacted me. 12. Life and mercie thou hast giuen to me, and thy visitation hath kept my spirit. 13. Although thou conceale these things in thy hart, yet I know that thou remembrest all things. 14. If I haue sinned and thou hast spared me for an houre: why dost thou not suffer me to be cleane from mine iniquitie? 15. And if I shal be impious, woe is to me: and if iust, I shal not lift vp my head, filled with affliction and miserie. 16. And for pride as a lionesse thou wilt take me, and returning thou dost meruelously torment me. 17. Thou renewest thy witnesses against me, & multipliest thy wrath toward me, and paynes doe warre vpon me. 18. Why dost thou bring me forth out of the matrice? Who would God, I had been consumed, that eye might not see me. 19. I had been as if I were not, caried from the wombe to the graue. 20. Shal not the fewnes of my daies be ended shortly? suffer me (c) therefore, that I may a litle lament my sorow: 21. Before I goe, and returne not, vnto the darke land, that is couered with the mist of death: 22. A land of miserie and darkenesse, where is the shadow of death, and no order, but euerlasting horrour inhabiteth.

(a) Holie Job knowing it to be vnpossible that God calumniateth any man; inquireth what is the cause why his goodness afflicteth the iust.
 (b) In that I am thy creature thou maist iustly destroy me but indeed because I am thy creature thou wilt spare me through thy mercy, giuing me thy grace which if I vse well thou wilt also giue me eternal rest.

(c) Repentance is alwayes necessarie, but most especially at the houre of death.

CHAP. XI.

Sophar imputeth Iobs discourse, about the cause of his so great afflictions, to insolencie of mind, and loquacitie of tongue, perswading him to acknowledge grieuous sinnes, that so he may haue the reward of a iust man.

The third conflict.

(a) Sophar might haue applied the vice of much speaking to himself & his felowes, al- leading manie things which proued not their opinion, whereas Iobs allegations proued directly that which he affirmed.

(b) Iobs owne conscience affirmed the contrarie. ch. 6. v. 3.

(c) He could not iustly confesse iniquitie which he had not committed,

BUT Sophar the Naamathite answering, said: 2. Why, shal he that speaketh manie things, not heare also? or (a) shal a man full of words be iustified? 3. To thee onlie shal men hold their peace? & when thou hast mocked others, shalt thou be confuted of none? 4. For thou hast sayd: My word is pure, and I am cleane in thy sight. 5. And I would wish that God would speake with thee, and would open his lips to thee. 6. That he might shew thee the secrets of wisdom, and that his law is manifold, and thou mightest vnderstand that thou art exacted much lesser things of him (b) then thy iniquitie deserueth. 7. Peraduenture thou wilt comprehend the steps of God, and wilt find out the Omnipotent perfectly? 8. He is higher then heauen, and what wilt thou doe? deeper then hel, and how wilt thou know? 9. The measure of him is longer then the earth, & broder then the sea. 10. If he shal ouerthrow al things, or shal strayten the into one, who shal say against him? 11. For he knoweth the vanitie of men, & seeing iniquity doth he not consider? 12. A vaine man is extolled into pride, & thinketh himself borne free as a wilde asses colt. 13. But thou hast confirmed thy hart, & hast spred thy hands to him. 14. If thou shalt take away froe thee the iniquitie (c) that is in thy hand, & iniustice remaine not in thy tabernacle: 15. Then mayst thou lift vp thy face without spot, & thou shalt be stable, & shalt not feare. 16. Thou shalt also forget miserie, & shalt remember it as waters that are passed. 17. And the brightnes as it were of noon-daies, shal arise to thee at euening: and when thou shalt think thy self consumed, thou shalt rise as the day starre. 18. And thou shalt haue confidence, hope being set before thee, & buried thou shalt sleep secure. 19. Thou shalt rest, and there shal be none to terrifie thee: and verie manie shal beseech thy face. 20. But the eyes of the impious shal decay, and escape shal faile them, and their hope the abomination of the soule.

CHAP. XII.

Iob sheweth the knowledge, which his freinds much boast of, to be the common known doctrine of Gods seruants. He more truly, and more profusely discourseth of Gods power and wisdom, stil defending his owne innocencie in respect of great finnes.

BUT Iob answering, said: 2. Are you then men alone, & shal wisdom die with you? 3. I also haue a hart euen as you, neither am I inferiour to you: for who is ignorant of these things, which you know? 4. He that is mocked of his freind as I, shal inuocate God, and he wil heare him: for the (a) simplicitie of the iust man is scorned. 5. The lampe contemned in the cogitations of the riche, is prepared to the time appointed. 6. The tabernacles of robbers abound, and they prouoke God boldly, whereas he hath giuen al things into their hands. 7. For aske the beasts, and they shal teach thee: and the foules of the ayre, and they shal tel thee. 8. Speake to the earth, and it shal answer thee, and the fishes of the sea shal tel. 9. Who is ignorant that the hand of our Lord hath made al these things? 10. In whose hand is the soule of euerie liuing thing, and the spirit of al the flesh of man. 11. Doth not the eare discern words, and the iawes of him that eateth, the tast? 12. In the ancients is wisdom, and in long time prudence. 13. With him is wisdom and strength, he hath counsel and vaderstanding. 14. If he shal destroy, there is no man that can build: if he shut vp a man, there is none that can open. 15. If he hold in the waters, al things shal be dried: and if he send them forth, they shal ouerthrow the earth. 16. With him is strength and wisdom: he knoweth both the deceiuer, and him that is deceiued. 17. He bringeth (b) counsellers to a fooliish end, & iudges to astonishment. 18. He looeth the belt of Kings, & girdeth their reines with a corde. 19. He leadeth away Priests without glorie, & supplanteth the great men. 20. Changing the lippe of the true, and taking away the doctrine of the ancients. 21. He powreth out contempt vpon Princes, relieuing them that had been oppressed. 22. Who reueileth profound things out of darkenesse, and bringeth forth the shadow of death into light. 23. Who multiplieth nations, & destroyeth them, and restoreth the destroyed whole agayne. 24. Who changeth the hart of the Princes of the people of the earth, and deceiueth them, that they may goe in vayne where is no passage. 25. They shal grope as in the darke, and not in the light, and he shal make them goe amisse as drunken men.

(a) God suffereth his simple true-meaning seruants to be scorned for the time, but afterward the wicked shal be forced to conesse, that those whom they derided are worthily in honour before God. Sap. 5. v. 3.

(b) Craftie plotters of deuises at last by Gods iust punishment commit so great absurdities, that the meanest may see their follie.

CHAP. XIII.

Of their owne words Tob confuteeth his aduersaries, that they haue spoken that which they know not: 13. defendeth his owne innocencie: 22. desiring of God, if he be afflicted for secret finnes, that he may know them.

BEHOLD mine eie hath seen al these things, and mine eare hath heard, and I haue vnderstood euerie thing. 2. According to your knowledge I also doe know: neither am I inferiour to you. 3. But yet I wil speake to the Omnipotent, and I couet to dispute with God. 4. First shewing you to be torgers of lying, and mainteyners of peruerse opinions. 5. And would: God ye would hold your peace, that you might be thought to be wise men. 6. Heare ye therefore my correptions, and attend the iudgement of my lips. 7. Hath God need of your lye, that for him you speake guiles? 8. Doe you take his person, and doe you endeauour (a) to iudge for God? 9. Or shal it please him from whom nothing can be concealed, or that he be deceiued as a man, with your fraudulent dealings? 10. He shal reprove you, because in secrette you take his person. 11. Forthwith as he shal moue himself, he shal trouble you: and his terrour shal come violently vpon you. 12. Your memorie shal be compared to ashes, and your neckes shal be brought into clay. 13. Hold your peace a litle while, that I may speake whatsoever my minde shal prompt me. 14. (b) Why doe I teare my flesh with my teeth, and earie my soule in my hands? 15. Although he shal kill me, I wil (c) trust in him: but yet I wil reprove my waies in his sight. 16. And he shal be my sauour: for no hypocrite shal come in his sight. 17. Heare ye my word, and receiue the obscure sayings with your eares. 18. If I shal be iudged, (c) I know that I shal be found iust. 19. What is he that wil be iudged with me? let him come: why am I consumed holding my peace? 20. Two things only doe not to me, and then shal I not be hid from thy face: 21. Make thy hand far from me, and let not thy feare terrifie me. 22. Cal me, and I wil answer thee: or els I wil speake, and doe thou answer me. 23. How great iniquities and finnes I haue, my wicked deeds and my offences (d) shew thou me. 24. Why hidest thou thy face, and thinkest me thine enemy? 25. Against the lease, that is violently taken with the wind, thou shewest thy might, and persecutest drie stuble. 26. For thou writest bitterness against me, and wilt consume me with the finnes of my youth. 27. Thou hast put my feete in the stocks, and hast obserued al my paths, and hast considered the steps of my feete. 28. Who as rottenes am to be consumed, and as a garment, that is eaten of the moth.

C H A P. XIII.

Againe Tob describeth the miseries of mans life. 3. Neuertheles Gods great providence towards him: 7. professeth his beliefe of the Resurrection.

MA N borne of (a) woman, living a short time, is replenished with many miseries. 2. Who as a flowre cometh forth and is destroyed, and flyeth as a shadow, and neuer abideth in the same state. 3. And dost thou count it a worthy thing to open thine eyes vpon such an one, and to bring him with thee into iudgement? 4. Who can make cleane him that is conceiued of vnclane seede? is it not thou which onlie art? 5. The daies of man are short, and the number of his months is with thee, thou hast appointed his limits which can not be passed. 6. Depart a litle from him, that he may rest, vntil his day wished for come, euen as the hyred man's. 7. A tree hath hope: if it be cut, it waxeth green againe, and the boughs thereof spring. 8. If his roote be old in the earth, and the trunk thereof be dead in the dust, 9. At the sent of water it shall spring, and bring forth leaues, as when it was first planted. 10. But when man shall be dead, and naked, and consumed, where is he I pray? 11. As if the waters should depart out of the sea, and a riuer made emptie should be dried vp. 12. So man when he is asleep shall not rise agayne, til heauen perish, he shall not awake, nor rise vp out of his sleep. 13. Who wil grant me this, that in hel thou protect me, and hide me til thy turie passe, and appoynt me a time, wherein thou wilt remember me? 14. Shall man that is dead, thinkest thou, liue agayne? al the daies, in which I am now in warfare, I expect vntil my change doe come. 15. Thou shalt cal me, and I shall answer thee: to the worke of thy hands thou shalt reach thy right hand. 16. Thou indeed hast numbred my steps: but thou wilt spare my sinnes. 17. Thou hast sealed my offences as it were in a bag, but hast cured mine iniquitie. 18. A mountaine falling slideth downe, and a rock is remoued out of his place. 19. Waters make stones holow, and with inundation the earth by litle and litle is consumed: and men therefore thou shalt destroy in like manner. 20. Thou hast strengned him a litle, that he might passe away for euer: thou shalt change his face, and shalt send him forth. 21. Whether his children shall be noble, or vnnoble, he (b) shall not vnderstand. 22. But yet his flesh whiles he shall liue shall haue sorow, and his soule shall mourne vpon himself.

(a) Al children taking their substance from the mother, and hauing only a temporal life continually tending to death, can not but be subiect to manie miseries: For time it-selfe though it may seeme long, is a limited thing, and is very short, yea hath no proportion in respect of eternitie, which is infinite: yet God hath care to bring this weake creature to life eternal.

(b) The parents after death are not afflicted with the fate of their children as they be in this life.

C H A P. X V.

Eliphaz againe chargeth Iob to haue spok en presumptuously, and blasphemously: 14. auoucheth that no man is innocent nor iust: 20. ascribing the malice of the impious and hypocrites.

The fourth conflict.
[Eliphaz not able to answer Iob's solide reasons, raileth against him, as if he were inuious to God, or taught others to cast away feare.

(b) It is a very rare priuiledge to be without spot.
(c) But spot of venial finnes may be in a iust man.

(d) All these miseries are incident to the wicked, but are falsely applied to holy Iob, who indeed was iust.

B V T Eliphaz the Themanite answering, sayd: 2. Will a wise man answer as it were speaking into the wind, and fill his stomach with burning? 3. Thou (a) reprocst him in words, that is not equal to thee, & speakest that which is not expedient for thee. 4. As much as is in thee, thou hast euacuated feare, and hast taken away prayers before God. 5. For thine iniquitie hath taught thy mouth, and thou doest imitate the tongue of blasphemers. 6. Thine owne mouth shal condemne thee, and not I: and thy lippes shal answer thee. 7. Wast thou the first man borne, and formed before the litle hills? 8. Hast thou heard Gods counsel, and thal his wisdom be inferiour to thee? 9. What doest thou know, that we are ignorant of? what doest thou vnderstand that we know not? 10. There are both old men & ancients among vs, much elder thē thy fathers. 11. Is it a great matter that God should comfort thee? but thy naughtie words hinder it. 12. Why doth thy hart eleuate thee, & as thinking great things, hast thou astonished eyes? 13. Why doeth thy spirit swel agaynst God, to vter such words out of thy mouth? 14. What is man, that he should be (b) without spot, & that the borne of a womā should appeare (c) iust: 15. Behold among his saints none is immutable, & the heauens are not cleane in his sight. 16. How much more is man abominable, and vnprofitable, who drinketh iniquitie as it were water? 17. I wil shew thee, heare me: that which I haue seen I wil tel thee. 18. Wise men confesse and hide not their fathers: 19. to whom onlie the earth was giuen, and stranger hath not passed by them. 20. The impious is proud al his daies, and (d) the number of the yeares of his tyrannie is vncertaine. 21. The sound of terrour is alwaies in his eares: and when there is peace, he alwaies suspecteth treason. 22. He belieueth not that he may returne from darkenesse to light, looking round about for the sword on euerie side. 23. When he shal moue himself to seeke bread, he knoweth that the day of darkenesse is prepared in his hand. 24. Tribulation shal terrifie him, and distresse in al compasse him, as a King that is prepared to battel. 25. For he hath stretched his hand against God, & is strengthened against the Omnipotent. 26. He hath run against him with necke set vpright, and is armed with a fatte necke. 27. Fatnesse hath couered his face, and from his sides there hangeth tallow. 28. He hath dwelt in desolate cities, and in desert houes, that are brought into hillocks.

hillocks. 29. He shall not be enriched, neither shall his substance continue, neither shall he put his root in the earth. 30. He shall not depart out of darkness, the flame shall drie his boughs, and he shall be taken away with the spirit of his owne mouth. 31. He shall not believe vainly deceived with error, that he may be redeemed with anie price. 32. Before his daies be accomplished, he shall perith: and his hands shall wither. 33. His cluster in the first flower shall be hurt as a vine, and as the oliue tree casting his flower. 34. For the congregation of the hypocrite is barren, and fire shall deuour their tabernacles, which gladly take gifts. 35. He conceiued forw, and hath brought forth iniquitie, and his womb prepareth guiles.

C H A P. X V I.

Job moued by his importune freinds, 4. exposulateth their seueritie, 12. further describeth his afflictions, and appealeth to Gods iudgements, that he suffereth more then his finnes deserue.

BV T Job answering sayd: 2. I haue heard oftentimes such things, (a) heauie comforters you are al. 3. Shall words ful of wind haue an end? or is any thing troublesome to thee, if thou speake? 4. I also could speake things like to you: and would God your soule were for my soule. 5. I also would comfort you with words, and would wag my head vpon you. 6. I would strengthen you with my mouth, and would moue my lips, as sparing you. 7. But what shall I doe? If I speake, my paine wil not rest: and if I hold my peace, it wil not depart from me. 8. But now my sorow hath oppressed me, & al my limmes are brought to nothing. 9. My wrinkles giue testimonie against me, and (b) a false speaker is rayfed vp against my face contradicting me. 10. He hath gathered his furie vpon me, and threatening me hath gnashed against me with his teeth, mine enemy hath beheld me with terrible eies. 11. They haue opened their mouths vpon me, and exprobatng haue stricken my cheeke, they are filled with my paines. 12. God hath shut me vp with the wicked man, and hath deliuered me to the hands of the impious. 13. I sometime that welthie-one suddenly am broken: he hath held my necke, broken me, and set me to himself as it were a marke. 14. He hath compassed me with his speares, he hath wounded my loynes, he hath not spared, and hath powred out on the earth my bowels. 15. He hath cut me with wound vpon wound, he hath come violently vpon me as it were a giant. 16. I haue sowed sackcloth vpon my shinne, and haue couered my flesh with ashes. 17. My face is swollen with weeping, and my eye-lids are dimme.

(a) True and freindlie comforters ought to heare the afflicted with patience, & not vnmercifully charge him with crimes, which they neither know, nor his conscience is guiltie of.
(b) A great affliction, when one ful of paine & distress is also forced to defend his owne innocencie against calumnious.

For the grieuouſnes of his paine Iob expecteth ſpeedie death, 4. chargeth his freinds with ſolie for holding only remuneration in this life. 6. Himſelf hopeth happie reſt in the other world.

(a) Not hauing committed ſuch finnes as he was charged withal, in this double bitterneſſe of corporal paine & calumniation, his eye was ſtil vpon God, expecting to be deliuered.

He promiſeth a prey to his felowes, and the eyes of his children ſhall faile. 6. He hath ſet me as it were for a prouerbe of the common people, and I am an example before them. 7. Mine eye is dimme for indignation, and my members are brought as it were to nothing. 8. The iuſt ſhall be aſtoniſhed vpon this, and the innocent ſhall be raiſed vp againſt the hypocrite. 9. And the iuſt ſhall hold his way, & with cleane hands ſhall adde ſtrength. 10. Be al you therefore conuerted, and come; and I ſhall not find among you anie wiſe man. 11. Baldad setteth vpon Iob againe, chargeing him with present impatience, and former impietie, 6. and that therefore he suffereth worthis punishment.

B V T Baldad the Suhite answering, sayd: 2. How long wil (a) ye speake vantage words? vnderstand ye first, and so let vs speake. 3. Why are we reputed as beasts, and accounted vile before you? 4. Which destroyest thy soule in thy furie, that the earth be forsaken for thee, and that rockes be transported out of their place? 5. Shal not the light of the impious be extinguished, and the flame of his fire not shine? 6. The light that be darke in his tabernacle, and the candel that is ouer him, shal be extinguished. 7. The steps of his power shal be strayned, and his owne counsel that cast him downe headlong. 8. For he hath thrust his feet into a net, and walketh in the meshes thereof. 9. The sole of his foote shal be held in a snare, and thirst shal burne against him. 10. His ginne is hid in the earth, and his spring vpon the path. 11. Feares shal terrifie him on euerie side, and his feet shal entangle him. 12. Let his strength be extenuated with famine, and let hunger inuade his ribbes. 13. Let it deuoure the beautie of his skinne, let death the first-borne consume his armes. 14. Let his confidence be plucked away out of his tabernacle, and let destruction as a King tread vpon him. 15. Let the companions of him, that is not, dwell in his tabernacle, let brimston be sprinkled in his tent. 16. Let his rootes be dried downward, and his haruest destroyed vpward. 17. Let the memorie of him perish from the earth, and let not his name be renowned in the streets. 18. He shal expect him out of light into darkenesse, and that transport him out of the world. 19. His seed shal not be, nor his progenie in his people, nor anie remnants in his countries. 20. In his daie the last shal be attonished, and horreur shal inuade the first. 21. These are then the tabernacles of the wicked man, and this is the place of him that knoweth not God.

The fifth conflict.

a) Baldad perceiuing Iob to speake confidently as the common doctrine of manie, opposeth himself neuertheless against him and al that thinke as he doth, and so speaketh as to manie in the plural number, wil ye speake, & of himselfe & his felowes: are we reputed. &c. So holie Iob a figure of the Church defended the common cause, his aduersaries a figure of heretikes speaking some truth mixed false things therewith. S. Greg. li. 14. c. 1.

For although I haue been ignorant, mine ignorance shal be with me. 5. But you are set vp against me, & reprove me with my reproches. 6. At least now vnderstand ye, that God hath afflicted me (a) not with equal iudgement, and hath compassed me with his scourges. 7. Haue mercie vpon me, haue mercie vpon me, at the least you my freinds, because the hand of our Lord hath touched me. 22. Why doe you as God persecute me, and are filled with my flein? 23. Who wil grant me that my words may be writen? who wil giue me that they may be drawen in a Book, 24. with yron penne, & in plate of leade, or els with stile might be graue in flint-stone? 25. For (c) I know that my Redeemer liueth, & in the last day I shal rise out of the earth. 26. And I shal be cō- passed agayne with my skinne, and in my flesh I shal see God. 27. Sophar auoucheth that some wicked men flourish for a time, but are afterward iustly plagued. 29. Therupon condemnech Iob as an hypocrite.

B V T Sophar the Naamathite answering, sayd: 2. Therefore my diuerse cogitations succeed one an other, and my minde is rapt into sundrie things. 3. The doctrine, wherwith thou reproveest me, I wil heare, and the spirit of my vnderstanding shal answer me. 4. This I know from the beginning, since man was placed vpon the earth, 5. That the praise of the impious is (a) short, and the ioy of the hypocrite as it were for a moment: 6. If his pride rise vp euen to the heauen, and his head touch the clouds: 7. As a dunghil in the end he shal be destroyed, and they that had seen him, shal say: Where is he? 8. As a dreame that flyeth away he shal not be found, he shal passe as a vision by night: 9. The eie that had seen him, shal not see him, neither shal his place behold him any more. 10. His childre shal come to naught with pouertie, and his hands shal render him his sorow. 11. His bones shal be filled with the vices of his youth, & they shal sleep with him in the dust. 12. For when euil shal be sweet in his mouth, he wil hide it vnder his tongue. 13. He wil spare it, & not leaue it, and wil hide it in his throte. 14. His bread in his belly shal be turned into the gaulc of aspes within him. 15. The riches which he hath deuoured, he shal vomite out, & God shal draw the forth out of his belly. 16. He shal sucke the head of aspes, and the vipers tongue shal kil him. (17. Let him not see the streames of the riuer, the torrets of honie, & of butter.) 18. He shal be punished for al things that he did, & yet not be consumed: according to the multitude of his inuentions so also shal he suffer. 19. Because breaking in he hath made the poore naked: he hath violētly taken a house, & built it not. 20. Neither is his bellie filled: and when he shal haue the things he coueted, he can not possesse them. 21. There remaind not of his meate, & therefore nothing shal continue of his goods: 22. When he shal be filled, he shal be strayned, he shal burne, and al sorow shal fal vpon him. 23. Would God his belly were filled, that he may send forth the wrath of his furie vpon him, and rayne his battel vpon him. 24. He shal fly wepons of yron, and shal fal vpon a bowe of brasse. 25. a) Al mans life is short & as a moment in comparison of eternitie; but it is not alwayes true that the wicked are shortly punished in respect of this life, as this disputer applieth it to proue Iob to be impious.

Therefore Iob answereth in the next chap. v. 13. That ordinarily the wicked lead their dayes (to wit their whole life) in wealth & (then) in a moment goe downe so hel. So the rest of these mens assertions are for most part true in some sense, but ill applied.

Iob requiring his freinds to heare him, 7. discourseth of the cause, why some euil men prosper at this life.

BV T Iob answering, sayd: 2. Heare I beseech you my words, and doe penance. 3. Beare with me, that I also may speake, and after my words, if it shal seeme good, laugh ye. 4. Is my disputation (a) agaynst man, that I ought not worthily to be sorie? 5. Harken to me, and be astonished, and put the finger vpon your moutr. 6. And I when I shal remember, am afrayd, and trembling shaketh my flesh. 7. Why then doe the impious liue, are they aduāced, & strengthened with riches? 8. Their seed cōtinueth before thē, a multitude of kinsemē, & of nephewes in their sight. 9. Their houses be secure & peaceable, & the rod of God is not vpon them. 10. They hold the timbrel, & the harpe, & reioyse at the sound of the organe. 13. They (b) lead their daies in wealth, and in a moment they goe downe to (c) hel. 14. Who sayd to God: depart from vs, we wil not the knowledge of thy waies. 15. Who is the Omnipotent, that we should serue him? and what doth it profite vs if we shal pray him? 16. But yet because their good things are not in their hand, be the counsel of the impious far from me. 17. How often shal the candel of the impious be extinguished, and inundation come vpon them, and shal he deuide the sorowes of his furie? 18. They shal be as chaffe before the face of the winde, and as ashes, which the whirlwinde scattereth. 19. God shal reserue the sorow of the father to his children: and when he shal haue rendred it, then shal he know. 20. His eies shal see his owne slaughter, and he shal drinke the furie of the Omnipotent. 21. For what doeth it pertaine to him concerning his house after him: although the number of his months be diminished the halfe? 22. Shal anie man teach God knowledge, who iudgeth the high ones? 23. This man dieth strong and in health, rich and happie. 24. His bowels be ful of fat, and his bones be embrued with marrow. 25. But an other dieth in bitteresse of soule without anie riches. 26. Eliphaz contendeth that God is not pleased with a iust mans afflictions: 5. falsly imputeth enormous crimes to holie Iob, 12. and grosse errors. 21. Wissheth him therefore to repent, that so he may prosper.

BUT Eliphaz the Themanite answering, sayd: 2. Can man be compared with God, yea though he be of perfect knowledge? 3. What doth it (a) profite God if thou be iust? or what doest thou aduantage him if thy way be vnspotted? 4. Shal he be afrayde to reprove thee, and come with thee into iudgement: 5. And not for thy very great malice, and thine infinite iniquities? 6. For thou hast taken away the pledge of thy brethren without cause, and the naked thou hast spoyled of clothes. 7. Water to the wearie thou hast not giuen, and from the hungrie thou hast withdrawen bread. 8. In the strength of thine arme thou didst possesse the earth, and being the mightiest thou didst obteyne it. 9. Widowes thou hast sent away emptie, and the armes of pupils thou hast broken in pieces. 10. Therefore art thou compassed with snares, and sodain feare troubleth thee. 11. And thoughtest thou that thou shouldest not see darkenes, and that thou shouldest not be oppressed with the violence of ouerflowing waters? 12. Doest thou not thinke that God is higher then heauen, and is exalted aboue the top of the starres? 13. And thou sayst: For what knoweth God: and he iudgeth as it were by a mist. 14. CHAP. XXIII.

Iob expecteth helpe and sentence of God, 6. with iust feare, yet with good conscience maintaineth his owne innocencie.

(a) Whiles he expected some comfort of his freinds, they stil afflicted him more & more, charging him with false crimes & so aggravating his grief both of bodie and mind.

(b) Therefore he appealeth to Gods iudgement seare for sentence.

V T Iob answering, sayd: 2. (a) Now also my talke is in bitterness, and the hand of my plague is aggravated vpon my mourning. 3. Who wil grant me that I may know and find him, & come euen to (b) his throne? 4. I wil set iudgement before him, and wil fill my mouth with accusations. 5. That I may know the words that he wil answer me, and vnderstand what he wil speake to me. 6. I wil not that he contend with me with much strength, nor that he oppresse me with the weight of his greatnes. 7. Let him propose equitie against me, and my iudgement shal come to victorie. 8. If I shal goe to the East, he appeareth not: if to the West, I shal not vnderstand him. 9. If to the left hand, what shal I doe? I shal not apprehend him: if I turne my self to the right hand, I shal not see him. 10. But he knoweth my way, and hath proued me as gold that passeth through the fyre: 11. My foote hath folowed his steps, I haue kept his way, & haue not declined out of it. 12. From the commandements of his lips I haue not departed, and I haue hid the words of his mouth in my bosome. 13. For he is alone, and no man can turne away his cogitation: and whatsoever his soule would, that hath he done. 14. And when he shal haue fulfilled his wil in me, manie other things also are at hand with him. 15. And therefore I am troubled at his face, and considering him I am made pensive with feare. 16. God hath mollified my hart, and the Omnipotent hath

God in his prouidence knoweth when he wil punish the wicked, which his true seruants know not, much lesse the impious.

TIMES are not hid from the Omnipotent: but they (a) that know him, know not his daies. 2. Some haue transferred bounds, spoiled flocks, & fed them. 3. They haue driuen away the asse of pupils, and haue taken away the widowes oxe for a pledge. 4. They haue subuerted the way of the poore, and haue oppressed together the meek of the earth. 5. Others as wild asses in the desert goe forth to their worke: watching to the prey, doe prepare bread for their children. 6. They reap the field that is not theirs, and gather the grapes of his vineyard, whom by violence they haue oppressed. 7. They send men away naked taking away their cloths, which haue no couering in the cold. 8. Whó the thowes of the mountaynes doe walk, & not hauing a couert, they embrace stones. 9. They did violéce spoyling the pupils, & the cōmon poore people they spoyled. 10. From the naked & them that goe without clothing, and the hungrie they haue taken away the eares of corne. 11. They haue rested the noonetide among their heaps, which hauing troden the wine presses are a thirst. 12. Out of the cities they haue made men to mourne, and the soule of the wounded hath cryed, & God doth not suffer it to passe vntreunged: 13. They haue been (b) rebellious to the light, they haue not knowen his wayes, neither did they returne by his pathes. 14. At the verie break of day the murderer ryseth, he killeth the needie, and the poore man: but by night he wil be as a theefe. 15. The cie of the aduouterer obserueth darknesse, saying: Eie thal not see me: and he wil couer his face. 16. He diggeth through houses in the darke, as in the day they had appointed with themselues, and they haue not knowen the light. 17. If sodainly the morning thal appeare, they thinke it the shadow of death: and they walke so in darknesse as it were in light. 18. He is light about the face of the water: cursed be his portion in the earth, neither walke he by the way of the vineyards. 19. Let him passe (c) from snow waters to exceeding heate, and his sinne euen vnto hel. 20. Let mercie forget him: wormes his sweetnes: be he not in remembrance, but be he broken in pieces as an vnfruitful tree. 21. He hath pulled downe the strong in his strength and when he thal stand, he wil not credit his life. 23. God hath giuen

They are eleuated for a litle, and shal not stand, and shal be humbled as al things, and shal be taken away, and as the tops of the eares of corne they shal be broken. 25. And if it be not so, who can reprove me that I haue lied, and set my words before God?

CHAP. XXV.

Baldad endeauoureth againe to terrifie Iob with Gods iudgement, from appealing therto, and from auouching his owne innocencie.

V T Baldad the Suhite answering, sayd: 2. Power and terror is with him, that maketh concord in his high ones. 3. Is there anie number of his souldiers? and vpon whom shal not his light arise? 4. (a) Can man be iustified compared with God, or the borne of a woman appeare cleane? 5. Behold the moone also doth not shine, and the starres are not cleane in his sight. 6. How much more man rottennes, and the soune of man a worme?

CHAP. XXVI.

Iob refuteth his aduersaries needles and common arguments, by more sound discoursing of Gods power, and wisdome.

V T Iob answering, sayd: 2. (a) Whose helper art thou? his that is weake? and doest thou hold vp the arme of him, that is not strong? 3. To whom hast thou giuen counsel? perhaps to him, that hath not wisdome, and (b) thy prudence hast thou shewed very great. 4. Whom wouldest thou reach? not him that made breath? 5. Behold the (c) gyants grone vnder the waters, & they that dwel with them. 6. Hel is naked before him, & there is no couert to perdition. 7. Who stretcheth out the north-wind ouer the vacant, and hangeth the earth vpon nothing. 8. Who bindeth the waters in his clouds, that they breake not forth together downward. 9. Who holdeth the countenance of his throne, & spreddeth his cloud ouer it. 10. He hath made a limit about the waters, til light and darknes be ended. 11. The pillers of heauen tremble, and dread at his beck. 12. In his strength sodainly the seas are gathered together, and with his wisdom he stricke the proud man. 13. His spirite hath adorned the heauens. & his hand being the midwife, the (d) winding serpent is brought forth. 14. Loe, these things are sayd in part of his waies: and where as we haue heard scarce a little drop of his word, who shal be able to behold the thunder of his greatnes?

(d) Not only great things before recited, but also the very least are made by God, and depend vpon his prouidence.

C H A P. XXVII.

More and more Iob confirmeth his innocencie, auouching that God not presently iudging, 11. wil in time condemne the wicked.

IO B also added, taking his parable, and sayd: 2. God liueth, who hath (a) taken away my iudgement, and the Omnipotent, which hath brought my soule to bitternesse. 3. That as long as breath remaineth in me, and the spirit of God in my nostrils, 4. My lippes shal not speake iniquitie, neither shal my tongue meditate (b) lying. 5. God forbid that I should iudge you to be iust: til I faile, I wil not depart from mine innocencie. 6. My iustification which I haue begun to hold, I wil not forsake for my hart doth not reprehend me in al my life. 7. Let mine enemy be as the impious, and mine aduersarie as the wicked one. 8. For what is the hypocrites hope, if couctoufely he take by violence, and God deliuer not his soule? 9. Wil God heare his crie, when distresse shal come vpon him? 10. Or can he be delighted in the Omnipotent, and inuocate God at al time? 11. I wil teach you by the hand of God, what the Omnipotent hath, neither wil I hide it. 12. Loe, you doe al know, and why speake you vaine things without cause? 13. This is the portion of an impious man with God, and inheritance of the violent, which they shal receiue of the Omnipotent. 14. If his children be multiplied, they shal be in the sword, & his nephewes shal not be filled with bread. 15. They that shal be least of him, shal be buried in death, and his widowes shal not weepe. 16. If he shal heape together siluer as earth, and as clay shal prepare garments: 17. He shal prepare indeed, but the iust man shal be clothed with them: and the innocent shal diuide the siluer. 18. He hath built his house as a moth, and as a keeper hath he made a bowre. 19. The rich man (c) when he shal sleep shal take away nothing with him: he shal open his eies, and finde nothing. 20. Pouertie as water shal apprehend him, in the night a tempest shal oppresse him. 21. The burning wind shal take him vp, and cary him away, and as a whirlwinde shal pul him violently out of his place. 22. And he shal cast vpon him, and shal not spare: out of his hand flying he shal flye. 23. He shal claspe his hands vpon him, and shal hisse vpon him, beholding his place.

a) God would not as yet haue Iobs cause iudged, but reserved the sentence; for his greater trial is patience.
b) It were a lie to acknowledge such finnes as he had not committed.

(c) Some part of Gods iudgement falleth on the wicked in this life, but especially at their death. Psal. 75.

The maruelous workes of God, the authour of nature, shew his power and wisdom, 12. and that true riches consist not in temporal creatures, but in wisdom, 28. and feare of God.

(a) By these more precious & rare creatures, men ought to consider the Creatour, & so not set their rest in them, but in him, which is true wisdom.

(b) Sodaine headie waters bursting out doe change the wayes and passages of men.

(c) True wisdom is not in natural things, but in supernatural vertues.

The land, out of which bread grew in his place, is destroyed with fire. 6. The place of the sapphire the stones thereof, and the clods of it gold. 7. The bird hath not knowen the path, neither hath the eie of the vultur beheld it. 8. The children of merchants haue not troden it, neither hath the lionesse passed by it. 9. Gold or glasse shal not be equal to it, neither shal vessels of gold be changed for it. 18. High and eminent things shal not be mentioned in comparison of it: and wisdom is drawn out of secret places. 19. The topazius of Æthiopia shal not be equal to it, neither shal it be compared to the cleanest dying. 20. From whence then cometh wisdom? and what is the place of vnderstanding? 21. It is hid from the eies of al liuing, the foules of the ayre also know it not. 22. Perdition & death haue sayd: With our eares we haue heard the same thereof. 23. God vnderstandeth the way of it, & he knoweth the place thereof. 24. For he beholdeth the endes of the world, & looketh on al things that are vnder heauen. 25. C H A P. XXIX.

Against Iob recounteth Gods former benefites, as wel his grace, wherby he did good workes, 5. as temporal prosperitie: 9. and wisdom aboue other Princes.

IOB also added, taking (a) his parable, and sayd: 2. Who wil graunt me, that I may be according to the former months, according to the daies in which God kept me? 3. When his lampe shined ouer my head, & I walked by his light in darknes? 4. As I was in the daies of my youth, when God was secretly in my tabernacle? 5. When the Omnipotent was with me: and my seruants round about me? 6. When I wained my feet with butter, and the rocke powred in the riuers of oile? 7. When I went forth to the gate of the citie, and in the street they prepared me a chaire? 8. Yong men saw me, and hid themselues: and old men rising vp stood. 9. The Princes ceased to speake, and did put the finger vpon their mouth. 10. Dukes held in their voice, and their tongue cleaved to their throte. 11. The eare hearing counted me blessed, and the eie seeing gaue testimonie to me: 12. For that I had deliuered the poore man crying out, and the pupil, that had no helper. 13. The blessing of him that was readie to perishe came vpon me, and I comforted the hart of the widow. 14. I was clothed with iustice: and I reuested me with my iudgement, as with a garment and crowne. 15. I was an eie to the blind, and a foote to the lame. 16. I was the father of the poore: and the cause which I knew not, I searched most diligently. 17. I brake the iawes of the wicked man, and out of his teeth I tooke away the prey. 18. And I said: I wil die in my litle nest, and as a palmetree wil multiplie daies, 19. My roote is opened beside the waters, and dew shal continue in my haruest. 20. My glorie shal alwaies be renewed, and my bow in my hand shal be repayred. 21. They that heard me, expected sentence, and attent held their peace at my counsel. 22. To my words they durst adde nothing, and my speach distilled vpon them. 23. They expected me as rayne, and they opened their mouth as it were to a lateward shower. 24. And they did eate grasse, and the barkes of trees, and the rooe of iampers was their meat. 5. Who taking these things violently out of the valleys, when they had found euerie thing, they ranne to them with a crie. 6. They dwelt in the deserts of torrents, and in caues of the earth, or vpon grauel. 7. Who reioysed among these kind of things, and counted it delicacies to be vnder the briars. 8. They abhorre me, and fly far from me, and are not afrayd ^(b) to spit in my face. 11. For he hath opened his quiuer, and hath afflicted me, and hath put a bridle into my mouth. 12. At the right hand of me rising, my calamities forthwith arose: they haue ouerthrowen my feet, & as with waues haue oppressed with their paths. 13. They haue dissipated my waies, they haue lyen in wayte against me, and they haue preuailed, and there was not that would helpe. 14. As when a wal is broken, and the gate opened, they haue broken violently vpon me, and are come tumbling downe to my miseries. 15. I am brought to nothing: as a wind thou hast také away my desire: and my prosperitie hath passed away as a cloud. 16. And now my soule withereth in my self, and the daies of affliction possesse me. 17. In the night my bone is pearled with sorrowes: and they that eate me, sleep not. 18. In the multitude of them my garment is consumed, and they haue girded me about, as it were with the coller of a coate. 19. I am compared to durt, and am resembled to imbers and ashes. 20. I crie to thee, and thou hearest me not: I stand, and thou doest not respect me. 21. Thou art changed to be cruel toward me, and in the hardnesse of thy hand thou art against me. 22. Thou didst lift me vp, and setting me as it were vpon the wind thou hast mightily dashed me. 23. I know ^(c) that thou wilt deliuer me to death, where a house is appointed for euerie one that liueth. 24. But yet not to my consumption doest thou send forth thy hand: and if they shal fal, thou wilt saue. 25. I wept sometime vpon him that was afflicted, & my soul had cōpassion on the poore. 26. C H A P. XXXI.

Holie Job reciteth sincerely his owne vertues, shewing thereby that he is not punished so grieuously for his sinnes, but by Gods prouidence for some other cause.

HAVE (a) made a couenant with mine eyes, that I would not so much as (b) thinke of a virgin. 2. For what part should God from aboue haue in me, and inheritance the Omnipotent from on high? 3. Is there not perdition to the wicked man, and alienation to them that worke iniustice? 4. Doth not he consider my waies, and number al my steps? 5. If I haue walked in vanitie, and my foote hath hastned in guile: 6. Let him weigh me in a iust balance, and let God know my simplicitie. 7. If my step haue declined out of the way, and if my hart hath folowed myne eyes, and if spot hath cleaued to my hands: 8. Let me sow, and let an other eate it: and let my progenie be piucked vp by the rootes. 9. If my hart hath been deceiued vpon a woman, and if I haue lyen in waite at my freinds doore: 10. Let my wife be the harlot of an other man, and let other men lye with her. 11. For this is a hainous thing, and most great iniquitic. 12. It is a fire deuouring euen to perdition, and rooting vp al things that spring. 13. If I haue contemned to abide iudgement with my man-seruant, & my mayd-seruant, when they had anie controuersie against me. 14. For what shal I doe when God shal rise to iudge? and when he shal aske, what shal I answer him? 15. Did not he make me in the wōbe that made him also: & did not one forme me in the matrice? 16. If I haue denied to the poore, that which they would, & haue made the eyes of the widow to expect: 17. If I haue eaten my morsel alone, and the pupil hath not eaten therof with me (18. Because from mine infancie mercy hath growen with me: and from my mothers wombe it came forth with me.) 19. If I haue despised him that perisheth, for that he had not clothing, and the poore man without wherewithal to couer him: 20. If his sides haue not blessed me, and he was not warmed with the fleeces of my sheep: 21. If I haue lifted vp my hand ouer the pupil, yea when I saw my self in the gate the superiour: 22. The stranger taried not without, my doore was open to the way-faring man. 33. If as man I haue hid my sinne, and haue concealed my iniquitie in my bosome. 34. If I haue been afraid at a verie great multitude, and the contempt of kinsmen hath terrified me: and I haue not rather held my peace, & not gone out of the doore. 35. Who wil grant me an hearer, that the Omnipotent would heare my desire: and that himself that iudgeth would write a Book. 36. That I may carie it on my shoulder, and put it about me as a crowne? 37. At euerie step of mine I wil pronounce it, and as to the Prince I wil offer it. 38. If my land cry against me, & with it the furrowes therof lament: 39. CHAP. XXXII.

Eliu a yong man, being angrie that Job persisted in his opinion, and that his three freinds could not conuince him, & take vpon him to confute Job, which they could not doe.

The ninth conflict.

(a) This yong man wittie & learned, but proud withal, was a figure of the hote and arrogans disputers, who wil seeme to know more then their elders. S. Greg. l. 23. c. 2.

BUT these three men omitted to answer Job, for that he seemed iust to himself. 2. And (a) Eliu the sonne of Barachel a Buzite, of the kindred of Ram, was angrie and tooke indignation: and he was angrie against Job, for that he sayd himself to be iust before God. 3. Moreouer against his freinds he had indignation, for that they had not found a reasonable answer, but onlie had condemned Job. 4. Therefore Eliu expected Job speaking, because they were his elders that spake. 5. But when he saw that the three were not able to answer, he was wrath exceedingly. 6. And Eliu the sonne of Barachel a Buzite answering, sayd: I am yonger in time, and you more ancient,

ancient, therefore casting downe my head, I was afrayd to shew you my sentence. 7. For I hoped that longer age would speake, and that a multitude of yeares would teach wisdom. 8. But as I see, there is a Spirit in men, and the inspiration of the Omnipotent giueth vnderstanding. 9. They of many yeares are not the wise men, neither doe the ancients vnderstand iudgement. 10. Therefore wil I speake: Heare ye me, I also wil shew you my wisdom. 11. For I haue expected your words, I haue heard your wisdom, as long as you contended in words. 12. And as long as I thought you said somewhat, I considered: but as I see (b) here is none of you that can reprove Iob, and answer to his words. 13. Lest perhaps you may say: We haue found wisdom, God hath reiected him, not man. 14. He hath spoken nothing (c) to me, and I wil not answer him according to your words. 15. They were afrayd, and answered no more, and they haue taken away talke from themselves. 16. Therefore because I haue expected, and they spake not: they stood, and answered no more: 17. I also wil answer my part, & wil shew my knowledge. 18. For I am full of words, and the spirit of my belly streyneth me. 19. Behold, my belly is as new wine without a vent, which breaketh new vessels. 20. I wil speake, and take breath a litle: I wil open my lippes, and wil answer. 21. I wil not accept the person of a man, & I wil not make God equal to man. 22. For I know not how long I shal continue, and whether after a while my maker wil take me away.

C H A P. XXXIII.

Eliu endeauoureth to proue by Iobs speech that he is v. iust: 13. arguing that God (by afflicting him) hath already so iudged. 23. But if by an Angels admonition he repent, all shal be remitted.

HE ARE therefore Iob my sayings, and harken to all my words. 2. Behold I haue opened my mouth, let my tongue speake within my iawes. 3. My words are of my simple hart, and my lippes shal speake a pure sentence. 4. The Spirit of God made me, and the breath of the Omnipotent gaue me life. 5. If thou canst, answer me, and stand against my face. 6. Behold God hath made me also euen as thee, and of the same clay I also was formed. 7. But yet let not my (a) miracle terrifie thee, and let not my eloquence be burdenous to thee. 8. Thou therefore hast sayd in my eares, and I haue heard the voice of thy words: 9. I am cleane, and without sinne: vnspotted, and there is no iniquitie in me. 10. Because he hath found quarrels in me, therefore hath he thought me his enemy. 11. He hath put my feet in the stocks, he hath observed al my waies. 12. This therefore is it, wherein thou art not iustified: I wil answer thee, that God is greater then man. 13. Doest thou contend against him because he hath not answered thee to al words? 14. God, (b) speaketh once, and repeateth not the self-same the second time. 15. By a dreame in a vision by night, when heauie sleep falleth vpon men, and they sleep in their bed. 16. Then doth he open the eares of men, and teaching instructeth them with discipline, 17. That he may turne a man from these things, which he doth, and may deliuer him from pride: 18. Deliuering his soule from corruption: and his life, that it passe not vnto the sword. 19. He rebuketh also by sorow in the bed, and he maketh al his bones to wither. 20. Bread is become abominable to him in his life, and to his soule the meat before desired. 21. His flesh shal consume, and the bones that had been couered, shal be made naked. 22. His soule hath approached to corruption, and his life to things causing death. 23. If there shal be an Angel speaking for him, one of thousands, to declare mans equitie. 24. He shal haue mercie on him, and shal say: deliuer him, that he descend not into corruption: I haue found wherein I may be propitious to him. 25. His flesh is consumed with punishments, let it returne to the daies of his youth. 26. He shal beseech God, and he wil be pacified towards him: and he shal see his face in iubilation, and he wil render to a man his iustice. 27. He shal behold men, and shal say: I haue sinned, and indeed I haue offended, and as I was worthie, I haue not receiued. 28. He hath deliuered his soule that it should not goe into death, but liuing should see the light. 29. Behold al these things doth God worke three times in euerie one. 30. That he may reclame their soules from corruption, and illuminate them with the light of the liuing. 31. Attend, Iob, and heare me: and hold thy peace, whiles I speake. 32. But if thou hast what to speake, answer me; speake, for I would thee to appeare iust. 33. And if thou haue not, heare me: hold thy peace, & I wil teach thee wisdome.

(b) It is true: that Gods wil once vrtered ought to suffice al men, for he answereth not to each one by a particular speech, but by comon speech (or fact) satisfieth al mens questiōs: wherof S. Gregorie noteth this general rule:
Visa precedens forma sequens: The life of them that goe before is made a forme (or rule) of them that follow.
 li. 23. c. 18. & 19.
 But Eliu falsely supposed, that God by Iobs affliction had declared that he was a wicked man. For indeed God declared the contrarie c. 1. v. 1. & 3. c. 1. v. 3.

C H A P. XXXIIII.

Againe Eliu chargeth Iob with blasphemie, and other crimes, 10. sheweth the equitie of Gods iudgement: 20. and that al things are subject to Gods power and knowledge.

ELIV therefore pronouncing spake these words also: 2. Heare ye wise men my words: and ye learned harken to me: 3. For the eare proueth words, and the throte discerneth meates by the tast. 4. Let vs choose vs iudgement, and among vs let vs see what is the better. 5. Because Iob sayd: I am iust, and God hath (a) subuerted my iudgemēt. 6. For in iudging me there is a lie: mine arrow is violent without a lie sinne. 7. What man is there as is Iob, that drinketh skorning as it were water? 8. That goeth with them that worke iniquitie, and walketh with impious men? 9. For he hath sayd: Man shal not please God (b) although he runne with him. 10. Therefore ye discrete men heare me, far from God be impietic, and iniquitie from the Omnipotent. 11. For he wil render a man his worke, & according to the waies of euerie one he wil recompence them. 12. For in verie deed God wil not condemne without cause, neither wil the Omnipotent subuert iudgement. 13. What other hath he appointed ouer the earth? or whom hath he set ouer the world, which he made? 14. If he direct his hart to him, he shal draw his spirit and breath vnto him. 15. Al flesh shal faile together, and man shal returne into ashes. 16. If then thou haue vnderstanding, heare that is sayd, and harken to the voice of my speach. 17. Can he that loueth not iudgement, be healed: and how doest thou so far condemne him that is iust? 18. That sayth to the King, Apostata: that calleth dukes impious: 19. Who accepteth not the persons of Princes: nor hath knowē the tyrāt, when he contended againt the poore man: for al are the worke of his hands. 20. They shal sodainly die, and at mid-night peoples shal be troubled, & shal passe, & take away the violent without hand. 21. For his eies are vpon the waies of men, and he considereth al their steps. 22. There is not darkenesse, & there is not shadow of death, that they may be hid there which worke iniquitie. 23. For it is no more in mans power to come to God into iudgement. 24. He shal destroy manie, & innumerable, & shal make other to stād for thē. 25. For he knoweth their workes: and therefore he shal bring night, and they shal be destroyed. 26. As impious men he hath stricken them: in the place of them that see. 27. Who as it were of purpose haue reuolited frō him, & would not vnderstād al his waies: 28. That they might cause the crie of the needy man to come to him, & he heare the voice of the poore. 29. For he gran-

b) Neither did Iob say this (c. 9. v. 22.) but Eliu wrested his meaning, that he might haue something to reprehend. S. Greg. li. 24. c. 25.

b) Eliu applieth this to Iob, as though he had made false shew of vertue which he had not, and that God had suffered him hitherto to reigne, or rather to tyrannize for iust punishment of his peoples sinnes. But God at last declared that Iob was not such a one, ch. 42. v. 7.

ting peace, who is there that can condemne? After he shall hide his countenance, who is there that may behold him, both vpon nations, and vpon al men? 30. Who maketh a man that is (b) an hipocrite reigne for the sinnes of the people. 31. Therefore because I haue spoken to God, thee also I wil not prohibite. 32. If I haue erred, teach thou me: if I haue spoken iniquitie, I wil adde no more. 33. Doth God require it of thee, because it hath displeased thee? for thou beganst to speake, and not I: but if thou know anie better thing, speake. 34. Let men of vnderstanding speake to me, and let a wiseman heare me. 35. But Iob hath spoken foolishly, and his words sound not discipline. 36. O my father, let Iob be proued euē to the end: cease not from the man of iniquity. 37. Who addeth blasphemie vpon his sinnes, let him be restrayned in the meane time among vs: and then let him prouoke God to iudgement with his speeches.

CHAP. XXXV.

Eliu pretending that Iob had sayde God to be vnjust, sheweth that mans pietie nor impietie neither profiteth nor disprofiteth God: 13. and that he iudgeth all things rightly.

a) Eliu insisteth much in this calumination: for Iob neuer said, that he was just compared with God, nor iustier then God. But that his affliction was greater then his sinne. ch. 9. v. 3. c. 23. v. 7. &c.
(b) These are strong sentences (saith S. Gregorie) but they agree not (or be euil applied) to the blessed person of Iob. li. 16. c. 7.

HERFORE Eliu againe spake these words: 2. Doth thy cogitation seeme iust to thee, that thou saidst: (a) I am iustier then God? 3. For thou saydst: That which is right doth not please thee: or what wil it profite thee if I sinne? 4. Therefore wil I answer to thy words, and to thy freinds with thee. 5. (b) Looke vp to heauen and see, and behold the skie, that it is higher then thou. 6. If thou sinne, what shalt thou hurt him? and if thine iniquities be multiplied, what shalt thou doe against him? 7. Moreover if thou doe iustly, what shalt thou giue him, or what shall he receiue of thy hand? 8. Man that is like to thee, thy impietie shall hurt: and thy iustice shall helpe the soune of man. 9. Because of the multitude of calumniatours they shall cry: and shall waile for the force of the arme of tyrants. 10. And he hath not sayd: Where is God, that made me, that hath giue songs in the night? 11. Who teacheth vs aboute the beasts of the earth, and instructeth vs aboute the fouies of the ayre. 12. There shall they crie, and he wil not heare, because of the pride of the euil. 13. God therefore wil not heare without cause, and the Omnipotent wil behold the causes of euerie one. 14. Yea when thou shalt say: He considereth not: be iudged before him, and expect him. 15. For he doth not now inferre his furie, neither doth he reuenge wickednesse exceedingly. 16. Therefore Iob in vaine openeth his mouth, and without knowledge multiplieth words.

CHAP. XXXVI.

Yet further Elix sheweth, that God by his power and wisdom giueth to euerie one that is iust. 16. Inferring (*f*astly) that at Iobs affliction is for his sinnes: 22. discoursing stil of Gods power, wisdom, and prouidence.

ELIV also adding spake these words: 2. Beare with me a litle, and I wil shew to thee: for as yet I haue what to speake for God. 3. I wil repeate my knowledge from the beginning, and I wil proue my maker iust. 4. For indeed my words are (a) without lye, & perfect knowledge shal be proued to thee. 5. God doth not cast away the mightie, wheras himself also is mightie. 6. But he saueh not the impious, and he giueth iudgement to the poore. 7. He shal not take away his eyes from the iust man, and he placeth Kings in the throne (b) for euer, and there they are extolled. 8. And if they shal be in cheines, & be bound with the ropes of pouertie. 9. He shal shew them their works, and their wicked deeds, because they haue been violent. 10. He also shal reueale their eare, to chastise them: & shal speake, that they may returne from iniquitie: 11. If they shal heare and obserue, they shal accomplish their daies in good, and their yeares in glorie. 12. But if they heare not, they shal passe by the sword, and shal be consumed in folie. 13. Dissemblers and craftie men prouoke the wrath of God, neither shal they crie when they are bound. 14. Their soule shal dye in tempest, and their life, among the effeminate. 15. He shal deliuer the poore out of his distresse, and shal reuele his eare in tribulation. 16. Therefore he shal saue thee most largely out of the narrow mouth, and not hauing foundation vnder it: and the quietnesse of thy table shal be ful of fatnesse. 17. Thy cause is iudged as an impious mans, cause and iudgement thou shalt receiue. 18. Let not therefore anger ouercome thee, that thou oppresse anie man: neither let multitude of gifts incline thee. 19. Lay downe thy greatnes without tribulation, & al the puissant of strength. 20. (c) Protract not the night, that (a) peoples may come vp for them. 21. Beware thou decline not to iniquitie: for thou hast begunne to folow it after miserie. 22. God after terrour of a whirlewind, by way of examining his client Iob of diuers creatures about their nature, sheweth that no man hath perfect knowledge of them, much lesse of Gods immensitie.

BV T our Lord answering Iob out of a whirlewind, sayd: 2. Who is this that wrappeth in sentences with vnskillful words? 3. Gird thy loynes as a man: I wil aske thee, and (a) answer thou me. 4. Where wast thou when I layd (b) the foundations of the earth? tel me if thou hast vnderstanding. 5. Who set the measures therof, if thou know: or who stretched out the line vpon it? 6. Who shut in the (c) sea with doores when it brake forth, proceeding as it were out of a matrice: 9. When I made a cloud the garment therof, and wrapped it in darkenes as in clouts of infancie. 10. I compassed it with my bounds, and put barre and doores. 11. And I sayd. Hitherto thou shalt come, and shalt not proceed farder, and here thou shalt breake thy swelling waues. 12. God Almighty prosecuteth his discourse, shewing his admirable power and providence in liuing creatures. 34. Whereupon Iob acknowledgeth his owne ouersight in some light words.

HAST (a) thou knowen the time when the (b) wild goats bring forth yong among the rocks, or hast thou obserued the (c) hynds when they fawne? 2. Hast thou numbred the monthis of their conceiuing, and knowen the time of their bearing? 3. They bow downe themselues to bring forth yong, and they cast them, and make roarings. 4. coller to plough, or wil he breake the cloddes of the valleyes after thee? 11. Shalt thou haue confidence in his great strength, and leaue thy labours vnto him? 12. Wilt thou credit him that he wil render thee the seed, and gather together thy barne floore? 13. The wing of the (f) Ostrich is like to the wings of the (g) Herodius, and of the hawke. 14. When she leaueth her egges on the earth, thou perhaps wilt heate them in the dust. 15. She forgetteth that foot may tread vpon them, or beast of the field breake them. 16. She is hardned toward her yong, as though they were not hers, she hath laboured in vaine no feare compelling her. 17. For God hath deprived her of wisdome, neither hath he giuen her vnderstanding. 18. When time shal be, she setteth vp the wings on high: she skorneth the horse and his rider. 19. Shalt thou giue strength to the (h) horse, or put neyng about his necke? 20. Shalt thou raise him vp as Locusts? the glorie of his nostrils is terrour. 21. He diggeth the earth with his house, he prawneth boldly, he goeth forward to meet the armed men. 22. He contemneth teare, neither yealdeth he to the sword. 23. Vpon him shal the quier sound, the speare shal glister and the shilde. 24. Feruent and foming he suppeth the earth, neither doth he make account when the noyle of the trumpet soundeth. 25. When he shal heare the trumpet he sayth: Vah, he smelieth battel far off, the exhortation of the captaines, and the crie of the armie. 26. Doth the (i) hawke waxe fettered by thy wisdome, spreading her wings to the South? 27. Shal the (k) eagle mount at thy commandment, and put her nest in high places? 28. She abideth in rocks, and tarieth among cragged flynts, and stonie hilles where is no access. 29. Thence she beholdeth the prey, and her eies see a far off. 30. Her yong ones shal licke bloud: and whersoever the carcasse shal be, she is present by and by. 31. And our Lord added, and spake to Iob: 32. He that contendeth with God is he quieted so easily? Verily he that repro- ueth God, ought to answer him. 33. But Iob answering our Lord, said: 34. I that haue spoken (l) lightly what can I answer? I wil put my hand vpon my mouth. 45. One thing I haue spoken, which I would I had not sayd: and an other, to the which things I wil adde no more.

Our Lord further sheweth that mans power, nor iustice, is not comparable to Gods: 10. as appeareth in ouercomming Behemoth 20. and Leuiathan.

AND our Lord answering Iob out of the whirlwind, sayd: 2. Gird thy loynes as a man: I wil aske thee, & doe thou tel me. 3. Shalt thou make my (a) iudgement of none effect: and condemne me, that thou mayst be iustified? 4. And hast thou an arme as God, and dost thou thunder with like voice? 5. Put beautie about thee, and set vp thy selfe aloft, and be glorious, and put on goodlie garments. 6. Disperse the proud in thy furie, and beholding euerie arrogant man, humble him. 7. Behold al the proud, and confound them, and destroy the impious in their place. 8. Hide them in the dust together, and plunge their faces in the pit. 9. And I wil confesse, that thy right hand is able to saue thee. 10. Behold (b) Behemoth whom I made with thee, shal eat hay as it were an ox. 11. His strength is in his loynes, and his power in the nauil of his bellie. 12. He gathereth together his taile as the ceder tree, the sinewes of his stoncs are perplexed. 13. His bones are as pipes of brasse, his gristle as it were plates of iron. 14. He is the beginning of the wayes of God, which made him, he shal applie his sword. 15. To him the mountaines beare grasse: al the beasts of the field shal play there. 16. He sleepeth vnder the shadow, in the secret of the reed, and in moyst places. 17. Shadowes doe protect his shadow, the willowes of the torrent shal compass him. 18. Lo, he shal sup vp the riuer, & shal not meruaile: and he hath confidence that Iordan may runne into his mouth. 19. In his eies as with a hook he shal take him, and with stakes he shal boare through his nostrils. 20. Canst thou draw out the (c) Leuiathan with a hooke, and with a rope shalt thou tye his tongue? 21. Shalt thou put a ring in his nostrils, or bore through his iaw with a buckle? 22. Wil he make multiple prayers to thee, or speake to thee gentle words? 23. Wil he make a couenant with thee, and wilt thou take him to be a seruant for euer? 24. Shalt thou delude him as a birde, or tye him for thy hand-mayds? 25. Shal freinds cut him, merchants diuide him? 26. Shalt thou fil nettes with his skinned, and the cabbins of fishes with his head? 27. Lay thy hand vpon him: remember battel, and adde to speake no more. 28. Behold his hope shal frustrate him, and in the sight of al he shal be cast downe headlong.

4) Though Iob had truly auouched that his finnes deserued not so great afflictions, yet he ought to haue acknowledged that God afflicted him iustly, for some other cause knowne to God, but vknownen to him: which he not confessing seemed to make Gods iudgement vniust or of none effect.

(c) An huge great fish, perhaps the whale, exceeding mans power to be managed, yet is subiect as also the diuel signified therby, to Gods power, & prouidence.

Leuiathan is further described by the peculiar parts of his bodie, and terrible composition of al his members.

NO T as ^(a) cruel wil I raise him: for who can resist my countenance? 2. Who hath giuē me before, that I may render vnto him? Al things that are vnder heauen be myne. 3. I wil not spare him, and his mightie words, and framed to beseech. 4. Who shal reueale the face of his garment: and who shal enter into the middles of his mouth? 5. Who shal open the gate of his countenance? dread is round about his teeth. 6. His bodie as shildes that are cast, compact with skales fast cleauing together. 7. One is ioyned to an other, and not so much as anie ayre entreteth between them: 8. One shal sticke to an other, and holding ech other, they shal not be separated. 9. His sneeving is as the thining of fire, and his eies as the twinklings of the morning. 10. Out of his mouth proceede lamps, as it were torches of lighted fire. 11. Out of his nothrels proceedeth smoke, as it were of a pot heated and boyling. 12. His breath maketh coales to burne, & a flame commeth forth out of his mouth. 13. In his necke shal strength abide, and needines goeth before his face. 14. The members of his flesh cleaue together one to an other: ^(b) he shal send lightnings against him, and he shal not be caried to an other place. 15. His hart shal be hardened as a stone, and shal be stiffly compact as the smithes stithie. 16. When he shal be taken away, the ^(c) Angels shal feare, and being feared shal be purged. 17. When the sword shal apprehend him, neither speare, nor breast-plate shal be able to abide. 18. For he shal esteeme yron as chaffe, & brasse, as rotten wood. 19. The bow-man shal not put him to flight, the stones of the sling, to him are turned into stubble. 20. As stubble wil he esteeme the hammer, and he wil laugh him to skorne that shaketh the speare. 21. The beames of the sunne shal be vnder him, & he shal straw gold vnder him as durt. 22. He shal make the deepe sea to boyle as a pot, and shal put it as when ointments boyle. 23. A path shal thine after him, he shal esteeme the depth as waxing old. 24. There is no power vpon the earth, that may be compared with him, who is made to feare no man. 25. He seeth euerie high thing, he is ^(d) King ouer al the children of pryde.

C H A P. XLII.

Holie Iob instructed and comforted by Gods discourse, acknowlegeth his fault, and craueth pardon for his oversight in speech or cogitation. 7. God iustifieth his cause against his freinds. 9. They offer sacrifice for their offence. 10. Al things prosper with Iob, double to that he had before: 16. and he dieth happily.

(a) Iob here simply acknowledged his error in speaking so much in defence of his owne innocencie, & solitle of Gods providence in afflicting him, for his more merite, & Gods more glorie.
 (b) Before he defended a truth against his opposite freinds, now with more resignation he contented himself with his affliction.
 (c) Iob did penance both for himself and others.
 (d) In that he had al other things double, and children in the same number as before, it is a signe that the former perished not, but died in good state.

AND Iob answering our Lord, sayd: 2. I know that thou canst doe al things, and no cogitation is hid from thee. 3. Who is this, that concealeth counsel without knowledge? Therefore haue I spoken (a) vnwisely, and the things that did exceede my knowledge beyond measure. 4. Heare (I beseech thee) and I wil speake: I wil aske thee, and doe thou tel me. 5. With the hearing of the eare I haue heard thee, but now my eye seeth thee. 6. Therefore (b) I reprehend my self, and I doe penance in imbers and ashes. 7. And after our Lord spake these words to Iob, he sayd to Eliphaz the Themanite: My furie is wrath against thee, and against thy two freinds, because "you haue not spoken right before me, as my seruant Iob. 8. Take therefore vnto you " seuen oxen, and seuen rammes, & goe to my seruant Iob, and offer holocauste for your selues: and my seruant " Iob thal pray for you: his face I wil receiue, that the follie be not imputed to you: for you haue not spoken right things before me, as my seruant Iob. 9. Eliphaz therefore the Themanite, and Baldad the Suhire, and Sophar the Naamathite went, and did as our Lord had spoken to them, and our Lord receiued the face of Iob. 10. Our Lord also was turned at the (c) penance of Iob, when he prayed for his freinds. And our Lord added al things whatsoeuer had been Iobs, double. 11. And al his brethren came to him, and al his sisters, and al that knew him before, and they did eate bread with him in his house: and wagged the head vpon him, & comforted him vpon al the euil that God had brought in vpon him. And euerie man gaue him one ewe, and one carelet of gold. 12. And our Lord blessed the last daies of Iob more then his beginning. And he had fourteen thousand sheepe, and six thousand camels, and a thousand yoke of oxen, and a thousand she asses. 13. And he had (d) seuen sonnes, and three daughters. 14. And he called the name of one Dies, and the name of the second Cassia, and the name of the third Cornustibii. 15. And there were not found in al the earth women so beautiful as the daughters of Iob: and their father gaue them inheritance among their brethren. 16. And Iob liued after these things, an hundred fourtie yeares, and he saw his children, and his childrens children, vnto the fourth generation, and he died an old man, and full of daies.

ANNOTATIONS.

CHAP. XLII.

7. You haue not spoken right, as my seruant Iob.) Holie Iob being throughly tried in the fornace of tribulation, & by diuine instruction confirmed in perfect patience, and other vertues, God at last gaue sentence, condemning the guiltie, and iustifying the innocent: in plaine termes pronouncing that Eliphaz, Baldad, & Sophar had not spoken right before him, as his seruant Iob. And so these three being conuinc'd, that notwithstanding their former pretence of defending Gods cause, they had erred, and Iob had maintained the truth, they submitted themselues as faultie, and humbly did penance, bringing their oblations for sacrifice to Iob, as they were commaunded. v. 8. & 9.

As for Eliu the last disputer, persisting more vehemēt in his error whē the others ceas'd from contention, he was sufficiently condem'd in his felowes. And the rather for that true point of his owne doctrine (ch. 33. v. 14.) that God speaketh once, and repeateth not the same the second time. For it was euer a general rule, that when God once reuic'd anie thing by publike fact, or vnto competent witnesses, it sufficed for euer, to al reasonable men, and so Eliu might applie the sentence to himselfe, which God had denounced to his three freinds, in the same cause. Much lesse are Protestants excusable, which not only persist in errors condemned in their owne felowes, as in Luther, Caluin, Beza, and others, but also in other old heresies: as their doctrine of iustification by only faith condemned in the Apostles time: their denying the ceremonies of Baptisme, and the Sacraments of Confirmation, and of Penance, condemned in the Nouatians: or that patient sustaining of wordlie losses, and other afflictions, such as Iob suffered, are not satisfactorie, or meritorious workes.

8. Take seuen oxen, and seuen rammes.) In the number of seuen is a mysterie of perfection and fulnes, often vsed in holie Scripture. For God creating the world & al things therein in six dayes, rested the seuenth. Seuentold punishment was required for Cain. Seuen payres of cleane beasts were conserued in Noes arke. And in the law the ground rested from tillage the seuenth yeare. with innumerable the like. As S. Gregorie in this place, and other Fathers note in their workes. Also twise seuen vittimes offer'd in sacrifice, import the greatnes of these mens offence in accusing Iob, and in auouching their false opinion.

9. Iob shal pray for you.) Neither had so manie sacrifices sufficed, as S. Chriostom obserueth, Oras. 5. in Iulios, vnles Iob also had prayed for the offenders. Where we see that both Sacrifice, and the deuotion of him that offereth it, haue their effects: whereof commeth the distinction vsed in Schools, of Opus operatum, and Opus operantis. As it is manifest likewise, that mediation of one man for another, did not derogate from Gods benigne mercie in the law of nature, wherein these men liued. Nor now from Christes mediation, in the law of Grace. 1. Cor.

Why we haue made few an-notations in this booke.

OR auoiding prolixitie (this volume growing great) we haue for the most part contracted our Annotations into the margēt, making very few others in this booke, which other wise offered much more occasion, as wel for explicating hard places, as of other doctrinal and moral instructions. Neither indeed can ordinarie Annotations, wel suffice for vnderstanding of this, and other hard bookes. But rather large Commentaries are required, such as S. Gregorie, and other ancient Fathers, as also R. Iohn de Pineda, and others haue lately written; wherto we therefore remitte the learned readers. And for the benefite of others of our nation, we shal here briefly recapitulate the summe, and principal points of this holie and admirable historie, consisting in a singular holie mans conflicts and glorious victorie, against inuisible and visible aduersaries, both in prosperous and aduerse fortune.

The argument of this historie.

Job in prosperitie was tempted inuisibly more then ordinary men of lower state, or lesse perfectio.

Much more by losse of all his goods & children in one day.
Most of by bodie affliction.
And reuiling
of his wife.

First, this holie man Job in al abundance of wealth and riches, blessed with manie children (ch. i.) sitting in a princelie throne and royal dignitie (ch. 29.) in the land of Hus, was not only assaulted with common tentations of the enuous enemie, as al are that liue piously in God, but so much the more, as he was more godlie, sincerer, and perfecter then other men: yet he neuer set his hart vpon worldlie or temporal things, but with al due feare so serued God, and parted from euil, that Satā himself (the calumniator of man- kind) could not charge him with anie sinne at al. Though he would not for al that confesse him to be iust or perfect: but for further trial of him, demanded and obtained licence of God to touch at his possessions, and so bereaued him of al his goods and children in one day. And when he perseuering constant in vertue, thanking God for al, not sinning in his lips, neither speaking anie foolish thing against God, the diuel getting more ample permission to touch his bones and flesh (chap. 2.) suddenly struck him with a most grieuous botch (or boyle) from the sole of the foote to top of the head: who sitting on a dunghil, and seraping the corruption of his sores with a shel in extreme paine, his owne wife, by the diuels suggestiun, reuiled him for his sinceritie, and prouoked him to blasphemie God: but he secretly reprehended her follie, stil keeping necessarie patience.

Then came three special freinds, noble wise men (or litle Kings) to visite, and comfort him, who in seuen dayes not speaking one word of consolation, nor entering into anie discourse with him, at last Iob himself (chap. 3.) broke this long silence (but not his patience) lamentably be wayling the extremitie of his paines, imputing al to the miseries of mans estate, corrupted by sinne, discoursed of certaine penal euils, or maladies ensaing therupon, wishing for his owne prrt (if it had so been Gods pleasure, for he sincerely feared God) that either he had not been borne, or been shortly taken out of this world, curling sinne and the proper effects therof remaining in man, wishing also to haue wanted the ordinarie benefits of education in his infancie, and at his former prosperitie, so that he might haue escaped the calamities, wherwith he was now afflicted. At which he vetering in way of contemning al worldlie things, and supposing his freinds there present would haue so vnderstood him, and had compassion with him: they contrariwise (by art of the diuel, God so permitting) fel into indignation, and instead of comforting their most afflicted freind, sharply reprehended him, rashly iudged his conscience, and falsly condemned him, not only of impatient speech, as offense to God, and his Angels, and to al good men, but also of other enormous sinnes: as pride, tyrannie, presumption, hypochritie, and blasphemie, because heretofore he seemed to the world as iust and holie, and now (as they imagined) in his deserued punishment, charged God with iniustice. Wherupon grew diuers long disputes between Iob and his three freinds, a fourth also intruding himselfe, when the others ceased. So that Iob indured nine conflicts, and in the tenth God iudged him the victour, which shal yet better appeare, if we repete the summe of their arguments, and his answers, with Gods decision of the controuersie.

In the first conflict Eliphaz the chiefest of Iobs freinds (in the 4. and 6. chapters) accused Iob of great impatience, and insolencie against God, also both him and his familie of tyrannie, like to a cruel lion, and lions whelps, alleauging for prouise the prosperitie of good men, punishment of the wicked, and a particular vision. Adured him therefore to acknowledge and repent the same. But Iob (in ether two chapters) auouched that indeed his afflictions were greater then his sinnes deserued, relying vpon his innocencie knowne to his owne conscience. Described also the manifold calamities of mans life, desired to die, and so to end his worldlie miseries.

Then Baldad the second opposite freind (in the 8. chap.) pretending to free Gods iudgement from al shew or resemblance of iniustice, charged Iob and his children with former wickednes, and him as inturions to God in his speeches, of which if he would repent, he should be healed, and prosper as before: Arguing in general, that God neuer afflicteth the innocent, nor assisteth the malignat. Insinuating therby, that Iob was an hypocrite. Wherto Iob answered (ch. 9. & 10.) that indeed no man may compare, nor iustifie himselfe before God. Neuertheles it standeth wel with Gods iustice, power, & wisdom, that innocents be sometimes exercised with tribulations, more then their offences deserue.

Thiruly Sophar (the bird disputer) assaulted Iob (ch. 11.) imputing his speech and defence of himselfe to loquacitie, and audacious temeritie, Holie Iob lamented his affliction, & the general miseries of man.

Where Iob expected comfort in tribulation, the diuel procured him more affliction.

Iob fore afflicted in bodie had nine several conflicts about the cause therof, before it was decided.

The first conflict.

The maine point of the controuersie.

The second conflict.

The ground of these mens errour.

The third conflict.

The fourth

in that he desired to know the causes of Gods providence, in so grievously afflicting him. Of which faults holie Job purged himself (in the three next chapters) stil maintayning his innocencie, according to his owne conscience better knowne to himself then to them, desiring God to instruct him, if he had anie vnknowen sinnes. Discourfed also much more profounaly of Gods power, wisdom, iustice, and providence, as wel in general, as towards himself in particular: and professed his faith, and great confidence of the Resurrection. Againe Eliphaz (ch. 15.) more bitterly then before condemned Job of presumption, and blasphemie, discourfed of mans corruptnes and pronenes to sinne, describing the manners of hypocrites, and other impious men, with their miserable ends, and argued Job for such a one. Who (in the next two chapters) expostulated with these his freinds, that they comming with presence to comfort him, did so violently afflict him, by charging him with false and heynous crimes, his owne conscience better knowing and testifying his former life, and state of his soule, then that their imaginations could alter his iudgement. And so with contempt of this world, & desire of death and rest, appealed to Gods iudgement against his three freinds, touching the matter in controversie. In the meane time comforted himself with meditation of the next world.

The fifth conflict.

Baldad likewise replied (ch. 18.) with hote contention, accusing Job of insulens impatience, imitating the grieuous punishments both of him, and others for their impietie. in answer wherto he lamented againe the want of expected comfirt, especially by such freinds. Stil comforted himself with assured faith of the Resurrection.

The sixth conflict.

Sophar also (ch. 20.) attempted againe to conuince Job of impietie and hypocrisie, by the miserable and speedie fall of wicked men after prosperitie: for so he imagined Job to be fallen into irrecoverable miserie. But Job shewed the contrarie, that some wicked men prosper long, yea at their life, and the same long, and then in a moment goe downe to hel, and so the argument of present affliction proued not their opinion against him.

The seventh conflict.

Eliphaz disputed the third time (ch. 22.) comending that the causes of affliction are not to be attributed to Gods secrete providence, but to assured sinnes of the wicked. Upon whom only he supposed, that afflictions fall: inferring that Job was guilty of enormous crimes, and grosse errors. Urged him therefore to returne to God, that he might be restored to former prosperitie. Job againe appealed to Gods sentence, not in his terrour, nor rigour of his iustice, but against his aduersaries in this quarel, describing Gods power, and wisdom, by which he permitteth the innocent to be afflicted, and the wicked to prosper: no man knowing how soone or how late it shall receue as they deserve.

The eight conflict.

Moreover Balad disputed the third time, very briefly (ch. 23.) endeavouring to terrifie Job from further answering, and especially from appealing to Gods iudgement. But Job very largely (in six ensuing chapters) discourfed diuinely of Gods soueraigne Maestie, Power, Wisdom, exact iustice, and infinite Mercie. Also of wicked mens destruction, of his owne of his owne former prosperitie, and present calamitie, together with his good workes, and innocencie, which he stil auouched in respect of great iniquities.

After that Iob and his three freinds ceased, nothing being agreed vpon in the point of controuersie, the diuill yet ceased not, but stirred vp a yong man, called Eliu, proud and arrogant, but not vlearned, who abruptly condemned them al, to wit, Iob of pertinacie, the others of insufficiencie. And therefore tooke vpon him to conuince Iob, though the others could not. Very like to late-rising Protestants or Puritains, bragging that by new arguments, and proofes neuer heard of, they wil ouertrow the Papists, or Catholike Romaine Church, and doctrine, which at former enemies, Iewes, Pagaines, Turkes, and Heretikes, nor Helgates, could not ouercome. This yong Eliu therefore, with his Priuate spirite, wiser in his owne conceipt then al that went before him, assaulted constant Iob (ch. 32. and sine more ensuing) with manie wordes, and bragges, often chalenging and promoking, but not extorting anie answer from so graue a man to his friuolous and idle arguments, largely discoursing of things either not denied, or so manifest false, that euerie meane seruant of God, could easely conuince them, and neuer approaching to the maine controuersie, only railed against holy Iob, charging him more furiously then anie had done before, with impietie, impatiencie, ignorance, pride, blasphemie, and obstinacie, vices sarre from Iobs sanctitie, dilating also of Gods iustice, mercie, wisdom, power, and providence, and that no man ought to contend, nor expostulate with God, that afflictions must be borne patiently, and that God is iust, and maruelous in his workes: wherof no wiseman euer doubted, and so Iob conuincd him with silence.

But God himself for decision of al (from ch. 38. to the end of the Booke) first by way of examining instructed Iob more particularly, reciting manie maruelous workes of nature, shewing thereby his Diuine Maiesie, Power, and Wisdom, exercising Iob in more patience, and withal perfecting him in humilitie. So that with al reuerent feare and subiection, he offered and submitted himselfe to Gods onlie good pleasure. Then finally God gaue sentence that Iob had defended the truth, & his three freinds had erred. Whom after Sacrifice, and Iobs prayer for them, he pardoned, restored Iob to health, and to double prosperitie, of al he had lost before, giuing him also long life, and a happie end.

In this historie besides the literal sense, shewing that Iob was iust and sincere, and not for his sinnes (as his freinds falsely supposed) but for his more merite was most extremly afflicted, and afterwards restored to health and wealth: we haue also here in the Allegorical sense, an especial figure of Christ. Who as he was absolutely most innocent, and most perfect: so was he without comparison most afflicted of al mankind. Likewise Iobs restoration to better state then before, signified in the Anagogical sense, the Resurrection, and restoration of better, and most glorious qualities in the blessed, with fulnes of daies, in eternal glorie. Finally in the Moral sense (which S. Gregorie most especially prosecuted) al Christians haue here a most notable example of al vertues, namely in patience, wherein Iob proceeded by degrees to great perfection. For he was first tried by the losse of al his goodes and children, and was proued to be very patient. He was then most grieuously tormented in bodie, & being left without comfort, albeit belamentably bewayled so great extremitie, wishing such dayes had been prevented: yet he neither spake against God, nor good man, nor his owne soule, and according to truth auouched & defended his owne innocencie. And at last by Gods inspiration, and sweet consolation, he reprehended himself of former imperfections vttered in some words, and with full resignation to Gods wil, susteynea al his losses and paynes, not only with contentment, but also with ioy.

PROEMIAL ANNOTATIONS VPON THE BOOK of Psalmes.

HE authoritie of this Book was euer authentical, and certaine, as the assured word of God, and Canonical Scripture. But concerning the Authour, there be diuers opiniōs. For although it be manifest by the testimonie of Philo and Iosephus, that in their time, and alwaies before, only King Dauid was by al Hebrew Doctours holden for Authour of al the Psalmes; yet after that learned Origen, and other Christian Doctours, expounded manie Psalmes of Christ, the Iewes being pressed therewith, began to denie that al were Dauids: alleading for their new opinion the titles of diuers Psalmes, and some other difficulties, ministring occasiō of much needles dispute, stil acknowledging the whole booke to be Canonical. Wherupon S. Ierome and S. Augustine, sometimes admitted those as Authours of certaine Psalmes, whose names are in the titles thereof. S. Cyprian, S. Cyril, S. Athanasius, and others agree in general, that Dauid writ not al: but differ much in particular, touching other supposed authours. In so much that Melchisedech, Moyses, Asaph, Eman, Idithun, The sonnes of Core, Salomon, Ieremie, Ezechiel, Esdras, Aggeus, and Zacharias, are al (with more or lesse probabilitie) reputed Authours of severall Psalmes. Neuertheles it seemeth that S. Ierome rather related other mens iudgement, then shewed his owne; as we shall note by and by. And S. Augustine (l. 17. c. 14. de ciuit.) maturely discussing this doubt, saith plainly, that their Iudgement seemed to him more credible, viz ho attribute al the hundred fiftie Psalmes to Dauid alone. Further explicating that wheras some Psalmes Chrylostome resolutely iudgeth, that only King Dauid was Authour of this whole Booke. Moued especially by this argument, for that Christ and the Apostle's alleading the Psalmes, doe oftētimes name Dauid as Authour, and neuer anie other. Also Origen, S. Basil, Saint Ambrose, S. Hilarie, Theodoretus, Casiodorus, Beda, Eutimius, and most part of ancient and late writers, with the most common voice of Christians, cal this booke the Psalmes of Dauid: and the General Councils at arthage, Florence, and Trent, in the Catalogue of Canonical Scriptures recite this booke by the name of Dauids Psalter.

Moreouer it is cleare, Act. 2. that the second Psalme, though it want his name, is Dauids. And other Scriptures, 2. Paral. 7. v. 6. and 1. Esd. 3. v. 10. say plainely, that Dauid made the Psalmes, 104. 105. 106. 117. 135. beginning: Confesse to our Lord, because he is good, because his mercie is for euer. Which he appointed the Leuites to sing, or play on instruments, 1. Paral. 15. & 16. and yet they haue not his name in their titles. Againe, 2. Reg. 23. Dauid is only intituled the egregious, or excellent Psalmist of Israel. Neither were Asaph, Eman, and Idit hun aniewhere called Prophets (as are al the writers of holie Scriptures) but only maisters of musike, 1. Paral. 25. And the sonnes of Core were only porters, 1. Paral. 26. Finally, S. Ierome (whose iudgemēt the whole Church singularly esteemeth in al questions belonging to holie Scriptures) seemeth as much inclined, that only the Royal Prophet Dauid was Authour of this whole booke, as to the contrarie. For in his Epistle to Paulinus, prefixed before the Latin Bible, comprehēding the principal arguments of seueral books, when he commeth to the Psalmes, without mention of other Authours, saith: Dauid our Simonides, Pindarus, and Alceus, Flaccus also, Catullus, and Cerenus, foundeth out Christ, v with harpe & ten stringed Psalter, rising vp from hel: so attributing the summe of this whole booke to the Royal Prophet Dauid, as if he supposed no other Authour.

uine Psalter, al Catholike Doctours vniformely agree that it is the abridgement, summe, and substance of al holie Scriptures, both old and new Testament. As may first be probably collected, by that Christ himselfe often comprehēding al the old Testament by the termes of the Law and Prophets, in one place (Luc. 24. v. 44.) seemeth not onlie to reduce al to the Law and Prophets iointly, but also to the Psalmes alone, or seuerally. But whether this be our Sauours diuine meaning or no in that place, out of this and manie other places, al the ancient Fathers teach expressely, that the Psalmes are an Epitome of al other holie Scriptures. For example, S. Denys, li de Eccles. Hierar. contemplat. 2. after brief recital of the contents of other holie Scriptures, saith: This sacred booke of diuine Canticles, doth exhibit both a general song, and exposition of diuine things. S. Basil calleth the Psalmodie of Dauid the common and most plentiful store-house of al sacred doctrine, the treasure of perfect Theologie. S. Ambrose accounteth it The register of the whole Scripture. Origē, S. Cyprin, S. Ierome, S. Chrylostome, S. Gregorie, S. Beda, S. Bernard, Cassiodorus, Eutimius, and others vie the same, or very like termes. S. Augustine particularly distinguishing al the Scriptures into foure sorts of bookes, sheweth that the Psalmes conteyne al: The Law (saith he) teacheth some things, the Historie some things, the Prouerbes also and Prophets teach some things: but the Booke of Psalmes teacheth al. It propoeth the law, recounteth things of old, prescribeth the due ordering of mens actiōs, and prophecieth things to come. Briefly, it is a common treasure of good doctrine, aptly administering that is necessarie to euerie one. And a litle after, exemplifying in particular points: Is not here (saith he) al greatnes of vertue, and is not here the right square of iustice? is not the comelines of chastitie, the consummation of prudence, is not whatsoeuer may be called good, learned in the Psalmes? Here is the knowlege of God, the cleare pronounciation of Christ to come in flesh, the hope of general Resurrection, feare of torments, promise of glorie, reuelation of mysteries. Euen al good things are here, as in a common great treasure laid vp and heaped together.

*sine te, non iustificat te sine te. He that created thee without thee, doth not iustifie thee without thee: to helpe our weaknes, and sweetly to draw our mindes, otherwise auerse from rrauel and paine, the Holie Ghost hath ordained that in smal roome, and in pleasant manner, we may attaine necessarie knowledge of God, & our selues, easily keepe the same in memorie, and dayly put in practise our chiefeft dutie, in seruing and praising God, by singing, reading, or hearing these diuine Psalmes. Which one booke (as euerie one shal be able to learne it, more or lesse perfectly) openeth and sheweth the way to vnderstand al other Scriptures, and so to find, & enioy the hiddē treasures of Gods word, in like manner as a key openeth a lock. For the whole sacred Bible is a sealed Booke, and not rightly vnderstood, til the seale, or lock be opened, by the key of Gods spirit, giuing knowledge; which the Holie Ghost, amōgst other wayes, inspirith very oftē by sacred Muike or Psalmodie. As S. Gregorie noteth in holie Scripture (4. Reg. 3. v. 15.) where Eliseus not yet knowing Gods wil in a particular case, called for a Psalmist (or player on instruments) and whē the Psalmist sang, the hand of our Lord came vpon Eliseus, and presētly he prescribing what should be done, procured plentie of water without rayne, where was none before, and prophecied victorie against the enimies. Reason allo and experience teach, that as men of cheerful hart are apt to sing, so the exercise of reading, singing, or playing Psalmes, is a conuenient and a special meanes, to attaine quiernes or cheerfulness of mind.*

But as this holie Psalter is the key of other Scriptures, so it selfe is most especially a sealed, and locked Booke, requiring manie keys. Euerie Psalmie (saith S. Hilarie) hath a peculiar key, and oftētimes there be so manie lockes and keyes of one Psalmie, as there be diuers persons that speake, to diuers ends and purposes. For albeit diuers mysteries are sometimes connected, and so require fundrie keys, yet there is but one principal & proper key of each Psalmie: otherwise it should be diuided into manie Psalmes. Our first endeauour therfore must be, to find the proper key of euerie Psalmie, that is, to know what is principally therein cōtey- ned. To this purpose the learned Expositours of this booke, haue obserued ten general points, or seueral matters, to which al the contents may be reduced, as it were, so manie keys, and meanes of entrance into the sense, and true vnderstanding of all the Psal. And the same may likewise be called the ten strings of this diuine instrument. Vpon one of which, euery Psalm principally playeth, touching the rest more or lesse, as cause requireth, for more melodious harmonie and perfect musike.

The first key or string is God himself, One in Substance, Three in Persons, Almighty, All-perfect, Power, Wisdome, Goodnes, Maiestie, Iustice, Mercie, & other Diuine Attributes. The second is Gods workes of Creation, Conseruation, and Gouverning of the whole world. The third, Gods Prouidence, especially towards man, in protecting and rewarding the iust, in permitting and punishing the wicked. The fourth, is the peculiar calling of the Hebrew people, their beginning in Abraham, Isaac, and Iacob: their maruelous increate in Ægypt: diuers estates, manie admirable and miraculous things done amongst them, with their ingratitude, reiection, and reprobation. The fifth principal key and string is Christ, the promised Redeemer of mankind: prophesying his Incarnation, Natiuitie, Trauels, Sufferings, Death, Resurrection, Ascension, and Glorie. The sixth is the propagation of Christs name and Religion, with Sacrifice and Sacramnts, in the multitude of Gentiles belieuing in him, euen to the vitermost coasts of the earth: the Catholike Church euer visible. The seuenth is the true manner of seruing God, with sincere faith and good workes. The eight, holie David interposeth manie things concerning himselfe. As Gods singular benefits towards him, for which he rendreth thankes and diuine praises, recounteth his enimies, dangers, and afflictions of mind & bodie, namely by Saul, Absalō, and others, humbly beseeching and obtaining Gods protection. He also expresth in himselfe a perfect image and patterne of a sincere and hartie penitent: bewayling, confessing, and punishing his owne finnes. The ninth is the end and renouation of this world, with the general Resurrection, and Iudgement. The tenth is eternal felicitie, and punishment, according as euerie one deserueth in this life. These are the ten keys of this holie Booke; and ten strings of this Diuine Psalter.

cial wayes. First, by the title added by Esdras, or the Seuentie two Interpreters, for an introduction to the sense of the same Psalm. So it appeareth that the third Psalm treateth literally of Dauids danger, and deliuerie from his sonne Absalon: which is the eight key: though mystically it signifieth Christs Persecution, Passion, & Resurrection, which is the fifth key. Secondly, if there be no title, or if it declare not sufficiently the key, or principal matter conteyned, it may sometimes be found by allegation and applicatiō of some special part thereof in the new Testament. So it is eident Act. 4. v. 25. c. 13. v. 33. Heb. 1. v. 5. & Heb. 5. v. 5. that the secōd Psalm pertyneth to Christ, impugned and persecuted by diuers aduersaries. Which is the fift key. Thirdly, whē greater things are affirmed of anie persō, or people, as of Dauid, Salomō, the Iewish nation, or the like, thē cā be verified of them, it must necessarily be vnderstood of Christ, or his Church, in the new Testament or in Heauen. So the conclusion of the 14. Psalm: He that doth these things, shal not be moued for euer, can not be verified of the tabernacle, nor temple of the Iewes, but of eternal Beatitude in heauen. Which is the tenth key. Though the greater part of the Psalm sheweth, that iust and true dealing towards our neighbours, is necessarie for attayning of eternal Glorie. Fourthly, whē both the title and Psalm, or part thereof seeme hard and obscure, some part being more cleare, the true sense of al may be gathered by that which is more eident. According to S. Augustins rule li. 2. c. 9. & li. 3. c. 26. De Cl. Christ. So the title and former part of the fifth Psalm, being more obscure, are explained by the last verses, shewing plainly that God wil iustly iudge al men, both iust and wicked, in the end of this world. Which is the ninth key. By these and like meanes the principal key being found, it wil more easily appeare, what other keyes belong to the same, and what other strings are also touched. At least the studious may by these helps make some entrance, and for more exact knowledge search the iudgement of ancient Fathers and other learned Doctours.

But besides this singular great commoditie, of compendious handling much Diuine matter in smal roome, this booke hath another special excellencie, in the kind of stile, and manner of vttering,

of vttering, which is Meeter, and Verſe, in the original Hebrew tongue. And though in Greeke, Latin, and other languages, the ſame could not in like forme be exactly tranſlated, yet the number, and diſtinction of verſes is ſo obſerued, that it is apt for muſike, as wel voices as inſtruments, and to al other vſes of Gods ſeruants. Neiſher is muſical manner of vttering Gods word and praifes leſſe to be eſteemed, becauſe profane Poetes haue in this kind of ſtile vttered light, vaine, and falſe things. For the abuſe of good things, doth not derogare from the goodnes therof, but rather commendeth the ſame, which others deſire to imitate. And cleare it is, that this holie Pſalmodie was before anie profane poetrie now extant. For Homer, the moſt ancient of that ſorte, writ his poeme at leaſt two huddred and fourtie yeares after the deſtruction of Troy, as Apolidorus witneſſeth; others, namely Solinus, Herodotus, and Cornelius Nepos ſay longer. Whereas King Dauid our Diuine Pſalmiſt, reigned within one hundred yeares after the Troians warts. There were indeed Amphion, Orpheus, and Muſcus before Dauid, but their verſes either were not writtē, or ſhortly periſhed, only a confuſe memorie remaining of them, recited, altered, and corrupted by word of mouth; but before thē were the ſacred Hiftorie of Iob, almoſt al in verſe; and the two Canticles of Moyses, Exodi 15. and Dent. 32. It is moreouer recorded that Iubal (long before Noes flood) was the father of them, that ſang on harpe, and organ. Muſike therefore is maruelous ancient. But ſacred Poetrie is in manie other reſpects moſt excellent, and moſt profitable. This holie Pſalmodie (ſaith S. Auguſtine) is a medecine to old ſpiritual ſores, it bringeth preſent remedie to new wounds: it maketh the good to perſeuer in wel doing, it cureth at once al predominating paſſions, which vex mens ſoules. A little after: Pſalmodie driveth away euil ſpirits, immiteth good Angels to helpe vs, it is a ſhield in night terrours, a refreshing of day trauels, a guard to children, an ornament to yongmen, a comforte to oldmen, a moſt ſeemlie grace to women. Vnto beginners it is an introduction, an augmentation to them that goe forward in vertue, a ſtable firmament to the perfect: It conioyneth the whole Church militant in one voice, and is the ſpiritual eternal ſweet perfume of the ceſtial Armies, al Saints and Andzels in heauen.

Abuſe derogateh not from good things.

Dauids Pſalter more ancient then any profane poetrie now extant.

Muſike very ancient.

Sacred poetrie moſt excellent.

Most special,

To al this we may adde other causes, which moued the Royal Prophet to write this diuine poetrie. First, he had from his youth (by Gods special prouidence) a natural inclination to Musike; wherein he shortly so excelled, that before al the Musicians in Israel, he was selected to recreate King Saul, whom an euil spirite vexed. And his skill, together with his deuotion, had such effect, that when he playd on the harpe, Saul was refreshed, and waxed better. For the euil spirite departed from him, saith the holie text. Wherefore he made these Psalmes, that himielfe and others might by singing them, imploy this guift of God to his more honour. Secondly, verse being more easie to learne, more firmly kept in mind, and more pleasant in practise (for as vine, so musike doth recreate the hart of man) the Holie Ghost condescending to mans natural disposition, inspired Dauid to write these Psalmes in meeter, mixing the powre of diuine doctrine, with delectable melodie of song, that whiles the eare is allured with harmonie of musike, the hart is indued with heauenlie knowledg, pleasant to the mind, and profitable to the soule. Thirdly, Dauid singularly illuminated with knowledge of great, and most diuine Mysteries, indued also with most gracious disposition of mind, the man chosen according to Gods owne hart (1. Reg. 13.) would vtter the same Mysteries, with godlie instructions, and praises of God, in the most exquisite kind of stile; that is in verse. For otherwise he was also very eloquent in prose, as wel appeareth by sundrie his excellent, and effectual discourses, in the books of Kings, and Paralipomenon. For which cause Moyses also described the passage of Israel forth of Ægypt through the red sea in a Canticle, after that he had related the same whole historie more at large in prose, that al might sing, and so render thanks with melodious voice, and musical instruments praising God. Likewise in an other Canticle he comprised the whole law, a litle before his death. So also Barac and Debora, and after them Iudith, song praises to God for their victories in verse. Salomon writ the end of his Prouerbes, and a whole booke (intituled Canticles) & the Prophet Ieremie his Lamentations in verse.  the Iewes, but most principally for the Christian Catholike Church , which he knew shoud be spred in the whole earth.

Bishops bound to be skilful in Dauids Psalter. Other Priests to haue competent knowledge therein.

And therefore al Bysbops especially, are strictly bound by a particular Canon (Dist. 38. cap. Omnes psallentes) to be skilful in the Psalmes of Dauid: and to see that other Clergie men be wel instructed therein. According to the Holie Ghosts admonition, by the pen of the same Royal Prophet (Psal. 46.) Psallite sapienter, or, intelligenter, that is: Sing Psalmes vwith knowledge, and vnderstanding them. Not that euerie one is bound to know, and be able to discusse al difficulties, but competently, according to their charge vnderaken in Gods Church. Otherwise euerie one that is, or intendeth to a Priest. may remember what God denounceth to him, by the Prophet Osee (c. 4.) Because thou hast repelled knowlege, I vil repel thee. that thou doe not the function of Priesthood vnto me. Thus much touching the Authour, the contents, the poetical stile, & final cause of this holie Psalter.

Why this booke is called the psalter.

As for the name, S. Ierome, S. Augustine, and other Fathers teach, that wheras amongst innumerable musical instruments, six were more specially vsed in Dauids time, mentioned by him in the last Psalme, Trumpet, Psalter, Harpe, Timbrel, Organ, and Cymbal: This booke hath his name of the instrument called Psalter, which hath ten strings, signifying the ten commandements, and is made in forme (as S. Ierome, and S. Bede suppose) of the Greeke letter Δ delta, because as that instrument rendreth sound from aboue, so we should attend to heauenlie vertues, which come from aboue: Likewise vsing the harpe, which signifyeth mortification of the flesh, & other instruments, which signifie and teach other vertues, we must finally referre al to Gods glorie, reioyce spiritually in hart, and render al praise to God.

Other instruments make consort with the Psalter. Al vertues are referred to Gods honour.

Concerning interpretation of holie Scriptures.

AS Prophecie (or other holie Scripture) was not at anie time by mans wil, but the (Prophess) holie men of God spake, inspired by the Holie Ghost : to no prophecie (nor explication) of Scripture, is made by priuate interpretation. 2. Pet. 1. but by the same Spirit wherwith it was written, which our Sauour gaue to the Church, to abide for euer, the Spirit of truth, to teach al truth. Ioan. 14. 16. Neiber perteyneth it to euerie one, to discerne the true spirit, but to some. 1. Cor. 12.

Holie Scriptures consist not in reading, but in vnderstanding. S. Jerome Dialogo aduers. Luciferianos.

The wordes of holie Scripture are so to be vnderstood, as holie men, the Saints of God, haue vnderstood them. S. Aug. Ser. 18. de Verb. Domini. Men must learne of men, not expect knowledge immediately of God, nor only by Angels. Idem, in Prologo Doct. Christ.

There be some things, mentioned in holie Scripture, which God wil haue hidden, and those are not to be curiously searched. S. Amb. li. 1. c. 7. de Vocat. Gentium.

By those things, which to vs are hidden in holie Scripture, our humilitie is proued. S. Greg. ho. 17. super Ezech.

Scriptures are to be expounded by the common spirit of the Church, not by priuate men.

They consist in vnderstanding.

Holy Fathers doe best expound them.

Some Mysteries are hidden.

They proue our humilitie.

ANNOTATIONS.

PSALME. I.

They are happie (in hope) that decline from euil.

Iustice consisteth in flying euil and doing good.

1. Hath not gone, not stood, nor sitted. The Hebrew stile and manner of discourse differeth here from other nations, in mentioning first the lesse euil, and the greatest last. Whereas we would say in the contrary order: He is happie that hath not sitted, that is, hath not fetled himselfe in wickednes, nor finally persisted obstinate: more happie, that hath not stood, anie notable time continued in sinne: and most happie, that hath not gone, not giuen anie consent at al to euil suggestions.

2. His vvil in the way of our Lord. As one part of happines consisteth in declining from euil: so the other is in doing good; the wil desiring, and diligently endeavouring to walke in the way of vertue, and law of God. Which is true iustice, and right forme of good life, proposed in this Psalme, for attayning eternal beatitude.

2. Kings and Princes against Christ.) Whē Christ, and his Apostles preached the Gospel, both Iewes and Gentiles, with their Princes, Kings, and Emperours most furiously resisted, but al in vaine. For they could not hinder the wil and power of God. But the more they persecuted, the more was increased the zeale and number of Christians.

Persecution cannot hinder the glorie of Christ.

8. The gentiles thyne inheritance.) By this promise of God to Christ, S. Augustine conuincd the Donatistes, & in them the Protestants, that say, the Church of Christ fayled, and became smal, or inuisible; as though Christ the Sonne of God could sometimes lose his inheritance, which is the Catholike Church, gathered of the Gentiles, and his possession extended to the ends of the earth.

The Church neuer failcth.

9. As a potters vessel.) If a potters vessel (saith S. Ierome in hunc Psal. tom. 8.) be broken whiles it is soft, it may easily be repayed, but after it is hard, it can not be made whole againe. So sinners are more easily restored to grace shortly repenting, then long obdurate: yet that which is vnpossible to man, is possible to God. Mat. 10. For as clay in the potters hand, so are you in my hand, saith our Lord, Iere. 18.

But God stil protecteth the true Church, against al such futtle, and malicious deuises: because it is Christs inheritance.

ANNOTATIONS.

PSALME. III.

1. Psalme of David.) All Interpreters agreeably teach, that King David made not the titles, which are before the Psalmes. Neuertheles they are authentical, as ended by the Holie Ghost. And it is most probable Esdras added those titles which are in the Hebrw: and the Seuentie interpreters writ the other, in their Greeke Edition. Both which S. Ierome translated into Latin.

Titles of the Psalmes added by Esdras and the Septuagint.

In these titles five things may be noted. First, the former two hauing no title at al, the general name of Psalme, common to al, is particularly appropriated to some, and other names to others. Which in al are twelue: to wit, Psalme, Inscription, Prayer, Canticle, Psalme of Canticle, Canticle of Psalme, Hymne, Testimonie, Vnderstanding, Praise of Canticle, Alleluia, & Gradual Canticle. Secondly, in the titles of some Psalmes are the names of certaine persons, which by S. Augustins iudgement, cited in the Proemial Annotations, and others, proueth not the same persons to be authours of those Psalmes, but signifieth some other thing. Thirdly, in some titles the time is signified, when the Psalme was made, or song. Fourthly, the matter conteyned in the Psalme, or vpon what occasion it was made, is expressed in some titles. Fifthly, diuers other termes are often vsed in the titles of sundrie Psalmes, as To the end, For the Octaue, For presses, and the like, al which we shal briefly explicate, where they first occurre.

Five things to be noted in the titles.

Psal. 4. 6. 8. 15. 16. &c.

First therefore this third Psalme is called the Psalme of David, not because he is authour therof, for he is also authour of the former, where his name is not expressed, as is euident by the testimonie of al the Apostles, Act. 4. v. 25. but because it treateth particularly and literally of him.

Why this is called the Psalme of David.

1. When he fled from the face of Absalom.) Here the time is signified, when this Psalme was made, to wit, immediately after the ouerthrow of his rebellious sonne Absalom, mentioned 2. Reg. 18. before his returne to Ierusalem. For albeit of humane, natural, and fatherlie affection, he greatly lamented the death of his sonne, yet he rendered thanks and praises to God, as reason and dutie bound him.

The time and occasion of making this Psalme.

6. I haue slept, and haue been as rest, and haue risen vp.) King David by his sleeping in persecution, and by his resting, and deliuerie from his persecutors, prefigured Christs Death, Burial, & Resurrection. As appeareth, Ioan. 2. v. 22. Where the Euangelist saith: that after Christs Resurrection, his disciples believed the scripture, to wit, this and other like prophecies. For otherwise the old Testament doth not so expressly declare such Mysteries, as the Ghospel doth: but one thing in the proper and grammatical signification of the words, and an other thing in shadowes and figures, and both literal. Whereupon S. Gregory teacheth (li. 20. c. 1. Moral.) that holie Scripture (amongst other incomparable excellencies) surpasseth al other doctrines, in the verie manner of speaking: because by one and the same speech, it reporteth a thing done, and proclameth a Mysterie: so relating things past, that with the verie same words, it foresheweth things to come.

King David prefigured Christ

ANNOTATIONS.

P S A L M E. I I I I.

The signification of this phrase, To the end in the titles of Psalmes.

1. Vnto the end.) The Hebrew word Lamnasfa, signifieth to him that ouercometh. And so the Hebrewes interprete, that the Psalmes, which haue this word in their titles, were directed either to him that excelled others in skill of musike; or had authoritie ouer other musitians: or to him, whose office was to sing victories and triumphes. But the Latin, according to the Greeke, hath In finem, Vnto the end.

which (most commonly signifying perpetuities, or continuance vnto the end of anie thing) in the titles of the Psalmes rather signifieth, that the matter conteyned in the Psalme, pertaineth to future times, or persons; especially to the new Testament. And so S. Augustine expoundeth it here of Christ, who is the end (or perfection) of the law. Not that the principal contents belong to Christ, in his owne Person, but to his mystical bodie the Church, and faithful people, whom the Prophet here teacheth to haue confidence in God, moderation in their affections, & patience in tribulation, which is the seuenth key, proposing his owne example, & prophetically Christ. The same wherto Christ exhorteth, saying: Ioan. 16. v. vlt. Haue confidence, I haue overcome the world. Signifying that his seruants, through his grace, may also overcome it.

6. Sacrifice of Iustice.) Not only external Sacrifice of diuers kinds were necessarie in the law of nature, and of Moyse, and one most excellent and complement of al, in the new Testament, but also spiritual sacrifice was euer, and is required, and that of three sorts. First, Sacrifice of sorow, and contrition for sinnes (Psal. 50.) An afflicted spirit is a sacrifice to God. The second is sacrifice of Iustice, here mentioned. The third is Sacrifice of praise (Psal. 49.) Immolate to God the sacrifice of praise. Concerning the second proposed in this place: He offereth sacrifice of Iustice, that rendreth to euery one that is due. First, to God as our Creator, a resignation of our selues, euen our liues, at his diuine pleasure; as to our Maister, we must render faith and beliefe, in al that he proposeth; as to our Father, hope, confidence, & reuerential feare; as to our Lord and King, payment of tribute, that is obseruation of his law and commandments; as to our Captaine, the trauel of warfare in this life; as to our Phisitian, patience and toleration, when he cureth our wounds, by chaastisement for sinnes; as to our Spouse, chaastity of body and mind, flying al carnal and spiritual fornication; as to our Freind, frequent conuersation in al actes of deuotion. We owe to our selues, that seeing we consist of soule and bodie, we keepe due subordination, that the soule and reason command, & the bodie, and inferiour appetite obey: as the seruant must obey his master, and the handmaid her mistris. We owe to our neighbour, loue from the hart, instruction also from the mouth, and assistance by our helpe, according to his necessitie, and our abilitie; yea though our neighbour be our enemie. But to other enimies contrary things are due. To the world, contempt: because the goods of this world are smal, few, short, vncertaine, deceitful, not satisfying the mind, and mixed with manie euils and dangers. To the flesh we owe chaastisement, and daylie care, so to feed it, that it serue the soule, & rebel not. To the diuel we must render the shame, that cometh by sinne, acknowledging our faults, and al truths, and so returne vpon him al vanitie and lying, wherwith he allureth & seduceth. Finally, to sinne it selfe, we owe hate, and reuenge, because it is the only euil; that hurteth vs; and due punishment with zeale of iustice, because it dishonoureth God. He that thus offereth sacrifice of iustice, may iustly (as it foloweth in the Psalme) hope (yet not in himselfe but) in our Lord. And lest anie should pretend ignorance, saying: who sheweth (or teacheth) vs good things? as though they lacked instruction, the Phrophet preuenteth this vaine excuse, saying: The light of thy countenance. o Lord (the light of reason, which is the image of God, wherto we are created like) is signed vpon vs, fixed in our vnderstanding, that we may see there is a God, that ought to be serued, and that he wil reward his seruants. Heb. 11.

Three spiritual sacrifices necessarie.

Of penance, Iustice, Praise.

iudgement.
The 9. key.

Iust men in affliction appeale to God, the reuenger of iniuries, 5. Knowving and professing that God hateth iniquity. 9. Therefore remit their cause to him, 11. recite certaine enormous vices of the vicked, 13. and expect Gods final iudgement of the good and bad.

1. Vno the end, for (a) her that obtaineth the (b) inheritance. The Psalme of Dauid.

(a) The faithful iust soule that ouercommeth her enimies by vertue. (b) eternal glorie.

2. RECEIVE, o Lord (c) my words with thine eares, vnderstand my crie.

(c) The praier of the whole Church, or of anie faithful (euer beloued) soule.

3. Attend to the voice of my prayer, my King and my God.

4. Because I wil pray to thee: Lord in (d) the morning thou wilt heare my voice.

(d) Gods helpe is presently granted of his part, though it be sometimes differred for the more good of his seruants.

5. In (e) the morning I wil stand by thee and wil see: because thou art not a God that wilt iniquitie.

(e) Before al other affayres we must pray to God. S. Cipriã. in sine orat. Dominice.

6. Neither shal the malignant (f) dwel neer thee: neither shal the vn iust abide (g) before thine eies.

ANNOTATIONS.

PSALME. VI.

The octaue signifieth the world to come.

Hel for some sinners. Purgatorie for others.

1. For the octaue.) Literally it seemeth that the Psalmes which haue For the octaue in their titles, were to be song on an instrument of eight strings. So the Chaldee paraphasis translateth, In cisterns of eight chorderum: in Cisterns of eight strings. But prophetically S. Augustine, & others expound it, to pertaine to the Resurrection in the end of this world. So Dauid, and al penitent sinners bewaile their sinnes, and doe penance in this life, for the octaue, that is for the world to come.

2. In thy furie, nor in thy wrath.) By furie is signified diuine iustice, irreuocably condemning the wicked to eternal damnation: by wrath, Gods fatherlie chastisement correcting sinners, whom he saucth. Wherupon S. Gregorie teacheth, that the faithful soule not only feareth furie, but also wrath: because after the death of the flesh, some are deputed to eternal torments, some passe to life through the fire of purgation. Which doctrine the same holy father confirmeth, by the iudgement of S. Augustine more ancient. Who likewise affirmeth, that al those which haue not laid Christ their foundation, are rebuked in furie, because they are tormented in eternal fire: and those which vpon right foundation (of true faith in Christ) haue built vpon d, hay, stubbl., are chastised in wrath, because they are brought to rest of beatitude, but purged by fire. Let therefore the faithful soule (considering what she hath done, and contemplating what she shal receiue) say: Lord rebuke me not, in thy furie: nor chastice me in thy wrath. As if she said more plainly: This only with my whole intention of hart I craue, this incessantly with al my desires I couete, that in the dreadfull iudgement, thou neither strike me with the reprobate, nor afflict me with those, that shal be purged in burning flames. Thus S. Gregorie, in Psalm. penitent. v. 1. in Psalm.

1. Presses.) Most Hebrew Doctours say the word Gittith , may either signifie the place, where this Psalme was made, or the musical instrument , on which it was song. But most Christian Doctours expound it literally of Christs Passion, who was stretched on the Crosse, and al his sacred blood pressed , and drawne out of his bodie. Which Metaphor Isaias also vseth , demanding of Christ : Why is thy clothing redde , and thy garments as theirs that tread in the wine presse? and answereth in Christs person : I haue troden the Presse alone. S. Augustin also applieth it morally to the Church, where Christ is the vine, the Apostles are the branches, & spreaders (that is preachers of the Ghospel , Christians are the grapes, Christian vertues are the wine. Namely patience, and fortitude in afflictions. Wherby the good are purified, & seuered fro amidst the reprobate, as wine is pressed out of the grapes, barreled, and laid vp in sellers, and * the huskes and carnels cast to hogs , or other beasts.

(w) Extremely

(w) Extremely vexed & tormented. (x) The Phrophet answereth to the complaint of the iust, that indeed the wicked are caught in their owne snares.

3. Because the sinner is prayesd in the desires of his soule : and the vniust man is blessed.

4. The sinner hath exasperated our Lord, according to the multitude of his wrath he shal (y) not seeke.

(y) Not seeke to recouer Gods fauour.

5. There is no God in his sight: his waies are defiled at al time. Thy iudgements are taken away from his face : he shal (z) rule ouer al his enemies.

9. His eyes looke vpon the poore : he lyeth in wayte in secret, as a lyon in his denne.

10. He lyeth in wayte to take the poore man violently, violently to take the poore man whiles he draweth him. In his snare he wil humble himselfe, and shal fal when he shal haue dominion ouer the poore.

11. For he hath sayd in his hart : God hath forgotten, he hath turned away his face not to see for euer.

13. Wherefore hath the impious prouoked God : for he hath said in his hart: He wil not enquire.

14. Thou seeest, that thou considerest labour & sorrow : that thou mayest deliuer them into thy hands.

To thee is the poore left: to the orphane thou wilt be an helper.

15. Breake the arme of the sinner and malignant: his sinne shal be sought, and shal not be found.

16. Our Lord shal reigne for euer, and for euer and euer : ye (c) Gentils shal perish from his land.

17. Our Lord hath heard the desire of the poore : thy care hath heard the (d) preperation of their hart.

(d) The iust ought alwayes to be readie prepared in hart, to suffer patiently al that shal happen vnto them.

18. To iudge (e) for the pupil and the humble, that man adde no more to magnifie himselfe vpon the earth.

(e) As the first workes of Christ in al humility and patience were strange, and hidden to the world (v. 1.) so his last iudgement shal be in maiesty and manifest to al in exalting the blessed and suppressing the wicked.

Some diuide this Psalme into two. Sela a note of change, or of rest in musike, or rather of attention. All the Psalmes are iust 150.

21. After the 21. verse the late Hebrew Doctours diuide this Psalme, beginning there the tenth, without anie new title: but only this word Sela: Which the Septuagint, Theodotion, and Symmachus translate Diapsalma, that is, change of meeter, or musike, also pause or rest in singing. Aquila, whom S. Ierome rather approueth, translateh ten per euer. Some English Bibles omitte it, others leaue it in the text, not translating it into English. It seemeth to most Interpreters to be added as a note to stirre vp attention. And it occurreth often, not only in the end of Psalmes, but also in other places. For it is thrise in the third Psalme. And therefore maketh no argument, that this Psalme should be diuided. And those which diuide this into two, ioyne two in the 147. Psalme. So that all agree in the number of 150. Psalmes in the whole Psalter.

tribulation.
The 7. key.

1. Vnto (a) the end, the Psalme of Dauid.

(a) It more perteyneth to the new testament then to the old.

How long, o Lord wilt thou forget me vnto the end? How long doest thou turne away thy face from me?

2. How long shal I put (b) counsels in my soule, sorrow in my hart (c) by day?

(b) Careful & almost perplex cogitations by reason of long persecution & mans weaknes. (c) Very often euerie day.

3. How long shal mine enemies be exalted ouer me? Regard and heare me, o Lord my God.

4. Illuminate mine eyes that I sleepe not (d) in death at any time: lest sometime mineemie say: I haue preuailed against him.

5. They that trouble me, wil reioyce if I be moued: but I haue hoped in thy mercie.

(d) Fal not into mortal sinne,

6. My hart shal reioyce in thy saluatiō: I wil sing to our Lord, which giueth me (e) good things: and I wil sing to the name of our Lord most high.

(e) Patience in tribulation, and reward for victorie.

The 5. key.

After general grosse ignorance and impiety in the world 7. Christ shal be incarnate, the Redeemer of mankind.

1. Vnto the end, a Psalme of Dauid.

THe' (a) foole hath said in his hart: There is no God. They are corrupt, and are become (b) abominable in their studies: there is (c) not that doth good " no not one.

Psa. 52.

(a) Wicked men drowned in sinne are at last so besotted in their vnderstanding, that they thinke in their hart (though they dare not vtter it) that there is no God: that is, none that hath diuine prouidence in gouerning the world, nor that wil iudge al in the end. (b) Defiled with al sorts of sinne. (c) Not only the most wicked, but also al mankind were vnable without a Redeemer to doe good.

Rom. 3.

2. Our Lord hath looked forth from heauen vpon the children of men, to see if there be that vnderstandeth, and seeketh after God.

3. Al haue declined, they are become (d) vnprofitable together: there is not that doth good, no not one.

(d) Without faith in Christ none had meritorious works.

Their throte is an open sepulchre, with their tonges they did deceitfully, the poyson of aspes vnder their lips.

Whose mouth is ful of cursing and bitterneffe: their feete swift to shed blood.*

(f) The Prophet speaketh, this in the person of God. (g) With greedines to hurt the good.

5. They haue not inuocated our Lord, (h) there haue they trembled for feare, (i) where no feare was.

(h) Not belieuing in God, they feared Idols, that is, diuels: (i) who indeed can not hurt Gods seruants.

6. Because our Lord is in (k) the iust generation, you haue (l) confounded the counsel of the poore man: becaute our Lord is his hope.

(k) Though innumerable be very wicked, yet some are iust (l) Mocked & derided those that trust in God.

(m) The Prophet wisheth, and withal Prophecieth that Christ our Sauiont wil come, who is promised to Israel. (n) Redeemed man from the captiuitie of the diuel. (o) Those that supplant vice (p) and contemplate God.

1. No not one.) S. Paul by this place, & the like (Isaie 59. v. 7.) cōfirmeth his doctrine (Rom. 3.) that both the Iewes and the Gentils (meaning al mankind) were in that state, that none, no not one without the grace of Christ, were iust, nor could be iustified, nor saued by the law of Nature, nor of Moyse. Which proueth the necessitie of faith. But neither that only faith iustificeth, nor that the iustest are stil wicked, as Caluin and Beza faislly expound these Scriptures. For the Prophets and S. Paul speake in these places of men before they be iustified, teaching that al mankind was once in sinne, and none could be iustified but by Christ. Neuerthelesse they teach also that men being iustified must and may serue iustice vnto sanctification. And that their works are not then vnprofitable. For being made from sinne (saith the same Apostle to the Romans c. 6.) and be. ome seruants so God, you haue your fruit vnto sanctification, and the end is life euerlasting Which point of doctrine, how man is iustified, S. Augustin excellently, & briefly explicateth (li. 1. de Spiritu et lit. c. 9.) in these words: The iust are iustified freely by Christ his grace. they are not before purified by the law: they are not iustified by their proper wil, but iustified freely by (Christ) his grace. Not that it is done without our wil, but by the law our wil is shewed weake, that grace might cure the wil, and the wil being cured might fulfil the law, not being vnder the law, nor needing the law.

Wherto we may here adde (and so saue labour of repeating this in other places) another document of the same Doctour, in the same booke (de spirit, & lit. c. 27.) that the iust doe not liue without some finnes, and yet remaine in state of saluation: the wicked doe sometimes certaine good workes, & stil remaine in state of damnation. For euen as (saith he) venial finnes, without which this life is not led, doe not exclude the iust from eternal life: so certaine good workes, without which the life of the very worst is hardly found, profite nothing the vniust man to eternal saluation, but in euerlasting damnation, some shal haue more and some lesse torment.

PSALME XIII.

For attayning eternal glorie in heauen, it is necessarie to fly from finnes and doe good workes.

1. " The Psalme of Dauid.

LORD who shal dwel in (a) thy tabernacle? or who shal rest in thy holie hill?

(a) In heauen, as appeareth by the last verse.

2. He that walketh (b) without spot, and (c) worketh iustice.

(b) One requisite thing is to be free or cleansed from sinne. (c) The second is to doe good.

3. He that speaketh truth in his (d) hart, that hath not done guile in his (e) tong. Nor hath (f) done euil to his neighbour, and hath not taken (g) reproch against his neighbour.

(d) Sincerely in thought, (e) word, and (f) deed. (g) Nor harkned to detraction.

4. The malignant is brought to nothing in his sight: but them that teare our Lord, he (h) glorifieth. He that sweareth to his neighbour, and deceiuerh not,

(h) Glorie is the reward of good workes.

5. That hath not giuen his money to (i) vsurie, and hath not taken (k) gifts vpon the innocent,

(i) Vsurie excludeth from heauen. (k) Likewise doing wrong for bribes.

He that doth " these things, shal " not be moued for euer.

ANNOTATIONS.

PSALME. XIII.

1. The Psalme of Dauid.) As the appropriating of the general name of Psalme vnto some, doth not preiudice, but that the rest are also Psalmes, though they be called Prayers, Canticles, Testimonies, and the like: so the application of Dauids name to certaine Psalmes, proueth not other Authours of the rest. But the name of Psalme sheweth a spiritual song, apt for musical instrument; and the name of Dauid by interpretation signifieth, that it particularly perteyneth to the beloued.

Why this and certaine others are called the Psalmes of Dauid.

2. He that doth these things) wheras this, or anie other place of holie Scripture, attributeth saluation to certaine good workes, neither faith, nor other workes are therby excluded, but presupposed as no lesse necessarie, then those which are mentioned. Especially faith is alwayes requisite, without which it is impossible to please God, and other vertues either in practise, or in purpose, and preparation of mind, when and where occasion requireth.

Both faith and good workes necessarie to saluation.

Heb. 11

3. Shal not be moued for euer. All states of this world are mutable, and only eternal felicitie in heauen shal continue for euer. Therefore this Psalme can not be vnderstood of the Tabernacle, nor temple of the old Testament, which were but figures of eternal glorie. But if so much puritie was then requisite, much more al sinceritie, and great sanctitie are necessarie for entrance into heauen.

Only the state of glorie is immutable.

PSALME XV.

Christ, by the mouth of Dauid, declareth his future victory and triumph ouer the world, 9. and death.

Of Christs victory. The 5. key.

1. The (a) inscription of the title (b) to Dauid himself.

(a) Stylographia signifieth a thing most worthie to be noted, to wit, Christ crucified: (b) and most worthie of the Prophets consideration.

PRESERVE (c) me, o Lord, because I haue hoped in thee.

(c) Christ as man did often pray, as appeareth in the Ghospel.

2. I haue said to our Lord: Thou art my God, because thou (d) needest not my goods.

(d) Christs passion was not needful nor profitable to God but to man.

3. (e) To the Saints that are in his land, he hath made al my wils meruelous in them.

(e) God speaketh shewing that Christ should make his meruelous charity known to his Apostles, and other seruants.

4. Their infirmities were (f) multiplied: afterward they (g) made hast.

(f) Men feeling their infirmities and miseries, (g) make hast in seeking remedies.

I wil not assemble their (h) conuenticles of bloud: neither wil I be mindful of their (i) names by my lips.

(h) Sacrifices to idols shal cease in Gentils. (i) Their names shal be changed from heathen to be called Christians.

5. (k) Our Lord " the portion of myne inheritance, and of my (l) cup: thou art he, that wil restore myne inheritance vnto me.

(k) Eternal glorie consisteth in seeing God. (l) God is the reward of suffering paines for Christ.

6. (m) Cords are fallen to me in goodly places: for (n) mine inheritance is goodlie vnto me.

(m) In diuision of temporal inheritance land is measured by cords, as Iosue 10. so portions in heauen are giuen with large measure. (n) Christ also reiceued al nations for his inheritance.

7. I wil blesse our Lord, who hath (o) giuen me vnderstanding: moreouer also euentil (p) night my (q) veines haue rebuked me.

(o) Wisedome to make good election of spiritual things rather then temporal. (p) Not only by day, but also by night. (q) Also my corporal paines giue me instruction.

8. I (r) foresaw our Lord in my sight alwaies: because he is (s) at my right hand, that I be not moued.

(r) Christ had God continually before his eyes: euerie man ought to thinke frequently of God. (s) For God still protecteth the iust.

9. For this thing my hart hath been glad, and my tong hath reioyced: moreouer also my flesh shal rest in hope.

10. Because thou wilt " not leaue my soule in (t) hel: neither wilt giue (v) thy holie one to see corruption.

(t) In limbo Patrum. (v) Christ body corrupted not in the graue.

Thou hast made (w) the waies of life knowen to me, thou shalt make me ful of ioy with (x) thy countenance: delectations on thy right hand, euen to (y) the end.

(w) Death and resurrection is the way to life. (x) Perfect glorie consisteth in seeing God. (y) In eternity.

5. Our Lord the portion of myne inheritance. Christ, whom the Iewes expected as an earthlie conquerour, that should aduāce himself and them temporally in this world, was indeed, as the children and multitude called him, King of Israel (Ioan. 12.) At which time (as also before) he exercised temporal Iurisdiction, in correcting abuses in the Temple (Mat 21. Ioan. 2.) And when Pilate demanded of him if he were a King (Ioan. 18. v. 37.) he answered: Thou saist, that I am a King. For this I was borne, and for this came I into the world, that I should giue testimonie to the truth. And though he answered withal, that his Kingdom (to wit the possession and vse therof) was not of this world, yet Pilate by Gods prouidence, writ the title, and would not alter it, Iesus of Nazareth King of the Iewes. But Christs chief inheritance, and reward of his merits is God himself, as here he professeth by his Prophet David: which is also the only true & perfect inheritance of al Christs seruants, wherfo-e Clergie men more particularly professie the same, when they first enter into their spiritual state, adding and dedicating themselues to serue God in Ecclesiastical function, not for temporal inheritance, but for a better lot, God himself, who is al Good, and most perfect goodnes, true riches, and eternal inheritance. In which election of state to live and serue God in, euerie Clergie man saith: Our Lord is the portion of myne inheritance, and of my cup: Thou art he that wilt restore myne inheritance unto me. Man calleth it his inheritance, because he was created to serue God, and for his seruice to inherite God: which reward though he lost by sinne, yet euerie one returning to Gods seruice, and persevering therein, recouereth by Christ new right and title to the same inheritance, performing their duties in their feveral vocations. Some traueling in the world, but not louing it: others sequestred from secular affayres duly administring sacred offices, more peculiarly called Diuine seruice.

Act. 2. 1 Pet. 3.* Only here we may not omit to aduertise the reader, that some Protestant Bibles permitting the word hel to remaine in the text, a latter Edition for hel, putteth graue, with this only note in the former place, that this is chiefly meant of Christ, by whose Resurrection al his members haue immortality And Act. 2. they repeat their new text by this paraphrasis: Thou shalt not leaue me in the graue. Wrestring that which pertaineth to the bodie rising from the graue, to the soule, which was not at al in the graue, al time the bodie lay there.

PSALME XVI.

This Psalme called a Prayer is both a sword & buck-ler in affliction.

1. The prayer of David. This Psalme of the matter conteyned is called a prayer.
Which holie Dauid so composed, as was both conuenient for himselfe, being molest with vniust afflictions by the wicked, and for anie other iust person, or the whole Church in persecution, seruing as a spiritual sword to strike the enemies, and as a shield to beare off with patience and fortitude al their forces.

PSALME XVII.

King Dauid's thanks to God for his often deliuerie from great dangers. first in general, 9. then more particularly describeth Gods terrible manner of fighting for him, 18. against his cruel, and otherwise potent enemies: 22. attributing the same to Gods good pleasure, and iustice of his cause. 31. Praisetb God, 33. his only protectour, 41. and depresser of his enemies.

Dauid singularly protected by God.
The 8. key.

1. Vnto (a) the end, (b) to the seruant of our Lord Dauid, who spaketh our Lord the words of this canticle, in the day, that our Lord deliuered him out of the hand of al his enemies, and out of the hand of (c) Saul, and he said: 2. Reg. 22.)

(a) Though literally this Psalm perteyned to Dauid, yet in figure of Christ, and of the Church, or euerie iust soule. (b) The Holie Ghost inspired Dauid to render these thanks for his often deliuerie from dangers. (c) Saul is specially named, because he was his most potent worldlie enemy.

I wil (d) loue thee ô Lord (e) my strength: 2. Our Lord is my firmament, and my refuge, and my deliuerer.

(d) These first words (as also diuers others) are added, and many changed in this and other Psalmes by the Septuagint, who often leauing the Hebrew text render the sense, and so this agreeth in substance with the same Psalm recorded 2. Reg. 22. (e) By whom I am strong.

Heb. 2.

3. My God is my helper, and I wil hope in him. My protectour and the (f) horne of my saluation, and my recciuer.

(f) High & firme saluation.

4. Praying I wil inuocate our Lord: & I shal be saued frõ mine enemies.
5. The (g) sorrowes of (h) death haue compassed me: and (i) torrents of iniquitie haue troubled me.

(g) This is aptly applied to al mankind after his fal, declaring our state in sinne, and inditing to penance, in the office of Masse on Septuagesima Sunday. (h) Mortal flesh subject to death. (i) Violent incursons of tentations to sinne.

6. The sorrowes of (k) hel haue compassed me: the (l) snares of death haue preuented me.

(k) Exceeding great afflictions of mind, like to torments of hel, which I also feare. Secret tentations haue deceiued me.

7. In my tribulation I haue inuocated our Lord, and haue (m) cried to my God:

(m) Earnest prayer is the best remedie in al tribulations.

And (n) he hath heard my voice from his holie temple: and my crie in his sight, hath entred into his eares.

(n) As it is certaine that God heard Dauid's prayers, so he assuredly heareth al that sincerely flye vnto him.

8. The earth was shaken & trembled: the foundations of mountaines were troubled, and were moued, (o) because he was wrath with them.

(o) Gods anger against sinne maketh high and loftie things to shake, euen the most obstinate presumptuous sinners.

9. (p) Smoke arose in his wrath: and fire flamed vp from his face: coles were kindled from him.

(p) Diuine

(p) Diuine wrath is like to smoke of the nosethrels, or flaming fire, & burning coles.
10. He (q) bowed the heauens, and descended: and (r) darkenesse vnder his feete.

(q) Gods punishment sometimes commeth so swiftly, as if the heauens bowed towards the earth. (r) Gods furie is as a darke desolate night, or horrible mist.

11. And he (f) ascended vpon the cherubs, and flew: he flew vpon the wings of winds.

(f) Yet when sinners repent, God most speedily, as flying with wings of mercie, comforteth & protecteth them.

12. And he put darkenesse his (t) couert, his tabernacle is round about him: darke some water in the clouds of the aire.

(t) God being in himselfe incomprehensible, is also secret in his determinations, and couert in his proceedings or actes.

13. Because of the (v) brightnesse in his sight the clouds passed, hayle and coles of fire.

(v) Gods splendour oppressing mans sense, yet instructeth him by his meruelous workes. Which mystically signifieth, that Christ illuminateth the world by his Apostles, and other preachers denouncing his iustice, peace, and his wil in al things perteyning to man.

14. And our Lord thundred from heauen, and the Highest gaue his voice: haile and coles of fire.

15. And he thot his arrowes, and dissipated them: he multiplied lightnings, and troubled them.

16. And the fountaynes of waters appeared, and the foundations of the world were reuealed.

At thy rebuke, o Lord, at the blast of the spirit of thy wrath.

17. He sent from on high, and tooke me: and he receiued me out of manie (w) waters.

(w) From tribulations.

18. He deliuered me (x) from my most strong enemies, and from them that hated me: because they were made strong ouer me.

(x) From Saul, Absalon, Moabites, Ammonites, and temporal & spiritual enemies.

19. They preuented me in the day of mine affliction: and our Lord was made my protectour.*

* So in the rest of this Psalme the Prophet speaketh for most part in proper termes, without Metaphores or other figures. Yet in the mystical, sense of Christ and Christians.

20. And he brought me out into largenesse: he saued me, because he (y) would me.

(y) Of his good pleasure without my deserts.

21. And our Lord wil reward me according to my iustice, and according to the purity of my hands he wil reward me.

22. Because I haue kept the waies of our Lord, neither haue I done impioussly from my God.

23. Because al his iudgements are in my sight: and his iustices I haue not repelled from me.

24. And I shal be immaculate (z) with him, and shal keepe me from mine iniquitie.

(z) By his grace.

25. (z) And our Lord wil reward me according to my iustice : & according to the puritie of my hands in the sight of his cies.

(z) He repeateth the 21. verse, incalculating that God wil render to euerie one as they deserue.

26. With the holie thou shalt be holie, and with the innocent man thou shalt be innocent.

27. And with the elect thou shalt be elect : and with the peruerse thou shalt be peruerted.

28. Because thou wilt saue the humble people : and the eies of the proud thou wilt humble.

29. Because thou dost illuminate my lampe o Lord : my God illuminate my darkenesse.

30. Because in thee I shal be deliuered from tentation , and in my God I shal (a) goe ouer the wal.

(a) Passe ouer al difficulties.

31. My God his (b) way is vnpolluted : the words of our Lord are examined by fire : he is protectour of al that hope in him.

(b) Gods precepts.

32. For (c) who is God but our Lord? or who is God but our God?

(c) One only God, Creatour and Sauour of al.

33. God that girded me with strength : and made my way immaculate.

34. That perfited my feete as it were of harris : and setting me vpon high things.

35. That teacheth my hands to battel : and hast put mine armes (d) as a bow of brasse.

2. R. 22.

(d) Amongst other actes Dauid killed a lion, and a beare, & Goliath. 1. Reg. 17.

36. And hast giuen me the protection of thy saluation : & thy right hand hath receiued me.

And thy discipline hath corrected me vnto the end : and thy discipline, the same shal teach me.

37. Thou hast enlarged my pases vnder me: and my steps are not weakened:

38. I wil pursue myne enemies , and ouertake them: and wil not returne til they faile.

39. I wil breake them , neither shal they be able to stand : they shal fall vnder my feere.

40. And thou hast girded me with strength to battel: and hast supplanted them that rise against me vnder me.

41. And (e) myne enemies thou hast giuen me their backe , & them that hate me thou hast destroyed.

(e) As God giueth strength to his seruants, so he diminisheth the natural strength and courage of his enemies.

42. They cried , neither was there that would saue them , to our Lord, neither did he heare them.

43. And I wil break them to powder , as the dust before the face of winde : as the durt of the streets I wil destroy them.

44. Thou wilt deliuer me from the contradictions of the people : thou Wilt appoynt me to be head of the Gentils.

45. A people (f) which I knew not hath serued me: in the hearing of the eare it hath obeyed me.

ANNOTATIONS. PSALME XVIII.

3. The law of our Lord is immaculate; conuerting soules. Gods law in it-selfe being most pure, and immaculate, is the proper meanes, whereby the Holie Ghost conuerteth soules from sinnes to iustice. Not that euerie one is iustified, which readeth, heareth, or knoweth the law, but by keeping it; through grace of the Holie Ghost. Who is the author and work of iustice, by disposing the soule to cooperate in manner partly here described: Gods faithful and most true testimonie by his law giues wisdom, faith, and knowledge to the humble. his right iustices comfort the hearts of the faithful, his cleere precept teacheth them their dutie; his holie feare perseuereth with them; his true iudgements are most delectable, and desirable about all worldlie riches or pleasures. So by these and like spiritual motiues the soule freely desireth, accepteth, vndertaketh, endureth, and by continual assistance of grace obserueth Gads law; and so meriteth the great reward, which is promised for keeping it. v. 12. 2. Tim. 4. v. 6.

God conuerteth and iustifieth soules; instructing them by his law, and sweetly drawing their free cooperation by grace.

ANNOTATIONS.

PSALME. XXI.

1. For the morning entreprize) In respect of the end for which Christ suffered, this Psalm is intituled: for the morning entreprize: that is, for Christs glorious Resurrection, and other effects of his Passion. Which holie Dauid by the spirite of Prophecy so describeth here long before with diuers particular circumstances, as the Euangelists haue since historically recorded, that it may not vnjustly be called, The Passion of Iesus Christ according to Dauid.

Christs Resurrection. The Passion of Christ according to Dauid.

3. Thou wilt not heare.) Our B. Sauour seeing his most terrible death imminent, prayd conditionally, if it pleased his heauenlie Father, to haue the same remoued from him: & was not heard, as the Psalmist here prophecieth. The principal reason was, because God of his diuine charitie had decreed, that mankind should be redeemed by this death of his Sonne. Christ also himselve of his excellent charitie, consented here vnto, & therefore persisted not in his conditional prayer, but added absolutely & prayd, that not his owne wil, but his Fathers might be fulfilled. And in this he was heard, to his owne more glorie and other infinite benefits of innumerable soules, as it followeth, v. 2 5. When I cryed to him he heard me. S. Paul also witnesseth (Heb. 5. v. 7.) that Christ offering prayers and supplications to him that could saue him from death, was heard for his reuerence: that is, in respect of his inestimable merite in humane nature united in person to God. An other cause, why Christ was not deliuered from violent death, as manie holie persons were, when they cried to God in distresses, as S. Augustin sheweth (Epist. 120. c. 11.) was for example to Christians, whom God wil haue to suffer temporal afflictions, and death, for the glorie of life euerlasting, according to S. Peters doctrine, Christ suffered for vs, leaving an example that you may follow his steps.

Christs conditional prayer was not heard.

His absolute prayers were alwaies heard.

Christ suffered for our example.

8. Thy haue digged.) Of obstinate malice the Iewes haue corrupted this place (and God knoweth how manie others) in the Hebrew text of some editions, reading caari, which signifieth as a lion, without al coherence of the sense, for caaru, they digged or pearced; to auoid so plaine a prophecie of nailing Christs hands and feete to the crosse.

The Hebrew text corrupted by the Iewes.

23. I will declare thy name to my breshren.) Here it is euident that this Psalm is of Christ, not of Dauid, by S. Pauls allegation (Heb. 2. v. 11. 12.) saying: He that sanctifieth (to wit Christ) disdained not to cal the sanctified his brethren.

23. In the middes of the Church I wil praise thee.) After Christs Passion and Resurrection, in the rest of this Psalme, other two principal points of Christian Religion are likewise prophecied: His perpetual visible Church, and the B. Sacrament or his bodie. The former is here prophecied by way of inuiting at the seeds of Iacob so glorifie God (v. 24.) at the seeds of Israel so feare him (v. 25.) to wit, innumerable Christians, the true Israelites, the vniuersal Church in the whole world. As for heretical parts or parcels in the world, such as the Donatistes, which going forth from the Catholike Church say: Christ hath lost his great Church, the diuel hath taken the whole world from him, and he remaineth only in a part of Africa, they doe not praise God (saith S. Augustine) but dishonour God and Christ, as if God were not faithful in his promise, as if Christ were dispossessed of his Kingdome the Catholike Church. Left anie should replie, that Christ is praised though the Church be decayed, or be very smal, the Holie Ghost hath preuented such arguments, saying v. 26: His praise is in the great Church. Which could neither be verined in the part of Donatistes in Africke, nor now in the part of Protestants since Luther in Europe. Further S. Augustin explicateth, & vrgeth the verses folowing in this Psalme, against the same blind, deafe, and obstinate Donatistes, who did not, or would not see, nor heare, that at the ends of the earth shal remember, and be conuersed to our Lord. The holie scripture saith not, the ends of the earth, but at the ends. Wel goe too (saith this great Doctour) peradventure there is but one verse, thou thoughtest vpon some thing els, thou talkedst with thy brother, when one read this; marke, he repeateth and knocketh vpon the deafe: At the families of the Gentils shal adore in his sight: Yet the heretike is deafe, he heareth not, let one knock againe: Because the Kingdom is our Lords, and he shal haue dominion ouer the Gentils. Hold these three verses brethren. Thus and more S. Augustin against those that thinke the true Church may faile, or become inuisible or obscure. And though it be not in like prosperous state at al times, and in al places, yet it is alwaies conspicuous, and more general then anie other congregation professing whatsoever pretended religion.

27. The poore shal ease.) Seeing this Psalme is of Christ, as is proued by S. Pauls allegation of 23. verse, and by the concordance therof with the Euangelists, it is necessarily deduced, that the wordes mentioned in the former verse, and these words, the poore shal ease and be filled, can not be referred to the sacrifices of the old Testament, but to the blessed Sacrifice and Sacrament of the Eucharist, which our Sauour promised, after he had replenished the people with five loaves, and which he instituted at his last supper in presence of his Apostles. So S. Augustin doubteth not to vnderstand it, and to teach, as wel in his double exposition of this Psalme as in his 100. Epistle c. 27. The poore, that is the humble and poore in spirite, shal eate & be filled: the fat ones, or the rich being proud, doe also adore and eate, but are not filled. They also are brought to the table of Christ, and participate his bodie & bloud, but they adore only, are not also filled, because they doe not imitate (Christs humilitie) they disdaine to be humble. Where it is cleere, this holie father by Christs bodie and bloud meaneth not bread and wine as signes of his bodie and bloud, for bread and wine can not be lawfully adored: neither doth he meane our Lords bodie as it was on the crosse, or is in heauen, for so it is not eaten, but as it is in formes of bread and wine on Christs table, the Altar.

(g) In great dangers of tentations to mortal sinne, (h) yet by Gods grace we may

5. Thou hast prepared in my sight (l) a table (m) against them that PSALME XXIII.

Christ Lord of al the world.
The 5. key.

Christ is Lord of the whole earth, being Creatour, and Redeemer of man. 3. Good life (with faith in him) is the way to heauen: 7. whither Christ ascending with triumph, Angels admire him.

1. The (a) first of the Sabbath, the Psalme of Dauid.

(a) Christ rising from death the first day of the wecke, had al power giuen him in heauen and in earth. Mat. 28.

TH E earth is our Lords, and (b) the fulnesse therof: the round world, and al that dwel therein.

(b) Not only the soile it-selfe, but al the fruit, and al that dwel therein are Gods.

2. Because he hath founded it vpon the seas: and vpon the riuers hath prepared it.

3. Who (c) shal ascend into the mount of our Lord: or who shal stand in his holie place?

(c) Though Christ created and redeemed al, yet only the iust shal inherite heauen.

4. The innocent of hands, and of cleane hart, that hath not taken his soule (d) in vayne, nor sworne to his neighbour in guile.

(d) Not occupied himselfe in vaine and vnprofitable things, but in commendable workes.

5. He shal receiue blessing of our Lord: and (e) mercie of God his Sauour.

(e) Gods mercy goeth before iustification: iust workes folow, and so glorie is the reward of al.

6. This is (f) the generation of them that seeke him, of them that seeke the face of the God of Iacob.

(f) This sort of people thus seruing God, shal receiue euerlasting blisse.

7. Lift vp your gates (g) ye Princes, and be ye lifted vp, o eternal gates: and the King of glorie shal enter in.

(g) The Prophet contemplating in spirit Christs Ascension, inuicteth Angels to receiue him, and (by prosopopeia) speaketh also to the gates of heauen, by which he is to enter.

8. (h) Who is this King of glorie? Our Lord (i) strong & mightie, our Lord mightie in battel.

(h) Angels answer admiring, & demanding as in a dialogue, how Christ is become so glorious. (i) The Prophet answereth that Christ by his power hath ouercome al enemies in battel.

9. (k) Lift vp your gates ye Princes, and be ye lifted vp, o eternal gates: and the King of glorie shal enter in.

(k) Againe he willeth Angels to open the gates, and biddeth the gates to enlarge themselves.

(l) Who is this King of glorie? (m) The Lord of powers he is the King of glorie.

(l) The Angels demand as before: (m) The Prophet answereth, That Christ is Lord also of Angels, and al heauenlic powers vnder God.

PSALME.

PSALME XXIIE.

A general prayer of the faithful against all enemies, 4. with desire to be directed in the way of godlines, 7. and to be pardoned for sinnes past, 9. acknowledging Gods meeknes, 17. our weaknes, necessitie of helpe, and hope in God: 22. concludeth with prayer for the whole Church.

A prayer of the faithful.
The 7. key.

1. Vnto (a) the end, the Psalme of Dauid.

(a) This Psalme pertaineth more properly to the new testament. And is artificially composed: the verses beginning with distinct letters in order of the Hebrew Alphabet, to the last verse.

TO THEE, O Lord, I haue lifted vp (b) my soule: 2. my God in thee is my confidence, let me (c) not be ashamed.

(b) My mind to be attentiuē. (c) Not be frustrate of my petition.

3. Neither let mine enemies scorne me: for all (d) that expect thee, shal not be confounded.

(d) That patiently expect the time when God wil assist.

4. (e) Let all be confounded that doe vniust things in wayne. Lord shew me thy wayes: and teach me thy paths.

(e) This manner of praying is frequent in the Psalmes, signifying as a prophetic, that so it wil come to passe, and the conformitie of the iust to Gods iustice.

5. Direct me (f) in thy truth, and teach me: because thou art God my Saviour, and thee haue I expected (g) all the day.

(f) In true faith and religion. (g) All our life we must desire more and more knowledge of true doctrine.

6. Remember, O Lord, thy commiserations, and thy mercies: that are from the beginning of the world.

7. The sinnes (h) of my youth, and (i) my ignorances doe not remember.

(h) From the first vse of reason, at which time manie are careless (i) & negligent to learne how to serue God.

According to thy mercie remember thou me: for thy goodnesse, O Lord.

8. Our Lord is (k) sweet, and righteous: for this cause he wil giue a law to them that sinne in the way.

(k) As God is sweete in giuing good motions: (l) so he is seuerē to them that resist his grace.

9. He wil direct the milde in iudgement: he wil teach the meeke his wayes.

10. All the wayes of our Lord be (m) mercie and (n) truth, to them that seeke after his (o) testament and his (p) testimonies.

(m) God mercifully preuenteth with his grace: (n) and iustly rewardeth good workes. (o) Gods law is his couenant with man: (p) and testimonie of his wil

11. For thy name, O Lord, thou wilt be propitious to my sinne: for (q) it is much.

(q) Sinne in respect of auersion from God is great, & needeth his grace.

12. Who is the man that (r) feareth our Lord & he (i.) appoynteth him a law in the way that he hath chosen.

(r) He that feareth God, which is the beginning of wisdom, receiveth five spiritual commodities here mentioned: 1. God instructeth him by his law: 2. bestoweth all necessities upon him: 3. others shall imitate his good example. 4. God will protect him: 5. According to Gods covenant he shall enjoy the manifest sight of God for his eternal reward.

13. His soule (2.) shall abide in good things: and (3.) his seed shall inherit the land.

14. Our Lord is (4.) a firmament to them that feare him: & (5.) his testimony that it may be made manifest to them.

15. Myne eyes are alwayes to our Lord: because he will plucke my feete out of the snare.

16. Haue respect to me, and haue mercie on me: because I am (f) alone and poore.

(f) Mans weaknes without Gods helpe.

17. The tribulations of my hart are multiplied: deliuer me from (t) my necessities.

(t) Tribulations can not be auoided, but must necessarily be suffered: therefore, o God, giue vs grace to passe through them without sinne.

18. See my (v) humiliation and my labour, and (w) forgiue all my sinnes.

(v) Myne affliction. (w) Take away the cause, and affliction will be mitigated.

19. Behold mine enemies, because they are multiplied, and with (x) vniust hatred hated me.

(x) Wicked men of hatred doe endeavour to draw others into sinne.

20. Keepe my soule, and deliuer me: I shall (y) not be ashamed, because I hoped in thee.

(y) Those that hope in God shall neuer be confounded.

21. The innocent and righteous haue cleaved to me: because I expected thee.

22. (z) Deliuer Israel, o God, out of all his tribulations.

(z) All the letters of the Alphabet being complete in this Psalme, this last verse beginneth with Pere, Redeemer, praying God to redeeme and deliuer Israel, that is, the whole Church, from tribulations.

P S A L M E. XXV.

Dauid in banishment among the Philistines, trusteth in the iustice of his cause, o. and prayeth God earnestly to deliuer him, that he may with more freedom and commodity serue him as he desireth.

Dauids prayer distressed in persecution. The 8. key.

1. Vnto (a) the end the Psalme of Dauid.

(a) This Psalme is also a conuenient prayer for anie Christian in tribulation.

I V D G T (b) me, o Lord, because I haue walked in my innocencie: and hoping in our Lord I shal not be weakned.

(b) Be thou, o God, arbiter of the cause between Saul and me, thou knowest myne innocencie in this behalfe, though I am vniustly charged by Saul and his freinds.

2. (c) Proue me Lord, and tempt me: burne my reynes and my hart.

(c) Left perhaps I be not so innocent as I desire, and as in respect of Saul I hope that I am, doe thou O God proue me as thou wilt by tribulations.

3. Because thy mercie is before mine eyes: and I am wel pleased in thy truth.

4. I (d) haue not sitten with the Councel of vanitie: and with them that doe vniust things I wil not enter in.

(d) Dauid in confidence of a good conscience, and zeale against the wicked, alleadgeth his sincere proceeding, more then ordinarie men may doe, God so inspiring him extraordinarily.

5. I will haue hated the Church of the malignant: and with the impious I wil not sitte.

6. I (e) wil wash my hands among innocents: (f) and wil compasse thy altar, o Lord:

(e) The rest of this Psalme euerie Priest reciteth in Masse, before he offer the holie Sacrifice, professing & putting himselfe in memorie, that he must only communicate with the innocent, or of pure conscience, (f) and so approach to the Altar. pres. gured Lewis. 6. v. 4.

7. That I (g) may heare the voice of praïse, and (h) shew forth al thy meruelous workes.

(g) Shutting the cares of my hart from euil and vaine thoughts I wil attend to godlie inspirations, (h) and so with mental prayer and external voice (as the holie order of this sacred office requireth) praise thee, o God, in thy meruelous works.

8. Lord I haue loued (i) the beautie of thy house, and the place of (k) the habitation of thy glorie.

(i) I can not but singularly loue the excellencie of this place dedicated to thy seruice: where is true faith, vnitie, and charitie of thy people, the guard of holie Angels, the administration of sacred mysteries, assistance of the Holie Ghost, real presence of Christ our Lord, all replenished with Diuine maiestic. (k) This representeth vnto us the glorious heauenlie kingdom of God and all Saints.

9. (l) Destroy not, o God, my soule with the impious, and my life with bloudie men.

Ep. 110.
c. 11.

(l) Suffer me not therefore to be contaminate by the wicked, nor to be deuoured with them.

10. In whose (m) hands are iniquities: their (n) right hand is replenished with gifts.

(m) They are stil readie to commit more and more iniquities. (n) Themselues being corrupted, endeauour by gifts of worldly commodities to corrupt others

11. But (o) I haue walked in mine innocencie: (p) redeeme me, and haue mercie on me.

(o) Euerie one ought so to purge his conscience, that he may be innocent or free from great finnes. (p) Deliuer me from this necessitie of dwelling among the wicked.

12. My (q) foote hath stood in the direct way: in (r) the Churches I wil blesse thee O Lord.

(q) I intend to walke right. (r) I desire to praise thee amongst thy true faithful seruants.

ANNOTATIONS.

PSALME XXV.

A singular great affliction to be hindered from Gods true seruice. Christians must abhorre, and abstaine from al conuenticles of Herekes and other Infidels.

5. I haue hated the Church of the malignant.) Holie Dauid forced by reason of persecution to dwell amongst Infidels the Philistians; after he had twise spared King Saules life (1. Reg. 24. v. 5. & c. 26. v. 9.) lamented (v. 9.) how great affliction it was to him, to be cast out, that he could not dwell in the inherisance of our Lord (where God was rightly serued) and that his enemies had done so much as in them lay, to make him fall into idolatrie, by their fact, as it were saying: Goe serue strange Gods. Neuertheles his zeale was such, that (as he here professeth) he hated the Church of the malignant: that is, the congregations of al miscreants: & his immaculate religious puritie was so perfect, that he would not so much as in external shew conforme his actions to theirs, in matters of religion, nor veald his bodilie presence in their conuenticles, but said: Wish th: impious I: uil not sit. Instructing vs Christians (for the word to the end in the title sheweth that this Psalme perteyneth also vs) that we must both hate the Church or congregations of the malignant, to wit, of Paynims, Jewes, Turkes, and Heretikes, and not sit. nor personally be present with them in the exercise of their false pretended religions.

PSALME XXVI.

And other confident prayer of Dauid in tribulation. The 3. key.

Dauid being in great distresse through persecution, and hauing assured confidence in God, describeth the great securitie of Gods protection, 7. sheweth the same experienced in himself, 12. prayeth for continuance therof 13. and encourageth his owne soule, in hope of life euerlasting, to perseuer in vertue.

I. The Psalme of Dauid (a) before he was annoynted.

(a) Before his second annointing, as is probable. 2. Reg. 2.

O V R Lord is (b) my illumination, and (c) my saluation, (d) whom shal I feare?

(b) Against

(b) Against ignorance God illuminateth his seruants. (c) Against inimitie he giueth strength. (d) So he needeth not to feare anie mans malice, subtletie, nor force. Luce. 21. v. 15.

Our Lord is the protectour of my life, of whom shal I be afraid?

2. Whiles the harmful approach vpon me, to eate my flesh.

Mine enemies that trouble me, themselues are weakned and are fallen.

3. If camps stand together against me, my hart shal not feare.

If battel rise vp against me, in this wil I hope.

4. One thing I haue asked of our Lord, this wil I seeke for, that I (e) may dwell in the house of our Lord al the dayes of my life.

(e) How special a benefite Dauid esteemed it to be in the Catholike Church, the only true house of God!

That I may see the pleasantnes of our Lord, and visite his temple.

5. Because he hath (f) hid me in his tabernacle: in the day of euill he hath protected me, in (g) the secret of his tabernacle.

(f) Albeit the spiritual or carnal enemie seeke to ouerthrow me, yet I am secure in the Catholike Church. (g) God either suffereth not the enemie to find his seruant, (h) or not to be able to hurt him spiritually. (i) When a martyr or confessor dieth, then he getteth the victorie against the persecutors.

6. In (b) a rocke he hath exalted me: and now he hath (i) exalted my head ouer mine enemies.

I (k) haue gone round about, and haue immolated in his tabernacle an host of iubilation: I (l) wil sing, and say a Psalm to our Lord.

(k) Diligently recounting al thy benefites, I render thanks by sacrifice and praise.

(l) Not only in hart, but also singi: g with loud voice and instrument.

7. Heare, o Lord, my voice, wherwith I haue cried to thee: haue mercie on me, and heare me.

8. My (m) hart hath sayd to thee, my face hath sought thee out: (n) thy face, o Lord, I wil seeke.

(m) In my inward sincere cogitations I desire and seeke that I may see thee (n) face to face. 1. Cor. 13. v. 12.

9. Turne (o) not away thy face from me: (p) decline not in wrath from thy seruant.

(o) In the meane time, o Lord, grant me thy fauour, (p) leaue me not, though thou be angrie with me.

Be (q) thou my helper: forsake me not, neither despise me, o God my Saviour.

(q) He speaketh in the person of orphanes.

10. Because (r) my father and my mother haue forsaken me: but our Lord hath taken me.

(r) Though carnal parents forsake the iust man in tribulation, yet God hath then most special care of him.

11. Giue me (s) a law, o Lord, in thy way: (t) and direct me in the right path, because of mine enemies.

(s) Establish my hart in thy law. (t) Conferue me in the right way, which thou hast already taught me: and it is the more necessaric, because myne enemies labour to peruert me.

12. Deliuer me not into (v) the soules of them that trouble me: because (w) vniust witnesses haue risen vp against me, and iniquity hath lyed (x) to it-selfe.

(v) Whe wils. (w) False witnesses accused Dauid, others accused Christ: Mat 26. others doe stil accuse the iust Mat. 5. (x) The wicked please themselues in lying, but the chief hurt finally turneth vpon themselues.

13. I (y) belieue to see thee good things of our Lord, in the land of the liuing.

(y) The Propther and al iust men are cōforted by God, and hope of reward in heauē.

14. (Z) Expect our Lord, doe manfully: and (a) let thy hart take courage, and (b) expect thou our Lord.

Psal. 30

(Z) The iust exhorteth his owne soule to patience, (a) fortitude, (b) an longanimitie.

P S A L M E XXVII.

Dauid prayeth to be defended from the eternal destruction of the wicked, 4. which (by way of imprecation, or conformitie to Gods iustice) he prophesieth. 6. Feeling by inspiration that his prayer is heard, rendreth thanks to God, 9. and prayeth for al the people.

An other prayer of Dauid for deliuerie from euils The 8. key.

1. Psalme to Dauid himselfe.

TO thee, o Lord, I wil crie, my God (a) keepe not silence from me: lest at any time thou hold thy peace from me, & I shal be like to them that goe downe into the lake.

(a) Omit not to comfort me.

2. Hearc, o Lord, the voice of my petition whiles I pray to thee: whiles I lift vp my hands to thy holie temple.

3. (b) Draw me not together with sinners: and with them that worke iniquitie destroy me not.

(b) Suffer me not to be ouercome: for God tempteth none to euil. Iac. 1.

Which speake peace with their neighbour, but euils in their harts.

4. (c) Giue them according to their workes, & according to the wickednesse of their inuentions.

(c) The iust in zeale of iustice pray that sinne may be punished.

According to the workes of their hands giue vnto them: render them their retribution.

5. Because they haue (d) not vnderstood the workes of our Lord, and in the workes of his hands thou shalt destroy them, & (e) not build them vp.

(d) Ignorance doth not excuse when men may and wil not vnderstand. (e) God sauech not without our cooperation with his grace.

6. blessed be our Lord: because he hath heard the voice of my petition.

7. Our Lord is my helper, and my protectour: in him my hart hath hoped, and I was holpen.

And (f) my flesh flourished againe: & (g) with my wil I wil confesse to him.

(f) Being comforted in spirite my bodie is as it were refreshed. (g) Freely & gladly.

8. Our Lord is the strength of his people: and he is (h) the protectour of the saluations of his annoited.

(h) God

(b) God protecteth and prospereth the Kings good endeauours for his people.
9. Saue (i) thy people, o Lord, and blesse thine inheritance: and rule them, and extol them for euer.

(i) As Psal. 19. and often elsewhere the subiects pray for their Superiour: so mutually the superiour prayeth for the subiects.

PSALME XXVIII.

The royal Prophet seeing in spirit the most sacred Mysteries, brought by Christ into this world, inuited al to offer their best things, euen themselues wholly, as sacrifice of thanks, for so excellens benefits, preached with magnificence. 5. Wherby innumerable are gathered into his Church, here replenished with grace, and in heauen with glorie.

1. The Psalme of Dauid, "in the consummation (a) of the tabernacle.
(a) 2. Reg. 6. v. 17. 1. Par. 16. v. 1.

ANNOTATIONS.

105. &c

1. In consummation of the tabernacle.) The seuentie Interpreters testifie by adding this title, that King Dauid made this Psalme (as he did also some others) when the Arke of God was brought into the tabernacle, which he had pitched for it in Sion.
2. Reg. 6. 1. Paral. 16. Wherin he saw by propheticall spirite, and here vttereth other farre greater mysteries, & more excellent benefits, brought into the world by Christ, and preached by him, and his Apostles, then agreed to the Arke, or the time of the old Testament; but are verified in the admirable fruite of innumerable people of all nations, and of manie great Potentates conuerted to Christianitie.

Mysteries of the Catholike Church prophesied in this psalme.

BRING (b) to our Lord ye children of God: bring to our Lord (c) the sonnes of rammes.

(b) Offer sacrifice of thanks for the singular benefits after recounted in this Psal.
(c) Rammes were of the more principal things that were offered in the law of Moyses. But the sonnes of rammes import in mystical sence better hosts then rammes.

2. Bring to our Lord (d) glorie and honour, bring to our Lord glorie vnto his name: adöre ye our Lord (e) in his holie court.

(d) The first thing in sacrifice is to glorifie, honour, and adore God in sinceritie of spirite, (e) in his holie Catholike Church.

3. The voice of our Lord (f) vpon waters, the God of (g) maiestie hath (h) thundred: Our Lord vpon (i) manie waters.

4. The voice of our Lord (k) in power: the voice of our Lord (l) in magnificence.

5. The voice of our Lord (m) breaking ceders: and our Lord shal breake the (n) ceders of Libanus:

6. And he shal breake them in pieces as a (o) calfe of Libanus. (p) And the beloued as (q) the sonne of vnicornes.

7. The voice of our Lord (r) diuiding the flame of fire.

8. The voice of our Lord (f) shaking the desert, and our Lord shall moue (t) the desert of Cades.

9. The voice of our Lord (v) preparing * Harts, and he shall discover thicke woods: and in (x) in his temple al shall lay glorie. * CERUOS.

10. Our Lord maketh (y) to inhabite the floud: and our Lord (z) shall sit King for euer.

Our Lord (a) will giue strength to his people: our Lord (b) will blesse his people in peace.

(f) Here is a greater matter intimated then happened in the bringing of the Arke into a tabernacle prepared in Sion, when Dauid danced, and offered hostes for sacrifice, others ioyning with him in that solemnitie. But this voice of our Lord vpon waters is rather verified of our Blessed Sauours owne preaching with (g) manifestie (h) thundering, & by his Apostles vpon (i) manie waters, manienations: (k) in power of miracles, (l) in magnificence preaching, as having indeed power, not as the Scribes and Pharises. Mat. 7. v. 29. (m) Breaking cedars; among innumerable others, conuerting highest Potentates (n) of Libanus; Emperours, Kings, and greatest Princes of the world: (o) as a calfe of Libanus; so meckly submitting themselues to Christs yoke, and spiritual obedience of his Church. (p) Al which is done by Christ our Lord the beloved of God, (q) as the sonne of unicornes, is most tenderly beloved by the parents. (r) This voice of our Lord diuiding the flame of fire. The Holie Ghost proceeding from the Father and the Sonne, came vpon the Apostles, as in diuided tonges of fire. (s) Wherwith the deserts, the Gentils of the wide and wild world, were shaken and moued, (t) the deserts of Cades, some of the Iewes also compunct in hart with remorse of conscience, hearing the voice of Saint Peter and other Apostles. (v) The same voice of our Lord preparing harts, inspiring the minds of men with speed, like hynds and does, to ascend the high hills of free and perfect life, in contemplatiue vertues. (w) So our Sauour shall discover the thicke woods, reueile the hidden Mysteries of the old Law, by preaching Christian doctrine, and vse of Christian Religion (x) in his holie Temple, the Catholike Church, wherin al true Christians shall glorifie God. (y) Making the great abundance of people, who are like the sea when it ouerfloweth the land, to dwell in the same Church. (z) Christ our Lord sitting, & ruling King ouer al for euer: (a) by his grace giuing strength to his people, to passe through the tentations of this life, (b) and blesse the iust vish eternal peace in heauen.

PSALME XXIX.

Dauid rendereth thanks for his establishment in his Kingdome.
The 8. key.

King Dauid by voice and instrument rendereth thanks to God for his peaceable state in the Kingdom, & inuitheth others to reioyce in Gods benefits, teaching by his owne example that God sometimes giueth more comfort, sometimes sheweth his wrath, but al for our good.

1. A (a) Psalm of Canticle, (b) in the dedication of Dauids house.

(a) The general name of Psalm common to this whole booke conteyning in al 150. is more particularly appropriated to some, which more specially were playd vpon musical instruments, as on the Psalter, Harpe, &c. Others are called Canticles, which were most usually song with humane voices. So this, called a Psalm of Canticle, signifieth that voices began the musike, and instruments were adioyned. As contrariwise others are called Canticles of Psalmes, where instruments began and voices folowed. (b) After manie great tribulations, King Dauid prospering built an excellent house or place (2. Reg. 5. v. 11. Paralip. v. 11.) And at his first dwelling therein, made this Psalme, beginning himselfe to sing the same with voice, other musicians ioyned with him in the praises of God and thanks-giuing for his benefits.

2. I W I L (c) exalt thee, o Lord, (d) because thou hast receiued me: neither hast (e) delighted myne enemies ouer me.

(c) Though God in himselfe is most high, and neither needeth, nor can be exalted by men, yet the royal Prophet knew it was his dutie to sing thanks and praises to him, (d) for his deliuerie from manie troubles and dangers. (e) Not suffering his enemies to be delighted in his ruine.

3. O Lord my God I haue cried to thee, and thou hast (f) healed me.

(f) Conferued my bodie in health amongst innumerable dangers.

4. Lord thou hast (g) brought forth my soule out of hel: thou hast sauéd me from them that goe downe into the lake.

(g) Preserued my soule from greater dangers of sinnes, and so from hel.

5. Sing to our Lord (h) ye his Saints: and (i) confesse to the memorie of his holines.

(h) Ye that are iust and holie praise God for it, from whom it commeth, and not from your selues: (i) confesse his mere goodnes without your deserts.

6. Because (k) wrath is in his indignation: (l) and life in his wil.

(k) When he is angrie, (l) yet he meaneth wel vnto vs.

At (m) euening shal weeping abide: and in the morning gladnesse.

(m) The state of a iust mans life is often changed from sorow to comort, and from comort to sorow.

7. And I said in my aboundance: (n) I wil not be moued for euer.

8. O Lord (o) in thy wil, thou hast giuen strength to my beautie. Thou hast (p) turned away thy face from me, and I became troubied.

9. To thee o Lord (q) I wil crie: and I wil pray to my God.

(n) Though we suppose our selues firmly established: (o) yet God of his good wil towards vs sometimes giueth strength, and courage, (p) somerimes suffereth vs to our owne weakenes, (q) therefore we must stil crye and pray for Gods helpe, (r) in manner here expressed or the like.

10. (r) What profite is in my blood, whiles I descend into corruption?

Shal dust confesse to thee, or declare thy truth?

11. Our Lord hath heard, and had mercie on me: our Lord is become my helper.

12. Thou hast turned my mourning into ioy vnto me: thou hast cut my sackcloth, and hast compassed me with gladnes.

How to pray in affliction.
The 7. key.

A prayer of a iust man exceedingly afflicted, stil confident in God. 11. Describing his manie calamities (in respect of his enemies) vnderferued, 18. prayeth for his owne deliuerie, and their iust punishment. 20. Praisetb and thankth God for his goodnes. 24. exhortetb al others to doe the same.

1. Vnto (a) the end, the Psalm of Dauid, for (b) excesse of mind.

(a) Perteyning to the new Testament: (b) especially to the iust troubled: & almost distracted in mind in great affliction. See. v. 23.

IN thee o Lord (c) haue I hoped, (d) let me not be confounded for euer: in thy iustice deliuer me.

Psa. 70.

(c) How grievously soeuer I am afflicted yet I trust in thee, (d) therefore I pray thus.

3. Incline thine care to me, make hast to deliuer me. Be vnto me for a God protectour: and for a house of refuge, that thou mayst saue me.

4. Because thou art my strength, and my refuge: and for thy name thou wilt conduct me, and wilt nourish me.

5. Thou wilt bring me out of this snare, which they haue hid for me: because thou art my protectour.

6. Into (e) thy hands I commend my spirit: thou hast (f) redeemed me, o Lord God of truth.

Luc. 23.

(e) I offer and resigne my selfe to thee. (f) Thou hast often deliuered me. This verse is most aptly applied in al resignations of our soules to Gods wil, namely when-soeuer we receiue the B. Sacrament: likewise in the houre of death, and at manie other times.

7. Thou hast hated them that obserue vanities, vnprofitably.

But I haue hoped in our Lord: 8. I shal reioyce and be ioyful in thy mercie.

Because thou hast respected my humilitie, thou hast saued my soule out of necessities.

9. Neither (g) hast thou shut me vp in the hands of the enemy: thou hast set me fete in a large place.

10. Haue mercie vpon me, o Lord, because I am in tribulation: myne eie is troubled for wrath, my soule, and my bellie:

11. Because (h) my life is decayed for sorrow: and my yeares for gronings.

(h) Al my parts external and internal, body and mind are troubled.

My strength is weakened for pouertie; and my bones are troubled.

12. Aboute al myne enemies I am made a reproach, both to my neighbours exceedingly: and (i) a feare to my acquaintance.

(i) My freinds dare not conuerse with me, lest they incurre displeasure for my sake.

They that saw me, fled forth from me: 13. I am forgotten, from the hart as one dead.

I am made as a vessel destroyed : 14. because I haue heard the reprehension of manie that abide round about:

In that whiles , they assembled together against me , they consulted to take my soule.

15. But I haue hoped in thee, o Lord: I sayd, Thou art my God: 16. my lots are in thy hands.

Deliuier me out of the hands of my enemies , and from them that persecute me.

17. (k) Illustrate thy face vpon thy seruant, (l) saue me in thy mercie:

(k) Make thy light so shine in my soule, that I may vnderstand that is right. (l) And through thy mercie deliuier me from the force of myne aduersaries.

18. Lord let me not be confounded, because I haue inuocated thee.

Let the impious be ashamed , and brought downe into hel: 19. let the deceitful lips be made mute.

Which speake iniquitie against the iust (m) in pride and (n) abuse.

(m) So proudly behauing themselues, as if they had no superiour, neither in earth nor in heauen, to whom they shal at last render account: (n) and abusing their present power and authoritie, which they haue of God.

20. How great is the multitude of thy sweetnesse, o Lord, which thou (o) hast hid for them that feare thee.

Thou hast persited it for them that hope in thee, (p) in the sight of the children of men.

21. Thou' (q) shalt hide them in the secret of (r) thy face from the disturbance of men.

(o) As yet in this present life the reward of the iust is hid : (p) but shal be made manifest in sight of al men. (q) In the meane time the iust is in great estimation in the secret knowledge of God.

Thou shal protect them in thy tabernacle from the contradiction of tongs.

22. Blessed be our Lord: because he hath made his mercie merueiious to me in the fenced citie.

23. But I haue said in (f) the excesse of my minde: I am cast away from the sight of thine eies.

(f) In myne extreme affliction being almost distracted in my mind, I sayd that in reason I would not haue sayd. Holie Iob spake some things in such state of affliction. cap. 3. & 42.

Therefore thou hast heard the voice of my prayer, whiles I cried to thee.

24. (t) Loue our Lord al ye his Saints : because our Lord wil require truth, & wil repay them abundantly that doe proudly.

(t) The Prophet, or other iust person, exhorteth al the seruants of God (v) to constancie.

25. Doe ye (v) manfully, and let your (w) hart take courage , al ye that (x) hope in our Lord.

(w) Longanimitie, (x) and final perseuerance to the end.

Forgiuenes of sinnes is a happie thing: 3. wherto manie are brought by affliction giuing them vnderstanding, so mouing them to confesse their sinnes, 6. pray for remission, 10. not despaire, but hope in Gods mercie, and so reioyce with sincere hart.

(d) Satisfaction being made. (e) When sinners repent sincerely without guile, then God forgiueth: without which cooperation none is iustified.

ANNOTATIONS.

PSALME. XXXI.

1. Vnderstanding.) When Dauid had sinned and some-while neglected to confesse his fault, Gods mercie by affliction made him to vnderstand his owne estate, who then repenting, confessing, and sorowing for his finnes, made this Psalme: which is therefore intituled Vnderstanding or Instruction of Dauid. It giueth vs also to vnderstand, and to know, saith S. Augustin, that we must neither trust in our owne merits, nor presume to escape punishment of sinne. Thy first vnderstanding therfore or lesson, must be, to know thy self to be a sinner. The next is, that when with faith thou beginnest to worke wel by loue, thou attribute not this to thyne owne strength, but to the grace of God.

1. Whose finnes are covered, 2. not imputed.) Caluin and his complices gather poison of these holie words, denying that finnes are truly taken away, but only covered, and stil remayne say they in the iustest. Which sense would make this Scripture contrarie to other places. Isaie 6. Thyne iniquitie shal be taken away, and thy sinne shal be cleansed. Ioan. 1. The labbe of God which taketh away the finnes of the world. Act. 3. Be penitent & conuert, that your finnes may be put out. 1. Cor. 6. You are washed, you are sanctified, you are iustified: & the like, which shew the true real taking away of finnes, true sanctification and iustification. As S. Ierome (or some other ancient authentical Authour) explicateth this place saying: Sinnes are so covered by baptisme & penance, that they are not to be reuealed in the day of iudgement, nor imputed in him that diligently purgeth himselfe in this world, or by martyrdom. S. Augustin teacheth the same, saying: Sinnes are covered, are wholly covered, are abolished. Neither must you vnderstand (saith he) that finnes are covered, as though stil they were, & liued. Why then did the Prophet say: finnes are covered? They are not to be punished. More cleerly li. 1. c. 13. cont. dras Epist Pelag. The Pelagians calumniating Catholikes, as if they taught, that finnes are not taken away, but shauen, as haire is cut with a razor: the rootes remaining in the flesh: which (he answereth) none affirmeth but an infidel. Likewise S. Gregorie teacheth, that a sinner couereth his finnes wel when with contrarie vertues he ouerwhelmeth former vices, and with good deeds blotteth out former euil deeds. He couereth them eil, when either for shame, or feare, or obstinacie, or desperation. he concealeth his finnes, omitting to confesse them. God couereth finnes, as a phisition couereth wounds, by applying medicinal plaster, which indeed cureth them. Thus ancient learned holie Fathers expound this text. Further ex-

Vexation giueth vnderstanding. Sinne must be punished.

Good workes are of grace.

Protestants expound this place contrary to many other cleere places.

Contrarie to the exposition of ancient fathers.

God couering or not imputing finnes doth quite take them away.

in epist. ad Ro. c.

The contrarie doctrine is iniurious to God to Christ:

To holie Scriptures.
To glorified Saints.

Sincere repentance is a necessarie disposition to remission of sinne. After remission it is satisfactorie and meritorious.

The perfection of Gods workes described. The 2. key.

plicating, that albeit things couered, and only thereby hid from men, doe remaine as they were before they were hid, yet whatsoever is hid to God, is indeed vtterly taken away, for nothing that is, can be hid from God. And the contrarie doctrine of Protestants is iniurious either to Gods power, if they say he can not quite take away sinnes: or to his mercie, if he will not; or to his iustice, if he neuer punish sinnes euer remaying; and to his truth, if he repute otherwise, then indeed the thing is. It is also iniurious to Christ, to say, his blood and death is not effectual to take away sinnes: iniurious to innumerable places of holie Scripture, which affirme plainly that sinnes by Gods grace are vtterly taken away: Finally, it is iniurious to Saints in heauen, arguing them as still infected with sinnes, if indeed sinnes yet remaine in them: which is most absurde, and blasphemic to speake. And yet followeth by necessarie consequence. For if the iustest liued & died in sinne, they should remaine eternally in sinne.

2. Neither is there guile in his spirit. In remission of sinnes the penitent necessarily must so cooperate, that he haue no guile in his spirit, or hart. For if he haue, then he faileth of the foresaid blessednes, and his iniquities are not iorgiuen, nor his sinnes couered to God, but to be imputed and punished. Yet the repentance of a sinner be it neuer so sincere, hartie, and without guile, doth not merite remission of sinne, but only disposeth therto. But after remission it is satisfactorie for the paine due for sinnes, and meritorious of glorie. According as S. Augustin here teacheth saying: Good (or meritorious) workes goe not before faith and remission, but follow the same.

ANNO T A T I O N S.

P S A L M E. XXXIII.

1. He changed his countenance.) S. Augustin by holie Dauids changing of his countenance, and by changing the King of Geth his name, who in the booke of Kings (where the historie is recorded) is called Achis, and here Abimelech, gathereth that here is an hidden, and great Mysterie. Which he explicateth partly by interpretation of the Hebrew names, but more especially by Dauids changing of his countenance, which prefigured Christ, eternal God, becomming also man, and so making great changes in the world. For as Dauid killed Goliath, and for his good act got enuie, so Christ kiling the diuel, and humilitie in Christs members killing pride, are persecuted by the wicked. For Christ was both to the ruine, and Resurrection of manie. He changed Sacrifice and Priesthood. The Iewes had sacrifice according to the order of Aaron, in victims of cattle, and this was in mysterie. For there was not then the Sacrifice of the bodie and bloud of our Lord: which the faithful, and those that haue read the Ghospel doe know, which Sacrifice is now spread in al the round earth. A litle after: The Sacrifice of Aaron is taken away, and the sacrifice according to the order of Melchisedech began to be. He therefore, I know not vho, changed his countenance? Let it not be, I know not vho, for our Lord Iesus Christ is known. He would haue our health to be in his bodie and bloud. From whence did he commend his bodie and bloud? from his humilitie. For vnles he were humble, he would neither be eaten nor drunke. Behold his highnes: In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and God the Word. Loe the euerlasting meate, and Angels eate it, supernal powers eate it. celestial spirits eate it, and they eate, and are fatted, and the thing remaineth whole, which satiateth and reioyceth them. How then hath the wisdom of God fed vs with the same bread? The Word was made flesh and dwelt in vs. It were too long to recite this great Doctours whole discourse. He further sheweth that Christ dismissed the Iewes, and went from them to the Gentils. Thou seekest now Christ (saith he) among the Iewes, and findest him not: because he hath changed his countenance. For they sticking to the sacrifice according to the order of Aaron, held not the Sacrifice according to the order of Melchisedech, and haue lost Christ: and the Gentils haue begun to haue him. Againe, this holie father willeth vs to remember the Ghospel: When our Lord Iesus Christ spake of his bodie, he said: Vnles you eate the flesh of the Sonne of man, and drinke his blood, you shal not haue life in you: because he had changed his countenance, this seemed as furie and madnes vnto them, to giue his flesh to be eaten of men, & his blood to be drunke, therefore Dauid was reputed madde before Achis, when he said: you haue brought this madde man vnto me. Doth it not seeme madnes: Eate ye my flesh, and drinke my blood? He seemed to be madde. Thus S. Augustin. Neuer imagining the figuratiue interpretation of our new Sacramentaries: who say Christ gaue no more but a figure of his bodie & blood, for then it had been easily vnderstood by the Capharnaites, and no such contradiction nor murmuring had happened. Yet S. Augustin saith more plainly, it more plaine may be: Christ caried himselfe in his owne hands. And how this can be done (brethren) in man, who can vnderstand? For who is caried in his owne hands? A man may be caried in the hands of others, no man is caried in his owne hands. We find not how it can be vnderstood in Dauid according to the letter: but in Christ we find it. For Christ was caried in his owne hands, when giuing his verie bodie, he said: This is my bodie; for he caried his bodie in his owne hands.

14. As a (n) neighbour, as our brother, so did I please: as mourning and sorowful to was I humbled.

(n) Christ the good Samaritane, that relieued the wounded man. Luc. 10.

15. And they (o) reioyced against me, and (p) came together: (q) scourges were gathered together vpon me, and I was (r) ignorant.

(o p q) All this was fulfilled according to the letter in our Saviours passion. (r) Our Lord knoweth not anie iust cause, why the Iewes so persecuted him, for they had no iust cause but meere malice.

16. They were dissipated, and not compunct, they temptred me, they scorned me with scorning: they gnashed vpon me with their teeth.

17. Lord (s) when wilt thou regard? (t) restore thou my soule from their malignitie, myne only one from the lions.

(s) As Psal. 21. and Mat. 27. God why hast thou forsaken me? not deliuered me from temporal death, not yealded me such consolation, as thou gauest other Saints in their agonie? (t) A Prophecie of Christs resurrection.

18. I wil confesse to thee in (v) the great Church, in a graue people I wil prayse thee.

(v) Prophecie of the Catholike Church as Psal. 21.

19. Let them not reioyce ouer me that are my aduersaries vniustly:

(w) that hate me without cause, and twinkle with the eies.

(w) This place is applied by our Saviour to himselfe. Ioan. 13.

20. Because they spake indeed (x) peaceably to me : and in the anger of the earth speaking they meant guiles.

(x) The Pharisees and Herodians said : Master we know that thou art a true speaker &c. meaning to intrap him with treason. Mat. 22.

21. And they (y) opened their mouth awide vpon me : they said, Wel, wel, our eies haue seen.

(y) The same Pharisees and Priests iudged him worthy of death, and procured the people to crie: Crucifie him. crucifie him.

22. Thou hast seen, o Lord, keep not silence: (z) Lord depart not from me.

(z) Againe his Resurrection is prophesied.

23. Arise and attend to my iudgement : my God, and my Lord vnto my cause.

24. Iudge me according to thy iustice, o Lord my God, and let them not reioyce ouer me.

25. Let them not say in their harts : Wel, wel, to our soule: neither let them say, We haue deuoured him.

26. Let (a) them blush and be ashamed together, that reioyce at my euils.

(a) At the day of iudgement the wicked shal receiue sentence of damnation.

Let them be clothed with confusion and shame, that speake great things vpon me.

27. Let (b) them reioyce and be glad, that wil my iustice : and let them say alwayes : Our Lord be magnified, that wil the peace of his seruant.

(b) The Blessed in eternal glorie.

28. And my tong shal meditate thy iustice, thy prayse al the day.

P S A L M E XXXV.

The Prophet describeth the wicked malice of obstinate sinners. 6. Against which he opposeth Gods infinite goodnes, 9. with his provident mercie towards the worst: and iust reward of the good; 12. praying to escape the dangerous gulfe of pride.

1. (a) Vnto the end, to (b) the seruant of our Lord Dauid himselfe.

(a) More specially describing the state of men in the new testament, then in the old. (b) Instruction for Dauid, not as a King, or a Prophet, but as the poore seruant of God.

2. TH E vniust hath said within himselfe, that he (c) would sinne: there is no feare of God before his eies.

(c) Wittingly and resolutely preferring wicked life before vertuous.

3. Because he hath done deceitfully in his sight: (d) that his iniquitie may be found vnto hatred.

(d) God so hateth sinne committed of meere malice, that he commonly reiecteth such sinners, and more often offereth new grace to those, that sinne of frailtie or ignorance.

4. The words of his mouth are iniquitie, and guile: he (e) would not vnder it and that he might doe wel.

(e) Some ignorance is inuincible, when one hath a good wil to learne, doing his endeuaour to know the truth in doctrine, & his dutie in manners; but can not get knowledge therof, and then he is excused before God, though he erre in opinion, or in fact: others are negligent to learne, and their errour is grosse ignorance, and is a sinne, greater or lesse, according to the importance of the thing, which they ought, to know. Others are more wilful, desiring to be ignorant: that they may sinne with the lesse remorse, or repining of their owne conscience, and this is affected ignorance, and most hainous and odious sinne. For which God often leauing them destitute of ordinarie grace, which he giueth to others, they fall into reprobate sense, and into more horrible finnes.

5. He hath meditated iniquitie in his bed: he hath set himselfe on euery way not good, and malice he hath not hated.

6. Lord (f) thy mercie is in heauen: and (g) thy truth euen to the clouds.

(f) God doth not vtterly shut vp his mercie from the most wilful & wicked sinners, but giueth them sometimes good motions, and sufficient helpe, that they may repent, be iustified, & saued, if they doe not wittingly harden their owne harts, and still wilfully repel Gods grace. (g) For so God promiseth (who is most faithful) that he wil forgie sinners, and receiue them into his fauour againe, whensoever they resoluing to serue him, repent and cease to sinne.

7. Thy iustice as the hills of God: thy iudgements are great depth.

Men & (h) beasts thou wilt saue, o Lord, 8. as thou (i) hast multiplied thy mercie, o God.

(h) Thou, o God, that hast care of al creatures, not only of men but also of brute beasts, art euer readie of thy part to saue both moderate men, in whom the light of reason remaineth, and also grosse senseles persons, which are become brutish like horse and mule or other beasts. (i) For so our Lord multiplieth his mercie.

But (k) the children of men (l) shal hope in the couert of thy wings.

(k) Yet with condition that senseles or brutish men, must become reasonable men, the children of men, not colts, whelps, pigs &c. (l) Sinners thus conuerted shal not only haue al necessaries in this life, as al liuing creatures haue in this world, but also shal hope of spirital, heavenly, & eternal glorie prepared for Angels, and children of men: as in the verses following.

9. They shal be inebriated with the plentie of thy house: and with the torrent of thy pleasure thou shalt make them drinke.

10. Because with thee is the fountaine of life: and in thy light we shal see light.

11. Extend thy mercie to them that know thee, and thy iustice to them, that are of a right hart.

12. Let (m) not the foote of pride come to me: and let not (n) the hand of a sinner moue me.

(m) Lest anie impediment hinder the obtrayning and possession of eternal reward, the iust must specially pray not to be infected with pride: (n) nor be ouercome by the forcible tentations of other sinners, by perswasion, nor euil example.

13. There (o) haue they fallen that worke iniquitie: they were expelled, (p) neither could they stand.

(o) The first sinne, to wit of diuels, was pride, and mans sinne was by perswasion of the diuel. (p) Neither of which could escape punishment.

P S A L M E XXXVI.

An exhortatiō to contempt of this world.
The 7. key.

An exhortation not to enuie nor imitate the euil, who for most part prosper in this world, and are damned eternally: but to flye euil and doe good, duly considering that God diuersly permitteth and punisheth the wicked, and likewise comforteth and afflicteth the iust, al for their good,

This Psalme is composed in order of the Alphabet, euerie distick beginning with a diuers letter, to moue the reader to diligent attention, which may serue in place of a larger commentarie.

1 A Psalme (a) to Dauid himself.

(a) For Dauids and euery iust mans instruction.

HAUE (b) no emulation toward the malignant: neither enuie them that doe iniquitie.

(b) Neither be thou offended that the wicked doe prosper in this world, nor imitate them that thou maist also prosper.

2. Because (c) they shal quickely wither as grasse: and as the blossoms of herbes they shal soone fai.

(c) For al this life, & consequently the prosperitie therof is short, and vncertaine.

3. (d) Hope in our Lord and doe good: and inhabite the land, and thou (e) shalt be fed in the riches therof.

(d) Put thy trust in God, liuing content in this world: (e) & he wil giue thee that is necessarie.

4. Be delighted in our Lord: & he wil giue thee the petitions of thy hart.

5. (f) Reueale thy way to our Lord, and hope in him: and he wil doe it.

(f) Commend al thyne affaires to God.

6. And he wil (g) bring forth thy iustice as light: and thy iudgement as midday: 7. be subiect to our Lord, and pray him.

(g) Partly making vertue appeare to the consist of the vertuous, and example of others in this life, but especially in the next world.

Haue no emulation in him, that prospereth in his way: in a man that doth iniustices.

8. Cease from wrath, and leaue furie: haue not emulation that thou be malignant.

9. Because they that are malignant, shal be cast out: but they that expect our Lord, the same shal inherite (h) the land.

(h) The land of the liuing.

10. And yet a litle while, and the sinner shal not be: and thou shalt seeke his place, and shal not find it.

11. But the meeke shal inherite the land, and shal be delighted in multitude of peace.

12. The sinner shal obserue the iust: & shal gnash vpon him with his teeth.

13. But our Lord shal come him: because he foreseth that his day shal come.

14. Sinners haue drawn out the sword: they haue bent their bowe;

That

That they may deceiue the poore and needie: that they may murder the right of hart.

15. Let (i) their owne swords enter into their harts: and let their bowe be broken.

(i) By way of imprecation (as in manie other places) the Prophet foresheweth that wicked men shal fal into the euils, which they prepare for others

16. Better is a litle to the iust, aboue much riches of sinners.

17. Because the armes of sinners shal be broken in pieces: but our Lord confirmeth the iust.

18. Our Lord knoweth the daies of the immaculate: and their inheritance shal be for euer.

19. They shal not be confounded in the euil time, and in the dayes of famine they shal be filled: 20. because the sinners shal perish.

But the enemies of our Lord forthwith as they shal be honoured and exalted, vanishing shal vanish as smoke.

21. The sinner shal borrow, and not pay: but the iust is merciful and will giue.

22. Because they that blesse him shal inherite the lād: but they that curse him shal perish.

23. With our Lord the step of man shal be directed: and he shal like wel of his way.

24. When (k) he shal fal, he shal not be brused: because our Lord putteth his hand vnder.

(k) Though the iust fal of frailtie or ignorance into venial sinne, yet Gods grace shal stay him that he fal not into mortal. The iust falleth seuen times in the day, & riseth. Prou. 24.

25. I haue been yong, for I am old: and I haue not seen the iust forsaken, (l) nor his seele seeking bread.

(l) So King Dauid obserued: and it very rarely happeneth, that the iust or their children are destitute of necessaie sustentance in this world. If it chance in some, it is to their greater merite, and is manifestly recompensed in spiritual gifts. In which sense S. Basil expoundeth, that it is alwayes uerified. For God euer rewardeth good workes either temporally, or spiritually, or both wayes. S. Augustin alio (con. 3. in hunc Psal.) exemplifieth in Abraham, Isaac, and Iacob with al his familie, who were forced to goe into other countries by reason of famine, and by Gods prouidence were there sustained. Gen. 12. 26. 46. and S. Paul among his other tribulations mentioneth famine and thirst. 2. Cor. 11. v. 27. Seeing therefore these so iust persons sought their bread in necessitie, he expoundeth this holie Scripture in the Allegorical sense, that the Church from her beginning in Ierusalem to the end of the world, neuer wanteth the true word of God, true faith and doctrine, which is the spiritual bread wherewith the soule is nourished.

26. Al the day he is merciful and lendeth: & his seele shal be in blessing.

27. (m) Decline from euil, & doe good: and (n) inhabite for euer & euer.

(m) In these two principles, Declining from euil and Doing good, true iustice consisteth. (n) And he that finally obserueth these two points, meriteth and shal possesse heauen.

28. Because our Lord loueth iudgement, and he wil not forsake his saints: they shal be preferued for euer.

The vniust shall be punished: and the seed of the impious shall perish.
29. But the iust shall inherite the land: and shall inhabite for euer and euer vpon it.

30. The mouth of the iust shall meditate wisedome, and his tong shall speake iudgement.

Pro. 31.
Isa. 51.

31. The law of his God in his hart: and his steps shall not be supplanted.

32. The sinner considereth the iust: and seeketh to (o) murder him.

(o) To draw him to mortal sinne, which is death of the soule.

33. But our Lord wil not leaue him in his hands: neither wil he condemne him, when iudgement shall be giuen of him.

34. Expect our Lord, and keep his way: and he wil exalt thee, that thou mayst inherite the land: when the sinners shall perish: thou shalt see.

35. I haue seen the impious highly exalted, and aduanced as the cedars of Libanus.

36. And I passed by, and behold he was not: and I sought him, and his place was not found.

37. Keepe innocencie, and see equitie: because there are (p) remaines for the peaceable man.

(p) Rewards.

38. But the vniust shall perish together: the remaines of the impious shall perish.

39. But the saluation of the iust is (q) of our Lord: and he is their protectour in the time of tribulation.

(q) Mans iustice and wel doing is not of his owne power but of Gods grace.

40. And our Lord wil helpe them, and deliuer them: and he wil take them away from sinners, and saue them, because they haue hoped in him.

PSALME XXVII.

King Dauid, or anie other penitent, earnestly prayeth God to remitte his sinnes, and mitigate the paines which he acknowledgeth himselfe to haue deserued, 12. lamenting the afflictions which he suffereth by such as sometimes were his freinds, 14. whose tentations he now resisteth, trusting in God, resigning himselfe to Gods wil, confessing his owne iniquitie, and humbly praying for Gods helpe.

1. A Psalm of Dauid, in (a) recordation of the sabbath.

(a) In remembrance that by sinne we lost the rest and peace, which man had in the state of innocencie; secondly we lost the peace of conscience; thirdly the rest and peace of eternal felicitie.

2. LORD (b) rebuke me not in thy furie: (c) nor chastise me in wrath.

(b) Condene me not to eternal paine: (c) nor punish me in purgatorie fire; but purge me so in this life, that the purging fire be not needful. By which fire (saith S. Aug.) though some shall be saued (gravior tamen erit ille ignis, quam quicquid potest homo pati in hac vita) yet that fire shall be more grievous, the wharsoeuer a man can suffer in this life. S. Gregory also expoundeth this same place, as if Dauid sayd thus: I know it wil come to passe, that after the end of this life, some shall be cleansed by purging flames. some shall be vnder the sentence of eternal damnation. But because I doe esteeme that transitorie fire more intolerable then al present tribulation, I desire not only not to be rebuked in furie of eternal damnation, but also I feare to be purged in the wrath of transitorie correction. Thou therefore, o Lord, whom I serue in my spirit, whom I know to be the Sauour of al men, rebuke me not in furie of perpetual damnation, nor chastice me in wrath of purging punishment. See Annotat. Ps. 6.

3. Because (d) thy arrowes are fast sticked in me: and thou hast (e) fastned thy hand vpon me.

(d) Afflictions of mind and bodie sent by thy iust iudgement. (e) Thou hast struck me with an heauie hand.

4. There is (f) no health in my flesh at (g) the face of thy wrath: my bones haue no peace at (h) the face of my sinnes.

(f) I already feele in my flesh, in al my bones, and powers, great affliction, (g) considering thy iustice (h) and my sinnes.

5. Because mine iniquities are gone (i) ouer my head: and as a (k) heauie burden are become heauie vpon me.

(i) Which are exceedingly increased, almost ouerwhelming my spirit. (k) Sinnes not washed away by penance by their weight carie the soule into more and more wickednes.

6. My (l) scarres are putrified and corrupted, because of my foolishnes.

(l) Still corrupting those parts which were whoie before, as a pestered sore that is not cured.

7. I am become miserable, and am made (m) crooked euen to the end: I went sorowful al the day.

(m) Not able to goe streight to doe anie good worke, being guiltie of grieuous sinne.

8. Because (n) my loynes are filled with illusions: and there is no health in my flesh.

(n) Concupiscence striuing in me.

9. I am afflicted and am humbled exceedingly: I (o) roared for the groaning of my hart.

(o) From the sorrow of my hart my voice hath broken out into clamour.

10. Lord (p) before thee is al my desire: and my groaning is not hid from thee.

(p) O God thou knowest my desire, to be restored to thy fauour.

11. My hart is troubled, my strength hath forsaken me: and the light of mine eyes, and the same is not with me.

12. My (q) freinds, and my neighbours haue approched, & stood against me.

(q) Those that were my freinds and companions in sinne are become myne enemies, because I forsake them.

And they that were neere me, stood far off: 13. and they did violence which sought my soule.

And they that sought me euils (r) spake vanities: and meditated guiles al the day.

(r) Sought by al meanes to intangle me againe.

14. But I as (s) one deafe did not heare: and as one dumme not opening his mouth.

15. And I became as a man not hearing: and not hauing reproofs in his mouth.

16. Because (t) in thee, o Lord haue I hoped, thou wilt heare me, o Lord my God.

(t) I Now relie vpon thee, o God.

17. (v) Because I said: Lest sometime mine enemies reioyce ouer me, and whiles my feete are moued, they spake great things vpon me.

(v) For this cause I am returned to thee and doe pray that mine enemies may not preuaile against me.

18. Because I (w) am readie for scourges: and my sorow is in my sight alwaies:

(w) I resigne my selfe to thee.

19. Because (x) I wil declare my iniquitie: and I wil (y) thinke for my sinne.

(x) Though thou knowest al, yet with mouth confession is made to saluation. (y) And I meditate of that which my sinne hath deserued.

20. But mine enemies liue, and are confirmed ouer me: and they are multiplied that hate me vniustly.

21. They that repay euil things for good, (z) detracted from me: because I folowed goodnes.

(z) One kind of detraction is in reuealing secret faults, an other in feyning and imputing false crimes, the third (here mentioned) in calling vertue vice, as penance hypochrisie.

22. (a) Forsake me not, o Lord my God, depart not from me.

Attend vnto my help, o Lord the God of my saluation.

(a) Grant me Lord final perseuerance in thy grace, and seruice.

P S A L M E XXXVIII.

A iust man in remediles persecution resolueth to suffer al with peace and silence: 5. praying God to take him from this world, confessing the Vanitie thereof, 8. and relying on Gods prouidence (11. who punisheth man for his sinnes) prayeth for release.

1. Vnto (a) the end, to (b) Idithun himselfe, a canticle of Dauid.

(a) Some expound this Psalme of the Iewes in captiuitie in Babylon, but this title, and the matter conteyned shew, that it rather pertaineth to the new Testament.

(b) To be song by Idithun and his scolars & successours, or rather by Christians.

2. I (c) HAVE said: I wil keepe my waies, that I offend nor in my tongue.

(c) Weake men in affliction, not able to deliuer themselves, seeke reuenge, by murmuring and other euil speeches, but the perfect resolue to rule their tongues: I haue set a gard to my mouth, when the sinner stood against me.

3. I was dumme and humbled, and kept silence (d) from good things: and (e) my sorrow was renewed.

(d) Euen to forbear sometimes from their owne iust defence: (e) though thereby they indure more persecution,

+ My (f) hart waxed hote within me: & in my meditatio a fyre shal burne.

(f) Sorow suppressed maketh the hart to burne with zeale and indignation.

Gods prouidence.

5. I haue spoken in my tong: Lord (g) make mine end knowne to me.
 (g) If it may please thee, let me know how long I shal liue, desiring to dye: as Elias desired. 1. Reg. 19.

And the number of my daies what it is: that I may know what is lacking to me.

6. Behold thou hast put my dayes measurable, and my (h) substance is as nothing before thee.

(h) My liue and al that I haue is as nothing compared to thy eternitie.
 Doubtles al things are vanitie, euerie man liuing.

7. Surely man passeth as (i) an image, yea and he is troubled (k) in vayne.

(i) As a shadow or image appearing in a glasse, which is quickle forgot. (k) Therefore there is no cause man should be troubled in mind for temporal miseries.

He gathereth treasure, and knoweth not to whom he shal gather them.

8. And now what is my expectation? is not our Lord? and my substance is with thee.

9. From al mine iniquities deliuer me: (l) a reproch to the foolish thou hast giuen me.

(l) Thou hast suffered me to be reproched by the foolish that prosper in this world.

10. I was dumme, and opened not my mouth, (m) because thou didst it: 11. Remoue thy scourges from me.

(m) I know my tribulation is by thy prouidence.

12. By the strenght of thy hand, I haue fainted in reprehensions, for iniquitie thou hast chastised man.

And thou hast made (o) soule pyne away as a spider: but vaynly is euerie man troubled.

(o) My life decayeth as a spider hauing spent al her moysture.

13. Heare my prayer, o Lord, and my petition; with thine eares receiue my teares. Keepe not silence: because I am a (p) stranger with thee, and a pilgrime, as my fathers.

(p) Al men are strangers in this life, heauen being our home.

14. Forgiue me, that I may (q) be refreshed before I depart: and (r) shal be no more.

(q) That I may recouer spiritual strenght in this life: (r) after which I shal not be in state to doe free workes of satisfaction nor merite.

4. And he hath put a new canticle into my mouth: a song to our God.

Manie shal see, and shal feare: and they shal hope in our Lord.

5. Blessed is the man, whose hope is in the name of our Lord: and hath not had regard to vanities and false madnes.

10. I haue (h) declared thy iustice in the great Church, loe I wil not stay my lips: Lord thou hast knowen it.

11. Thy iustice I haue not hid in my hart: thy truth and thy saluation I haue spoken. I haue not hid thy mercie, and thy truth from the (i) great Council.

(i) In the greatest and wisest congregations of this world, Christ concealeth not his mercie and truth. So himselfe professed before Annas, Caiphaz, Pilate, and their counsels. Saint Paul preached Christ at Athens, and in manie nations, and so the other Apostles. For their voice went into al the coasts of the earth.

12. (k) But thou, o Lord, make not thy commiserations farre from me: thy mercie, and thy truth haue alwayes receiued me.

(k) The Prophet now speaketh in the name of Christs mystical bodie the Church: praying to be made partaker of mercie, and to be deliured from euils.

13. Because euils haue compassed me, which haue no number: mine iniquities haue ouertaken me, & I was (l) not able to see.

(l) The sinnes also those which be lieue in Christ are so manie, that they can not be fully seen in particular.

They are multiplied aboue the haire of my head: and (m) my hart hath for saken me.

(m) I almost faint in considering so manie and so great iniquities amongst those that professe Christ.

14. It may please thee, o Lord, to deliuer (n) me: Lord haue respect to helpe me.

(n) The whole Church prayeth in the name of al for the infirme members.

15. Let (o) them be confounded and ashamed together, that seeke my soule to take it away.

Let them be turned backward, and be ashamed that wil me euils.

16. Let them forthwith receiue their confusion, that (p) say to me: Wel, wel.

(p) That skornfully say: Wel, wel-wishing al euil to good men.

17. Let al (q) that seeke thee reioyce and be glad vpon thee: and let them that loue thy saluation, say alwayes: Our Lord be magnified:

(q) Which not only in mouth and outward profession, but also in sinceritie of hart seeke thee, may with confidence reioyce, and praise God.

18. But (r) I am a begger, and poore: Our Lord is careful of me.

(r) Christ speaketh in the name of sinner truly repenting, whose sinnes he vnder-taketh to redeme, and wash away by his passion.

Thou art (s) my helper, & my protectour: my God be not slacke.

v. 18.

1. Vnto (a) the end, a Psalm to Dauid himselfe.

(a) Perteyning to the new testament, as appeareth by the 10. verse alieadged by our Sauiour.

This Psalm is also applied by the Church in the office of the sick, whom whosoe-uer assisteth in that case, may hope to haue assistance in their owne like necessitie.

2. BLESSED is the man that vnderstandeth concerning (b) the needie, and the poore: in (c) the euil day our Lord wil deliuer him.

(b) He is happie that is not scandalized in Christ (Luc. 7. v. 21.) comming in pouertie, & suffering extreme afflictions. (c) He that trusteth in Christ, notwithstanding the contrarie motiues of his wordlie miserie, shall be deliuered by him in al distresse.

3. Our Lord (d) preterue him, and giue him life, and make him blessed in the land: and (e) deliuer him not vnto the wil of his enemies.

(d) Our Lord wil giue to such seruants more grace in this life, and glorie in the next. (e) Not suffer him to be ouercome in tentations.

4. Our Lord helpe him (f) vpon the bed of his sorow: thou hast turned al his couch in his infirmite.

(f) When such constant seruants are sick to death, Christ wil most especially comfort and helpe them.

5. I said: (g) Lord haue mercie on me: heale my soule, because I haue sinned to thee.

(g) Christ in the behalf of his mystical bodie confesseth their sinnes, and prayeth for them.

6. Mine enemies haue spoken euils to me: When shal he die (h) and his name perish?

(h) After death suffered for mankind, Christ riseth, and his name and kingdom is glorious.

7. And if (i) he came in to see, he spake vayne things: his hart hath gathered together iniquitie to himselfe.

(i) Those that came not of good wil, but of malice to obserue Christs deeds and words, carped at both, sometimes saying, he taught against the law, and against Moyse; sometymes that he cast out diuels in the power of Beelzebub.

He went forth, and spake together.

8. Al mine enemies whispered against me: they did thinke euils to me.

9. They (k) haue determind an vniust word against me: (l) Shal not he that sleepe adde to ryse againe?

(k) At last they resoued that he should die. (l) But they could not so suppress his power, for he rose againe in glorie.

10. For (m) the man also of my peace, in whom I hoped: who did eate my breads, hath greatly troden me vnder-foot.

(m) By our Sauours application of this verse, it is certaine that the traitour Iudas is here described. Ioa. 13. v. 18.

11. But thou, o Lord, haue mercie vpon me, and raise me vp againe: and I (n) wil repay them.

(n) In the day of iudgement Christ Iudge of al wil render to euerie one as they deserue.

12. In this I haue knowen that thou wouldest me: because mine enemy shal not reioyce ouer me.

13. But methou hast receiued (o) because of innocencie: and thou hast confirmed me in thy sight for euer.

(o) As before in respect of sinners, Christ iudge of al wil render to euerie one: so here in his owne person he auoucheth his owne innocencie, which made him atopt falsifie for others.

14. Blessed be our Lord the God of Tisrael. (p) from the beginning of the world, and for euermore: q) Be it, be it.

(p) For this mercie of Almighty God in sauing the elect by his Sonnes death he is to be praised for euer eternally (q) Al the Blessed agree in this, that God is eternally to be praised and therto say Amen, So be it, so be it.

Some diuide the Psalmes in to fise books, supposing the first book to end here with these words, Be it, be it: not obseruing that the last psalme hath not this ending. S. Ierom confuteth this opinion by our Sauours and S. Peters naming it the book, not books of Psalmes. Luc. 20. v. 42. Act. 1. Moreover if this were the end of one book, then the psalme folowing should not be called the 41. psalme but the first psalme of the second book.

Ioa. 13.
Act. 1.

P S A L M E X L I.

The feruent desire of the iust, 6. much afflicted in this life, 12. and assured hope of eternal ioy.

Eternal glory.
The 10. key.

1. Vnto the end, vnderstanding to the sonnes of (a) Core.

(a) The sonnes of Core repented, and departed from their fathers schisme, and so escaped miraculously the horrible pit of damnation, into which their father and his complices fel. Num. 16. v. 10. By which example al seduced and deceiued Christians are admonished, not to persist in schisme or other sinnes. And wordlie men, ambitious of honour be warned to desire & seeke God aboue al things, first of al the kingdome of heauen (to be liuing members of the Catholike Church) and the iustice there: to seeke things which are aboue, not which are vpon the earth; lest hel deuour them, as it deuoured the complices of Core. Num. 16. v. 31.

2. EVEN as the hart (b) desireth after the fountaines of waters: (c) so doth my soule desire after thee, o God.

(b) A hart waxing old, and burdaed with much haire, and great hornes, draweth a serpent into his nosethrels: so being infected with poyson, desireth most ardently to drinke, and after wards casteth his hornes, and haire, and becommeth as it vere yong againe. (c) With such feruent desire a true penitent, feeling himselfe infected with poyson of sinnes, seeketh the water of Gods grace.

3. My soule hath thirited after God (d) the strong (e) liuing: (f) when shal I come and appeare before the face of God?

(d e) God is omnipotent, and indeed the only true liuing God: diuels who are honoured in idols, can doe no more then God permitteth, and so they can kil the soules, that consent vnto their tentations, but can not restore spiritual life againe. (f) The soule being iustified, and stil assaulted with new tentations desireth to be with God.

4. My (g) teares haue been breads vnto me day and night: whiles it is said to me dayly: (h) Where is thy God?

(g) I haue had no other refection, but to lenifie my sorow with weeping. (h) The wicked exprobate the iust, as though God would neuer helpe them, because he suffereth them to be sometimes long in tribulation.

5. These things haue I remembred, and haue powred out my soule in me, because I shal passe into the place (i) of a meruelous tabernacie, euen to the house of God.

(i) King Dauid was not permitted to build the temple, much lesse did he enter into anie such meruelous tabernacie in his mortal life, but must needs be vnderstood, to speake here of the heauenlic tabernacie, prepared by Christ for his seruants.

In the voyce of exultation, and confession: the sound of one feating.

6. Why (k) art thou sorowrul my soule? & why dost thou trouble me?

(k) The Trophet comforteth himselfe, or anie iust soule, in the hope of euerlasting ioy.

Hope in God, because yet I (l) wil confesse to him: the saluation of my countenance, 7. and my God.

(l) I render thanks and praises.

My soule is troubled toward my selfe; therefore wil I be mindful of thee from the land (m) of Jordan, and Hermonijm from the litle mountaine.

(m) Al this life is like to the smal freit place between Jordan and a litle hil called Hermonijm, but from this freitnes the hope of the iust is, to be placed in heauen.

8. Depth (n) calleth on depth, in the voice of (o) thy floud-gares. Al thy high things, and thy waues haue passed ouer me.

(n) One tentation stil succedeth another: (o) and the same so great, as if God opened the gates, and suffered them to ouerflow like fluddes of water.

9. In (p) the day our Lord hath commanded his mercie: and (q) in the night a song of him.

(p) But God helpeth in opportunitie, not suffering his seruants to be tempted about their strength, giuing them fruit with tentations: (q) yea in the greatest tribulation, he giueth ordinarily most comfort, making them sing spiritually in hart, if not also in voice.

With me (r) is prayer to the God of my life: 10. I wil say to God: Thou art my defender.

(r) One special meanes to procure diuine consolation is prayer in distresse.

Why hast thou forgotten me? and why goe I sorrowful, whiles mine enemy afflicteth me?

11. Whiles my bones are broken, mine enemies that trouble me haue vprayed me:

Whiles they say to me day by day: Where is thy God?

12. Why art thou heauie, o my soule? & why dost thou trouble me? (f) Hope in God, because yet I wil confesse to him: the saluation of my countenance, and my God.

(f) Stil the iust soule taketh comforth in assured hope of saluation, the eternal vision of God.

PSALME. XLII.

The iust inuocateth Gods sentence against the deceitful, that seeke his spiritual ouerthrow, & acknowledge his helpe, from Almighty God the B. Trinitie, in whose vision glorie consisteth.

1. A Psalme (a) of Dauid.

(a) Holie Dauid often prefiguring Christ, here representeth euerie faithful seruant of God, and particularly when they begin a great and holie worke; as when Priests celebrate the diuine Sacrifice, they with their assistants recite by interchangeable verses this Psalme.

I V D G E (b) me, o God, & discern my cause from the nation not holie, from the vniust and deceitful man (c) deliuer me.

(b) After that we haue examined, and prepared our selues to the most holie Sacrifice and Sacrament, according to S. Paul admonition (let a man proue himselfe, and so eate this bread, & drinke this chalice, 1. Cor. 11.) we pray God, to iudge between our true sincere intention, and the vniust deceitful endeauours of our enemy: (c) and so to deliuer and protect vs from subtle malice.

2. Because

One God the Trinitie.
The 1. key.

2. Because thou art God (d) my strength: (e) why hast thou repelled me: and why goe I forowful (f) whiles the enimie afflicteth me.

(d) With thee I can doe anie thing, without thee nothing, (e) thou seemest sometimes not to regard me, (f) whiles tentations are more sensible then thy grace.

3. Send forth (g) thy light and thy truth: (h) they haue conducted me, and haue brought me into thy holy hil, and into thy tabernacles.

(g) As thou hast sent Christ the light and truth into this world, grant vs the same now in particular. (h) These two gifts of God, the light of knowing our duties and truth, with sincere intention to performe the same, haue brought vs into thy Church and vnto thy Altar.

4. And (i) I wil goe in to the altar of God: to God, which (k) maketh my youth ioyful.

(i) Accompanied with light of truth, & sincere intention, we confidently approach to thine Altar, o God, (k) who changest our old corruption into newnes of life.

5. I wil confesse to thee (l) on the harpe (m) o God (n) my God: (o) why art thou sorowful, o my soule: and why dost thou trouble me?

(l) But to this purpose we praise God on the harpe, mortifying our affections.

(m) (n) The former word is of the plural number in hebrew, Eloim, the other of the singular, signifying the Blessed Trinitie, one God. (o) Thou needest not therefore my soule to be pensive or desolate.

6. (p) Hope in God, because yet (q) wil I confesse to him: the saluation (r) of my countenance, and (s) my God.

(p) But trust in God, (q) praise him, (r) whom I hope to see face to face, (s) the true eternal God.

PSALME XLIII.

The Prophet describeth the first calling, and difficulte state of the Iewish nation, 6. their prosperitie at other times. 10. Againe their afflictions in captiuitie, and persecutions.

The state of the Iewes. The 4. key.

1. Vnto (a) the end, for the formes of (b) Core to vnderstanding.

(a) Though this Psalme doth first and literally pertaine to the people of Israel, yet all things happening to them, were in figure of the Christiana Catholike Church, which began with difficulties, afterwards prospered, and againe suffereth much persecution. (b) Core signifieth caluus, bauld also caluaria a scul, or place of sculs: the name of the place where our Sauour was crucified: so the children of Core signifie the children of Christ. S. Aug.

2. O GOD we haue heard with our eares: our fathers haue declared to vs.

The (c) worke that thou hast wrought in their dayes: & in the dayes of old.

(c) The particular calling of Abraham out of Chaldea, protection of him, and Isaac, and Iacob, the deliuerie of al Israel out of Aegypt, and establishing them in the promised land of Chanaan, with innumerable, great, & strange things done for them.

3. Thy hand destroyed the nations, and thou didst plant them: thou didst afflict the peoples, and expel them.

4. For (d) not by their owne sword did they possesse the land, and their owne arme did not saue them:

(d) The Isralites conquered not by ordinarie power, but by the miraculous hand of God. See Iosue 23.

But thy right hand, and thyne arme, and the illumination of thy countenance: because (e) thou wast pleased in them.

(e) Not that this people deserued of themselves, but of Gods free election, al the world being wicked, he gaue peculiar grace to Abraham, Isaac, Iacob, and some others, & then for their sakes protected the whole people, in them conseruing a visible Church.

5. Thou art the same my King and my God: which commandest the saluations of Iacob.

6. In (f) thee we shal turne out our enemies with (g) the horne, & in thy name we shal contemne them that ryse vp against vs.

(f) As in former examples, so in Dauids time, not mans strength, but Gods hand gaue them great victories. (g) As an ox with his horne casteth a smal thing into the wind.

7. For I wil not hope in my bow: and my sword wil not saue me.

8. For thou hast saued vs from them that afflict vs: and them that hate vs thou hast confounded.

9. In God we shal be prayfed al the day: and in thy name we wil confesse for euer.

10. But (h) now thou hast repelled and confounded vs: and thou wilt not goe forth, o God, in our hosts.

(h) The Prophet foretelleth that after prosperitie God would suffer the Iewes to fall into captiuitie, & manie afflictions, which also signified allegorically diuers states of Christs Church.

11. Thou hast turned vs backe behind our enemies: and they that hated vs spoyled for themselves.

12. Thou hast giuen vs as sheep that are to be eaten: and thou (i) hast dispersed vs among the nations.

(i) The Iewes are now meruclously dispersed and depressed.

13. Thou hast sold thy people (k) without price: and there was (l) no multitude in the exchanges of them.

(k) In the destruction of Ierusalem the remnant of the people were sold for smal, as it wree for no price. They had sold Christ for thirtie pence; (l) and now no multitude, nor number of money at al was giuen for them, but thirtie of them were sold for one pennie. Iosephus de bello Iudaico.

14. Thou hast made vs a reproch to our neighbours, a scorne and mocking stock to them that are round about vs.

15. Thou hast made vs for a parable to the Gentils: a wagging of the head among the peoples.

16. Al the day my shame is against me, and the confusion of my face hath couered me.

17. At the voyce of the vpbrayder, and the reprocher: at the face of the encmie and persecour.

18. Al these things haue come vpon vs, (m) neither haue we forgotten thee: and we haue not done wickedly in thy testament.

(m) Vntil Christs passion the Iewish people did not wholly fall from God and true religion. And of them were chosen the Apostles, and manie others, that founded and propagated the Church of Christ.

19. And our hart hath not reuolted backward: & (n) thou hast declined our paths from thy way.

(n) The negatiue particle is here vnderstood by zeugma, according to the hebrew, thus: Our hart hath not reuolted backward, neither hast thou suffered our paths to decline from thy way.

20. Because thou hast humbled vs in the place of affliction, and the shadow of death hath couered vs.

21. (o) If we haue forgotten the name of our God, and if we haue spread forth our hands to a strange God,

(o) An other hebrew phrase, if we haue, for, we haue not.

22. Wil not God enquire of these things? For he knoweth the secrets of the hart.

Rom. 8. Because (p) for thee we are killed al the day: we are esteemed as sheepe of slaughter.

(p) The Prophets and others, persecuted partly before Christ, much more the Apostles, and other Christians in the new Testament.

23. (q) Arise, why sleepest thou, o Lord: Arise, and expel vs not to the end.

(q) A prayer in affliction.

24. Why dost thou turne away thy face, forgettest our pouertie and our tribulation?

25. Because (r) our soule is humbled in the dust: our (s) bellie is glewed in the earth.

(r) We are at deaths dore, readie to become dust. (s) Lying as groueling sorowing on the earth: Arise Lord, helpe vs: and redeeme vs for thy name, til thou deliuer vs from these tribulations.

PSALME XLIIII.

Dauid singularly moued in hart and tongue, 3. prophesieth Christs excellencie, indowing his Church with most worthie dowries. 11. By way of exhortation foresawing her internal and external beausie: 17. wish perpetual succession of Pastours feeding the flock euen to worlds end.

dowing his Church.

(l) Description of Christ, most excellent in al internal and external gifts.

4. Be (m) girded with thy sword vpon thy thigh, o most mightie.

(m) The Prophet seeing in spirit the perfections which he wisheth in Christ, in manner of congratulating, describeth his fortitude, fighting against the diuel for the Church.

Because of (q) truth, and (r) mildenesse, and (s) iustice: and thy right hand shal conduct thee meruelously.

6. Thy (t) sharpe arrowes, the (v) peoples vnderneath thee shal fal into the harts of the Kings enemies.

7. Thy seate o God (w) for euer and euer: a rod of direction the rod of thy Kingdom.

8. Thou (x) hast loued iustice, and hast hated iniquitie: therfore God, (y) thy God, hath annoynted thee with the oile of gladnes (z) aboute thy felowes.

(z) Diuers Kings (as Dauid himselfe, Iosaphat, Ezechias, and Iosias) were as godlie as Salomon, and perseuered good to the end, which is doubted Salomon did not; but Christ incomparably was annoynted, & indued with al graces aboue al Kings.

ANNO T A T I O N S.

P S A L M E. XLIIII.

7. Thy seate, o God, for euer and euer. Seeing S. Paul (Heb. i. v. 8.) affirmeth expressly that these words are spoken of the Sonne of God, Christ our Sauour, and thereby proueth his excellencie aboue Angels: Iohn Calvin is wonderful bold to auouch that in the simple & proper sence, Dauid spake of his sonne Salomon, and the daughter of Pharao, as if that were the literal sence, and S. Paul only expounded it mystically. But first, the solemne preface in the two first verses importeth farre greater things, then agree to anie terrestrial King. Secondly, this excellent beautie described (v. 3.) aboue the sonnes of men, can not be verified of Salomon: for Absalom (2. Reg. 14.) and Adonias were also very beautiful (3. Reg. i. v. 6.) As for Salomons wisdom, or other vertues, he perseuered not therein, and so he was not blessed for euer. Thirdly, the Caluin expoundeth this Psalme contrarie to S. Paul.

Prophet here calleth the person of whom, and to whom he speaketh, God. v. 7. & 12. Fourthly, not only the ancient Fathers, and Doctours of the Church, but also the Hebrew Rabbins, and the Chaldee paraphrasis, expound this Psalm literally of the promised Messiah, and his kingdom the Church.

16. They shall be brought into the temple of the King.) The temple of the King, saith S. Augustin, is the Church, the temple of the King is in vnity, the temple of the King is not ruinous, not cut in sunder, not diuided: the ioyning of liuing stones is charitie. Nothing is more eident. Attend now the verie temple of the King, for from thence he speaketh, because of the vnitie spread in the round earth. For those that would be virgins (faithful souls) vnles they be brought into the temple of the King (the Catholike Church) they can not please the bridegrome.

17. For thy fathers there are borne sonnes to thee.) The Apostles begot thee (o Christ and Church) they were sent, they preached, they are the fathers. But could they be alwaies corporally with vs? Could anie of them tarie here til this time? could they tarie to the time yet to come? But was therefore the Church least desolate by their departure? God forbid. For thy fathers, sonnes are borne to thee. What is this, for thy fathers, sonnes are borne to thee? The Apostles were sent fathers, in place of the Apostles sonnes are borne to thee; Bishops are appointed. For whence were the Bishops borne, that are at this day through the world? the Church herselfe calleth them fathers. she begate them, & appointed them in the seats of the fathers. Doe not therefore thinke thy self desolate (o Christian Church) because thou seeest not Peter, seeest not Paul: for thou seeest not them by whom thou wast borne, but of thyne issue fatherhood is sprong to thee: For thy fathers, sonnes are borne to thee, thou shalt make the Princes ouer al the earth. This is the Catholike Church. Her children are made Princes ouer al the earth, her sonnes are constituted for fathers. Let them acknowledge this that are cut off: let them come to the vnitie, be they brought into the temple of the King. Thus S. Augustin.

PSALME XLV.

The Church
prospereth also in persecution.
The 6. key.

The Church in persecution acknowledgeth Gods perpetual defence, 5. making her thereby more glorious, 10. sometimes granting rest (11. God himself checking the persecuters) and euer protecting her.

1. Vnto (a) the end, to the sonnes of Core, for (b) the secrets.

(a) Belonging to the Church of Christ. (b) As wel the cause, why God suffereth his Church to be persecuted, as his assured protection in difficulties, are hidden secrets to the world.

2. O V R God is a refuge (c) and strength: an (d) helper in tribulations, which (e) haue found vs exceedingly.

(c) Al refuge is not secure, for one man is not able alwaies to defend an other: but God is a sure and strong refuge. (d) Euer able and in conuenient time willing to helpe. (e) This whole world is ful of tribulations, but the Church suffered the greatest in the first persecutions, & shal suffer as great in the time of Antichrist. English Catholikes suffer most of al nations in this age, and can not be suppressed, but stil increase in number and fortitude.

3. Therefore wil we (f) not feare when (g) the earth shal be troubled: and (h) mountaines transported into the hart of the sea.

(f) Therefore al Catholikes may assuredly know, that the whole Church can not faile

faile (g) though very manie, as now in England, (h) and very eminent persons, as some noblemen, and some Priests haue reuolted, yet al wil not.

4. Their waters haue founded, and were troubled: the mountaines were troubled in his strength.

5. The violence of the riuer (i) maketh the citie of God ioyful: the Highest hath sanctified his tabernacle.

(i) Such bad examples make the good to recollect themselues more diligently, and to reioyce in Gods grace, by which thy stand fast.

6. God is in the middes therof, it shal not be moued: God wil helpe it (k) in the morning early.

(k) Before the heate of persecution shal inuade al, for the elect the dayes of tribulation are shorned.

7. Nations are troubled, and (l) Kingdoms are inclined: he gaue (m) his voice, the earth was moued.

(l) Sometimes one nation or Kingdom rebelleth against the Church, but can not destroy it. (m) By the spirit of Christ, Antichrist, and al his members shal be destroyed.

8. The Lord of hostis is with vs: the God of Iacob is our defender.

9. Come ye, & see the workes of our Lord, what wonders he hath put vpon the earth: 10. (n) taking away warres euen vnto to the end of the earth.

(n) The Church sometimes hath great peace and tranquillitie.

He shal destroy bow, & breake weapons: and shields he shal burne with fire.

11. (o) Be quiet, and see that I am God: I shal be exalted among the gentils, and I shal be exalted in the earth.

(o) God himselve restrayneth the wiked, sudainely abating their furie, or cutting off their forces.

12. The Lord of hostis is with vs: the God of Iacob is our defender.

PSALME XLVI.

Gentils are called, and inuited to praise God for his magnificence: for Christs Ascension, and power.

Vocation of Gentils.
The 6. key.

1. Vnto the end, for (a) the sonnes of Core.

(a) For Christians that leaue the sinnes of their fathers, and reioyce in Christ crucified. See Annotations. Psal 4.

2. AL YE Nations (b) clap hands: make iubilation to God in the voyce of exultation.

(b) True ioy of the hart sheweth it-selfe both in voice of exultation, and also in gesture of body, by clapping of hands, dancing (as King Dauid did before the Arke 2. Reg. 6.) likewise with instruments.

3. Because our Lord is high, (c) terrible: a great King cuer (d) al the earth.

- (c) To al the wicked, (d) not only of one or few kingdoms, but of al the earth.
 4. He hath made peoples subiect (e) to vs: & gentils vnder our feete.
 (e) When Kings and countries become Christians, they are made subiects to the Church that was before, not heads and rulers therfore.
 5. He hath cholen his inheritance in vs: the beautie of Iacob which he loued.
 6. (f) God is ascended in (g) iubilation: and our Lord in the voice of trumpeter.
 (f) Christ God & man, after his Passion, rose from death and ascended: (g) Not leauing his Church desolate, but making her ioyful by an other comforter, the Holie Ghost.
 7. Sing ye to our (h) God, sing ye: Sing ye to our (i) King, sing ye.
 (h) The same Christ is our God, by his Diuinitie: (i) and our King by his Humane.
 8. Because God is King of al the earth: sing ye (k) wisely.
 (k) Doe our endeauour to vnderstand what you sing, read, or heare in Gods word. At least to know the principal Mysteries, and points of Christian doctrine, euerie one according to their capacitie and state or profession.
 9. God shal reigne ouer the gentils: God sitteth vpon his holie seate.
 10. Princes of peoples are gathered together with (l) the God of Abraham: because the strong (m) Gods of the earth are exceedingly aduanced.
 (l) The faithful of the old and new Testament are vnited in the seruice of one & the same eternal God. (m) In respect of the Blessed Trinitie, holie Scripture heare, and in manie places vseth names of the plural number, as Ei om, Gods, not diuiding Gods substance, which is one, but insinuating distinction of Diuine Persons, The Father, the Sonne, and the Holie Ghost. Whin Mysteric is more expresly mentioned in Baptisme, & professed by Christian Gentils, then it was by the people of the Iewes.

P S A L M E XLVII.

God most and euerie where laudable, is especially praised in the Church of Christ (prefigured by Sion, and there begun.) 9. Al things being fulfilled in the Church, euen as they were Prophecied and promised. 2. the faithful are exhorted to consider and congratulate the same.

1. A Psalme (a) of Canticle to the sonnes of Core, the (b) second of the Sabbath.

(a) Voices beginning the musike instruments profecuted. (b) Especially for the second day of the weeke, the day after the sabbath, which is our Sunday, called Dominica, our Lords day.

2. GREAT is our Lord, and to be prayed exceedingly, in (c) the citie of our God, in his holie mount.

(c) Ierusalem, and mount Sion were most obliged to praise God, for greatest benefits received: so the Catholike Church therby prefigured, & hauing received farre greater, is most of al bound to be grateful.

The Church founded and protected by God
 The 6. key.

3. Mount Sion is founded with the exultation of (d) the whole earth, (e) the sides of the North, the citie of the great King.

(d) This can not be affirmed of Sion, or Ierusalem, but is only verified of the Catholike Christian Church: (e) whose costes doe extend to the North, & to all quarters of the round earth.

4. God shall be knowen in (f) the houses therof, (g) when he shall receiue it.

(f) The same one God, one Christ, one Faith, & one Religio in all particular Churches of the whole militant Church. (g) And this Vniuersalitie and Vnitie shall be, after that Christ taking mans nature shall be ascended, and shall send the Holie Ghost, to found & begin this Church.

5. For behold the Kings of the earth (b) were gathered together: they assembled in one.

(b) For the assured certaintie of that is foreshewed, the Prophet speaketh in the preterence, as if it were already done in his time, which he then saw in spirite.

6. They seeing it so were in admiration, were troubled, were moued: 7. trembling tooke them.

Their sorowes (i) as a woman traueling. 8. In a vehement spirit (k) thou shalt breake the ships of Tharsis.

(i) Nothing more moueth the hart, & affecteth all the bodie and soule, then spiritual cogitations of faith and religion, and therefore it is compared to a woman traueling with child, who hath most careful and grieuous paines. (k) In which great conflict of mans spirit, God by his grace giueth force, to breake through the contrarie assaults of our enmie, to remoue all impediments, and to ouercome the difficulties.

9. (l) As we haue heard, so haue we seen in the citie of the Lord of hostes in the citie of our God: God hath founded it for euer.

(l) This consideration, That all is now done, that was of old prophecied, is a meruelous confirmation to Christians.

10. We haue receiued thy mercie, o God, (m) in the middes of thy temple.

(m) Grace and mercie is only granted to those that are within, or come vnto Catholike Church.

11. According to thy name, o God, so also is thy prayse vnto the ends of the earth: thy right hand is full of (n) iustice.

(n) As God is praised for his mercie, so also for his iustice; which doe neuer preiudice the one the other.

12. Let mount Sion be glad, and the daughters of Iuda reioyce, because of thy iudgements, o Lord.

13. Compassie Sion, and embrace ye her: (o) tel ye in her towers.

(o) Consider the fortresses of the Church, which are the holie Fathers, and Doctors, that watch and defend her wals.

14. Set your harts (p) on her strength: and (q) distribute ye her houses, that you (r) may declare it in another generation.

(p) So rest you assured for all matters of faith in this pillar of truth. (q) Obserue and marke diligently how manie particular Churches were speedily ioured in the world, (r) and declare this to other generations, that they may also hold fast the same faith, or returne vnto it, if they be relapsed; or at last embrace it, if sooner they haue not.

15. Because (s) this is God, our God for euer, and for euer and euer: he (t) shall rule vs euermore.

(s) Christ God incarnate that worketh all this, is our very God and Saujour, not for a few yeares, an hundred, six hundred, or a thousand, but for euer & euer. (c) He shal rule as a King, and consequently haue a Kingdom, his militant Church, euer more, to the very end of this world. As he shal like wife haue his triumphant Church in eternitie.

P S A L M E XLVIII.

The royal Prophet inuising al States and sorts of men, to heare him attentiuely, 6. sheweth that al ought to feare eternal damnation, that liue wickedly; 9. vainly and foolishly seeking (13. euen like brute beastes) carnal pleasures, which they can not long enjoy, nor long escape hel: 16. confidently animating himselfe, and al good men, that trust not in this world.

1. Vnto the end, (a) to the sonnes of Core a Psalmc.

(a) In this and diuers other titles, both before and yet ensuing, is said, To the sonnes, or, for the sonnes of Core, a Psalmc, or Canticle, or vnderstanding & the like; but in no place, a Psalmc, Canticle &c. of the sonnes of Core: which no way proueth that they were the authours of such Psalmes, but rather the contrarie.

2. HE A R E these things (b) al ye Gentils: receiue with your eares al ye that (c) inhabite the earth.

(b) Al ye nations and sorts of people (c) that dwel vpon the earth, learne this lesson which I wil teach you.

3. Al ye earthly persons, and children of men: together in one the rich and the poore.

4. My mouth shal speake wisdom, and the meditation of my hart prudence.

5. I wil (d) incline mine eare vnto a parable: I wil (e) open my proposition (f) on a Psalter.

(d) Holie Dauid harkened to God inspiring him, (e) and declared to others that which he receiued from God, (f) not only by his penne or tongue, but also for better infilling it into their minds he founded it vpon the instrument called the Psalter, which had ten strings, signifying the obseruation of the ten commandments.

6. (g) Why shal I teare in the euil day? (h) the iniquitie of my heele shal compasse me.

(g) What especial thing is there in this life, why or for which I or anie haue cause to feare the dreadful day of iudgement? (h) Marry this we must feare, iniquitie, by which any supplanteth, deffraudeth, oppresseth, or anie way wrongeth others, for that wil inuolue the offender in the sentence of eternal domination.

7. They (i) that trust in their strength: and glorie in the multitude of their riches.

(i) Such be they that trust in their present power, riches, or other wordlie things.

8. A (k) brother doth not redeeme, (l) man shal redeeme: he shal not giue vnto God his reconciliation.

(k) A mans owne brother can not help a sinner in that day, (l) much lesse anie other man: so the Hebrew phrase by zeugma, vnderstandeth an other negatiue particle.

11. He shal not see death, when he shal see (o) the wise dying, (p) the vnwise, and (q) the foole shal perish together.

(o) Alboth wise and foolish doe dye temporally : but the wise liuing in eternal ioy, the foolish liue in eternal paine. (p) Those that belieue not anie other life after this, (q) and those that belieuing an other life, yet live badly in this, shal perish in eternal damnation.

And they shal leaue their riches to strangers : 12. and their (r) sepulchers their (s) houses for euer.

(r) They shal neuer returne from their sepulchers (s) to enioy againe their houses and earthlie possessions.

Their Tabernacles in generation and generation: they haue renowned their (t) names in their lands.

(t) Which vainely they labour to establish in their posteritie.

13. And (v) man when he was in honour did not vnderstand : he was compared to beasts without vnderstanding, and became like to them.

(v) A most pitie and brief consideration, for man to thinke, how absurdly, he being endowed with reason, vnderstanding, & free wil, like vnto Angels, and capable of eternal glorie, setteth his whole studie and care vpon corporal and temporal things, so making himselfe like vnto brute beasts.

14. This their way is (w) a scandal to them: and (x) afterward in their mouth they shal take pleasure.

(w) This care of wordlie things is the stumbling block, and cause of eternal ruine: (x) yet they shal be obstinate, and praise their owne desires, still persisting therein.

15. As (y) sheep they are put in hel: death shal feede vpon them.

And the iust shal rule ouer them (z) in the morning : and their aide shal waxe old in hel from their glorie.

(y) Among other creatures a sheep can least helpe her selfe in miserie: euen so the damned in hel are altogether vnable to deliuer themselves from thence, or to get any relief. (z) In the general resurrection they shal be most of all in miserie, as euer dying and neuer dead: the iust whom they wronged, shal be their iudges, all freinds shal faile them, after they haue passed their glorie, and pleasure in this world.

16. Neuerthelesse (a) God wil redceme my soule out of the hand of hel, when he shal take me,

(a) The confidence of the iust.

17. Feare not when a man shal be made rich : and when the glory of his house shal be multiplied.

18. Because when he shal dye, he shal not take (b) all things : neyther shal his glorie goe downe with him.

(b) He shal leaue all worldlie things and take nothing with him.

19. Because his soule in his life shal be (c) blessed : he wil confesse to thee (d) when thou shalt doe him good.

(c) Temporally: (d) so long as he enioyeth wordlie profits, he wil seeme grateful to God.

20. He shal enter in, euen to the progenies of his fathers : and he shal (e) not see light for euer.

(e) But they shal not see the true light of heauen.

21. (f) Man, when he was in honour, did not vnderstand: he was compared to beaſts without vnderſtanding, and became like to them.

(f) Remember and conſider, o worldlie man, that God made thee an excellent creature: which thou neglecting makeſt thy ſelf like to a beaſt. As v. 13.

(e) Fire ſhal burne forth in his ſight: and round about him a mighty tempeſt.

(d) Chriſt that came in humilitie, & more obſcurely to ſuffer, and to redeeme vs, wil come in maieſtie, and manifeſtly to iudge. (e) Immediately before the general iudgement, fire ſhal burne al tranſitorie things.

(i) God inſtructeth his people.

8. I wil not rebuke thee in thy ſacrifices: and thy holocausts (k) are in my ſight alwaies.

(k) Sacrifices are grateful to God:

9. I wil (l) not take calues out of thy houſe: nor buck-goats out of thy flocks.

(l) But in regard that God needeth not theſe earthly things, he rather requireth a grateful mind. For otherwiſe man indeed can giue nothing to God: ſeing al that is in the whole world is Gods owne in proprietie.

10. Becauſe al the wilde beaſts of the woods be myne, the cattle in the

11. I haue knowne al the fouls of the ayer : and the beauty of the field is with me.

12. If I shal be hungrie, I wil not tel thee : for the round earth is myne, and the fulnes therof.

(p) He that wil teach others, must especially flye from sinne, & serue God sincerely.

20. Sitting thou spakest against thy brother, and against thy mothers sonne thou didst put a scandal: 21. these things hast thou done, and I haue held my peace.

Thou hast thought vniustly that I wil be like thee : I wil reprove thee, and set it against thy face.

14. 23 The sacrifice of praise) For better and more due performing of external sacrifice, it is requisite, that those which offer it, or desire to participate, doe bring with them necessarie internal vertues, or disposition; as sorow and repentance for their sinnes, which is a kind o. improper sacrifice (mentioned in the next Psalme;) the sacrifice of iustice, which rendreth to euerie one that is due (Psal 4.) and sacrifice of praise, or thanks-giuing, for al Gods benefites received or expected; which kinds of internal and improper sacrifices, doe nothing prejudice, but rightly prepare men to the fruit of external sacrifice, euer vsed in the law of nature, the law of Moyfes, and of Christ. Sacrifice of Christs bodie in the Eucharist, which is both propitiatorie, and Sacrifice of praise and thanks-giuing. So S. Augustin (orat. aduersus Iudæos c. 6.) teacheth, that here certainly is a plaine change of the old sacrifices. The same he affirmeth Ep. 120. c. 18. God foreshewing that the old sacrifices should be changed, which were offered in shadow of a sacrifice to come. I wil not take (saith God to Israel) calves nor goates at thy hand &c. but appointeth that al Israel (al nations from the rising of the sunne to the setting) shal immolare the sacrifice of praise, the same Christ whom old Simeon knew an infant, whom he receiued into his hands. Likewise li. contra aduers. legis & Prophet. c. 20. The Church offereth to God in the hodie of Christ the sacrifice of praise.

PSALME L.

The fourth
penitential
Psalme.
The 7. key.

King Dauid in great sorow for his sinnes of adulterie and murder, most seriously prayeth God of his manifold mercie to remitte and purge al his offences, and paines due for them: 12. to restore vnto him the grace of the Holie Ghost, lost by his sinnes; 15. that he may teach others (as indeed his singular example may teach the whole world true penance) 19. contrition of hart, worthily to offer sacrifice, for the whole Church.

1. Vnto (a) the end, a Psalme of Dauid, 2. " when Nathan the Prophet came to him, after that he had sinned with Bethsabee (Reg. 12.)

(a) Pertayning not only to Dauid, but also to al penitents, especially of the new testament.

3. HAve mercie on me, o God, (b) according to thy great mercie.

(b) My sinnes being very great, neede thy great mercie.

And according to (c) the multitude of thy commiserations, take away myne iniquitie.

(c) Yea manie sorts of thy mercies: not only remission of the crimes, but also mitigation of the paines due for the same: Thy merciful grace, to be truly sorie, to make some part of satisfaction, to beware hereafter not to fal againe, to giue better exemple of penance, and of vertuous life, and to perseuer to the end

4. " Wash me (d) more amply from mine iniquitie: & (e) cleanse me from my sinne.

(d) O God thou hast forgiuen me, and taken away my sinnes, as thy Prophet hath told me (2. Re. 12. v. 13.) but my soule so foully polluted, needeth yet more washing.

(e) Cleanse also the dregges that remaine, and al habits and inclinations to sinne. So our Sauour afterwards taught (Ioan. 13. v. 10.) He that is washed needeth not sauing to wash his feete (il affections and relikes of former sinnes) but is cleane wholly.

5. (f) Because I doe know myne iniquitie: and my sinne is (g) before me alwaies.

(f) Whiles I did not know, not consider, nor acknowledge my sinnes, I could not be forgiuen, but now I know and acknowledge them: (g) and I cease not to consider of them with sorow.

6. To thee (b) onely haue I sinned, and haue done euil before thee: that thou mayst (i) be iustified in thy word, and mayst (k) ouercome when thou art iudged.

(b) Principally (for so this particule, only, here signifieth) the enormities of my finnes consist in that I haue offended thy Diuine Goodnes and Maiestie, the King of the worlds, immortal, inuisible, onlie God, to whom is due al honour and glorie for euer and euer, 1. Tim. 1.v.17. (i) Thou which hast promised forgiuenes to al sinners that truly conuert, sha. herein be iustified by receiuing me againe to grace: (k) and ouerthrow thy calumniatours, that iudge wickedly of thy proceedings, as if either thy iustice or mercie were peruerted.

7. For behold "I (l) was conceiued in iniquities: & my mother conceiued me in finnes:

(l) I & al are borne in original sinne, the reliques wherof, concupiscence and weakenes, incline vs to other finnes, which we haue added. In regard of which our infirmitie, thy mercie is readie to recal vs and help vs.

8. For behold thou (m) hast loued truth: (n) the vncertaine and hidden things of thy wisdome thou hast made manifest to me.

(m) Besides thou hast also giuen me knowledge of true faith, and right doctrine, which thou euer louest, and art accustomed to reduce, and direct such into the true way of penance. (n) Yea thou hast moreouer shewed to me things vncertaine, or vnknewen to manie others, giuen me the guilt and spirit of prophetic, to know hidde mysteries, and to euerie one God gineth some particular benefits, which he loueth in him, and is ready of his part to confirme and maintaine the same, that they be not lost.

9. Thou shalt sprinkle me with (o) hyssope, and I shal be clesed: thou shalt wash me, and I shal be made (p) whiter then snow.

(o) Most merciful Lord thou wilt (as I see in the spirit of prophetic) sprinkle me, and al men with thy blood from the Crosse, where they shal giue thee vinegre about hyssope to drinke (Ioan. 9.) (p) by which washing I shal be cleane from sinne, and become in time pure, yea whiter then snow. A figure of this hyssope was obserued in Moyses Law. Num. 16. signifying the liuelie heat of Christs infinite charitie.

10. To (q) my hearing thou shalt giue ioy and gladnes, and (r) the bones humbled shal reioyce.

(q) When myne affections shal be cleane purged, I shal take singular great delight to heare of thee, (r) and al my powers of mind and bodie, which are now afflicted, shal reioyce.

11. (s) Turne away thy face from my finnes: and wipe away al mine iniquities.

(s) Leau off thy cogitation of punishing, to which porpose first take away myne iniquities, for otherwise if they remaine, Gods iustice can not but punish them.

12. (t) Create a cleane hart in me, o God: and renew a right spirit in my (v) bowels.

(t) Create in me new grace, wherby my hart shal be pure. So S. Paul calleth a iust soul a new creature, Galat. 6.v.15. (v) In my inward thoughts.

13. Cast me not away from thy face: and thy Holie spirit (w) take not from me.

(w) Suffer me not so to fal againe, that thy grace depart from me.

14. Render vnto me: (x) the ioy of thy saluation: and (y) confirme me with the principal spirit.

(x) Which I had before my fal, of Christ promised of my seed, and alter not the same for my finnes. David also and other penitents pray here, that God will restore vnto them the ioy, which they had in the state of grace, of eternal saluation promised. (7) Confirme & conserue in me hereafter a strong, constant, and willing spirite to perseuere.

15. I (7) wil teach the vniust thy waies: and the impious shal be conuerted to thee.

(7) No way can a penitent better shew him self grateful to God, for remission of his finnes, then by instructing, exhorting, & perswading other sinners to repentance, to leaue their former il wayes, and turne to God.

16. Deliuier me (a) from blouds, o God, the God of my saluation: and my tongue shal exult (for) thy iustice.

(a) From the guilt and punishment of murder, causing Vrrias and others with him to be slaine. Other penitents pray to be deliuered from what finnes soeuer they haue committed, by sheding bloud, or other wrongs & iniuries, promising to praise Gods iustice, in offering and giuing grace, according to his promise to sinners, that they may repent.

17. Lord thou (b) wilt open my lips: & my mouth shal shew forth thy prayse.

(b) Thou, o God, first stirring me vp, opening my lips; which of my selfe I can not doe, then my tongue and mouth wil praise thee.

18. Because if thou (c) wouldest haue had sacrifice, I had verily giuen it: with holocaustes thou wilt (d) not be dilighted.

(c) If thou wouldest especially legal sacrifice, I would easily haue offered great store: (d) but the best of that kind is not sufficient:

19. "A sacrifice to God is (e) an afflicted spirit: a contrite and humbled hart, o God, thou wilt not despise.

(e) true contrition of hart pleaseth thee farre better.

20. Deale fauourably, o Lord, in thy good wil (f) with Sion: that the wals of Ierusalem may be built vp.

(f) After a penitent hath remission of his owne finnes, he must pray for the whole Church.

21. (g) Then shalt thou accept sacrifice of (h) iustice, (i) oblations, & (k) holocausts: (l) then shal they lay calues vpon thyne altar.

(g) The Church prospering, her faithful children shal offer (h) the sacrifice of iustice, rendering to euerie one that is due: (i) also free offerings without obligation, (k) yea holocausts, which is the chiefe, (l) calues, and like hosts vpon the altar, according to the state of the old law: but in the law of Christ, the most B. Sacrifice by him instituted.

Temporal punishment is due after remission of finnes.

2. When Nathan came to David. As Nathan denouncing to David that our Lord had (vpon his repentance and confession) taken away his sinne, added neuertheles, that because he had made the enimies of God to blaspheme, his sonne should dye: so David knowing that more was required then only confession, for that the bond of satisfaction remained after his sinnes were remitted, persisted in penance, praying, lamenting, and beseeching God according to his great and manifold mercies, to take away his iniquitie, albeit the Prophet Nathan had now told him, that our Lord had taken away his sinne, because there yet remained temporal paine due for the same. He prayeth also v. 4. that God wil, wash him more amply from his iniquitie, and cleanse him from his sinne. For albeit the guilt of mortal sinne be washed and taken away, yet besides temporal punishment that is due, the soule that was so polluted, needeth to be washed, and cleansed from the euil habite, or pronenes to fall againe, gotten by the former custome, or delectation in sinne.

7. I Was conceived in iniquities. An other reason why sinners after remission of all mortal sinnes, neede to be washed, and cleansed, is, because being borne in original sinne, after remission thereof, there remaineth concupiscence, that striueth against vertue, and inclineth to sinne, from which we must pray, and labour to be more and more washed and cleansed.

19. Sacrifices. Holie Scriptures make often comparison between two kinds of sacrifices, preferring internal before external, as more grateful to God. And of spiritual sacrifices, this of a contrite spirite is first in order, and maketh the way to the sacrifice of iustice, because iustice presupposeth repentance; and finally succeedeth sacrifice of praise, and thanks-giuing.

Custome of sinne maketh more pronenes to fall againe.

Concupiscence remaineth after original sinne.

Spiritual sacrifice preferred before external.

Holie Dauid inueigheth against wicked Doeg a traitour; 7 prophesieth his ruine, 10. and his owne exaltation.

Vnto the end, vnderstanding to Dauid, 1. when Doeg (a) the Idumeite came and told Saul: Dauid is come into the house of (b) Achimelech.

(1. Reg. 22.)

(a) Of the race of Esau, half a Jew, but either an Infidel, or fauour of Infidels, a spie for Saul, a persecutour of Dauid, & a murderer of Innocents. 2. Reg. 22. v. 9. 18.

(b) High Priest, slaine with 84. more Priestes and others, because they were supposed to fauour Dauid. ibidem.

3. WH Y dost thou (c) glorie in malice, which art mightie in iniquitie?

(c) Thou persecutour Doeg, why art thou so malicious, to abuse thy credite with King Saul, to the murdering of innocents?

4. All the day hath thy tongue thought iniustice: as a sharp rasor thou (d) hast done guile.

(d) Playing the part of a spie, in betraying to Saul, that I was with Achimelech?

5. Thou hast loued malice more then benignitie: (e) iniquitie rather then to speake equitie.

(e) Though he told a truth, yet it was iniquitie to betray innocents.

6. Thou hast loued all words of precipitation, a deceitful tongue.

7. Therefore wil God destroy thee for euer, he wil (f) plucke thee out, & remoue thee out of thy tabernacle: & (g) thy roote out of the land of the liuing.

(f) Thou shalt vtterly be destroyed, (g) & all thy race.

8. The iust shal see, and feare, and shal laugh at him, and they shal say:

Behold the man, that hath not put God for his helper.

But hath hoped in the multitude of his riches, and hath (b) preuailed in his vanitie.

10. But I as (i) a fruitful oliue tree in the house of God, haue hoped in the mercie of God for euer: and for euer and euer.

(i) Dauid prophecieth his owne exaltation, and conseruation of his seede in the Kingdom of Israel.

11. I wil (k) confesse to thee for euer, because thou hast done it: and I wil expect thy (l) name, because it is good in the sight of thy Saints.

(k) Sing praise & thanks to thee. (l) Thy Goodnes, which agreeth to thy name.

PSALME LII.

As in the thirteenth Psalme Christs Incarnation is prophecied, after that sinne abounded in the world: so here is foreshewed that after general wickednes, 5. Christ wil come to iudge the bad, 7. and deliuer the good.

1. Vnto the end, for (a) Maelth, (b) vnderstandings of Dauid.

(a) Weakenes, or mourning. (b) S. Augustin expoundeth this Psalme as an instruction to those that suffer persecution and iniuries, especially neere the end of the world.

TH E foole hath said in his hart: There is no God.

2. They are corrupt, and become abominable in iniquities: there is not that doth good.

3. God hath looked forth from heauen, vpon the children of men: to see if there be that vnderstandeth, or seeketh after God.

4. Al haue declined, they are become vnprofitable together: there is not that doth good, no there is not one.

5. Shal they not al know that worke iniquitie, that deuour my people as food of bread?

6. God they haue not inuocated: there haue they trembled for feare, where no feare was.

Because God hath (c) dissipated the bones of them (d) that please men: they are confounded, because God hath despised them.

(c) God wil ouerthrow al the counsels and forces (d) of worldlie politikes.

7. (e) Who wil giue out of Sion the saluation of Israel: when God shal conuert the captiuitie of his people: Iacob shal reioyce, and Israel shal be glad.

(e) The true Church afflicted desireth Christs coming to deliuer the oppressed.

18. In (e) the euening, and morning, & at midday, I wil * speake, and & declare, and he wil heare my voice.

(e) The Prophet alludeth to three more specially appointed houres of Diuine seruice, the daylie sacrifice at morning, and euening, and other sacrifices commonly about midday. Which also are the three principal times of Diuine Seruice in the Church of Christ: Mattins, Euen-song, and the Sacrifice of Masse. Which Eutyminus and other Grecians cal Lyturgiam. S. Clement also (li. 7. c. 25. Apost. Instit.) testifieth that the Apostles ordained three set houres of common prayer euerie day.

19. He wil redeeme my soule in peace from them, that approach to me: because among manie (f) they were with me.

20. God wil heare, and he (g) which is before the worlds wil humble them.

(g) Eternal God.

(h) They wil neuer repent of their wickednes.

22. They haue contaminated his testament, they are (i) diuided by the wrath of his countenance; and (k) his hart hath approached.

(i) They harden their harts against his threatned wrath: (k) but Gods prouidence illuminateth others to know and teach the truth, when it is impugned or conuened.

(l) His words are made softer then oile: and (m) the same are darts.

(l) Gods words, which in themselves are meeke and sweete, (m) are hard to the incredulous, & as darts that wound them. Christ said (Ioan. 6.) Vnto one eate my flesh, & drinke my blood, he shal not haue life in him, which the Capharnaites not vnderstanding said one to another: This is a hard speech, who can abide it? which S. Augustin here saith was the first heresie against our Sauours preaching. It was not hard to S. Peter, who in the name of the rest, answered, that Christ had the words of eternal life. He yet vnderstood not the secret of our Lords speech, but he piously be-lieued that the words were good, which he vnderstood not.

23. (n) Cast thy care vpon our Lord: and he wil nourish thee: he wil not giue (o) fluctuation to the iust for euer.

(n) Therefore in al doubts of doctrine, in al distreffes of persecucion, and other difficulties which surpasse thy weaknes, cast thy care vpon our Lord, and he wil nourish thee. (o) He wil not suffer the iust to remaine alwayes in fluctuation, that is, in doubtful, dangerous, and wauering thoughts or perplexities, as when a ship is tossed in the waues of the sea, but wil giue quiet repose of mind, as in a sure hauen without danger or drowning.

24. But thou, o God, wilt bring (p) them downe into the pit of destruction.

(p) Contrariwise the wicked and obstinate shal fal into destruction.

(q) Bloody and deceitful men shal not liue halie their dayes, but I wil

(h) Of these most eminent great dangers I am indeed afeard, (i) but so that my trust and assured confidence is in thee, o God.

5. In God I wil praise (k) my words, in God haue I hoped: I wil not feare

The 8. key.

Holie Dauid (being besieged in his owne house by men sent to kil him) confidently prayeth God to deliuer him , 6. and al faithful nations in like danger: 7. and praiseth God.

1. Vnto the end, destroy not, to Dauid in the inscription of the title, (a) when Saul sent, and watched his house to kil him (1. Reg. 19.)

(a) King Saul hauing thrise attempted in vaine to kil Dauid (1. Reg. 18. v. 11. & c. 19. v. 9.) sent some of his guard to fetch him, from his owne house, that he might be slaine: but God moued the mind of Michol, to admonish him of the danger and to helpe him away in-fartie, though Saul thought she would haue been a scandal vnto him (or cause of ruine) by the hands of the Philistians. 1. Reg. 18. v. 21. Vpon which occasion Dauid made this Psalme. As he also made others, for perpetual memorie of Gods like benefits, in deliuering him in imminent dangers, when Saul sent three troups of sericants to kil him, and solowed them himselfe. 1. Reg. 19. v. 20. likewise when he was knowen and bewrayed before Achis King of Geth. 1. Reg. 21. also in Ceila, in the deserts of Ziph, and of Maon, c. 23. in Engaddi, c. 24. in Hachila, c. 26. and againe amongst the Philistians, c. 27. and 30.

2. DELIVER me from mine enimies, o my God: and from them that rise vp against me defend me.

3. Deliuer me from them that worke iniquitie: and from bloody men saue me.

4. Because loe they (b) haue taken my soule: the strong haue salne violently vpon me.

(b) They haue so streily besieged me, that it is now in their hands to take away my life.

5. Neyther is it mine iniquitie, nor my sinne, o Lord: (c) without iniquitie haue I runne, and gone directly.

(c) Of my part I haue committed no fault against myne enimies, for which they can haue anie iust cause to persecute me.

6. Ryse vp to meete me, and see: and thou, o Lord, the God of powres, God of Israel, attend to visite (d) al nations: haue (e) no mercie on al that worke iniquitie.

(d) The Prophet foreseeing in spirite, that the Catholike Church shal be vniustly persecuted, prayeth, and teacheth others to pray, that God wil mercifully visite his faithful people of al nations: (e) and not spare obstinate persecuters.

7. They wil returne (f) at euening: and they shal suffer famine (g) as dogs, and shal compasse the citie.

(f) Persecuters labouring how much, or how long soeuer, shal at night, that is, in the end of al their wicked endeauours be vnsatisfied in their desires, (g) as hungrie dogs that run hunting al the day, & night also, stil seeking & not finding wherwith to fil their rauinous mouths and deuouring bellies.

8. Behold they (b) wil speake in their mouth, and a sword in their lippes: (i) because who hath heard?

(b) They threaten and determine to vse al crueltie, (i) as if there were no God, that heareth, and wil punish it.

Dauid in banishment with great affection desireth to vnite himselfe with God in meditation. 4. purposing and promising euer to praise him: 10. prophesieth the vaine endeauours, and condemnation of his enemies, and his owne aduancements.

1. A Psalm (a) of Dauid when he was in the desert of Iuda. (Reg. 22.)

(a) Holie Dauid made this deuout meditation when he was in the forest of Haret, or desert of Ziph. 1. Reg. 22. & 23. and could not come to the tabernacle of God, nor to Ierusalem, where he especially desired to be, in the inheritance of our Lord, which was to him a great affliction. As the like is now to Catholikes, when they are put in close prison for their faith, or othe. wise hindred, that they can not be present at the most holie and daylie Sacrifice. In which case we must supplie as we may, this great losse, and comfort our selues with this, or like Psalm, or prayer, saying: O God my God, to thee I watch.

2. O GOD my God to thee I watch, (b) from the morning light.
(c) My soule hath thirsted to thee, (d) my flesh to thee very manie wayes.

(b) Euen from the first dawning of the morning, (c) my soule thirsteth after thee, (d) yea also my very flesh, and whole bodie teeleth great paines, by this affliction of mind, and desireth releefe and rest.

4. Because (g) thy mercie is better then liues, my lippes shal prayse thee.

(g) This consolation in banishment from thy diuine Seruice, is sweeter to me then manie temporal liues, or anie worldlie prosperitie.

5. (h) So wil I blesse thee in my life: and in thy name I wil lifte vp my hands.

(h) For as the Passions of Christ abound in vs (saith S. Paul. 2. Cor. 1.) so also by Christ our comfort aboundeth.

6. As with (i) marrow and fatnes let my soule be filled: (k) and my mouth shal praise with lips of exultation.

12. But (r) the King shal reioice in God, al shal be praised that sweare by him: because the mouth is stopped of those that speake wicked things.

(r) Dauid was presently after Sauls death exalted to the Kingdome, in figure of Christ, whose name and glorie was exalted, after the destruction of the Iewes by Pagan Emperours.

PSALME LXIV.

God is rightly praised in Sion and Ierusalem (in his Church only) for his benefits bestowed and promised, 8. vnto which also in the time of grace al nations shal be called.

1. To the end, a Psalm of Dauid, (a) the Canticle of Ieremie, and Ezechiel, to the people of the transmigration, when they began to goe forth.

(a) The seuentie Interpreters seeing Dauid here prophetic of the peoples returne from Babylon, added the names of Ieremie and Ezechiel, who being in that captiuitie prophetic the same more largely. As ſaint Paul after his meritorious trauels confidently expected his glorious reward, when he ſaid (1. Tim. 4.) I haue fought a good fight, I haue conſummate my courſe, I haue kept my faith. Concerning the reſt, there is layde vp for me a Crowne of iuſtice, which our Lord wil render to me in that day, a iuſt Iudge. And not only to me: but to them alſo that loue his comming. And this is called the crowne of the yeare of Gods benignitie, becauſe God of his owne benignitie, without mans former deſert giueth grace, and in the end for merite following, giueth a crowne of glorie. So our bleſſed ſauour according to his fulnes of grace, which was in his ſoule, and infinite merite, receiued a crowne of glorie, in the conſummation of his temporal liue, after the ſpace of thirtie three yeares. And our Bleſſed Ladie the Mother of God receiued an anſwerable crowne to her excellent grace and merits, in the conſummation of her liue, at the end of ſixtie three yeares. 10. Because thou (m) hast proued vs, o God: by fire thou hast tried vs, as siluer is tried.

(m) God suffereth his Church to be persecuted with al kinds of tribulation, as some are heere recited.

(r) These were the best external sacrifices of the old law:

16. (s) Come ye, heare, and I wil tel al ye that feare God, what great things he hath done for my soule.

(s) But both then and now the internal sacrifices of contrite hart, of iustice, and of diuine praise best please God

17. To him haue I cried with my mouth, and haue exulted (t) vnder my tong.

18. (v) If I haue beheld iniquitie in my hart, our Lord wil not heare.

(v) Whofocuer wil be heard in prayer, must repent of his sinnes.

Notwithstanding great persecutions the Church prospereth. 10. Especially in the new testament, by Apostolical function, 18. ministerie of Angels, Christs Ascension, comming of the Holie Ghost, 31. confirming the faithful, representing the insolent, and conuerting manie. 35. For al which the Prophet inuirteth al men to praise God.

1. Vnto the end, a Psalm of Canticle, to Dauid himself.
2. LET (a) God arise, and let his enemies be disperfed, and let them that hate him (b) flye from his face.
 (a) In manner of praying that God wil vouchsafe to defend the Church, the Psalmist prophecieth that God wil arise, (b) and the cnenies shal flye away, not daring to abide the combat.

3. As smoke vanisheth, let them vanish away: as waxe melteth at the presence of fire, so let sinners perish at the presence of God.

4. And (i) let the iust make merrie, and reioyce in the sight of God: and let them be delighted in inirth.

(i) As God is terrible to the wicked: so he is comfortable to the iust.

5. Sing to God, say a Psalme to his name: (d) make way to him, who (e) mounteth vpon the west, (f) Lord is his name.

(d) Resist not Gods inspiration, but receiue it with ioy and thanks. (e) Who triumpheth ouer death (f) God is Lord, not only of these or those nations, countries or other creatures, but absolutely and vniuersally of al.

Reioyce ye in his sight, they shal be troubled at the presence of him: 6. the father of orphanes, and iudge of widowes.

God in his (g) holie place: 7. God that maketh men to inhabite (h) of one manner in a house.

(g) That is the true holie Church, which hath (h) vnitie in doctrine, touching faith and manners. S. Cyr. ep. 76.

That bringeth forth them (i) that be bound in strength, likewise them that (k) exasperate, that dwell (l) in sepulchers.

(i) That be bound in sinne, (k) euen rebellious wils are altered by Gods mercie, & freely embrace his law, (l) Ifo the dead and drie hearts that cared not for spiritual things are softened, and quickned with new grace.

8. O God (m) when thou wentest forth in the sight of thy people, when thou didst passe through the desert.

(m) The benefis bestowed on the Israelites, are written in the books of Moyfes, Iosue, and Iudges.

9. The earth was moued, and the heauens also distilled, at the presence of the God of Sina, at the face of the God of Israel.

10. (n) Voluntarie rayne shalt thou separate, o God, to thine inheritance: and it was (o) weakned, but thou hast perserued it.

(n) Not mans deseruing, but Gods mere good wil, and free grace caused Christ to come, and by himselfe and his Apostles to preach the Euangelical doctrine, which watereth the whole world. (o) God chose the weake, but made them strong.

11. Thy (p) liuing creatures shal dwell in it: thou hast prepared (q) in thy sweetnes for the poore, o God.

(p) Those whom thou hast chosen, and so made thyne owne peculiar people, shal enjoy this grace. (q) Thou gauest Manna in the desert, the B. Sacrament in the new testament.

12. Our Lord shal giue (r) the word to them that euengelize, (s) with great power.

(r) God giueth to the Preacher what to speake, (s) and to some he giueth also power to worke miracles, in confirmation of their doctrine. Mar. 16.

13. The (t) King of holis the beloued of the beloued: and (v) to the beautie of the house, to diuide the spoyies.

(t) Some potent King, or (as it is in the Hebrew) Kings being beloued of the beloued of God, the only Sonne of God, shal yeald themselves to the same beloued Sonne of God: (v) which shal redound to the glorie and beautie of his Church, gaying such spiritual prayes from the diuel.

14. It ye (w) sleepe among the middest of the lotts, the wings of a doue layde ouer with siluer, and the hinder parts of her backe in the paucens of gold.

(w). If you be in such danger, that the aduersaries cast dice, or lots for your persons, and goods, yet you shall be deliuered, as if a doue, with her glittering feathers, like siluer and gold, flye away into a secure place, without losse or diminution, but rather with increase of vertues.

15. Whiles (x) the heauenlie discerneth Kings ouer her, (y) with snow they shall be made white in Selmon.

(x) When the heauenlie King determineth thus of earthlie Kings, (y) they shall be purged from their sinnes, and made white like snow, that falleth in mount selmon, which is a shadowed hill, thicke with trees, in mount Ephraim neere to Iordan.

16. "The (z) mountaine of God a fat mountaine.

(z) The Church of God is visible, and durable like to a mountaine.

A mountaine (a) curded as cheefe, a (b) fatte mountaine: 17. " why (c) suppose you curded mountaines?

(a) Combined, or ioyned together, as when mike is turned into curde, and so into cheefe. (b) Fruitful, enriched by spiritual gifts of the Holie Ghost. (c) Ye that are not of this Church, doe in vaine and erroneously imagine, that anie other mountaines are vnited.

A mountaine, in which it hath wel pleased God to dwel therein: for indeed our Lord wil dwel euen to the end.

18. The (d) chariot of God is then thousand fold, thousands of them that reioyce, our Lord in them, (e) in Sina in the holie place.

(d) Innumerable Angels ministers of Gods wil, doe continually attend vpon his Diuine Maiestie, as if he (who otherwise needeth no seruice) were caried by them, as in a chariot of infinite magnificence. Dan. 7. (e) So God appeared in Maiestie, when he gaue his law in mount Sinai.

19. Thou art (f) ascended on high, thou (g) hast taken captiuitie: thou (h) hast receiued gifts in men: for euen those (i) that doe not belieue, our Lord God to inhabite.

Eph. 4.

(f) Christ ascended with innumerable Angels attending vpon him, (g) caried with him the fathers of the old testament, that had been captiue, (h) as man he receiued gifts of God, in and for men, his faithful seruants, (i) yea also he receiued for his merite, that innumerable which before were incredulous were conuerted, and God dwelt in their souls.

20. Blessed be our Lord day by day: the God of our saluations wil make vs a prosperous iourney.

21. Our God is the God of sauing: and (k) the issues of death are of our Lord, our Lord.

(k) Our Lord, I say, our Lord, and none but he could ouercome death by dying.

22. But yet God (l) stil breake the heads of his enemies: the hairie crowne of them, that walke in their sinnes.

(l) Though Christ died to deliuer al men from death, yet he wil giue capital sentence of eternal death to al that obstinately remaine his enimies, and multiplie sinnes vpon sinnes, to the end of their temporal life.

23. Our Lord said: Out (m) of Basan I wil conuert, I wil conuert (n) into the depth of the sea.

(m) Euen of the rudest barbarous nations, manie shall be conuerted to Christianitie (n) namely Gods grace is extended into the Ilands of the Ocean, and other seas.

24. That thy foote (o) may be dipped in bloud: the tong of thy dogs (made redde) with * the same (bloud) of the enimies.

(o) But such seuerer slaughter shal fal vpon the obstinate contemners of this grace, that mens feete shal be defiled in their bloud, and dogs shal lappe it.

25. They (p) haue seen thy entrings in, o God, the entrings of my God: of my King who is (q) in the holie place.

(p) Minie haue seen, or knowen in general, but the faithful more exactly know how Christ came into this world, his conuersation therein, and his going forth; (q) his reigning now in heauen our Mediatour, by whom al other intercessours haue accessse to God.

26. (r) Princes came before (s) ioyned with them that sang, in the middes (t) of yong women playing on timbrels.

(r) The Apostles sowing the first seed of Euangelical doctrine, (s) with whom other Apostolical men; (t) and other souls of al nations conuerted by their preaching, most ioyfully sing together in hart, voice, & instruments: especially in good works, shew their grateful affections to our Redeemer.

27. In (v) Churches blesse ye God our Lord, of (w) the fountaines of Israel.

(v) And al this in the particular Churches of diuers Kingdoms, and parts of the world: (w) beginning with the Israelites in Ierusalem, and so proceeding into al Iurie, and Samaria, and to the vtmost of the earth. Act. 1.

28. There (x) Benjamin a yong man, in excesse of minde.

(x) S. Paul of Jacobs yongest sonne Benjamin, last called to Apostleship, was chiefly sent to the Gentils.

(y) The Princes of Iuda their leaders: the Princes of Zabulon, the Princes of Nephthali.

(y) Other Apostles of diuers tribes sent first to the Iewes, secondarily to Gentils.

29. Command thy strength, o God: (z) confirme this, o God, which thou hast wrought in vs.

(z) As the Church began by the omnipotent power of God; so by the same only power it is conserued.

30. From thy temple in Ierusalem, Kings shal offer gifts to thee.

31. Rebuke (a) the wilde beasts of the reede, the congregation (b) of buls in the kine of thy peoples: (c) that they may exclude them, which are tried with siluer.

(a) Chastice therefore, o God, al persecuters of thy Church, who are but as weake wauering reeds, in comparison of thy power, (b) no better then buls, with kyne, that is, captaines and popular people, (c) endeauouring to alienate the constant proued Confessours from their faith.

Dissipate the nations that wil warres: 32. Legates shal come (d) out of Aegypt: Aethiopia shal prevent his hands to God.

(d) A prophecie that manie should be conuerted to Christ in Aegypt, & Aethiopia: as appeareth by the innumerable multitude of religious Monks, & Nunnes in those countries, shortly after the Apostles dayes.

33. Ye Kingdoms (e) of the earth sing to God: sing to our Lord:

(e) The like afterwards in al other nations, whom therefore the Prophet inuirteth to praise God, for so inestimable benefits in the whole world.

34. Sing ye to God, that mountereth vpon the heauen of heauen, to the East.

Behold he wil giue to his voice (f) the voice of strength : 35. giue you glorie to God vpon Israel, his magnificence, and his power in the clouds.

(f) Christ wil come to iudge, in terrour of voice, and with magnificence, accompanied with holie Angels and other Saints.

36. God is meruailous in his Saints, the God of Israel he wil giue power and strength to his people, God be blessed.

ANNOTATIONS.

PSALME LXVII.

Markes of the Church :
 Visibilitie.
 Sanctitie.
 Vnitie.

Perpetuitie.
 Assured veritie.

No other pretended Church hath the marke of vnitie or the rest.

16. The mountaine of God.) For better discerning the true Church from other congregations, the Prophet here describeth certaine proprieties therof, for he calleth it a mountaine, because it is most visible to al men. Secondly, a fat mountaine, that is, replenished with al vertues, and grifts of the Holie Ghost; wherof it is called Holie. Thirdly, it is curded, or consolidated in vnitie of faith and Religion, which conioyne the whole bodie, making it solide and firme, as the ruen turneth liquid milke into curde, and so into cheese. Fourthly, it is the Congregation, wherin God alwayes remaineth, cuen to the end, for euer; which sheweth two other proprieties; that the Church neuer faileth, nor erreth in doctrine: God stil dwelling therein, and consequently conserueth it from error in doctrine.

17. Why suppose you curded mountaines.) As for other congregations, it is certaine and eident, that they are not the Church of God, because they are not curded, that is not vnited, in the same points of faith, but only in negatiue points, and in general opposition against the Catholike Church, and among themselues notoriously disagreeing and diuided. As they also want the other markes of the true Church.

PSALME LXVIII.

Christ's afflictions and victorie.
 The 5. key.

Christ in middes of afflictions (as one in dangerous waters) 5. describing the malice of persecutours, and his owne true Zele, 14. prayeth his heauenlie Father for helpe. 23. By way of iust imprecation foresheweth the seuer punishment of his aduersaries, 30. his owne glorious Resurrection, and prosperous building of his Church. For which he imitteth al creatures to praise God.

(a) Perteyning to the new Testament, (b) for Gentils conuerted to Christianitie, and from vice to vertue, (c) prefigured in Dauid.

2. SA V E me, o God : because (d) waters are entred into my soule.

(d) Vehement afflictions inuiron my hart.

3. I (e) sticke fast in the myre of the depth : and there is no sure standing.

I am come into the depth of the sea : and a tempest hath ouerwhelmed me.

4. I haue (f) laboured crying, my iawes are made hoarse : my eies haue failed, failed, whiles I hope in my God.

(f) Our Lord sweat bloud for anguish in his prayer, and was not deliuered from his passion, neither are his seruants presently deliuered from tribulations, but as is most to gods honour and their owne good.

Joan. 15. 5. They are multiplied about the haire of my head, that hate me without cause.

Mine enimies are made strong, that haue persecuted me vniustly: (g) then did I pay the things that I tooke not.

(g) Our Sauour who had no sinne, payd the ransom for al finnes.

6. O God thou knowest my (h) foolishnes: and (i) mine offences are not hid from thee.

(h) O God thou knowest, that this which seemeth folie to worldlie men, is true wisdom (i) and though men charge me with offences, thou knowest that I am innocent.

7. (k) Let them not be ashamed vpon me, which expected thee, o Lord, Lord of hosts.

(k) Suffer not the weake to be scandalized in my passions.

Let them not be confounded vpon me that seeke thee, o God of Israel.

8. Because for thee haue I sustained reproch, confusion hath covered my face.

9. I am become a forener to my brethren, and a stranger to the sonnes of my mother.

Joan. 2.
Rom. 15. 10. Because (l) the zeale of thy house hath eaten me: and the reproches of them that reproched thee, fell vpon me.

(l) The zeale of seeking Gods honour, in propagating and aduancing his Church, is the cause of persecution. As we see those are lesse persecuted, which haue lesse godlie zeale.

11. And I couered my soule in fasting: and it (m) was made a reprocch to me.

(m) The wicked doe reproch those that mortifie themselves.

12. And I put haire-cloth my garment, & I became a parable to them.

13. They spake against me (n) that sate in the gate; and they song against me that dranke wine.

(n) The great men and iudges, also the drunkards and rascalitie of the people.

14. But I (o) my prayer to thee, o Lord: a time of thy good pleasure, o God.

(o) But I direct my prayer to thee.

(p) In the multitude of thy mercie heare me, in the truth of thy saluatiō.

(p) Expecting the time of thy good pleasure.

15. Deliuer me out of the myre, that I stick not fast: deliuer me from them that hate me, and from the depths of (q) waters.

(q) Tribulations.

16. Let not the tempest of water drowne me, nor the depth swallow me: (r) neyther let the pit shut his mouth vpon me.

(r) Though Christ died and was buried, and in soule descended into hel, yet he could not be holden in his sepulchre, nor in limbo, but rose againe.

17. Heare me, o Lord, because thy mercie is benigne: according to the multitude of thy commiserations haue respect to me.

18. And turne not away thy face from thy seruant : because I am in tribulation, heare me speedily.

19. Attend to my soule, and deliuer it : (f) because of mine enimies deliuer me.

(f) That they might either be conuerted, or confounded, and so doe no more hurt.

20. Thou knowest my reproch & my confusion, & my shame.

21. In thy fight are al they that afflict me, my hart hath looked for reproch and miserie.

And I expected some bodie that would be sorie together with me, and there (t) was none: and that would comfort me, and I found not.

(t) Not anie that could mitigate our Sauiours affliction, would shew compassion towards him. Mat. 27.
Ioan. 19.

(z) Christ, whom God of this mercie designed to suffer death, for redemption of mankind, the Iewes of mere enuie and malice persecuted to death.

28. Adde thou (a) iniquitie vpon their iniquitie : and let them not enter into thy iustice.

(a) A prophecie that God would suffer them, to fal from one iniquitie to an other.

29. (b) Let them be put out of the booke of the liuing : and with the iust let them not be written.

(b) In the end of their liues, they shal not be found in the booke of life, where they suppose themselues to be written.

30. (c) I am poore and sorrowful : (d) thy saluation, o God, hath receiued me.

(c) The voice of Christ, humbling himselfe to death, euen to death of the Crosse: (d) from which he rose againe.

31. I wil praise the name of God with canticle : and wil magnifie him in prayse.

32. And (e) it shal please God more then a yong calfe: that bringeth forth hornes and hoofs.

(e) Deuout praise and thanks-giuing please God more then sacrifices of the most tender-calues, which were otherwise also grateful sacrifices.

33. Let the poore see and reioyce: seeke ye God, and your soule shal liue.

34. Because our Lord hath heard the poore: and he hath not despised (f) his prisoners.

(f) God doth assuredly comfort al such, as are imprisoned for professing the truth.

35. Let (g) the heauens and earth praise him, the sea, and al the creeping beasts in them.

(g) Al the creatures of God.

(h) God wil alwayes establish and protect the Catholike Church: (i) and particular Churches, members of the vniuersal, shal also prosper.

And they shal inhabite there, & by inheritance they shal get it.

37. And (k) the seede of his seruants shal possesse it, and they that loue his name shal dwel in it.

(k) Perpetual succession of the Catholike Church.

An other prayer of Dauid, when he was persecuted by Absalom: made in a Psalme after his deliuerie.

Dauids prayer
in persecution.
The 8. key.

1. Vnto (a) the end, a Psalme of Dauid, in remembrance, that our (b) Lord saued him.

(a) An apt prayer also for the afflicted in the new Testament, (b) from the danger of Absolon (2. Reg. 18.) or from any persecutour.

2. O God (c) intend vnto my helpe: Lord (d) make hast to helpe me.

(c) Al men at al times neede Gods helpe: (d) but most present neede, in present dangers. The rest of this Psalme is conteyned in the 39. Psalme from the 15. verse. But there the whole Church prayeth for helpe, the world being almost drowned in sinnes; here Dauid, or other particular persons, or peoples pray in their seueral distresses.

Psa. 39.

3. Let them be confounded and be ashamed, that seeke my soule.

4. Let them be turned away backward, and be ashamed that wil me euils.

Let them be turned away forthwith ashamed, that say to me: Wel, Wel.

5. Let al that seeke thee reioyce, and be glad in thee, and let them say alwayes: Our Lord be magnified: which loue thy saluation.

6. But I am needie and poore: O God helpe me, thou art my helper, and deliurer: o Lord be not slacke.

A prayer for perseuerance in vertue.
The 7. Key.

King Dauid, or anie other iust person prayeth God to continue his grace and protection against the malice of the enimie. 5. Recounteth Gods mercie in deliuering him from falling into tentations: 6. prayeth for the same in old age, or weakenes of bodie and spirite, 20. and promiseth perpetual gratitude and praises.

1. A Psalm (a) for Dauid, (b) of the sonnes of Ionadab, and (c) the former captiues.

(a) Though this Psalm (as also diuers others) is intituled to, or for Dauid, it pro-ueth not that some other was the authour thereof, but the Seuentie Interpreters infinate hereby, that it pertaineth in more particular sort to Dauid, growing old;
(b) they adde also the sonnes of Ionadab a most holie familie; (c) who for their singular pietie, were suffered to remaine in Ierusalem in the first captiuitie. Ier. 35.

IN thee o Lord (d) I haue hoped, let me not be confounded for euer:
2. in (e) thy iustice deliuer me, and receiue me.

(d) The words of Dauid, or anie faithful iust person. (e) God of his iustice reuen-geth the iniuries done to his seruants.

Incline thine eare to me and saue me.

3. Be vnto me for a God protectour, and for a fenced place: that thou maist saue me:

Because thou art my firmament, and my refuge.

4. My God deliuer me out of the hand of the sinner, and out of the hand of him that doth against the law, and of the vniust.

5. Because thou art (f) my patience, o Lord; o Lord my hope from my youth.

(f) Through thy grace I haue patience to expect thy pleasure, when I shal be relieued.

6. Vpon thee haue I been confirmed from the wombe: from my mothers bellie thou art my protectour.

In thee is my singing alwaies: 7. I was made to manie as (g) a wonder:
& thou art a strong helper.

(g) It seemeth strange to most men, why the iust haue more troubles then the wicked.

8. Let my mouth be filled with praise, that I may sing thy glorie: (h) al the day thy greatnes.

(h) A necessarie prayer for perseuerance, which none can haue without special and continual helpe of grace.

9. Reiect me not in the time of olde age: (i) when my strength shal faile, forsake me not.

(i) Against this special danger, and last assaults of the enimie, Christ hath instituted the Sacrament of Extreme Vnction.

10. Because mine enimies haue said to me: and they that watched my loue consulted together.

11. Saying: God hath forsaken him, pursue, and take him: because there is none to deliuer.

12. O God be not farre from me: my God haue respect to mine ayde.

13. Let them be confounded & fayle that detract from my soule: let them be couered with confusion and shame, that seeke euils to me.

14. But I wil alwayes hope: and (k) wil adde vpon al thy praise.

(k) The best meanes to conserue vertue, is to exercise the same, adding good works towards our neighbours, and praises to God.

15. My mouth shal shew forth thy iustice: al the day thy saluation. Because (l) I haue not knowne learning (m) I wil enter into the (n) powers of our Lord: 16. Lord I wil be mindful of thy iustice onely.

(l) I proesse not exact knowledge of natural things; (m) but I consider and contemplate the infinite power of God, which appeareth in his works, (n) and his iust iudgements, as partly haue appeared in punishing, and rewarding some in this life, but especially wil be manifest in the end of this world.

17. O God thou hast taught me from my youth: and vntil now I wil pronounce thy meruelous works.

18. And vnto ancient age, and olde age: o God, forsake me not? Vntil I shew forth thy arme to al the generation, that is to come.

Thy might, 19. and thy iustice, o God, euen to the highest, great meruailes, which thou hast done: O God who may be like to thee?

20. How great tribulations: hast thou shewed me, manie and euil: and turning thou (o) hast quickned me: and from the depths of the earth thou hast brought me backe againe.

(o) After tribulations recreated me.

21. Thou hast multiplied thy magnificence: and being turned thou hast comforted me.

22. For I also wil confesse to thee in the instruments of Psalme thy truth: O God, I wil sing to thee on the harpe, holie one of Israel.

23. My (p) lips shal reioyce when I shal sing to thee; and my soule which thou hast redeemed.

Mat. 2.

(m) The

(m) The three Sages or Kings, which adored our sauour, and offered gold, frankincense, & myrrh, were the first that fulfilled this prophetic: & after wards Constantine the Great, and other Emperours, Kings, and Princes. (n) Amongst other Ilands Great Bryttannie (the greatest of Europe) was conuerted to Christ, according to this prophetic: first some tyme in the Apostles time (Metaphrastes apud Surium, Theodoret, epist. ad Timoth. Sophronius Ser. de Nat. Apost. & alij.) More in the time of Eleutherius. Lastly, our English nation by S. Augustin and others sent by S. Gregorie.

11. And all Kings of the earth shall adore him: all nations shall serue him.

12. Because he shall deliuer the poore from the mightie: and the poore which had no helper.

13. He shall spare the poore and needy: and he shall saue the souls of the poore.

14. From vsuries and iniquitie he shall redeme their souls: and their name shall be honourable before him.

15. And: he shall liue, and there shall be giuen him of the gold of Arabia, and they shall adore it alwaies: all the day they shall blesse him.

16. And there shall be a firmament in the earth in the tops of mountaines, the fruit thereof shall be extolled farre about Libanus: and they shall flourish of the citie, as the grasse of the earth.

17. Be his name blessed for euer: before the sunne his name is permanent.

And all the tribes of the earth shall be blessed in him: all nations shall magnifie him.

18. Blessed be our Lord the God of Israel, (o) who only doth meruelous things.

(o) No miracles can be done but by Gods power.

19. And blessed be the name of his maiestic for euer: and all the earth shall be filled with his maiestic. (p) Be it, be it.

(p) About all other desires the holie Prophet wished Gods glorie, and praises in all the earth, as it is in heauen.

20. (q) The praises of Dauid, (r) the sonne of Iesse are ended.

(q) It seemeth by this appendix added by Esdras, that this Psalm was last composed, though not put in the last place, but as it came to his hands. (r) Dauid the natural sonne of Iesse, made no more Hymnes, that is, no more musical praises of God after this Psalm, but: the prefigured Dauid Christ our Sauour, the Sonne of God, in his bodie the Church, singeth still new praises. S. Aug. in enarrat. Psal. sequentis. 72.

:: How is this prophetic verified except the Church be alwaies visible.

Affliction in this world is recompensed in the end.
The 9. key.

The royal Prophet, first professing the unspeakable goodnes of God, 2. in the person of the weake complaineth, that the wicked prosper and the iust are afflicted: 5. reprehendeth the murmuration, for though we can not comprehend the secret iudgements of Gods, 18. yet they are most iust. 25. So with desire to rest in God, he promiseth euer to praise him.

1. A Psalme (a) to Asaph.

(a) To be song by Asaph the maister of musike, and his companie.

HOw (b) good is God to Israel, to them that are of a right hart!
(b) God is so excellent good, as no tong can expresse, no hart can conceiue.

Ps. 39.

2. But (c) my feete were almost moued, my steps almost slipped.

(c) The peace and prosperitie of the wicked tempted me to leaue the right narrow way, and to goe the brode easie way with them.

3. Because I haue had zeale upon the wicked, seeing the peace of sinners.

4. Because there is (d) no respect to their death: and (e) stabilitie in their plague.

(d) They neuer thinke of death; (e) and if they suffer some affliction, they quickly remoue it from them.

5. In (f) the labours of men they are not, and with men thy shal not be scourged.

(f) They trauel not so much as good men doe, neither are they so often punished.

6. Therefore (g) hath pride helde them, they are couered with their iniquitie and impietie.

(g) Which maketh them proud, and so they runne into all sorts of iniquitie.

7. Their iniquitie hath proceeded as it were of fat: they haue passed into (h) the affection of the hart.

(h) What soeuer mischief came in their mind, they feared not to commit it in fact.

8. They haue thought and haue spoken wickednes: they haue spoken iniquitie (i) on high.

(i) Boldly extolling their owne words and works, and despising others.

9. They haue set their mouth vnto heauen: and their tong hath passed in the earth.

10. Therefore wil my people (k) returne here: and (l) ful daies shal be found in them.

(k) For this prosperitie of the wicked, some of Gods people wil fall from the right way, (l) and their dayes wil abound with calamities.

11. And they haue sayd: (m) How doth God know, and is there knowledge in the highest?

(m) The voice of the weake, inclining to diffidence, & doubt of Gods knowledge and prouidence.

12. Loe the sinners themselues, and they that abound in the world, haue obtained riches.

13. And I said : Then haue I iustified my hart without cause, and haue washed my hands amongst innocents:

14. And haue been scourged al the day, and my chastising in the mornings.

15. If I said : I wil speake this : behold (n) I reprovued the nation of thy children.

(n) The Prophet in his owne person answereth, that if he should say such things, he should reprove Gods children as faultie, vnworthie of his protection, and to be neglected; whereas it is Gods prouidence to chastice his children whom he loueth.

16. I (o) thought to know this thing, it is labour before me:

(o) In this life we can not know the particular causes, why the iust are afflicted, & manie wicked prosper in this world.

17. Vntil I may enter into the sanctuarie of God : and may vnderstand concerning their latter ends.

18. But yet (p) for guiles thou hast put it to them : thou hast cast them downe whiles they (q) were eleuated.

(p) But only in general we are taught, that euils are prepared for the guiles, or decets, (q) pride, and other sinnes of the wicked.

19. How are they brought into desolation, they haue failed sodainely: they haue perished for their iniquitie.

20. As the dreame of them that rise, o Lord, in thy citie thou shalt bring their (r) image to nothing.

(r) Not real but imaginarie felicitie.

21. Because my hart is (s) inflamed, and my reynes are changed:

(s) Almost burned vp with afflictions.

22. And I am brought to nothing, and knew not.

23. As (t) a beast am I become with thee : and I (v) alwaies with thee.

(t) Charged with heauie burdens, without knowledge how long or to what end, (v) yet not destitute of thy protection.

24. Thou hast held my right hand : and in thy wil thou hast conducted me, and with glorie thou hast receiued me.

25. For what is to me (w) in heauen? and besides thee what would I vpon the earth?

(w) Nothing to be desired in heauen nor in earth but God.

26. My (x) flesh hath fainted, and my hart: God of my hart, and God my portion for euer.

(x) In bodie and mind I thirst after thee, my true inheritance.

27. For behold, they (y) that make themselues tarte from thee, shal perish: thou (z) hast destroyed al that fornicate from thee.

(y) Men by their frewil make themselues enemies to God. (z) Determined their damnation, foreseeing their final sinnes.

28. But it is good for me to cleaue to God : to put my hope in our Lord God.

That I may shew forth al thy prayfes, in the gates of the daughter of Sion.

PSALME LXXIII.

A prayer in long afflictio.
The 7. key.

Faithful people pressed with persecution lamentably complayning, beseecheth God to respect his owne inheritance, cruelly afflicted, 10. and left long without helpe, 12. whereas heretofore he relieved his people in like distresses. 18. And therefore confidently hopeth he wil reuenge the blasphemers of his name.

1. Vnderstanding (a) to Asaph.

(a) Instruction for the congregation of the faithful in distresse, not to seeke temporal rewards and prosperitie, but to expect spiritual and eternal. S. Aug.

VW H y hast thou, o God, (b) repelled for euer: is thy furie wrath vpon the sheepe of thy pasture?

(b) In long persecution the weake begin to feare or suspect, that God hath vterly abandoned them.

2. Be (c) mindful of thy congregation, (d) which thou hast possessed from the beginning.

(c) But the stronger pray with confidence, (d) being assured that God who hath conferred his Church hitherto, from the beginning of the world, wil conserue it still to the end.

Thou hast (e) redeemed the rod of thine inheritance: mount Sion, in which thou hast dwelt.

(e) An other reason why God wil conserue his Church, because he hath deliuered it often in a strong arme; as from bondage in Aegypt, from persecution and oppression in the time of Iudges, and Kings, and lastly redeemed it from the tyrannie of the diuel by Christs death.

3. Lift vp thy hands vpon (f) their prides for euer: how great things hath the enemie done malignantly in the holy place?

(f) Thirdly the pride of the enemies moueth God to reuenge their wickednes, & so to deliuer his owne people.

4. And they that hate thee haue gloried: in the middes of (g) thy solemnitie.

(g) They pretend to keepe solemne feasts like to thine.

They haue set (h) their signes for signes: 5. and haue not knowne, (i) as in the issue on high.

(h) They set vp altars againste thine altars, or some new deuised external shew, against the holie Rites of the Church: (i) and that in publike places, in the ends of high wayes, or ports, and pinnacles.

As (k) in a wood of trees they haue with axes 6. cut out the gates thereof together: in hatchet and chip-axe they haue cast it downe.

(k) The Prophet describeth the manner how persecutours destroy temples and al sacred things.

7. They haue burnt thy sanctuarie with fire: they haue polluted the tabernacle of thy name in the earth.

8. Their (l) kindred together haue saide in their hart: Let vs make al the festiual daies of God to cease from the earth.

4. Reg.
25.

(l) The whole crew or band of persecutours

9. Our (m) signes we haue not scen, there is now no Prophet: and he wil know vs no more.

(m) The weake complaine that God sheweth not wanted signes, nor sendeth succour to his people, by raising some Prophet, or other meanes to helpe them.

10. How long, o God, thal the enimie vpbraid: the aduersarie prouoke thy name for euer?

11. Why doest thou turne away thy hand, and thy right hand, out of the middes of thy bosome for euer?

Luc. 1. 12. But (n) God our King before the worlds: he hath wrought saluation
v. 70. in the middes of the earth.

(n) The perfect doe answer, that God both hath, and wil relieue his people.

13. Thou in thy strength hast confirmed (o) the sea: thou hast (p) crushed the head of Dragons in the waters.

(o) Made the red sea iike wals. (p) Drowned Pharao and his hoste.

14. Thou hast broken the heads of the dragon: thou hast giuen him for meate to the peoples (q) of the Aethiopians.

(q) Of blacke diuels.

15. Thou hast (r) broken vp fountaines, and torrents, thou hast dried the riuers (s) of Ethan.

(r) Giuen water out of rockes, (s) made passage ouer Iordan.

16. The day is thine, and the night is thine: thou hast made the morning and the sunne.

17. Thou hast made al the coasts of the earth: the summer and the spring thou hast formed them.

18. Be mindeful of this, the enimie hath vpbraided our Lerd: and a foolish people hath prouoked thy name.

19. Deliuer not to beasts the soules that confesse to thee: and the soules of thy poore forget not for euer.

20. Hauere spect vnto thy testament: because they that are (t) obscure of the earth, are filled with houses of iniquities.

(t) Ignorant, blind, and barbarous infidels, lodge al Kinds of iniquitie in their consciences.

21. (v) Let not the humble be turned away being cōfounded: the poore and needy shal praise thy name.

(v) And therefore it is vnmeet, that faithful people should be in bondage vnder them.

22. Arise God, iudge thy cause: be mindeful of those thy reproches, that are (w) from the foolish man al the day.

(w) These foolish audacious men doe continually blaspheme al holic things.

23. (x) Forget not the voices of thine eninies: the (y) pride of them that hate thee, hath ascended alwaies.

(x) Omit not to punish them, (y) seeing they are obstinate & obdurate in pride and in hatred.

P S A L M E LXXIII.

General
iudgement.
The 9. key.

Christ (with his Assessours) wil iudge the whole world at the last day: in the meane time exhorteth sinners to amend their life; 7. for none shal escape iust iudgement. 12. The wicked shal be punished, and the good rewarded.

1. Vnto the end, (a) Corrupt not, a Psaline of Canticle to Asaph.

(a) Either this was the beginning of a song, to the tune whereof this Psalme was song; as some Hebrew Rabbins testifie; or, as S. Augustin and other fathers explicate, the Septuagint doe admonish vs by occasion of this Psalme, not to faile in our hope, for that God wil in no case violate his promise nor purpose, but wil render to euerie one in the day of Iudgement, as they deserue.

2. VV^E (b) wil confesse to thee, O God: (c) we wil confesse, and wil inuocate thy name.

(b) Christ with his Apostles, and other assessorie iudges, wil praise and thanke God, for his admirable good prouidence, and gouernement of this world.

(c) This duplication of the same word, confirmeth vs of the assured performance of that, which is here prophesied.

We wil tel thy meruelous workes: 3. when (d) I shal take a time, I wil iudge iustices.

(d) Christ our singular, principal, and proper Iudge only, and no mere creature, knoweth the determinate time of general iudgement.

4. (e) The earth is melted, and al that dwel in it: (f) I haue confirmed the pillers thereof.

(e) The earth at that time shal be purged with flaming fire: (f) yet shal not be destroyed, but changed in qualities.

5. I said to the wicked: (g) Doe not wickedly; and to them that offend: (h) Exalt not the horne.

(g) An epitome, or brieve summe of Christs doctrine, to flye from sinne. (h) Be not proud, abuse not the power you haue, to doe what you please.

6. Exalt not your horne on high: speake not iniquitie against God.

7. For neither from the East, nor from the West, nor from the desert mountraines: 8. (i) because God is Iudge.

(i) When other Iudges sit on tribunals, some may be absent, or escape from their sentences: but al without exception shal be brought in person, when Christ God and Man shal iudge.

(k) This man he humbleth, and him he exalteth: 9. (l) because there is a cup in the hand of our Lord (m) of mere wine ful of mixture.

(k) Some shal haue sentence of eternal paine in hel: some of eternal reward in glorie, (l) though (partly in this world, partly in particular iudgement of euerie soule) God hath already, and wil before the last day punish sinners, yet there resteth more punishment, and no impenitent sinners shal escape, but al shal drinke of the bitter cup of eternal damnation. (m) strong wine not delayde with water, but mingled with bitter sharpe things, as gal, vinegre, brimstone, &c. and so powred into festered wounds: so they shal suffer vntolerable endles paine, mixed with the worme of conscience, losse of glorie, rancour of hart, and eternal desperation.

And

And he hath powred it out (n) of this into that, but yet the dregs thereof are not emptied: al the sinners of the earth shal drinke.

(n) Varietie of hellish torments, from one extreme to an other: as; from snow-waters to exceeding heate. Iob. 24.

10. But I wil shewforth for euer: I wil sing to the God of Iacob.

11. And I wil breake al the hornes of sinners: and (o) the hornes of the iust shal be exalted.

(o) The iust for wel vsing their power of freewil, and of al power giuen them in this life, are rewarded in heauen.

P S A L M E L X X V.

The Royal Prophet singeth Gods praises, for his particular providence towards the Iewes: 10. Further to be extended to al the meeke of the whole earth.

Gods providence towards his people.
The 3. key.

1. Vnto the end, in prayes, a Psalm (a) to Asaph, a Canticle to (b) the Assirians.

(a) For the congregation of faithful and godlie people. (b) Amongst others, one notorious example of Gods providence is recorded of an hundred tourescore & fve thousand Assirians, slaine in one night by an Angel. 4. Reg. 19.

2. GOD is knowne (c) in Iewrie: in Israel his name is great.

(c) God was not only knowen in general, as to pagane Philosophers, and some others, but more particularly to the Iewes, the issue of Abraham, Isaac, and Iacob, by his special benefits towards them.

3. And (d) his place is made in peace: and (e) his habitation in Sion.

(d) God suffering al other nations to erre for their sinnes, in their fond phantasies of false Gods, reserued the Israelites for his Church, (e) establishing the principallitie thereof in Sion.

4. (f) There he brake the powers of bowes, the shield, the sword, and the battle.

(f) For obtaining and conseruing of Sion from wicked Infidels, God ouerthrew al forts of contrarie forces.

5. Thou (g) doest illuminate meruelously from the eternal mountaines:

6. al the foolish of hart (h) weretroubled.

(g) God not only gaue his people temporal victories over their enimies, but also illuminated their minds with knowledge of true religion: (h) others are often troubled in mind, hearing the truth, but are not conuerted through their obstinate follie.

They (i) slept their sleepe: and al the men of riches found nothing in their hands.

(i) Worldlie men in supine carelesnes, as in a sleepe passe ouer this life, and afterwards find themselues excluded from heauen, for lacke of merits, and good workes, with the foolish virgins.

7. At (k) thy reprehension, o God of Iacob, they (l) haue al slumbered that mounted on horses.

(k) God vndertaking the defence of his people, and threatning the aduerse part, (l) they failed in courage, as men ouercome with drowlines of sleepe.

8. Thou art terrible, and who shal resist thee? (m) from that time thy w^rath.

(m) Euen from the first notice of thy wil, the aduersaries were delected, fearing thy potent w^rath.

9. From (n) heauen thou hast made thy iudgement heard: (o) the earth trembled and was quiet.

(n) Terrible signes from the firmament appearing before the day of iudgement, (o) persecutours and others being terrified shal be astonished and silent.

10. When God arose vnto iudgement, (p) that he might saue al the meeke of the earth.

(p) God wil come to iudge the world, more especially for the iusts sake.

11. Because (q) the cogitation of man shal confesse to thee: and (r) the remaines of the cogitation shal keepe festiual day to thee.

(q) Men that shal seriously thinke and meditate vpon these things, wil praise and thanke God for them: (r) and the effect and sweete repast of such meditation, shal make as it were a great festiual day, in the deuout soule spiritually ioyned with God.

12. (s) Vow ye and (t) render to our Lord your God: al yet that round about him bring gifts.

(s) The soule thus inflamed with Gods loue, is then apt of gratitude, for his goodnes towards man, to make voves of things wherto we are not obliged, (t) but most necessarie it is to be maturely aduised, and not rashly nor lightly to vow; for being once vowed, we are strictly bound to what soeuer we haue lawfully promised. And it is great sinne to vow vndiscreetly.

To (v) the terrible, 13. and him that taketh away the spirite of Princes, terrible to the Kings of the earth.

(v) Remembring that for voves, and al other works we must answer to God, who is a terrible iudge, readie to punish in bodie and soule, sparing none for their greatnes, not Princes nor Kings, nor vulgar sort, for all are to him alike.

::The Prophets doe often speake in the pretence, for the assurance of the things to come.

2. VITH (c) my voice I haue cried to our Lord: with my voice to God (d) and he attended to me.

(c) Hauing heretofore prayed, (d) I haue obtayned.

3. In the day of my tribulation I sought God, with my hands (e) in the night before him: and I (f) was not deceiued.

(e) Especially being in tribulation, and praying with hart and hands lifted vp, as wel in the night as day: (f) I was not frustrate of my prayer.

My (g) soule refused to be comforted, 4. I (h) was mindful of God and was delighted, and was exercised: and (i) my spirit fainted.

(g) I was sometimes in such anguish that nothing seemed comfortable, (h) but I relied vpon God so firmly, (i) that my spirit came into an extasie or trance.

5. Myne eies (k) preuented the watch: I was (l) troubled & spake not.

(k) I arose early before the ordinarie time of awaking, (l) my hart being attentive inwardly, I vttered nothing with my tongue.

6. I thought vpon old dayes: and the eternal yeares I had in minde.

7. And I meditated in the night with my hart, and I was exercised, and I (m) swept my spirit.

(m) I diligently examined my conscience.

8. Why, (n) wil God reiect for euer: or wil he not adde to be better pleased as yet?

(n) Assuredly God wil not reiect for euer, but he wil be pleased with his Church.

9. Or wil he cut off his mercie for euer, from generation vnto generation?

10. Or wil God forget to haue mercie: or wil he in his wrath keepe in his mercies?

11. And I sayd: (o) Now haue I begun; (p) this is the change of the right hand of the Highest.

(o) Whiles I thus thought, I erred greatly, now I see and confesse that God suffereth al calamities for the good of his seruants: (p) and this I knew not by my selfe, but by the inspiration of God, making this change in me by his gracious hand.

12. I haue been mindful of the works of our Lord: because I wil be mindful from the beginning of thy metuclous works.

13. And I wil meditate in al thy works: and in thy inuentions I wil be exercised.

14. O God in the holie is thy way: what God is great as our God?
 15. thou art the God that doest meruelous things.

Thou hast made thy power knowne among peoples: 16. thou hast with thine arme redeemed thy people, the children of (q) Iacob, and Ioseph.

(q) The progenie of Iacob, receiued and nourished in Ægypt for Iosephs sake, as his adopted children.

17. The waters (r) saw thee, o God, the waters saw thee: and they were afrayd, and the depths were troubled.

(r) The red sea, and Iordn felt thy diuine power, and obeyed thy wil.

18. A (f) multitude of the founding of waters: the clouds gaue a voice.

For indeed arrowes doe passe: 19. the voice of thy thunder in a wheele.

Thy lightnings shined to the round world: the earth was moued and troubled.

20. Thy way in the sea, and thy paths in many waters: and thy steps shal not be knowne.

21. Thou hast conducted thy people as sheep: (t) in the hand of Moyse and Aaron.

(t) By the ministerie of Moyse and Aaron.

PSALME LXXVII.

The Royal Prophet exhorting the people to attend, 5. reciteih manie great benefits of God towards their forefathers (whose ingratitude, often rebellion, and chastisement he stil noteth) 9. as in their entrance into the land of Chanaan: 12. also before the same in Ægypt, and in the desert. 42. 15. He stricke the rocke in (f) the desert: and gaue them water to drinke as in a great depth.

(f) In mount Horeb : and there was continual water in al the campe, which occupied nere foure miles in length and breadth.

16. And he brought forth water out of the rocke : and made waters runne downe as riuers.

17. And they added as yet to sinne vnto him : they prouoked the Higheft to wrath in the place (t) without water.

(t) Which naturally wanted water : but by miracle had abundance.

18. And they tempted God in their harts : so that they asked (v) meats for their liues.

(v) Not content with Manna, they demanded to haue flesh.

19. And they spake euil of God, they said : (w) Can God prepare a table in the desert?

(w) Still incredulous, not belieuing Gods omnipotencie, they thought that, albeit he had giuen them manna and water, yet he could not giue them flesh.

20. Because he struck the rock and waters raine, & torrents flowed: Can he also giue (x) bread, or prepare a table for his people?

(x) By bread in general is vnderstood al competent meate vsual for a table.

21. Therefore our Lord heard, and (y) made delay: and (z) fire was kindled in Ia. ob, and wrath ascended vpon Israel.

(y) For this incredulitie, murmuring, and other sinnes, God kept the children of Israel fourtie yeares in the desert, til al that were of age when they came from Aegypt, were dead, except only Iosue and Caleb. (z) In the meane time amongst other punishments, manie murmurers were burnt to death with strange fire. Num. 11.

22. Because they believed not in God, nor hoped in his saluation.

23. And he commanded the clouds from aboue, and opened the gates of heauen.

24. And he rayned them Manna to eate, and bread of heauen he gaue to them.

25. Bread (a) of Angels did man eate: he sent them victuals in abundance.

(a) Manna made by Angels.

26. He (b) transported the South-wind from heauen : and in his power he brought in the South-west-wind.

(b) God so changed the wind, that it brought abundance of quails and other birds into their campe. Exo. 16. Nu. 11.

27. And he rayned vpon them flesh as dust : and as the sand of the sea feathered foules.

28. And they set in the middes of their campe: about their tabernacles.

29. And they did eate and were filled exceedingly, and their desire he brought to them:

30. They were not defrauded of their desire.

(c) As yet their meats were in their mouth:

(e) Immediately after a month (for so long they had abundance of these birds, ibid. v. 20.) they were stricken with a plague, & manie died for their concupiscence.

31. And the wrath of God ascended vpon them.

And he killed their fat ones, and (d) the chosen of Israel he hindred.

(d) The most fresh strong men died, and so were hindred from possessing the promised land of Chanaan.

32. In al these things they sinned as yet: and they belieued not in his meruelous workes.

33. And their daies failed in vanitie: and their years (e) in hast.

(e) In fourtie yeares about six hundred thousand died.

34. When he slew them, they sought him: and they returned, and (f) early they came to him.

(f) They offered morning sacrifice.

35. And they remembred that God is their helper; and the high God is their redeemer.

36. And they loued him (g) with their mouth, and with their tong they did lie to him.

(g) But were not sincere in their hearts.

37. But their hart was not right with him: neither were they counted faithful in his testament.

38. (h) But he is merciful, and wil be propitious to their sinnes: and he wil not destroy them.

(h) Howsoever multitudes of people commit great sinnes, and are seuerely punished, yet Gods mercie preferueth some by his effectual grace, and neuer suffereth the whole Church to faile, nor to be destroyed.

And he abounded to turne away his wrath: and he kindled not al his wrath.

39. Ad he remembred that they are flesh: (i) spirit going, and not returning.

(r) This was a lesse plague, not mentioned in Exodus, with the greater. (s) The eighth plague.

47. And he killed their vineyards with (t) haile: and their mulberie trees with (v) hoare-frost.

49. He ſent vpon them (y) the wrath of his indignation: indignation, & wrath, and tribulation: immiſſions (z) by euil Angels.

The people of Israel often murmured in the desert. Ten times more notoriously.

40. How often have they exasperated?) Moyses (Deu. 9. v. 7.) repeating what had passed in the desert, chargeth the people that they had still prouoked our Lord to wrath, from the day, that they came out of Aegypt, and alwayes contended against him. And our Lord himself expostulating their ingratitude & often murmuring saith (Num. 14. v. 22.) in the beginning of the second yeare, that they had then tempted him ten times; either by this certaine number signifying an vncertaine, or els chiefly ten times: for so often we find recorded that they tempted him, and murmured within that smal time more notoriously. First, neere vnto the red sea (Exod. 14. v. 11.) where seeing the Aegyptians pursuing them; they murmured against Moyses; for bringing them out of Aegypt, saying: It had been much better to haue serued the Agyptians, then to die in the wildernes. Secondly, for want of sweete water, Exo. 15. v. 24. Thirdly, for lack of meate, Exo. 16. v. 3. Fourthly, keeping Manna for the next day, contrarie to Gods commandment. ibid. v. 20. Fifthly, going on the Sabbath day, also contrarie to Gods commandment, to gather Manna. Ibid. v. 27. Sixthly, for want of water in Raphidim. Exod. 17. v. 2. Num. 26. v. 2. Seventhly in Horeb, adoring a calfe & the image therof. Exo. 32. Eighthly, repynning for their trauels in the wildernes. Num. 11. v. 1. Ninthly, loathing Manna, and burning with desire to eate flesh. Ibid. v. 4. 5. 6. Tenthly, despairing to possesse the promised land of Chanaan, after that the discouersers had reported the difficulties, with the force of the people, and of the cities against which they must fight. Num. 14. v. 1. At which and the rest, saith S. Paul, happened to them in figure of vs: and are written for our correction (or admonition) that we murmur not as they did. 1. Cor. 10.

The 6. key.

I. A Psalme (a) to Asaph.

(a) Tobesung by Asaph and his companie, in the behalfe of people vnited in faith.

O God (b) the Gentils are come into thine inheritance, they (c) haue polluted thy holie temple: they haue made Ierusalem (d) as a watch-towre of fruits.

(b) Cruel infidels haue inuaded those things, which pertyne to thy Church: (c) euen possessed & prophaned the holie temple of the Iewes, & Churches of Catholike Christians. Fulfilled by Antiochus in Ierusalem, by the Vandals in Afrike, by Protestants, and Puritans, in diuers parts of Europe, and wil be more vniuersally by Antichrist in al Christendom: (d) Instead of great and faire Churches, Gods seruants are faine to vse meane houses, yea poore cotages.

2. They haue made (e) the carcases of thy seruants, meats for the foules of the aire: the flesh of thy Saints for the beasts of the land.

(e) Some persecutours suffer not Martyrs bodies to be buried, but hang them on poles and pinnacles, where birds may eat them.

3. They haue poured out their bloud as water round about Ierusalem: and there was none to burie them.

4. We are (f) become a reproch to our neighbours: a scorne and mocke to them that are round about vs.

(f) Christians Gallileans, Catholikes Homousians, and now Papistes, in spite and reproch.

5. How long, o Lord, wilt thou (g) be angrie for euer: shal thy zeale be kindled as a fire?

(g) Sinnes prouoking Gods wrath are one cause why he suffereth his people to be persecuted.

6. Powre out thy wrath vpon the Gentils, (h) that haue not knowne thee: & vpon the Kingdomes, that haue not inuocated thy name.

(h) Though the faithful commit some sinnes, yet in respect that they belieue rightly, haue zeale in Gods cause, and denie not God, they are neerer to grace and fauour.

7. Because they haue deuoured Iacob: and his place they haue made desolate.

8. (i) Remember not our old iniquities, let thy mercies quickly preuent vs : because we are become exceeding (k) poore.

(i) Especially when they repent , and confesse their finnes ; then those that neither know nor wil know God , but obstinately impugne and resist the truth.
(k) So much afflicted , and despised , that none wil regard the truth which we professe.

9. Help vs , o God our Sauour : and for the glorie of thy name o Lord deliuer vs : and be propitious to our finnes for thy names sake.

10. Lest they say perhaps amongst the Gentils : (l) where in their God? and (m) be notified in the nations before our eyes.

The reuenge of the blood of thy seruants , which hath been shed:
11. let the groning of the fettered enter in thy sight

(l) Albeit, o Lord , thou suffer vs to be punished , yet suffer not thine enemies to insult , as though thou were not our God ; and consequently thou haddest no people at all in the world. (m) Therefore we pray , that the reuenge of thy seruants blood may be so notified , that it can nor be denied , nor doubted of. Which is also here prophecied, that it wil so come to passe in the end.

According to the greatnes of thine arme possesse thou (n) the children of them that are put to death.

(n) Preserue also , o God , the relikes of thy seruants , the successours of thy Martyrs.

12. And (o) render to our neighbours seuenfold in their bosome: their reproch wherewith they haue reproched thee, o Lord.

(o) This also is a prophecie , that God wil most seuerely reuenge the blasphemie of persecutours.

13. But (p) we thy people, and the sheep of thy pasture , wil confesse to thee for euer.

(p) Gods people deliuered from persecution , and perpetually conserued , wil alwayes praise God for the same.

Vnto generation and generation we wil shew forth thy praise.

6. Thou wilt feede vs with the bread of teares: and giue vs drinke with teares (l) in measure.

13. Why hast thou destroyed the hedge thereof: and al that passe by the way doe pluck it.

14. The (w) boare of the wood hath destroyed it : and (x) the singular wilde beast hath eaten it.

(w) Cruel enemies more like to most cruel beasts then to men. (x) Yea so cruel, as none els in the world are like vnto them.

15. O God of hoasts returne: regard (y) from heauen, and see, and visite this vineyard.

(y) The Prophet now prayeth for the comming of Christ, which he saw in spirit.

16. And (z) perfitte it, which thy right hand hath planted : and vpon (a) the sonne of man whom thou hast confirmed to thee.

(z) The Church of the old testament in her best state wanted the perfection which the Church of Christ hath. (a) Christ our Messias most commonly called by this title: The sonne of man.

17. (b) Things burnt with fyre, and digged downe at the increpation of thy countenance shal perish.

(b) So thy vineyard can not endure if it be stil afflicted, and trodden downe.

18. Let (c) thy hand be vpon the man of thy right hand : and vpon the sonne of man, whom thou hast confirmed to thee.

(c) Christ working by Gods power redresseth al miseries.

19. And we depart not from thee, thou wilt quicken vs : and we wil inuocate thy name.

20. (d) O Lord the God of hoasts conuert vs : and shew thy face, and we shal be saued.

(d) The same is the 8. and the 15. verse (with litle alteration) and here repeated the third time. In which we also pray for three things : First to be purged and conuerted from sinne: secondly to be illuminated by Christ, the Image of God: Thirdly, to be sanctified, and saued in eternal glorie, to haue the fruition of the most Blessed Trinitie.

(a) Seeing none is like to thee, o God, (b) shew thy power and maiestie, (c) be not silent.

3. For behold (d) thine enemies haue made a sound: they that hate thee (e) haue lifted vp the head.

(d) The cruel persecuters are most insolent (e) and proud.

4. They haue taken malignant counseil vpon thy people: and they haue deuised against thy Saints.

5. They haue said: Come, and let vs destroy them out of (f) the nation: and let (g) the name of Israel be remembered no more.

(f) That there be no more anie faithful people, (g) anie Catholikes left aliue.

(r) Others also comming further off;ioyned against Gods people, in figure that al heretikes , and other infidels conspire together against Catholikes.

10. Doe to them as (f) to Madian, and (t) Sifara : as to (v) Iabin in the torrent Ciffon.

(f) The Psalmist therefore prayeth (and withal prophecicth) that God wil at last destroy them, as he did Madian. Num. 31. Iudic. 6. & 7. (t) Sifara, Captraine general, (v) for Iabin King of Asor neere Ciffon. Iudic. 4. v. 7. & 23.

(a) God by punishing seeketh the conuerfion of sinners, not their eternal death.

18. Let (b) them be ashamed, and troubled for euer and euer : and let them be confounded, and perish.

(b) But such as be stil obstinate, and finally impenitent doe perish for euer.

(c) God only the Creatour of heauen and earth, is properly called LORD. Whose essential and incommunicable name is : WHICH IS. Exo. 3. v. 14. & 6. v. 3.

PSALME LXXXIII.

Eternal glorie.
The 10. key.

Deuout persons feruently desire eternal glorie, 6. accounting it in the meane time, a happie state to be in the militant Church, 12. where God first giuing grace, wil giue glorie in the triumphant.

1. Vnto the end, (a) for wine presses, to (b) the children of Core, a Psalm.

(a) For men afflicted in this vale of miserie. (b) By the children of Core not being musicians (but porters in the temple, 1. Par. 26.) S. Augustin here and in other titles of Psalmes, vnderstandeth the faithful Children of Christ.

2. How beloued are (c) thy tabernacles, o Lord of hosts! 3. my soule coueteth and (d) fainteth vnto the courts of our Lord.

(c) The glorious mansions in heauen, which God hath prepared for the iust.

(d) Vehement desires doe sometimes depriue vs of external sense.

My hart and (e) my flesh haue reioyced toward the liuing God.

(e) The mind reioycing in hope, the bodie is also-recreated, releued, and reuiued, which before was dul and heauie.

4. For (f) the sparrow also hath found her an house: and (g) the turtle-doue a nest for herselfe, where she may lay her yong ones.

(f) As sparowes by natural instinct seeking habitations, finde houses to dwell in, (g) and turtles haue nests, wherein to lay their yong ones: so faithful soules seeke to dwell in heauen, and in the meane time to lay vp good workes within the Catholike Church; out of which (sayth Saint Augustin in this place) how good soeuer workes doe seeme (as when pagans and heretikes feede the hungrie, cloth the naked, receiue strangers into their houses, visite the sicke, comfort prisoners) being not laid in the nest, conculcabuntur, & conterentur: non seruabuntur; non custodientur: they shall be trod vnder-foot, they shall be braised in peeces: they shall not be conserued, they shall not be kept: but (that such workes may be profitable and be conserued) they must be done in true faith, in the Catholike faith, in societie of the vnitie of the Church.

Thine (h) altars, o Lord of hosts: my King, and my God.

(h) Workes are good, and rightly laide vp when they are done in vnitie, and participation of Gods Altars, the most proper places of Diuine seruice, of external Sacrifice in this life, and spiritual sacrifice of perfect praises in eternal glorie; where al Saints without ceasing sing: Holie, holie, holie, Lord God of hosts. Isaix 6. Apoc. 4.

5. Blessed are they that dwell in (i) thy house, o Lord: for euer and euer they shal praise thee.

(i) The Catholike Church.

6. Blessed is the man, whose helpe is from thee: he (k) hath disposed ascensions in his hart, 7. in (l) the vaile of teares, in the place which he hath appointed.

(k) The iust by Gods grace and helpe, may resolute to ascend by steps and degrees, from vertue to vertue (v. 8.) euen to heauen, (l) though he be now in this vaile of teares, by reason of mans sinne, who otherwise was before sinne in Paradise, a place of delight.

8. For (m) the Law-giuer shal giue (n) blessing, they shal goe (o) from vertue into vertue: (p) the God of Gods shal be seen in Sion.

(m) Christ our Law-giuer, (n) giueth aboundance of graces; (o) with continual increase. (p) But our ony omnipotent God, is to be seen by this effect of his grace, in the Church and not els where.

9. Lord God of hosts heare my prayer: receiue with thine eare, o God of Iacob.

10. Behold, o God our protectour: and (q) looke vpon the face of thy Christ.

(q) Agreeably to this the Church maketh al her petitions, concluding al prayers, By Christ our Lord.

11. Because (r) better is one day in thy courts, aboute thousands.

(r) In respect of the future retribution, which euerie one shal receiue according to their deserts, one day in Gods Church is better then thousands out of it.

I haue chosē to be (s) an abiect in the house of my God: rather then to dwell (t) in the tabernacles of sinnes.

(f) And better to be in the poorest state of Catholke Christians, (t) then in greatest palaces or highest dignities amongst sinners.

12. Because God (v) loueth mercie and truth: our Lord wil giue (w) grace (x) and glorie.

(v) The Diuine wisdom so vseth mercie, and veritie, that neither may prejudice the other: (w) and so giueth grace in this life, (x) and glorie in the next.

13. He wil not depriue them of good things, that (y) walke in innocencie: o Lord of hostis, blessed is the man that hopeth in thee.

(y) Besides innocencie conserued without sinne, there is also innocencie after remission of sinne, of which the Prophet here speaketh.

Christ.

Wish commemoration of Gods former benefits, 5. Christs Incarnation is prophesied, 9. bringing peace and saluation, 11. mercie and iustice concurring together.

1. Vnto the end, to the children of Core, a Psalm.

2. O Lord thou (a) hast blessed thy land: thou (b) hast turned away the captiuitie of Iacob.

(a) God bestowed manie great benefits vpon the people of Israel: (b) he brought them out of the bondage of Aegypt.

3. Thou (c) hast forgien the iniquitie of thy people: thou (d) hast couered al their sinnes.

(c) Remitted their manifold sinnes: (d) pardoned also a great part of due punishment.

4. Thou hast mitigated al thy wrath: thou hast turned away from the wrath of thine indignation.

5. (e) Conuert vs, o God our Sauour: and (f) auert thy wrath from vs.

(e) As thou hast spared thy peculiar people, so we beseech thee, o God Creatour and general Sauour of al mankind; (f) mitigate thy wrath towards vs al.

6. Wilt thou be wrath with vs for euer? or wilt thou extend thy wrath from generation vnto generation?

7. O God thou (g) being turned shalt quicken vs: and thy people (h) shal reioyce in thee.

(g) Til God first shew his mercie, sinners lye dead in guilt of sinne, but by his grace they are stirred vp, and quickned: (h) and ioytally returne to God.

8. Shew vs, o Lord, thy mercie and giue vs thy saluation.

9. I wil (i) heare what our Lord God wil speake in me: (k) because he wil speake peace vpon his people.

(i) The words of the Prophet, (k) signifying that God had reuealed vnto him the redemption of mankind.

And vpon (l) his saints: and vpon them, that are conuerted to the hart.

(l) Not al men are iustified, and saued, but those that are hartily and sincerely conuerted.

10. But yet his saluation is nigh to them that (m) feare him: that glorie may inhabite in our land.

(m) Though

(m) Though al be not saued (because manse wil not cooperate to Gods grace) yet very manie hauing the feare of God , which is the beginning of godlic wisdom, freely accept of Gods mercie, and so the Church is gloriously propagated.

11. (n) Mercie and truth haue met each other : (o) iustice and peace haue kissed.

(n) Whereas Gods mercie would saue al, and his truth or iustice requireth that finnes be duly punished, by Christs Passion and death sufficient satisfaction is offered for al finnes and those that wil be partakers by penance , and conformitie to Gods law, may haue remission : (o) and so iustice is obserued, and peace made between God and his subiects.

12. (p) Truth is risen out of the earth : (q) and iustice hath looked downe from heauen.

(p) Integrity of conscience reigneth in good men. (q) God sending iust meanes from heauen to saue them.

13. For (r) our Lord certes wil giue benigne: and (s) our land shal giue her fruit.

(r) God giueth grace, (s) and so men yeald fruit.

14. (t) Iustice shal walke before him: and thal set his steps in the way.

(t) Yea they walke in iustice, and right path of Gods law.

PSALME LXXXV.

In consideration of his owne imperfections, the royal Prophet, or other faithful person prayeth God, 5. according to his mercie and goodnes, 9. shewed in conuersing Gomile, 3. and in deliuering the supplicant himself from the state of damnation, 16. that he wil stil direct and defend him against al enemies.

A prayer for continual grace. The 7. key.

1. A prayer (a) to Dauid himselfe.

(a) A forme of prayer for King Dauid, and for anie faithful person.

INCLINE thine eare, o Lord, & (b) heare me: (c) because I am needie and poore.

(b) There be sundrie iust causes which moue God to heare our prayers : (c) first our necessitie requireth Gods helpe.

2. Keepe my soule, because (d) I am holie: saue thy seruant my God, that (e) hopeth in thee.

(d) Secondly, because we professe, and promise to lead a holie life. (e) Thirdly, because we trust and hope in God.

3. Haue mercie on me, o Lord, because I haue cried to thee (f) al the day:

4. make ioyful the soule of thy seruant, because to thee, o Lord, haue I (g) lifed vp my soule.

(f) Fourthly, because we perseuere in prayer. (g) Fifthly, if we pray with attention of mind.

5. Because thou, o Lord, art (h) sweete, and (i) milde: and (k) of much mercie to al that inuocate thee. (l)

(h) Sixtly, because God of his owne nature is benigne, readie to bestow benefits. (i) Seuenthy, he is meeke to remitte offences. (k) Eightly he is merciful to mitigate the punishment, to those that make recourse vnto him. (l) For these causes we pray as foloweth.

6. Receiue, o Lord, my prayer with thine ears: and attend to the voice of my petition.

7. In the day of my tribulation I haue called to thee : because thou hast heard me.

8. There is not the like to thee amongst Gods, o Lord : and there is not according to thy works.

9. (m) Al nations what soeuer thou hast made, shal (n) come, and shal adore before thee, o Lord: and they shal (o) glorifie thy name.

(m) Vocation of Gentils. (n) They shal come by faith, (o) and glorifie God by good works. Mat. 5.v.17.

10. Because thou art great and doing meruelous things : thou onlie art God.

11. Conduct me, o Lord, in thy way, and I wil walke in thy truth: let my hart reioyce that it may feare thy name.

12. I wil (p) confesse to thee, o Lord my God, with al my hart, and wil glorifie thy name for euer:

(p) Confession of praise.

13. Because thy mercie is great vpon me: & thou hast deliuered my soule out of (q) the lower hel.

(q) From the state of eternal damnation.

14. O God the wicked are risen vp vpon me, and the synagogue of the mightie haue sought my soule: and they haue not set thee in their sight.

15. And thou, o Lord, the God of compassion and merciful, patient, and of much mercie, and (r) true.

(r) In performing al promises.

16. Haue respect to me and haue mercie on me, (s) giue thine empire to thy seruant: and saue the sonne of thy handmaid.

(s) A digression (vsual to Prophets) of Christs Empyre & Kingdom the Church, giuen to him, being the sonne of an Immaculate Virgin, the handmaid of God.

17. Make with me (t) a signe vnto God, that they may see which hate me, and may be confounded: (v) because thou, o Lord, hast holpen me.

(t) The chief and principal signe of Christs, and his Churches glorie, is his Resurrection, praxfigured in Ionas. (v) Wherby al enemies are confounded, either to their conuerſion, or to eternal damnation. See. S. Augustin.

3. Glorious things are said of thee, o citie of God.

4. (b) I wil be mindeful of (c) Raab, and Babylon knowing me.

(b) The Prophet in the person of Christ saith he wil commend vnto his Apostles, and other Apostolical men, that they conuert al nations (as our Sauour gaue expresse commission and commandment. Math. 13. Luc. 24. v. 47. Act. 1. v. 8.) (c) naming here Raab (which is Egypt) and Babylon:

Behold (d) the foreners, and Tyre, & the people of the Aethiopians, the (e) were there.

(d) The Philistims, Tyrians, Aethiopians; (e) & the rest, shal be regenerate in this Church, which for the assured certaintie therof (after the Prophets manner of speaking) is affirmed in the preterence, as if it were then done.

5. Shal it not be said of Sion: (f) Man, and man is borne in her; and (g) the Highest himselfe founded her?

(f) It shal be reported, or one shal say to another: Loe this and that man, al these and al these men are regenerate by Baptisme in the Church of Christ. (g) God himselfe; Christ God and Man, founded this Church.

6. Our Lord wil declare (h) in scriptures of peoples, and (i) of Princes: of those that haue been in her.

(h) The multitude of the elect is so great, that only God knoweth the number, (i) and the qualities of al sortes, of Princes, Prelats, and Peoples.

7. The (k) habitation in thee, is as it were of al reioycing.

(k) Great spiritual ioy with peace of conscience, is in true Christian Catholikes in the militant Chnrch; but the blessed haue the most absolute & secure ioy of al, in the Church triumphant.

A prayer in long affliction.
The 7 key.

A faithful person sore and long afflicted, lamentably complaineth, praying God, 15. not still to repel him, being left desolate 19. without all consolation of friends.

1. A Canticle of a Psalm, to the children of Core, vnto the end, for (a) Maheleth (b) to answer, (c) of vnderstanding to Eman the Ezrahite.

(a) An instrument of musike apt for lamentable songs. Not expressed in the title of anie other Psalm. Perhaps because this Psalm hath not anie consolation with mourning, as other Psalmes doe, which are also prayers in affliction. As the 10. 53. 61. 73 (b) Neither is this word in anie other title. It is adde here to admonish vs, that as this Psalm and some others were song by two queres, one answering the other, so we must in answer and imitation of Christ, suffer long and great afflictions with patience, seeing he in his passion was left without ordinarie consolation. (c) By some interpreted (his brethren) For Christ (saith S. Augustin) vouchsafeth to make them his brethren, which vnderstand the mysterie of his Crosse, and not only are not ashamed thereof, but also faithfully glorie therein.

2. O Lord the God of my saluation: (d) in the day haue I cried, and in the night before thee.

(d) I haue cried to thee very often both by day and by night.

3. Let my prayer enter in thy sight: incline thine eare to my petition.

4. Because my soule is replenished with euils: & (e) my life hath approached to hel.

(e) I am almost dead.

5. I (f) am accounted with them that descend into the lake.

(f) Accounted as dead, and ready to be buried.

I am become as a man without helpe, 6. (g) free among the dead, as the wounded sleeping in the sepulchres, of whom thou art mindful no more: and they are cast off from thy hand.

(g) If I were dead, I should be free from these afflictions. Especially it agreeth to Christ, who was free, yea of infinite power amongst the dead.

7. They haue put me in (h) the lower lake: in the darke places, and in the shadow of death.

(h) Myne enemies haue endeauoured not only to bereaue me of temporal life, wherby I should goe into limbus, but also to kil my soule spiritually, wherby I should descend into the lower hel of the damned.

8. Thy (i) furie is confirmed vpon me: and all thy waues thou hast brought in vpon me.

(i) Thy iust wrath also, o God, hath exceedingly afflicted me.

9. Thou hast made my familiars far from me: they haue put me abomination to themselues.

I was deliuered and came not forth: 10. myne eies languished for pouertie.

- I cried to thee o Lord al the day: I stretched out my hands to thee.
11. Wilt thou (k) doe meruels to the dead: or shall phisicians raise to life, and they confesse to thee?
 (k) O God deliuer me whiles I am yet liuing, for I may not looke for extraordinarie and miraculous heipe, as to be raised againe after death.
12. Shall any (l) in the sepulchre declare thy mercie, and thy truth in perdition?
 (l) When I shall be dead & buried, I can not denounce thy praises, as now I can, to mortal men.
13. Shall thy meruelous works be knowne (m) in darkenes: and thy iustice in the land of obliuion.
 (m) Much lesse shall the damned praise thee in eternal perdition.
14. And I o Lord haue cried to thee: and in the morning shall my prayer preuent thee.
15. Why doest thou, o Lord, reiect my prayer: turnest away thy face from me?
16. I am poore, and in labours (n) from my youth: and being (o) exalted, humbled, and troubled.
 (n) As wel yong (o) as waxing elder I haue been stil afflicted.
17. Thy wrathes haue passed vpon me: and thy terrours haue troubled me.
18. They haue compassed me as water al the day: they compassed me together.
19. Thou (p) hast made freind, and neighbour far from me and my familiars because of miserie.
 (p) My miserable estate hath alienated all freinds, neighbours, & acquaintances from me.

(k) They are spiritually happie, that doe thus consider of Gods meruelous proceedings, praise the same, and reioyce therein.

Lord they shal walke in the light of thy countnance, 17. and in thy name they shal reioyce al the day: and in thy iustice they shal be exalted.

 cal sense, of the iust after the Resurrection in glorie, where the soule shal be like the sunne, and the bodie, which now is mutable, shal be like the moone, not as now alwayes changing, but as the full moone, alwayes perfect.

ANNOTATIONS.

PSALME LXXXVIII.

Though Christians doe sinne, yet Christ lofeth not his Church.

Hard places explicated by the cleare.

Gods promises to Dauid were not fulfilled in Salomon, but in Christ.

34. My mercie I wil not take away from him.) Although Christians, figured by the children or successours of Dauid, sinne most grieuouly, yea suppose they wil sinne with desperation (saith Saint Augustin) and obstinately persist in sinne, that they offend the eyes of their Father, & deserue to be disinherited &c. Yet for these Christ shal not remaine without inheritance, the corne shal not also perish for the chaie, some fishes shal be gathered out of the nette into vessels, notwithstanding the euil fishes are cast away. And a litle after the same Doctour discoursing of eternal glorie both in bodie and soule, of those that dye in Gods fauour, sayth: These things are promised concerning Christ, very certaine, very firme, very plaine, and vndoubted. For albeit some things are couered in mysteries, yet some things are so manifest, that by them the obscure things may most easily be cleared.

39. But thou hast repelled &c.) Againe Saint Augustin addeth vpon the next verses following: God performed not these promises in Dauid, that when thou seest they were not fulfilled in Dauid, which necessarily must be fulfilled, thou maist seeke an other, in whom it may be shewed that they were fulfilled. God promised some thing

(a Kingdom)

(a Kingdom) for euer of Dauids seed: and Salomon was borne: and became of so great wisdom, and so great prudence, that Gods promise concerning Dauids seed seemed to be fulfilled in him. But Salomon fell, and gaue place of expecting Christ; that because God neither can be deceiued, nor deceiue, he put not his promise in him, whom he knew would fall; but thou shouldest relie vpon God, and exact his promise. A litle after: Thou seekest the Kingdō of the Iewes, it is not: thou seekest the altar of the Iewes, it is not: thou seekest the sacrifice of the Iewes, it is not: thou seekest the Priesthood of the Iewes, it is not. Wherepon he concludeth: Al these defects came to the Iewes: yet was not Christ taken from them, but differred. Some Iewes belieued in him, and manie Gentils. As the Psalmist prophecieth from the 47. verse to the end of this Psalme.

Defects in the Iewes supplied in the Gentils.

P S A L M E LXXXIX.

Vnder the forme of the prayer, the Psalmist describeth the shortnes of mans life & other calamitie: Gods strict iudgement, 13. but first his comfortable mercie, 16. and perpetual regard of his owne worke.

Man rightly created rel by sinne into miseries.
The 6. key.

1. A prayer (a) of Moyfes the man of God.

(a) Some Expositours thinke Moyfes was the authour of this Psalme, and of the tenne next following. But others hold that Dauid was Authour of al, and that Moyfes his name is here put in the title by Esdras, because this Psalme is like to the prayer of Moyfes, when the people prouoked Gods wrath by their sinnes in the desert. And because mans creation, fall, punishment, and Gods mercie towards him, are here described: which Moyfes first writte, as going before the written law. And that Moyfes made not this Psalme is probably gathered by the 10. verse, where the ordinarie age of men is described to be (in strength and vigour) seuentie yeares, or of some iourscore: and the greater part (of the one or the other) is in labour and sorow. And it is euident (Deut. 34.) that Moyfes liued in al an hundred and twentie yeares, and his eye was not dimme, neither were his teeth moued. So Aaron, Iosue, and others commonly liued longer then is here mentioned. But Dauid was old and impotent at seuentie yeares. 3. Reg. 1. Saint Hilarion, liuing neere seuentie yeares in his hermitage, S. Remigius gouerning the Church of Rheims seuentie yeares, and the like are accounted to have been full of dayes, and such as liued longer are reputed extraordinarie. Againe it is more euidently proued that Moyfes was not authour of the 94. and 95. Psalmes.

Lord, thou art made a refuge for vs: (b) from generation vnto generation.

(b) Alwayes from the beginning of the world to the end.

2. Before (c) the mountaines were made, or the earth and the world formed, (d) from euerlasting euen vnto enerlasting thou art God.

(c) The Prophet sheweth that the world was created in and with time, not eternal. (d) And that only Grd is eternal.

3. Turne not away man into humiliatiō; thou saidst: Be conuerted ye children of men.

(e) God hath often saide, that he would not the death of sinners, but rather that they be conuerted and liue for euer.

4. Because (f) a thousand yeares before thine eies, are as yesterday that is past.

(f) Though some liued long (none for al that did reach to a thousand yeares) yet it is nothing before God, and in respect of eternitie.

And as a watch in the night, 5. things that are counted nothing shal their yares be.

6. In (g) the morning as an herbe he shal passe, in the morning he shal flourish, and passe: in (h) the euening he shal fal, be hardned, and withered.

(g) The youth of man quickly passeth: (h) old age can not last long: wherof cometh our English prouerb: A yong man may dye soone, an old man can not liue long.

7. Because we haue faynted in thy wrath, and in thy furie we are troubled.

8. Thou hast put (i) our iniquities in thy sight: our * age in the light of thy countenance.

* Seculur.

(i) Sinne the cause of shortnes of mans life.

9. Because al our daies haue failed, and in thy wrath we haue failed.

Our yeares shal be considered (k) as a spyder: 10. the dayes of our yeares in them are (l) seuentie yeares.

(k) Mans life as briclike as a spiders web: or mans life wasteth contiually, as a spider wasteth her self by spinning, and consuming her owne substance.

And if in strong ones (m) eightie yeares: and the more of them, labour & sorrow.

(lm) These numbers literarly shew the shortnes of the longer sort of mens liues. Mystically, seuen signifie the rest after labours of this world, and pertheyne to the old testament: eight signifie the roward in the resurrection, pertheyning to the new testament. Which multiplied by tenne, a perfect number, make seuentie and eightie. Which ioyned together make an hundred and fiftie. The number of al these Psalms.

Because (n) mildnes is come vpon vs: and we shal be chastised.

(n) It is of Gods milde prouidence, that mans life is short, for that manie if they were sure, or had probabilitie to liue long, would presume to sinne more.

11. (o) Who knoweth the power of thy wrath: and for feare 12. 10. number thy wrath?

(o) Seeing God of his iustice punished al mankind for one sinne of our first parent, his wrath must needs be very great to euerie sinner, for his owne proper finnes.

So make thy right hand knowne: and men learned in hart, in wisdom.

13. Turne, o Lord, how long? and be intreated for thy seruants.

14. We are replenished in the morning with thy mercie: and we haue reioyced, and are delighted al our daies.

(p) The hope of glorious resurrection turneth our calamities into spiritual ioy.

15. (q) We haue reioyced for the daies wherin thou hast humbled vs: the yeares, wherin we haue seen euils.

(q) Yea the more we suffer in this life for the truth, the greater is our comfort in hope of reward.

16. Looke vpon (r) thy seruants, and vpon thy workes: and (s) direct their children.

(r) Not only in that we are thy creatures, but also in that we are thy seruants, we are thy proper worke: therefore in both these respects, O God, looke vpon vs with clemencie. (s) Lead also our posteritie into the right way, and make them thy seruants.

17. And (t) let the brightnes of our Lord God be vpon vs, and (v) direct thou the workes of our hands ouer vs: and (w) the worke of our hands doe thou direct.

(t) O God illuminate our vnderstanding, (v) make our actions by thy grace profitable to vs: (w) & make perfect in vs the worke of charitie. In which one worke al good workes are included, and to which al other are directed. For then workes are right (sayth S. Augustin) when they are directed to this one end.

Such falling is not the way of the iust, but of Lucifer, that fel from heauen. So S. Bernard noteth Ser. 15. in hunc Psal.

12. In their hands they shal beare thee: lest perhaps thou knock thy foote against a stone.

13. Vpon the aspe and the basiliscus thou shal walke: & thou shalt tread vpon the lion, and the dragon.

ANNO TATIONS.

P S A L M E X C.

5. Thou shalt not be afraid. S. Augustine here obserueth foure manners of tempting the faithful to fall from true Religion. Sometimes with tentation that is but light and obscure, which the Prophet here calleth feare in the night: when ignorant men are tempted by suggestion, or apprehension of temporal afflictions, not knowing that they fall into eternal damnation; by flying from worldlie, or bodilie calamities. Sometimes the tentation threatneth present death to them that are well instructed in the truth, and know that they must confesse it euen to death, which the Prophet calleth an arrow flying in the day: when the faithful cleerly see what danger hangeth ouer him, to wit present death, if he stand constant, and damnation if he denie his faith. Sometimes the tentation is more vehement, but yet obscure, which he calleth busines walking in darknes: when by subtle endeauours, framing arguments in excuse of sinne, men are perswaded that they may lawfully take some oath, or doe some other thing, which indeed is not lawful: and so by earnest and subtle perswasions they ignorantly decline from Catholike Religion, or commit other grieuous sinnes. But the greatest and manifest tentation is called inuasion & midday diuel: when persecuters seeing neither more easie perswasions can deceiue Gods seruants, nor present death force them to denie the truth, they then assault them more vehemently, and more dangerously, with long and continual afflictions, not remitting their cruelty til the afflicted either yeald to their wil, or dye in long torments. And by these two latter kinds of persecution manie are overthrowne, which were constant in the former. For whiles tyrants propos'd dangers to simple people, and deceiued some, yet threatning present death to others, that were better instructed, and confirmed in Religion, innumerable perseuered, & gloriously died in confession of Christian Catholike faith. But by subtle arguing of hard points of Christian doctrine or practise; and by long torments manie haue been seduced, blindly falling into errours, and manie wittingly haue denied the truth, which they cleerly belieued in their harts, to auoide this midday diuel, the extremitte of long, manifest, and grieuous afflictions. Neuertheles in al these tentations God protecteth them that firmly trust in him. Those (saith this holic Father) haue failed, which presumed of themselves, which dwelt not in the helpe of the Highest, and in protection of the God of heauen: which said not to our Lord: Thou art my Protector, and my refuge, which trusted not vnder the shadow, of his wings, but relied, or attributed much to their owne strength.

God is by al manner of voices and instruments to be praised in his admirable works: 7. which the foolish not doing are punished; 11. & the wise are rewarded

1. A Psalme (a) of Canticle, (b) in the sabbath day.

(a) Voices beginning instruments profecute this song: (b) when we rest from worke, then especially we ought to thinke vpon Gods works, praise and thanke him for the same.

2. It is good (c) to confesse to our Lord: and to sing to thy name, o Highest.

3. To shew forth thy mercie in (d) the morning: and thy truth in (e) the night.

(d) In prosperitie. (e) in aduersitie.

4. In (f) the instrument of ten strings, in (g) Psalter: with Canticle, on (h) the Harpe,

(f) On euerie instrument of tenne strings, signifying the obseruation of the tenne commandments: (g) namely on the Psalter (h) also on the harpe, which signifieth mortification.

5. Because thou hast delighted me, o Lord, in thy workemanship: and in the works of thy hands I wil reioyce.

6. How are thy works magnified, o Lord! thy cogitations are made very profound.

7. The (i) vnwise man wil not know; and the (k) foole wil not vnderstand these things.

(i) Carnal and sensual man, (k) he that thinketh only of present things, not of future.

8. When sinners shal spring vp as grasse: and al that worke iniquitie shal appeare.

That they may perish for euer: 9. but thou the Highest for euer, o Lord.

10. Because loe thine enemies, o Lord, because loe thine enemies shal perish: and al that worke iniquitie shal be dispersed.

11. And (l) my horne shal be exalted, as the vnicorns: (m) and my old age in plentiful mercie.

(l) The iust in confidence of a good conscience expect exaltation of their power: (m) and great consolation in the end of their life.

12. And (n) mine eie hath looked vpon mine enemies: and the malignant rising vp against me, mine eares shal heare.

(n) Then shal the iustice their enemies depressed: and themselues flourish, like the palme and ceder trees as foloweth:

13. The iust shal flourish as a palme tree: as the ceder of Libanus shal he be multiplied.

14. They that are planted in (o) the house of our Lord, shal flourish in (p) the courts of the house of our God.

(o) Militant Church: (p) triumphant.

15. As yet shal they be multiplied in plentiful old age: and they shal be wel affected, 16. that they (q) may shew forth:

(a) Praise to be song with voice: (b) composed by Dauid: (c) the sixth day of the weeke, which is our friday, (d) in which day the Church of Christ was founded by his blood shed on the crosse.

1. O V R Lord (e) hath reigned, he (f) hath put on beautie: our Lord hath (g) put on strength, and hath girded himselte.

Our Sauiour founding his Church by his death began then to reigne therein (f) gloriously descending in soule into limbus, and in bodie to his graue: (g) he then put on al armour of strength to reforme the world, and to enlarge his Kingdome, according to his owne predication where he said: If I be exalted from the earth, I will draw al things vnto my selfe. Ioan. 12: v. 31.

For he hath establied (h) the round world, which (i) shal not be moued.

(h) Not only Ierusalem and Samaria, but the whole earth: (i) and the same Church shal not be destroyed.

2. Thy seat is prepared from that time: thou (k) art from euerlasting.

(l) Al sorts of persecuters, the High priests (whosometimes watered the spiritual land, like riuers) with Scribes, Pharisees, and other incredulous Iewes, also Pagans, Turkes, and Heretikes haue oppugned the Church.

The riuers haue lifted vp their waues, 4. (m) about the voices of manie waters.

The furies of the sea are meruelous, (n) meruelous is our Lord on high.

5. Thy testimonies are made (o) credible exceedingly: (p) holines becommeth thy house, o Lord (q) for length of daies.

(o) Articles of faith are not evidently apparent to knowledge, but euident to creditie, to those that are disposed by Gods grace, illuminating their vnderstanding, and mouing their free wil, to giue consent of beleefe if they wil. (p) It behoueth therefore al members of the Church to conuerse piously, and religiously in this life, seeing she hath so excellent a spouse, protectour, and instructour, (q) euen to the end of the world.

Eternal saluation and damnation.

The faithful servant of God assuredly professeth, that at the pride, 5. crueltie, 7. foolish imaginations, and secret thoughts of the wicked, are manifest to God. 12. Acknowledgeth himself happie, that he is better instructed of God: whereas he had otherwise been damned. 20. Sharply reprehendeth those that consider not of Gods iudgements: concluding that the iust shal be glorified, and the wicked damned.

To (a) Dauid himselfe, in (b) the fourth of the sabbath.

(a) The Hebrew letter Lamed, which ordinarily is prefixed to the datiuē case, or signifieth to, being set before proper names is a signe of the genetiue case. Get the Septuagint expresse it by the datiuē, and so doth the latin, ipsi Dauid, and consequently our English hath, to Dauid himselfe; to shew a difference between sacred and profane writers. For in humane books the writer and authour is al one; but in diuine, the Holie Ghost is the proper authour, and a man is the writer. To signifie therefore the principal authour, Dauid is sometimes named as the instrumental cause, to whom the Holie Ghost inspired this and other Psalmes, and by whom they were written. And when the titles expresse otherwise: A Psalm of Dauid, yet it is so to be vnderstood, that the Holie Ghost is alwayes the principal authour, and Dauid the instrumental, ministerial, or secundarie authour. But when other names are expresse, either in the genetiue or datiuē case, or howsoeuer, it proueth not that those men were the writers of the same Psalmes, but importeth some other thing, as by S. Augustins iudgement we noted in the proemial Annotations, page 3. & 4. Wherby is proued that this Psalm was not written, nor composed by Moyses, as Hebrew Rabbins suppose, but by the Royal Psalmist Dauid. (b) Made and ordinarily song in the fourth day of the weeke, our wenesday, in which day Iudas the traitour sold our Sauiour Christ to his enemies. The reuenge of which wickednes, and of al other sinnes, is here prophocied.

I. O V R Lord God (c) of reuenges: the God of reuenges hath done (d) freely.

(c) God more commonly called the God of mercie (which vertue in him is aboue al his workes, Psal. 144.) is also the God of reuenges, according to his iustice. (d) He proceedeth in iudgement resolutely, not depending, nor fearing, nor respecting anie person, power, dignitie, wisdom, or other like qualitie, but their iust merites.

2. Be :: exalted thou that iudgeth the earth: render retribution to the proud.

3. How long shal sinners, o Lord: how long shal sinners glorie?

4. Shal they vtter, and speake iniquitie? shal al they speake (e) that worke iniustice?

(e) Shal most wicked men stil be suffered to speake so insolently?

5. Thy :: people, o Lord, they haue humbled: and thine inheritance they haue vexed.

6. The widow, and the stranger they haue slaine: and the pupils they haue killed.

:: A prayer of iust zeale.

:: A description of heathenish and heretical crueltie.

7. And: they haue said: The Lord shal not see, neither shal the God of Iacob vnderstand.

8. Vnderstand ye foolish in the people: and ye fooles be wise at some-time.

9. He that planted the eare, shal he not heare? Or he that made the eie do. shal he not consider?

10. He that chastiseth nations, shal he not rebuke: he that teacheth man knowledge?

11. Our Lord knoweth (f) the cogitations of men: that they be vaine.

(f) So vnpossible is it that God should be ignorant, or careles what men doe, that he also knoweth and obserueth most secret thoughts.

12. Blessed is the man whom thou shalt instruct, o Lord, and shalt teach out of thy law.

13. That thou maist (g) giue him quietnes from the euil dayes: til a pitte be digged for the sinner.

(g) Mitigate and temper his afflictions, that by patience and fortitude the iust may perseuere, and not be ouerwhelmed.

14. Because our Lord (b) wil not reiect his people: and his inheritance he wil not forsake.

(b) The whole Church shal neuer be reiected, nor forsaken.

15. \ntil iustice (i) be turned into iudgement: and (k) they who are neere it, are al that are right of hart.

(i) Iustice is conuerted into iudgement, when iust meaning is put in worke and practise, that it may appeare in iudgement. Also God who doth & suffereth al iustly, wil conserue his inheritance the Church, euen vnto the day of iudgement. (k) The sense is easie by transposing the words: al that are right of hart, are neere it, that is, shal like and approue Gods iustice, when the wicked shal repine, and blasfeme it.

16. Who shal rise for me against the malignant? or who shal stand with me against them that worke iniquitie?

17. But that our Lord hath holpen me: within very litle my soule had dwelt in hel.

18. If I said: (l) My foote is moued: thy mercie, o Lord, did help me.

(l) When I felt and complained that I was in danger, thou didst assisist me.

19. According to the multitude of my sorrowes in my hart: thy consolations haue made my soule ioyful.

20. Doth the feat of iniquitie cleaue to thee: which makest (m) labour in precept?

(m) Onlie faith sufficeth not, but careful labour, in keeping Gods commandments is required.

21. They wil hunt after the soule of the iust: and wil condemne innocent blood.

22. And our Lord became my refuge: and my God the helpe (n) of my hope.

(n) The iust doe hope for eternal saluation, to which God wil bring them.

23. And he (o) wil repay them their iniquitie: and in their malice he wil destroy them: the Lord our God wil destroy them.

(o) And God, the reuenger of wrongs, wil at last cast the wicked into eternal torments.

Scarse anie Atheistes are so blind as thus to thinke, but manie sinners so behaue themselues, as if God saw not, knew not, or at least cared nor what they doe.

2. Let vs (e) preuent his face in confession: and (f) in Psalmes let vs make iubilation to him.

(e) Let vs be more diligent, and preuent our accustomed time. For no man can preuent Gods grace with anie good worke, who first preuenteth vs, els we can neither doe, nor thinke anie good thing. (f) Not only in singing his praise with voice, but also with muscal instruments.

3. Because our Lord is a great God: and a great King aboue al Gods.

4. Because in his hand are the ends of the earth: and the heights of the mountaines be his.

5. Because the sea is his, and he made it: and his hands formed the drie land.

6. Come let vs adore, (g) and fal downe: and weepe before our Lord, that made vs.

(g) So also Isaias (c. 45. v. 23. and S. Paul (Philip. 2.) teach that kneeling or bowing the knees, as an external religious ceremonie, is acceptable to God.

7. Because he is the Lord (h) our God; and we the people of his pasture, and the sheepe (i) of his hand.

(h) It is most iust and necessariethat we adore God, because he made vs, and al this world for vs, hath also redeemed vs, and made vs his people, as shepe of his pasture, and as a Pastour feedeth and gouerneth vs. (i) O: his making.

8. (k) To day if ye thal heare his voice, "harden not your harts.

(k) Though some haue often repelled, and resisted Gods grace, yet if they receiue it being offered againe, it wil auaille them to remisison of sinnes.

9. As in the prouocation according to the day (l) of the tentation in the desert: where your fathers tempted me, proued me, and saw my workes.

(l) The Israelites in the desert tempted God, by desiring water, and flesh, of voluptuous concupiscence without necessitie. For Manna did both extinguish their thirst, and tasted vnto them: whatsoever they desired: Exod. 16. That also which was left vngathered when the sunne waxed hot, melted. (v. 21.) and serued their cattel for drinke. So this tentation was a figure of those, which require to communicate vnder both kinds, as if one did not containe as much as both.

10. (m) Fourtie, yeares was I (n) offended with that generation, and said: These alwaies erre in hart.

(n) By this mention of the offence of fourtie yeares, as long before passed, is conuincd that Moyse writ not this Psalme, who died in the very fourtith yeare of their abode in the desert. And Saint Paul citing the words of this Psalme (Heb. 4.) manifestly acknowledgeth Dauid the writer therof, and that it was written long after Moyse time in these words: (v. 7.) Againe he limiteth a certaine day: To day, in Dauid saying after so long time, as is aboue said. To day if you shal heare his voice, doe not obdurate your harts. For if Iesus (that is Iosue) had giuen them rest, he would neuer speake of an other day afterward.

(n) Being greatly offended, I approached neere vnto them, in punishing the offenders.

11. And these haue not knowne my waies: as I sware in my wrath: (o) if they shal enter into my rest.

(o) Those that murmured died in the desert, and entred not into the promised land, euen so those that finally offend Christ, shal not enter into euerlasting rest. Heb. 3. & 4.

A N N O T A T I O N S.

P S A L M E X C I I I I.

8. Harden nos your harts. Whatsoever God proposeth by preaching or inspiration to a sinner, it resteth stil in the power of his freewil, to harden his hart, and to reiect al such good motions, and so he doth not only frustrate Gods grace, and hinder his owne iustification, but also increaseth his former sinnes. But by not resisting, when deliberating therupon he could resist, he disposeth himselfe and cooperateth to first iustification. And therefore the Royal Prophet here admonisheth, and earnestly exhorteth al men, to doe this which God hath put in our power, not to harden our owne harts, when we heare his voice, by resisting and reiecting his grace freely offered, without al merite of our part.

It is in mans freewil to resist good motions.

Christs diuine power.
The 5. key.

A peoples & nations are invited to praise the blessed Trinitie, 3. for Christs Incarnation, and spiritual kingdom in al the world, 10. euen senseles creatures acknowledging his maiestie, 13. and iudicial power.

1. A Canticle (a) to Dauid *himselfe, (b) when the house was built after the captiuitie.

* 1. Par.
16. v.
23.

"(a) Inspired to Dauid, and written by him: (b) prophecyng the restauration of the temple, after the future captiuitie. And that in figure of the vniuersal redemption of mankind by Christ, from the captiuitie of the diuel.

SING ye to our Lord (c) a new-song: sing to our Lord al the earth.

(c) For a new benefite, farre greater then the deliuerie of Israel from Aegypt.

2. d) Sing ye to our Lord, and blesse his name: shew forth his saluation from day to day.

(d) The same wordes (Sing to our Lord) thrise repeated, signifie the Blessed Trinitie, as some Fathers note. Likewise v. 7. & 8. Bring ye to our Lord & c. in both places concluding in the singular number, blesse his name, bring to his name, importing one God.

3. Shew forth his glorie among the Gentils, his meruelous workes in al peoples.

4. Because our Lord is great, and exceeding laudable: he is terrible aboue al Gods.

5. Because al the Gods of the Gentils are (e) diuels, but our Lord (f) made the heauens.

(e) What creatures soeuer spiritual or corporal, visible or inuisible the Pagans serue for Gods, stil they be diuels that deceiue them, and diuers wayes vsurpe diuine honour, making such idolaters to thinke, that there is diuine power, where none is.

(f) He only is true God, who is Creatour of heauen, and of al creatures. For no creature can create anie thing at al, that is, make anie thing of nothing, but only God.

6. Confession and beauty in his sight: holinesse and magnificence in his sanctification.

7. Bring to our Lord ye families of Gentils, bring ye to our Lord glorie and honour: 8. bring to our Lord glorie vnto his name.

Take vp hostis, and enter into his courts: 9. adore ye our Lord in his holie court.

Let al the earth be moued before his face: 10. Say ye among the Gentils that our Lord (g) hath reigned.

(g) Diuers ancient Doctours read more in this place: Our Lord hath reigned from the wood, to wit, Christ by his death on the crosse conquered the diuel, sinne, and death, and thence began to reigne. S. Iustinus Martyr, dialogo aduers. Triphonem, Tertullian li. aduers. Iudæos. c. 9. & 13. & aduers. Marcionem li. 3. c. 19. & 21. S. Augustin in this place, according to the old Roman Psalter. Before him Arnobius,

and

For he hath corrected the round world, which shal not be moued: he wil iudge peoples in equitie.

11. (b) Let the heauens be glad, and the earth reioyce, the sea be moued, and the fulnesse therof: 12. the fieldes shal be glad, and al things that are in them.

(b) The Psalmist in abundance of spirit inuited al creatures to praise God, as Daniel in his Canticle. c. 3.

Then shal the trees of the woods reioyce 13. before the face of our Lord, because he commeth: because he commeth to iudge the earth.

He (i) wil iudge the round world in equitie, and peoples in his truth.

(i) Christ iudgeth now in the world by his ministers, discerning and deciding causes, rewarding and punishing, but especially he wil iudge al in the last day.

P S A L M E X C V I.

Al the earth is inuited to reioyce in Christs Kingdom, 3. with description of the signes comming before the day of Iudgement. 7. Idolaters shal be confounded. 8. Holie Angels and iust men shal adore Christ, and reioyce.

The last iudgement.
The 9. key.

1. To (a) this Daid, (b) when his land was restored againe to him.

(a) In figure of Christ, (b) whose bodie rose the third day after his death: to whom manie returned believing in him after his resurrection, which fel from him in his passion: and to whom al things shal be subdued, as to their true Lord, in the day of iudgement.

O V R Lord hath reigned, let the earth reioyce: let (c) manie Ilands be glad.

(c) Holie Daid and other Prophets hauing great ioy to see long before in spirit only Christs Kingdom extended in the whole earth, yea to the Ilands, we Ilanders haue great cause to be glad, that God hath not only so blessed vs long since, but as yet conferueth seede, wherby we trust the whole Iland shal be againe restored vnto him.

2. (d) Cloud and mist round about him: iustice and iudgement (e) the correction of his feat.

(d) As in a cloud with terrour God gaue his law to the Iewes: so in a cloud with greater terrour and maiestie, he wil iudge the world: (e) not as manie corrupted seats of iudgement in this world, but as corrected tribunal, where iustice and right iudgement shal be practised.

3. Fire shal goe before him, and shal inflame his enimies round about.

4. His lightnings: shined to the round world, the earth saw: and was moued.

5. The mountaines melted as waxe, before the face of our Lord: before the face of our Lord al the earth.

6. The heauens haue shewed forth his iustice: and al peoples haue seen his glorie.

7. Let them al be confounded, that adore (f) sculptsils: and that glorie in their idols.

:: These things are denounced as if they were already done, for the assured certaintie therof.

(f) As wel the worshippers of grauen or painted images of Iupiter, Mars, Bacchus & the like, as the worshippers of the same imagined false Gods shal be confounded. Adore him al ye his Angels: 8. (g) Sion heard, and was glad.

(g) The Catholike Church.

And (b) the daughters of Iuda reioyced, because of thy iudgements, o Lord.

(b) And al particular Churches, members of the vniuersal

9. Because thou Lord molt high ouer al the earth: thou art exalted exceedingly aboute al Gods.

10. You that loue our Lord, hate ye euil, our Lord keepeth the soules of his saints, out of the hand of the sinner. he wil deliuer them.

11. Light is risen to the iust, and ioy to the right of hart.

12. Be glad ye iust in our Lord: and confesse ye to the memorie (i) of his anctification.

(i) Praise our Lord Christ, who is sanctific it-selfe, and sanctifieth others.

(a) Prefiguring Christ, who hath made his saluation knowen in al nations.

SING ye to our Lord (b) a new song: because he hath done meruelous things.

(b) A new benefite of grace, making men new in spirite, requireth a new song of gratitude.

His right hand hath wrought saluation (c) to himselfe: and his arme is holie.

(c) Raised vp himselfe from death.

2. Our Lord hath (d) made knowne his saluation: in the sight of the Gentils he hath reuealed his iustice.

(d) Made his grace effectually knowen by raising men from sinne, and deliivering them from the power of the diuel.

3. He hath remembered his mercie, and his truth to (e) the house of Israel.

1. Psalme to Dauid himselfe.

OUR Lord hath reigned, (a) let peoples be angric: he that sitteth vpon the Cherubs, let (b) the earth be moued.

(a) Though manie enemies doe rage and impugne Christ: (b) though the whole earth be troubled therwith, yet Christ who sitteth Lord ouer the highest Angels, Cherubins and Seraphims, obeyneth the victories, reigneth, and doth his wil in the earth.

2. Our Lord great in Sion: and high about al peoples.

3. Let them confesse to thy great name: because it is terrible and holie.

4. And the honour of the King (c) loueth iudgement.

Thou hast prepared directions: thou hast done iudgement and iustice
 (d) in Iacob.

5. Exalt ye the Lord our God, and adore (e) his foot-stoole: because it is holie.

(e) Hebrew Doctors expound this of the Arke in the old testament, but the Doctours of the Church vnderstand Christs humanitie, in the holie Eucharist.

6. Moyfes and Aaron in his (f) Priests: and Samuel among them that inuocate his name:

 that Moyfes was a Priest, against those that for maintaining the heresie of Lay-head-

They inuocated our Lord (g) and he heard them: 7. in a pillar of a cloud he spake to them.

(g) By example of their praying and obtaining; the Psalmist confirmeth his prophecie, that Priests of the new Testament shal pray, and obtaine mercie of Christ for the Church.

They kept his testimonies; & the precept which he gauethem. 8. O
 Lord our God thou heardest them: God thou wast propitious to them, and taking vengeance vpon al (h) their inuentions.

(h) God reuenged the machinations made against them, punishing the rebellion of Chore, Dathan, and Abyron Num. 16.

s. A love his foose-stoole.) For so much as al Expositours, also the Hebrew Rabbins, affirme that the Psalmist here prophecieth of Christ the promised Messias, that should redeeme mankind, and seeing the Arke of couenant perteyneth not to the seruice of Christ, but was only a figure of him, the foot-stoole of the Messias here mentioned must needs be something perteyning to him: and therefore most ancient Fathers expound it of Christs humanity. And because the Prophet speaketh of perpetual adoration, not only of the shorrt time he conuerfed with men in this life, when very few adored him, the same fathers vnderstand here the adoration of Christ in the Blessed Sacrament of the Eucharist. Which S. Ambrose teacheth (lib. 3. de Spiritu Sancto c. 12.) in these plaine words: By the foot-stoole must be vnderstood the earth, by the earth the flesh of Christ Which we also at this day adore in the Mysteries, and which the Apostles adored in our Lord Iesus. S. Augustin more largely vpon this Psalme: I am made doubtrul (saith he) I feare to adore the earth, lest he condemne me that made heauen & earth. Againe, I feare not to adore the foot stoole of my Lord, because the Psalme saith to me: Adore his foot-stoole: I seeke what is his foot-stoole, and the Scripture (Isaie 66.) telleth me, the earth is foot-stoole. Doubtrul I turne myself vnto Christ, because I seeke him here, & I finde how without impietie the earth may be adored, without impietie his foot-stoole may be adored. For he tooke earth of earth, because flesh is of earth, and he tooke flesh of the flesh of (the B. Virgin) Marie. And because he walked here in the same flesh, and gaue the very flesh to vs to eate, vnto saluation, & no man eateth that flesh, vnles he first adore it: it is found how such a foot-stoole of our Lord may be adored: and not only we doe not sinne in adoring, but we should sinne in not adoring. Thus saire S. Augustin. Further instructing, not to conceiue of Christs flesh, as the Capharnaites did, that he would curre it in peeces from his bodie, & giue them portions therof. His very flesh is giuen and eaten, not in fleshlie manner, but in sacramental. See Annotations, Ioan. 6.

I. MERCIE (a) and iudgement I wil sing to thee, o Lord: I wil sing, 2. and I (b) shal vnderstand in the immaculate way, (c) when thou shalt come to me.

(a) These two capital diuine vertues are euer ioyned in al Gods works, for both which experienced towards himselfe, the Psalmist rendereth thanks and praises.

(b) I wil doe myne endeauour to know the immaculate way, (c) which I can not doe, but by thy grace comming vnto me. For by helpe therof I did as foloweth:

I walked through in the innocencie of my hart, in the middes of my house.

3. I did not propose before mine eyes any vniust thing: I hated them that doe preuarication.

4. A peruerse hart hath not cleaued to me: the malignant declining from me I knew not.

A sinner in affliction of mind prayeth God to deliuer him, 10. desolate of al other helpe. 13. 2. LO·R·D· heare my (a) prayer: and let my (b) crie come to thee.

(a) Euerie petition is a prayer, (b) and that which proceedeth from more feruent affection, is called a crie, though it burst not out into clamour; nor perhaps into anie voice at al. For God said to Moyse, praying in meere silence, but with vehemencie of spirit (Exod. 14.) Why criest thou to me?

3. Turne (c) not away thy face from me: in what day soeuer I am in tribulation, incline thine eare to me.

(c) Though sinne prouoke Gods wrath, because we by sinning turne from him, and not be firmit from vs: yet we pray God not so to leaue vs, but to giue vs new grace, that by humilitie, and penance we may returne to him, and not die in sinne.

In what day soeuer I shal inuocate thee, heare me speedily.

4. Because my dayes haue vanished as (d) smoke: and my (e) bones are withered as (f) a drie burnt firebrand.

(d) Mans dayes, and al his workes are nothing worth, but vanish like smoke, so long as he is in mortal sinne: (e) yea his best workes, as if he giue almes, fast, pray, and dye for the truth, yet al those auaille nothing. 1. Cor. 13. but are (f) like dried sticke, or chips, fit to kindle the fire.

8. I haue watched, and am become as (n) a sparow solitarie in the house-top.

(n) Also as a sparow having lost her mate, remaineth mourning, and solitarie in the accustomed nest, or neere vnto it.

9. Al the day did mine enemies vpbrayd me: and they (o) that prayfed me sware against me.

(o) Those that were wont to praise or flatter me, now are as sworne enemies against me.

11. At (r) the face of thy wrath and indignation : because (f) lifting me vp thou hast throwne me downe.

(r) I am most especially afflicted, because thou art angrie. (f) In that thou didst sometime aduance me in prosperitie, (t) my fall is so much greater, and more grieuous.

12. My daies haue declined (v) as a shadow : and I am withered (w) as grasse.

(v) As a shadow declineth to nothing, & al becommeth darknes, when the sunne, and other light departedh, euen so I, that am but a shadow, decline to meere darknes when thy rauour parteth from me: (w) and I lose my beautie, as grasse cut from the ground withereth.

13. (x) But thou o Lord endurest for euer : and (y) thy memorial in generation and generation.

(x) But I am meruelously comforted, considering that thou our Messias; the Sonne of God, art immutable for euer (y) and thy memorable promise of redeeming mankind, will haue effect in al generations.

14. Thou (z) rising vp shal haue mercie on Sion : because it is (a) time to haue mercie on it, because (b) the time commeth.

(z) Thou rising to help, who seemedst to haue forgot, wilt protect the Church, and curie faithfull soule. (a) Because thou hast differred long : (b) and because the time by thee designed seemeth to approach.

15. Because (c) the siones therof haue pleased thy seruants: and they shal haue pittie on (d) the earth (e) therof.

(c) Men that shal heare thye Apostles preach, shal proue good and fitte matter, for the building of thy Church : (d) and the simplest poore people, as it were the earth or dust, (e) shal participate of this mercie.

16. And (f) the Gentils shal teare thy name o Lord, and al (g) the Kings of the earth thy glorie.

(f) Besides those Iewes that shal belieue in Christ, much more the Gentils shal feare and serue him. (g) His glorie is so euident that al Kings know it, though al be not conuerted.

17. Because our Lord hath built Sion : and he shal be seen in his glorie.

18. He hath had respect to the prayer (h) of the humble : and he hath not despised their petition.

(h) Of holie Patriarches, Priests, Prophets, and of al true penitents.

19. Let these things be written vnto an other generation : and the people that shal (i) be created shal praise our Lord.

(i) That shal be made a new creature in Christ.

20. Because he hath looked forth from his high holie place : our Lord from heauen hath looked vpon the earth.

21. That he might heare the gronings of the fettered : that he might loose the children of them that are slayne:

22. That they may (k) shew forth the name of our Lord in Sion : and his praite Ierusalem.

(k) The faithfull people of the Church, according to their habilitie endeavour to serue Christ.

23. In the assembling of the people together in one, and Kings to serue our Lord.

24. He answered him in the way of his strength: Shew me the fewnes of my daies.

25. Cal me not bakke (l) in the halfe of my daies: thy yeares are vnto generation and generation.

(l) Grant me time and meanes to be mature in vertue in this life.

26. In the beginning, o Lord, thou didst found the earth: and the heauens are the workes of thy hands.

27. They (m) shal perish, but thou are permanent: and they shal al waxe old as a garment. Heb. 1.

(m) Be changed in qualitie.

And as a vesture thou shalt change them, and they shal be changed:

28. but thou art the selfe-same, and thy yeares shal not faile.

4. Who (f) redeemeth thy life from deadly falling: who (g) crowneth thee in mercie and commiserations.

(f) The third, to conferue from falling againe: (g) the fourth, to giue victorie and reward in abundant measure.

5. Who (h) replenisheth thy desire in good things: thy youth (i) shal be renewed as the eagles.

(h) The fifth, to grant al lawful petitions temporal and spiritual, which are good for the soule, (i) the sixth, resurrection of flesh in glorie.

6. Our

6. Our Lord (k) doth mercies: and (l) iudgement to al that suffer wrong.

(k) Our Lord, whose special propertie is to shew mercie, (l) when the same is neglected; he reuengeth the wrongs, deliuering the oppressed, and punishing the oppressours.

7. He made his waies (m) knowne to Moyse, his his wils to the children of Israel.

(m) By giuing them a written law.

8. Our Lord is (n) pitieful, and (o) merciful: (p) long suffering, and very merciful.

(n) God is naturally pittiful to relieue the afflicted. (o) Merciful towards sinners.

(p) Loath to be angrie, or to punish.

9. He wil (q) not be angrie alwayes: neither wil he threaten for euer.

(q) God punisheth not penitents with eternal paine, but with temporal: for though (as in the next verse) our finnes of their owne nature deserue eternal punishment, yet Christ paying or ransome, true penitents are only punished temporally.

10. He hath not done to vs according to our finnes: neither according to our iniquities hath he rewarded vs.

11. For according to the height of heauen from the earth: hath he strengthened his mercie vpon them that feare him.

12. As far (r) as the East is distant from the West: hath he made our iniquities far from vs.

(r) See here the perfect washing away, and separation of finnes.

13. As a father hath compassion of his children, so hath our Lord compassion on them that feare him: 14. because he hath knowen (s) our making.

(s) In regard of our fraiktie he hath compassion: yet his mercie only auaieth to them that feare him: as in the next words before, and v. 17.

He remembered that we are dust: 15. man, his daies are as grasse, as the flour of the field, so shal he flourish.

16. Because the spirit shal passe in him, and he shal not stand: and he shal know his place no more.

17. But the mercie of our Lord from euerlasting, and vnto euerlasting vpon them that feare him.

And his iustice is vpon the childrens children, to them that keepe his testament.

18. And are mindful of his commandments to (t) doe them.

(t) A iust man not only knoweth, & remembreth, but also doth the comandments.

19. Our Lord hath prepared his seate in heauen: and his Kindom shal haue dominion ouer al.

20. Blesse our Lord al ye his Angels: mightie in power, doing his word, that feare the voice of his words.

21. Blesse our Lord al ye his hosts: you his ministers, that doe his wil.

22. Blesse ye our Lord (v) al his workes: in euerie place (w) of his dominion, my soule blesse thou our Lord.

(v) Al creatures, though naturally senseles, yet praise God; because they are his worke, (w) and because they are in his dominion.

Scripture.

5. Thy youth shal be renewed, as the Eagles.) Aristotle and Plinie write, that an Eagle decayeth not, nor euer dieth by old age, but the vpper part of her beake stil growing, at last hindereth her from eating, and so she dieth of famine. Saadias, and other Hebrew Rabbins report, that an Eagle Euerie tenne yeares washeth her selfe in the sea as in a bath, & then flying very high burneth her fethers in the elemental fire, & new fethers growing she becommeth fresh, as in her first youth, til at last about an hundred yeares old, she is not able to rise from the water, and so is drowned. Saint Augustin more probably affirmeth, that in long time her beake growing long, and stopping her mouth that she can not eate, she breaketh the vpper hooked part therof against a stone, and so receiuech meate and recouereth strength, as in her youth. But whatsoeuer is the natural propertie of this kindlie bird, the Royal Prophet here instructeth vs by the similitude of her long life, or by the renouation of her strength, that iust men, Gods seruants, are spiritually renouated in Christ, the principal rocke, on whom the Church, & al the faithful are built, either by receiuing new strength by his grace in their soules, after they are weakened by sinne, as Saint Ierom and Euthymius expound this place: or by restauration of their bodies glorified in the resurrection, as Saint Augustin teacheth: or by both, as most Catholike Doctours vnderstand it. For one sense of holie Scripture excludeth not an other. Especially when is subordinate to the other. As here these two senses doe very wel concurre, seeing the state of the bodie after the resurrection, dependeth vpon the state of the soule, at the time of death.

9. He wil not be angrie alwayes.) Origen misunderstood this place, and some other like, holding an erroneous opinion, that al, euen the most wicked sinners, both men and diuels, shal at last be saued, and not eternally damned: which is a condemned heresie, contrarie to euident places of holie Scriptures. Psal. 9. v. 6. The impious hath perished: their name thou hast destroyed for euer, & for euer & euer. Mat. 25. The wicketh shal goe into fire euerlasting, into euerlasting punishment. Apoc. 20. The beast and the false Prophet (and the same reason is for al the wicked) shal be tormented day and night, for euer and euer. Neither are these words (God wil not be angrie alwayes) spoken vniuersally, touching al sinners whofoeuer, but are limited, v. 13. & 17. to those that teare him, and keepe his testament: whereas al those that dye in mortal sinne, are stil obstinate in malice, and can neuer rightly repent, nor rightly feare God, nor keepe his commandments.

P S A L M E C I I I.

The Psalmist inuities himself and others to praise God, for his meruelous workes in the heauen, 5. the earth, and water, 9. limiting their bonds, producing al things necessarie for al liuing creatures, in conuenient seasons. 27. With continual prouidence of al.

PSALME CIIII.

The Israelites are exhorted to sing praises to God, 5. for his meruelous benefites towards Abraham, Isaac, and Iacob. 11. Whose particular familie, being then smal, went from Chanaan into Aegypt. (17. Whither Ioseph by Gods providence was caried before) there increased in number was persecuted, 26. deliuered by Moyses and Aaron, working manie great miracles, 36. protected, and fed in the deseri, 47. and finally possessed Chanaan.

Gods special benefites towards the Iewes. The 4. key.

(a) Alleluia.

(a) Alleluia signifieth more then Laudate Dominum, Praise ye our Lord. For by these two hebrew words, Alleluia, the Prophet inuiceth al men to praise God, with gladnes, and iubilation, with hart, voice, and gesture, with instruments, and howfoeuer we are able. And therefore S. Ierom, S. Augustin, and al Catholike writers keepe the same words, and translate it not; neither in the titles of Psalmes, nor ordinarily in anie place of holie Scripture. This is the first Psalme thus titled, and is the same Psalme in sense, and in good part of the words, which the Royal Prophet made, and caused to be sung, when brought the Arke of God from the house of Obededom into his owne house. 1. Par. 16. v. 8.

- I. CONFESSE ye to our Lord, and inuocate his name (b) shew forth his workes amoug the Gentils.
- (b) How much grateful is it now to God, that we celebrate the greater mysteries of the new Testament.
2. Chaunt to him, and sing to him: tel ye al his meruelous workes.
3. Prayse ye him in his holie name : let the hart of them reioice that seeke our Lord.
4. Seeke ye our Lord, and be confirmed : seeke (c) his face alwayes.
- (c) His present helpe.
5. Remember ye his meruelous workes, which he hath done : his wonders, and the iudgements of his mouth.

For an exposition of this Psalme read the places quoted in the inner margin.

6. The feede of Abraham his seruants : the children of Iacob his elect.

7. He is the Lord our God : in (d) al the earth are his iudgements.

(d) Not only in Israel, but in al the world.

8. He hath been mindful for euer of his testament ; of the word which he commanded (e) vnto a thousand generations.

(e) For euer, to the end of the world.

9. Which he disposed to Abraham : and of his oath to Isaac.

10. And he appointed it to Iacob for a precept : and to Israel for an eternal testament.

11. Saying : To thee wil I giue the land of Chanaan, the corde of your inheritance.

12. When they were (f) of smal number, very few and seiourners therof:

(f) But 70. persons.

13. And they passed from nation into nation, & from Kingdom to an other people.

14. He left not a man to hurt them : and he rebuked Kings for their sake:

15. Touch not my annoined, and toward my Prophets be not malignant.

16. And (g) he called a famine vpon the land : and he destroyed al the strength of bread.

(g) By his prouidence suffered.

17. He sent a man before them : Ioseph was sold to be a seruant.

18. They humbled his secte in fetters, yron passed though his soule, 19. vntil his word came.

The word of our Lord inflamed him : 20. the King sent, and loosed him; the Prince of of the people, and released him.

21. He appointed him Lord of his house : and Prince of al his possession.

22. That he might instruct his Princes as himselfe : and might teach his ancients wisdom.

23. And Israel entred into Aegypt, and Iacob was a seiourner in the land (h) of Cham.

(h) Aegypt, possessed by Mesraim Chams second sonne. Gen. 10. v. 13.

24. And he increased his people exceedingly : and strengthened them ouer their enemies.

25. He (i) turned their hart that they hated his people : and to worke guite toward his seruants.

(i) May it be vnderstood, or believed (saith S. Augustin) that God turneth the hart of man to committe sinnes? Or is it no sine, or is it a smal sinne, to hate the people of God? Or to worke guite towards his seruants? Who wil say this? What then, is God authour of these so-griuous sinnes, who is not to be supposed the authour of a most smal sinne? This learned Father therefore answereth, that God peruerted not a right hart, but turned that was of it-selfe peruerse, to the hatred of his people, where he might vse that euil wel, not by making them euil, but by bestowing vpon his owne people good things, which the euil might easily enuie. Which hatred of theirs how God vsed both to the exercise of his people (which is profitable to vs) & to the glorie of his owne name, the things that folow doe teach vs; which are here rememored to his praise.

26. He sent Moyse his seruant : Aaron (k) himselfe whom he chose.

P S A L M E CV.

The Israelites often sinned; and were mercifully punished.

The 4. key.

The Prophet exhorteth the people to render thanks and praises to God, 6. for remitting their manifold sinnes, in the desert. 3 4. and in the conquered land: 38. foreshewing like sinnes to come, Gods wrath and punishment for the same. 44. & that he wil giue grace of repentance to some 47. for which he prayeth and praiseb God.

Alleluia.

CONFESSE ye to our Lord (a) because he is good: because his mercie is for euer. Indish 13. v. 21.

(a) God is of himselfe and essentially good. Al other goodnes is participated of him.

2. (b) Who shal speake the powers of our Lord, shal make al his prayes to be heard?

(b) No creature can fully expresse Gods perfections.

3. (c) Blessed are they, that keepe iudgement, & (d) doe iustice at al time.

(c) It is a happie state in this life, either to keepe Gods law: (d) or to repent and doe worthie penance for transgressing.

4. Remember vs, o Lord (e) in the good pleasure of thy people: visite vs in thy saluation:

(e) According to they wonted beneuolence, promised to thy people.

5. To (f) see in the goodnes of thyne elect, to reioyce in the ioy of thy nation: that thou maist be prayed with thine inheritance.

(f) That we may see and enjoy the benefits promised to thyne elect.

6. We haue (g) sinned with our fathers: we haue (h) dealt vniustly, we haue (i) done iniquitie.

(g) We haue erred and hurt our selues: (h) we haue wronged our neighbours: (i) we haue offended against God.

7. Our fathers in Aegypt did not vnderstand thy meruelous workes: thy were not mindful of the multitude of thy mercie.

And they prouoked thee to wrath going vp vnto the sea, the Red sea. Exod. 14. v. 21.

8. And he saued them (k) for his name sake; that he might make his power known.

(k) Albeit the people by their murmuring deserued more punishment, yet God for the glorie of his owne name saued them from vtter destruction.

9. And he rebuked the Red sea, and it was made drie: and he led them in the depths as in a desert.

10. And he saued them from the hand of them that hated them: and he redeemed them out of the hand of theemie.

11. And water ouerwhelmed those that afflicted them: there did not one of them remaine.

12. And they believed his words: and they sang his praises.

13. They had (l) quickly done, they forgot his workes: and they (m) expected not his counsel.
 (l) They persevered not long in their dutie towards God, seeing his omnipotent power by his meruelous workes: (m) nor wete content with his prouidence, but carnally coueted things not necessarie.
- Exo. 16.
Exo. 17. 14. And they coueted concupiscence in the desert: and tempted God in the place without water.
 15. He gaue them their petition: and sent saturitie into their (n) foules.
 (n) According to their carnal desires.
- Num. 10. 16. And they prouoked Moyſes in the campe: Aaron the (o) holie of our Lord.
 (o) Holie by his function.
 17. The earth was opened, and ſwalowed Dathan, and ouerwhelmed the congregation of Abiron.
 18. And a fire flamed vp in their ſinagogue: the flame burnt the ſinners.
- Exo. 23. 19. And they made a calfe in Horeb: and they adored (p) the ſculptil.
 (p) They adored the image that represented a calf, not God.
 20. And they (q) changed their glorie into the ſimilitude of a calfe that eateth graſſe.
 (q) God being their true glorie, they changed him for a falſe God of the Ægyptians (who eſpecially honoured a calfe called Apis) making and image thereof, and attributed their deliuerie from Ægypt to this imagined God. Exo. 32. v. 4. 8. Of which and the like foolish and abominable idolatrie S. Paul writeth, Rom. 1. v. 23. They changed the glorie of the incorruptible God into a ſimilitude of the image of a corruptible man, and of foules, and of foure footed beaſts, and of them that creepe. Where we ſee what manner of images holie Scriptures condemne, and not the images of Chriſt and his Saints.
 21. They forgot God, which ſaued them, which did great things in Ægypt, 22. meruelous things in the land of Cham, terrible things in the Red ſea.
- Exo. 32. 23. And (r) he ſayd to deſtroy them: if Moyſes hiſelect had not ſtood in the way before him.
Num. 14. To turne away his wrath that he ſhould not deſtroy them: 24. and they eſteemed for naught the land that was to be deſired.
 25. They did not belieue his word. 25. and they murmured in their tabernacles: they heard not the voice of our Lord.
- Num. 14. 7.
Num. 21. 22. 26. And he liſted vp his hand ouer them: to ouerthrow them in the deſert:
 27. And to caſt downe their ſeede among the Nations: & to diſperſe them in the countries.
- Num. 25. 7. 3. 28. And they were profeſſed to (ſ) Beelphegor: and they did eaſe the ſacrifices (t) of the dead.
 (ſ) The Idol of Moabites, and Madianites. (t) As God is indeed the liuing God, that liueth of himſelfe, and giueth life to others: ſo falſe Gods are called dead Gods, that can not giue life to anie, but doe kil al that ſerue them; at leaſt ſpiritually, and often corporally.
 29. And they prouoked him in their inuentions: & rume was multiplied on them.

30. And Phinees stood, and (v) pacified: and the slaughter ceased.

(v) Phinees moued by the zeale of God (as the holie text witnesseth, Num. 25. v. 11.) in killing the adulterers pleased God, and merited reward.

31. And it was reputed to him vnto iustice, in generation and generation euen for euer.

32. And they prouoked him at the waters of contradiction: and (w) Moyses was vexed for them: 33. because they exasperated his spirit.

(w) Moyses afflicted in spirit, by the enormous murmuring of the people, doubted whether God would giue them water out of the rock or no: not doubting of his his power, but of his wil: and so when he should haue spoken to the rock, Num. 20. v. 8. he spoke to the incredulous people. v. 10. and therein offended God: for which he was temporally punished. v. 12. Deut. 1. v. 37. & c. 3. v. 26. c. 4. v. 21.

And he playnely affirmed in his lips: 34. they destroyed not the nations, of which our Lord spake to them.

35. And they were mingled among the nations, and learned their workes: 36. and they serued their sculptils: and it became a scandal to them.

37. And they immolated their sonnes, and their daughters to diuels.

38. And (x) they shed innocent blood: the blood of their sonnes and of their daughters, which they sacrificed to the sculptils of Chanaan.

(x) Some Iewes offered these most cruel, vnnatural, and abominable sacrifices; perhaps in the times of Iudges, when they were mingled with idolatrous people, and serued their Gods. Iud. 2. v. 12. c. 3. v. 6. But it is more expresse after Dauids time, wherof he here prophecieth, and was verified by Ahas. 4. Reg. 16. v. 3. and by Manasies. 4. Reg. 21. v. 6. Which with other idolatrie King Iosias destroyed. 4. Reg. 23. v. 1.

And the land was infected with blood, 39. & was contaminated in their workes: and they did fornicate in their inuentions.

40. And our Lord was wrath with turie vpon his people: and he abhorred his inheritance.

41. And he deliuered them into the hands of the nations: and they that hated them had the dominion of them.

42. And their enemies afflicted them, and they were humbled vnder their hands: 43. he did often deliuer them.

But they exasperated him in their counsel: and they were humbled in their iniquities.

44. And he (y) saw when they were afflicted: and he heard their prayer.

(y) God respected them with his merciful eye, and gaue them grace to repent.

45. And he was mindful of his testament: and it repented him according to the multitude of his mercie.

46. And he gaue them into mercies in the sight of al, that had taken them. (z)

(z) Here the Psalmist concludeth both the historie and prophetic of this Psalm, with prayer and praise, as foloweth.

47. :: Saue vs, o Lord our God: and gather vs out of the Nations.

PSALME CV.

10. He redeemed them.) What price (or ransom) saith S. Augustin, was giuen in this redemption? Or is it a prophecie, that this was done in figure of Baptisme, where we are redeemed from the hand of the diuel by a great price, which is the blood of Christ? Wherupon it was more conueniently figured, not by what sea focuer, but by the red sea: For blood hath red colour. And touching the effect of Baptisme destroying al former sinnes, he reacheth in the exposition of the next Psalme (and either the same holie father, or some other good authour, Ser: 42. de temp.) that as the Israelites passed safely through the red sea, and al the Aegyptians going in with them were drowned: so the baptised are saued in the water of Baptisme, and al their sinnes are destroyed.

The red sea a figure of Baptisme.

Al former sinnes destroyed in Baptisme.

PSALME CVI.

Againe the Psalmist inuitedh al men to render thanks to God for their deliuerie from dangers, or euils in general: 4. particularly from dangers in iourney, 10. in prijon. or captiuitie, 17. in sickness spiritual and corporal, 23. in nauigation, 33. describing the changeable course of things in this world, 38. especially of mens states; 42. for al which the iust wil praise God.

Gods perpetual prouidence towards al men.

Alleluia.

1. Par.
16. v.
34.

1. CONFESSE (a) ye to our Lord, because he is good: because his mercie is for euer.

(a) Praise God by confessing his mercie, prouidence, and goodnes.

2. Let them say that are (b) redeemed of our Lord, whom he redeemed out of the hand of the enimie: and out of the countries he gathered them:

(b) God of his mercie promised the Redeemer of mankind straight after Adams fall:

3. From (c) the rising of the sunne, and the going downe: from the north, and the sea.

(c) Which redemption was intended for al, & faileth not of Gods part in anie, but of mans owne wilful refusing to be duly penitent, and to keep Gods precepts.

4. They (d) wandered in the wildernes, in a place without water: the way of citie for habitation they found not.

(d) Literally of such as wander in this world, hauing no settled place to dwell in: spiritually of al mankind after his fall.

5. Hungrie and thirtie: their soule fainted in them.

6. And (e) they cried to our Lord when they were in tribulation: and he deliuered them out of their necessities.

(e) Whensoever they call vpon God, he helpeth them, as is best for their spiritual health.

7. And he conducted them into the right way: to goe into a citie of habitation.

8. Let (f) the mercies of our Lord confesse to him: and his meruelous workes to the children of men.

(f) All Gods benefits, which are of his mercie, not of mans desert, are iust matter of praising God.

9. Because he hath filled the emptie soule: and the hungrie soule he hath filled with good things.

10. Them that sate in darknes, and in the shadow of death: bound in needines, and yron.

11. Because they (g) exasperated the words of God: and they prouoked the counsel of the Highest.

(g) Calamities in this world are commonly inflicted for sinnes.

12. And their hart was humbled in labours: they were weakened, neither was there anie to helpe.

13. And they cried to our Lord when they were in tribulation: and he deliuered them out of their necessities.

14. And he brought them out of darknes, and the shadow of death: and brake their bonds asunder.

15. Let the mercies of our Lord confesse to him: & his meruelous workes to the children of men.

16. Because he hath destroyed the gates of brasse: and the barres of yron he hath broken.

17. He hath receiued them out of the way of their iniquitie: for they were humbled for their iniustices.

18. Their soule did abhorre all meate: & they approched euen to the gates of death.

19. And they cried to our Lord when they were in tribulation: and he deliuered them out of their necessities.

20. He sent his word, and healed them: and deliuered them out of their destructions.

21. Let the mercies of our Lord confesse to him: & his meruelous workes to the children of men.

22. And let them sacrifice the sacrifice of praise: & shew forth his workes in exultation.

33. They that goe downe into the sea in ships, making trafike in the great waters.

24. They haue seen the workes of our Lord, and his meruelous things in the depth.

25. He sayd, and the blast of the storme stood: and the waues therof were exalted.

26. They ascend euen to the heauens, and they descend euen to the depths: their soule pyned away in euils.

27. They were troubled, and were moued as a drunken man: and al their wisdom was deuoured.

28. And (b) they cried to our Lord when they were in tribulation, and he brought them out of their necessities.

(b) As before in the 6. 13. and 19. verses.

29. And he turned his storme into calme: & the waues therof were quiet.

30. And they reioyced because they were quiet: and he conducted them into the haven of their wil.

31. Let (i) the mercies of our Lord confesse to him: and his merueous workes to the children of men.

(i) This verse also is foure times in this Psalme. v. 8. 15. 27. and 31. to admonish vs, that as there is one meanes to escape from al dangers by crying to God, as v. 6. 13. 19. and 28. with mourning and penance: so there is one cause of praise and thanks for our deliuerie, which is Gods mercie and grace.

32. And let them exalt him in the Church of the people: and the chayre of the ancients let them praise him.

33. (k) He turned (l) the riuers into a desert: and the issues of waters into drinesse.

(k) God to shew sometimes his power, also to benefit some, and to punish others, changeth the accustomed course of things, and states of men, at his diuine pleasure, as here the Royal Prophet reciteth some examples. And some others are recorded in diuers times and places. (l) No doubt much change was made in the earth by Noes flood. And manie thinke that the land of Chanaan was made more fruitful in the time of the Iewes inhabiting, and now is more barran againe.

34. The (m) fruitful land into a salt ground, for the malice of them that inhabite it.

(m) He alludeth to the countrie about Sodome and Gomorre, which was most fruitful, and most pleasant, Gen. 13. v. 10. but shortly after was burnt with fire and brimston, Gen. 19. v. 14. subuerted, and turned into a dead and salt sea.

35. He turned the desert into pools of waters: and the land without water into issues of waters.

36. And he placed the hungrie there, and they built a citie of habitation.

37. And they sowed fields and planted vineyards: and they made fruit (n) of natiuitie.

(n) Made abundance of fruit to grow.

38. And he blessed them, and they were multiplied exceedingly: and their beasts he lesened not.

39. And (o) they were made few: and were vexed by the tribulation of euils, and with sorow.

(o) Againe some countries punished for finnes.

40. Contempt was powred out vpon Princes: and he made them wander where was no way, and not in the way.

41. And he (p) did helpe the poore out of pouertie: and made families as sheep.

(p) An other change in releeuing the poore being humbled.

42. The iust shal see, and shal reioyce: & al iniquitie shal stop her mouth.

43. Who is wise and wil keep these things: and wil vnderstand the mercies of our Lord?

The former the 8. verse.

MY HART is readie, o God, my hart is readie: I wil chaunt and wil sing in my glorie.

Psa. 56.
v. 8.

3. Arise my glorie, arise psalter and harpe: I wil arise early.

4. I (b) wil confesse to thee in peoples, o Lord: and I wil sing to thee (c) in the Naions.

(b) King Dauid subdued not only some parts of Chanaan, not subiect to the Iewes before (2. Reg. 5. 1. Par. 11.) but also brought the Philistijms, Moabites, Ammonites, Idumeans, Amalechites, the Kings of Soba, Syria, & Emath, to pay tribute. 2. Reg. 8. 1. Par. 18. (c) Yet al these victories & conquests were but a figure of Christs power and dominion in al nations. And therefore the rest of this Psalme, by S. Augustin & other fathers iudgement, was rather prophetically vitered by Dauid, in the person of Christ, & more perfectly performed by Christ in his Church, then historically auerred of Dauid himselfe.

5. Because thy mercie is great aboue the heauens: & thy truth euen to the clouds.

6. Be exalted aboue the heauens o God, and thy glorie ouer al the earth:

9. Galaad is mine, and Manasses is mine: and Ephraim the protection of my head.

Iuda is my King: 10. Moab the pot of my hope.

Vpon Idumea I wil extend my shoe: the strangers are made my freinds.

11. Who wil conduct me into a fenced citie? who wil conduct me into Idumea?

12. Wilt not thou, o God, which hast repelled vs, and wilt not thou goe forth, o God, in our hosts?

13. Giue vs helpe out of tribulation: because mans saluation is wayne.

3. They (c) haue spoken against me with deceitful tongue, and with words of hatred they haue compassed me: and they haue impugned me without cause.

(c) At other times they accused him of great crimes, lastly of treason against Cesar.

4. For that they should loue me, they backbited me: but I prayed.

5. And they set against me euil things for good: and hatred for my loue.

6. Appoint (d) a sinner ouer him: and (e) let the diuel stand on his right hand.

(d) A prediction that Iudas would not make recourse to anie good counsellor, but complaine of his miserable tormented conscience to the wicked, who gaue him no comfort at all, (e) and so despairing, the diuel perswaded him to hang himselfe.

14. Let the iniquitie of his fathers returne to memorie in the sight of our Lord: and let not the sinne of his mother be blotted out.

And he put on cursing as a garnient, and it entred as water into his inner parts, and as oile in his bones.

20. This is the worke of them that detract from me before our Lord: and that speake euils against my soule.

21. And thou Lord, Lord, doe with me for thy names sake: because thy mercie is sweete.

Deliuere me 22. because I am needie and poore: and (k) my hart is tronbled within me.

(k) Christs soule was pensue when he prayed in the garden, and he did workes of penance for our sinnes al his life.

23. As a shadow when it declineth, am I taken away: and I am shaken as locusts.

24. My knees are weakened with fasting: and my flesh is changed by reason of oile.

25. And I am made a reproch to them: they saw me, and wagged their heads.

26. Helpe me, o Lord my God: (l) saue me according to thy mercie.

(l) He prayed also for his resurrection, and glorification.

27. And let them know that this is thy hand: & thou, o Lord, hast done it.

28. They wil curse, and thou shalt blesse: let them that rise vp against me be confounded: but thy seruant shal reioyce.

29. Let them that detract from me, be clothed with shame: and let them be couered with their confusion, as with a (m) double patched cloke.

Christ's Priesthood for euer both in function and in effect.

4. A Priest for euer) Int wo respects Christ is a Priest for euer: in that from the first instant of his Incarnation he was, and remaineth a Priest, now also in heauen: and al other Priests are his ministerial Vicars, not successours. So that al Priestlie functions, which they doe, he by them doth the same, as the principal Priest. Whereupon saith S. Paul (1. Cor. 4.) So let a man thinke of vs as of the ministers of Christ, and dispensers of the mysteries of God. Secondly, Christ daily offering Sacrifice by the hands of his Priests, doth continually pacifie Gods wrath, in behalf of those sinners, for whom it is duly applied, euen to the end of the world. Whereas the Priesthood of Aaron, and of al others in the old Testament, ceased by their deaths, both in the office, and in the effect.

There semblance of Christ's and Melchisedech's Priesthood.

4. According to the order of Melchisedech) As Melchisedech, King of peace and iustice, without father, mother, or genealogie expressed in holic Scriptures, or otherwise known to the world, was Priest of the Highest, offered bread & wine, an vnbloudie sacrifice, communicating with both Chanancites and Hebrewes, blessed Abraham, and tooke tithes of him & his subiects: so Christ the true King of peace & iustice, without father of his humanity, without mother of his Diuinitie, the Sonne of God, of ineffable genealogie, borne of a Virgin in his humanity, the Priest of God, offereth Sacrifice (not only bloudie on the Grosse, but also) vnbloudie in the formes of bread and wine, continueth the same by the ministerie of other Priests, maketh al nations partakers thereof, blesteth them and receiueth of them al dutiful & religious seruice as of his subiects.

Alleluia.

1. IN the comming forth of Israel out Aegypt: of the house of Iacob from (a) the barbarous people.

(a) People of false religion counted barbarous, especially such as also persecute the true Religion; for otherwise the Aegyptians were both ciuil in-manners, and learned in manie sciences.

2. (b) Iewrie was made his sanctification, Israel his dominion.

(b) The people of Iewes were more notoriously renowned in the world from the time of their deliuerie out of Aegypt, for the peculiar people, whom God sanctified, & in whom, as in his elected enheritance or dominion, he dwelled and reigned.

3. The (c) sea saw, and (d) fled: Iordan (e) was turned backward.

(c) The Psalmist writing in verse doth often describe things in poetical manner, (d) when the Israelites went forth of Aegypt, (e) when they entred into Chanaan, but more truly then prophane poets: for that in very deed al creatures, otherwise senseles, as the sea, doe in a sort feele the power of their Creatour, & obey his wil.

4. (f) The mountaines leaped as rammes: and the litle hills as the lambes of sheepe.

(f) Either there was an earthquake, or some other mouing of hills, not mentioned by Moyses, or els the Psalmist speaketh of the rocks of the torrents, which bowed, that the Israelites might rest in Ar, and lie in the borders of the Moabires, Num. 21. v. 15.

5. (g) What ayleth thee o sea that thou didst flye: and thou o Iordan, that thou wast turned backward.

(g) By the figure Apostrophe he speaketh to the sea, riuer, and hills: vsing also Prosopopœia, as if senseles things vnderstood, and should answer.

6. Ye mountaines leaped as rammes, and ye litle hills as the lambes of sheepe.

7. At the face of our Lord was the earth moued, at the face of the God of Iacob.

8. Who turned (b) the rocke into pooles of waters, and stonie hil into fountaines of waters.

by the coherence of the matter Saint Augustine proueth that it is but one Psalm, where is shewed that the true inuisible God is known by such workes as are here recited: and contrariwise, that the gentils idols are not Gods, because they are made of siluer, gold, or other matter, by mens hands: hauing resemblance of liuing things altogether senseless.

(i) Thou didst al this, o God, of meere mercie towards thy people: (k) for thy truths sake, seeing thou didst promise to protect them: (l) that the Gentils should not take occasion to blaspheme.

11. But our God is in heauen: he hath done al things what soeuer he would.

12. " The idols of the gentils are siluer, and gold, the workes of mens hands.

13. They haue mouth, and shal not speake: they haue eies, and shal not see.

14. They haue eares, and shal not heare: they haue nostrils and shal not smell.

15. They haue hands, and shal not handle: they haue foete, and shal not walke: they shal not crie in their throte.

16. (m) Let them that make them become like to them; and al that haue confidence in them.

(m) This is a iust prayer of the zelous, conforming their desires to Gods wil. But if God giue idolaters grace to amend, then al the iust wil also reioice in their conuersion.

17. (n) The house of Israel hath hoped in our Lord: he is their helper and their protectour.

(n) Though manie Jewes fel to idolatrie, yet there alwayes remained so manie in Gods true seruice, that it might stil be truly said: The house of Israel hath hoped in our Lord, as is here auerred.

18. The house of Aaron hath hoped in our Lord: he is their helper and their protectour.

19. They that feare our Lord haue hoped in our Lord: he is their helper and their protectour.

20. Our Lord hath been mindful of vs: and hath blessed vs.

He hath blessed the house of Israel: he hath blessed the house of Aaron.

21. He hath blessed al that feare our Lord, the litle with the great.

22. Our Lord adde vpon you: vpon you, & vpon your children.

23. Blessed be you of our Lord, which made heauen and earth.

24. (o) The heauen of heauen is to our Lord: but (p) the earth he hath giuen to the children of men.

(o) This in effect al worldlie politikes say in their harts: as it were quitting their interest of heauen to God, (p) and contenting themselues with carnlic possessions.

25. (q) The dead shal not prayse thee, o Lord: nor al they (r) that goe downe into hel:

(q) But when such prophane men are dead, they make no shew at al of praising God: (r) for parting from the earth, they descend into hel, and there eternally blaspheme God.

26. but we (s) that liue doe blesse our Lord, from this time, and for euer.

(s) Contrariwise the iust, aspiring to heauen, which is the proper Kingdom of God, & vsing this world as they ought to doe, for a meanes to ascend into heauen, shal blesse and praise God for euermore.

12. The Idols of the Gentils are silver and gold.) Al Catholike Diuines agree in this authentical definition of Idolatrie, that is diuine honour giuen to anie creature, as to God. Of the diuers sorts also of Idolatrie the ancient learned Doctours haue written much. Namely Iustinus Martyr in his Orations against the Gentils, Tertullian in Apologetico, Arnobius Orat. ad Gentes. Lactantius, lib. 2. c. 17. Diuinar. Initt. and manie others. But most copiously and profoundly Saint Augstin, especially in his ten first books de Ciuitate Dei. Into which errour & crime the Platonists fel, holding that spiriual inuisible created substances, to wit, Angels good and euil, whom they called Intelligentias separatas, had diuine power, & so gaue to them diuine honour. Others honour dead men, and some before their death, as Gods, for their notable aetes atchiued in this life, as Saturne, Iuppiter, Hercules, and the like. Some yeald diuine honour to meere corporal creatures, liuing or without life, as to beasts, and serpents, the sunne, the moone, fire, water, earth, the whole machine of the world, as if it were animate, and that with diuine spirit or soule. Againe al these haue been worshipped as Gods. not only in themselves but also in their images. But to omite other diuersities, the most grosse sorte of al, is the Idolatrie which the Psalmist here describeth, when Images made by mens hands are immediately honoured as Gods in themselves. For such Gods the Gentils had, and of them the Prophet here speaketh. Comparing these visible sensles imagined Gods, with the one eternal inuisible God; who is made notorious by his diuine conspicuous workes, whereas these idols, by how much they are more visible, so much more they are contemptible: because being fashioned with mouth, eyes, eares, nose, hands, feete, throte, and other members, they are altogether sensles, not able to speake with their mouth, and therin more base in nature then the men that made them; nor able to see, heare, smel, taist, feele, to walke, to moue, nor to crie, al which beasts can doe. And therefore those that make them, or haue confidence in them (as the Prophet here signifieth that some haue, v. 16.) are most absurde: becomming like to the same idols, in their vnderstanding and internal cogitations, as these idols are void of external sense. And al Idolaters are most wicked, giuing diuine honour to anie creature, & are therin seruants of diuels: Whether they immediately honour diuels, as when forcerers and witches, making pact with the diuel, adore him, and he for the same doth some thing which they demand: or that they honour some other creature, wherein by the diuels false persuasion, they thinke there is diuine power. Both which waies diuels vsurpe Cods honour: and therefore the same Prophet said in an other Psalm: Al the Gods of Gentils are diuels.

GENERAL ANNOTATIONS V P O N T H I S C X V I I I . P S A L M E .

The obscuritie of this profound Psalme appeareth not to the vulgar reader.

S. Augustin differed the explication of this Psalme.
Omitted to discusse one difficultie.

AS this Psalme is the longest in the whole Psalter, so it seemeth to the ancient Fathers most profound in sense. And so much the harder to be vnderstood, because also the very hardnes therof lieth hidden, which in diuers other Psalmes and parts of holic Scripture, easily appeareth to the reader. But here the words being cleere, and the sense also plaine and easie in some points of doctrine, yet the more diligence is employed, the more difficultie is found in searching the whole sense and meaning of euerie word and sentence, with the manner obserued in composing it, and the frequent repetition of the same or like words. Al which maturely considered caused that great Clerke, and light of the Church Saint Augustin, to omite this Psalme, when he explicated al the rest. And when at last he added also this, he wittingly omitted one special difficultie, which he doubted not to be conteyned in the manner of composing it, not only by order of the Hebrew Alphabet: as diuers more Psalmes, and some other parts of helie Scripture, but more artificially then anie other, the first eight verses al beginning with the first letter Aleph; the next eight, with the second letter Beth: and so to the last of the two and twentie letters. Of which omision he yealdeth this only reason, because he found nothing

nothing (as he humbly affirmeth) that might properly pertaine therunto. Confessing also expressly, that whensoever he applied his cogitations to expound the text it-self, it alwayes exceeded his habilitie. But finally to satisfie the often and earnest request of his brethren and freinds, trusting (as alwayes) in Gods special helpe, he largely expoundeth it, in thirtie two distinct Sermons.

S. Ambrose also moued with like pietie, made two and tuentie Sermons in exposition of this Psalme. Affirming in his Prologue, that amongst other Psalmes, especially this sheweth how great a master King Dauid was of moral good life. For al moral doctrine, being of his owne nature sweete, yet most delighteth the eares, and gently toucheth the minde, being vttered, as here it is, with pleasantnes of verse, and sweetnes of song. Againe whereas this Royal Prophet in manie places of this book powerth out sentences of moral Psalmes or songs, as bright starres, that shine and glister to al the world, here most excellently he produceth a more singular mirrour, as the sunne, of ful light, burning with meridian heate. And for the profit of al, the better to draw our attentions, to learne that we may, though we can not attaine to al that we would, he disposed this Psalme through al the Alphabet: that as children beginning with the first letters, make entrance to further knowledge; so by the same beginnings we should lay the first foundation, and therupon proceede in our spiritual building, towards perfection in good life, the true seruice of God. Which is yet further insinuated (as the same Doctour teacheth) by the eight verses continually beginning with the same letter, and so other eight in order through the whole Alphabet, to signifie that after seuen dayes trauel in this temporal life, we may come to that vnitie, which we expected in the eight day of resurrection, when we hope to rise reuiued in our Lord Iesus, in newnes of eternal life.

Lidkewise Saint Basil in the Argument of this Psalme admonisheth, that whereas holie Dauid, according to diuers states, which he passed, writte diuers Psalmes: as when he fled from his enemies, when he lamented his distresses, mourned in pensiuenes, enjoyed peace and comfort; ranne a right course of vertue, fel from God by sinne, & againe returning obserued Gods lawes; in this one Psalme he comprehendeth al his prayers made to God at sundrie times, & here proposeth the same, a certaine profitable moral doctrine, to al sorts and states of men. Neither doth he pretermite doctrinal points of faith, but interposeth them also with moral documents, in such sorte, that this one Psalme may suffice to teach the wel disposed, how to attaine to perfection in vertue, to stirre vp the slothful vnto diligent care of their soules, to recreate the desolate with spiritual consolations, & briefly it administreteth al kind of medicine to the diuers passions of mortal men.

For the like iudgements of other Fathers we remitte the learned reader, to Saint Hilarie, Theodoret, Prosper, Arnobius, Casiodorus, Beda, Euthymius, and others. but can not wel omitte a brief instruction of S. Ierom. Who in his Epistle to Paula Urbica: not only sheweth the interpretation of the two and twentic letters, but also explicateth their sense in this place, by connecting them into certaine short sentences, in this manner:

Aleph	Beth	Gimel	Daleth,
Doctrina	Domus	Plenitudo	Tabularum,
Doctrina.	Of the house	Fulnesse	Of tables

Which is the first connexion, signifying that the doctrine of the honse, that is the Church of God, is found in the fulnes of diuine books.

The second connexion is:

He	Vau	Zain	Heth.
Ista	Et	Hæc	Vita.
This thing	And	This	Life.

For what other life can there be without knowledge of Scriptures? wherby also Christ is knowen, who is the life of them that belieue in him.

At last made 32. sermons in explication thereof.

S. Ambrose writte 22. sermons vpon this Psalme. King Dauid a great master of moral doctrine.

Why this Psalme was composed in order of the Alphabet.

Why eight verses are begun with euerie letter.

Saint Basils iudgement that this Psalme conteyneth the argument of manie Psalmes.

Other expositions of this Psalme.

S. Ieroms interpretation, and explication of the Hebrew Alphabet.

The third connexion is:

Teth	Iod
Bonum	Principium
Good	Beginning

Albeit we now could know all things which are written, yet we know but in part, and in part we prophesie: for we see now by a glasse, in a darke sort, but when we shall be worthie to be with Christ, and shall be like to Angels, then doctrine of books shall cease, & then we shall see face to face: the * Good Beginning, euē as he is.

The fourth connexion is:

Caph	Lamed
Manus	Disciplina, siue cordis
The hand	Of discipline, or of hart

The hands are vnderstood in worke, hart and discipline are vnderstood in sense or meaning, because we can not rightly doe anie thing, vnles we first know what things are to be done.

The fift connexion is:

Mem	Nun	Samech
Ex ipsi,	Sempiternum	Adiutorium
Of them	Euerlasting	Helpe

This needeth not explication, for it is manifest as the light, that from Sriptures are eternal helps.

The sixt connexion is:

Ain,	Phe	Sade
Fons, siue Oculus,	Oris	Iustitiæ
Fountaine, or Eye	Of the mouth	Of iustice

According to that which we haue expounded in the fourth connexion: that deeds & intention must concurre.

The seuenth connexion which is last, in which number of seuen is also myfical vnderstanding:

Coph	Res	Shin,	Thau
Vocatio,	Capitis,	Dentium	Signa
Vocation	Of the head,	Or teeth	Signes

Distinct voice is produced by the teeth, & in these signes we come to the Head of all which is Christ, by whom we haue accessie to the euerlasting Kingdom.

Or thus (not transposing the wordes) By vocation of Christ the Head, through distinct voice of signes (for wordes are signes shewing the mind) we are conducted to the eternal Kingdom, the happines which all men desire.

What I pray thee (saith this holie Doctour) is more sacred then this mysterie, what more pleasant then this delight? What meate, & what honey are sweeter, then to know Gods wisdom; to enter into his secret clofset; to behold the sense of our Creatour; and to teach the words of thy Lord God, ful of spiritual wisdom, which are derided by the wise of this world.

We must also aduertise the reader of the like discourses of ancient Fathers (ouer long to be here recited) concerning the manifold high praises of Gods Law, contained in this Psalme, with frequent repetition of certaine Synonyma words signifying the same thing, in all fourteen; to wit: The Law of God, his Wayes, Testimonies, Commandments, Precepts, Statutes, Iustifications, Iudgements, Justice, Equitie, Veritie Wordes, Speeches, & Sermons: of which there is commonly one, in euerie verse, & sometimes two or three in the same verse. But our English tongue hardly sufficing rightly, to distinguish the three last, which in latin are Verba Eloquia, Sermones, we translate W O R D S only, adding in the margen, Eloquia, and Sermones, when they occurre.

Leauing therefore larger commentaries to others; we shall prosecute our wonted manner of briefe glosses. Only here premonishing the diligent readers, especially Clergimen (our selues and our brethren) who euerie day sing or read this whole

Psalme

14. Synonyma signifying the law of God.

Pfalme in the Canonical houres, to obserue two particular points of Christian doctrine, evidently proued by manie places of this Psalme. The one against the Pelagians heresie, denying the necessitie of Gods special grace in meritorious workes. For the Psalmist often here inculcateth mans insufficiencie, that of himselfe, and by natural forces, he can not keepe the commandments of God, but needeth alwayes the particular grace of God, as wel to belieue in him, to repent for sinnes, and to begin good workes; as to proceede, and perseuere in good state to the end. The other against the heresie of our time, denying merite by grace & freewil. For here it is also manifest, that Gods grace maketh man able, to keepe his commandments, and by keeping them to become iust in this life, and so to merite eternal glorie. Sundrie other principal Articles of Christian Catholike Religion are likewise comprised in this one Psalme: but especially Moral doctrine.

1. BLESSED (a) are (b) the immaculate in the way: which (c) walke in the law of our Lord.

(a) Whereas al without exception, desire to be happie and blessed: (b) they are indeed happie (acording to the perfectest happines of this life) that are immaculate: (c) and they are immaculate, that walke in the law of God. Where the holie Psalmist presupposeth, that some can and doe keepe the law of God, and so are immaculate, and blessed in the way of this life.

2. Blessed are they (d) that search his testimonies: that (e) seeke after him with al their hart.

(d) Those that are immaculate, are againe blessed, by searching Gods testimonies, that is, his law, testifying that the good shal be rewarded, and the wicked punished: but searching these testimonies, whiles one is contaminate with sinnes against Gods law, maketh not blessed: (e) neither doth euerie superficial careles search bring this blessing, but searching with true affection of the hart.

3. For (f) they that worke iniquitie, haue not walked in his (g) wayes.

(f) Contrariwise they that worke iniquitie are not blessed; (g) because they haue not walked in the wayes of God, to wit, not kept his commandments and law, which are the way to happines.

4. Thou hast (h) very much commanded thy commandments to be kept.

(h) For mans owne good, that he may come to true happines, God hath most seriously commanded vs to keepe his commandments, that is, to obserue his Law commanded by most soueraine diuine authoritie.

5. Would God my waies (i) might be directed, to keep thy (k) iustifications.

(i) Therefore the faithful seruant of God, knowing his owne insufficiencie, desireth that God by his grace wil direct and strengthen him, (k) to keepe his law, called Iustifications, because therby man is made iust.

6. Then shal I (l) not be confounded, when I shal looke throughly in al thy commandments.

(l) They shal be safe from eternal confusion, when they shal keep not only part, but al thy commandments: because breach of anie bringeth confusion.

(m) I wil

7. (m) I wil confesse to thee (n) in direction of hart: in that I haue learned the (o) iudgements of thy iustice.

(m) So shal I praise thee, and render thanks, (n) with sincere not fained affection, (o) for this great benefite, that I haue learned, that thy law is according to most iust iudgement.

8. (p) I wil keepe thy iustifications: (q) forsake me not wholly.

(p) I haue therefore a firme purpose, & doe faithfully promise to keepe thy law, which maketh the keeper therof iust. (q) Albeit thou suffer me sometimes to be in tribulation, or in tentation, yet forsake me not wholly. The Psalmist knew wel (saith S. Gregorie) that he might be profitably leaue a while, who prayed, that he should not be wholly forsaken.

9. Wherein (a) doth a yong man correct his way? (b) in keeping thy * words.

(a) In this second octonarie, as also in al the rest, the Hoie Ghost by the Prophets penne teacheth the meanes how to come to perfection & happines. Here by way of interrogation, as it were demanding how a yong man, that is euerie man prone to wordlie pleasure, & slow in Gods seruice, shal begin to correct his course? (b) Wherto the same Hoie Ghost answereth, that he must Gods law, called here his words. For al the words which God vtereth, are lawes to his seruants.

10. (c) With my whole hart I haue sought after thee: (d) repel me not from thy commandments.

(c) The Psalmist now speaketh in the person of perfect iust men, or of the whole Church in general. Whose common spirit seeketh God intirely. (d) And considering that this perfect good wil is the giuft of God, prayeth that he wil conferue the same, and not suffer it to be altered, or to erre from his commandments.

11. (e) In my hart I haue did thy * words: that I may not sinne to thee.

(e) An other sincere profession of a resolute good purpose not to sinne.

12. (f) Blessed art thou, o Lord: (g) teach me thy iustifications.

(f) A grateful aspiration praising God. (g) Againe the iust prayeth to be more and more instructed in iustifications: that which S. Iohn exhorteth vnto: He that is iust, let him yet be iustified. Apoc. 22.

13. In my lips I haue pronounced al the (b) iudgements of thy mouth.

(b) Gods law is also called his iudgements, because fixing in iudgement he giueth sentence according to his Law.

14. I am (i) delighted in the way of thy testimonies, as in al riches.

(i) As the iust professeth by mouth, so he delighteth in hart.

15. I (k) wil be exercised in thy commandments: and I wil consider thy waies.

(k) Praetiseth in worke.

16. I (l) wil meditate in thy iustifications: I wil not forget thy * words.

(l) And diligently meditateth Gods Law.

17. Render (a) to thy seruant, (b) quicken me: (c) and I shal keepe thy * words.

(a) O Lord liberally giue me that which I here craue, (b) quicken me with spiritual life, thy grace. (c) so I shal keepe thy law, which otherwise I can not.

18. (d) Reueale mine eies: (e) and I shal consider the meruelous things of thy law.

(d) Illuminate myne vnderstanding by thy grace, (e) that I may be able to see the meruelous great and iust reasons of thy law, instructingal, threarning the peruerse, encouraging the wel disposed, punishing the wicked, rewarding the good, doing right to al.

19. (f) I am a feiourner in the land, (g) hide not thy commandments from me.

(f) I that haue but a smal time in this world, (g) desire to be instructed in thy law, what is therein commanded.

20. My soule hath coueted to desire thy iustifications, at al time.

21. Thou hast (b) rebuked the proud: (i) cursed are they that decline from thy commandments.

(b) I consider that thou, o God, dost sharply reprove the proud conteniners of thy commandments: (i) laying curses vpon them for declining from thyne obedience.

22. Take from me reproch, and contempt: because I haue sought after thy testimonies.

23. For (k) Princes sate, and they spake against me: but (l) thy seruant was exercised in thy iustifications.

(k) Though persecutours were very potent, (l) yet the faithful seruant of God perseuered in his seruice.

24. For both (m) thy testimonies are my meditation: and (n) thy iustifications my counsell.

(m) In time of persecution and tentation we must thinke and meditate, that Gods law testifieth eternal reward, or punishment, (n) and in our deliberation or consultation, we must consider that keeping Gods law maketh iust: & consequently meritteth reward.

25. My soule (a) hath cleaued to the pauement: (b) quicken me according to thy word.

(a) This also is vttered in the person of the iust, who is often brought to great distresse: as it were, euen neere to death, (b) in which case he confidently prayeth to be relieved, according to Gods word, law, and promise.

26. I haue vttered my wayes, and thou hast heard me: teach me thy iustifications.

27. Instruct me the way of thy iustifications: and I shal be exercised in thy meruelous workes.

28. My soule (c) hath slumbered for tediousnes: (d) confirme me in thy words.

(c) Being in so great anxietie that my minde is almost distracted or ouercome, (d) I cal to thee God, that thou wilt conserue me, that I stil keepe thy law, vttered by thy words.

29. (e) Remoue from me the way of iniquitie: and according to thy law, (f) haue mercie on me.

(e) Protect me that I fal not to iniquitie. (f) And of thy mercie conserue me in state of grace

30. I haue chosē the way of truth: I haue not forgotten thy iudgements.

31. I haue cleaued to thy testimonies, o Lord: (g) doe not confound me.

(g) Suffer me not to be confounded.

(b) I ranne the way of thy commandments: (i) when thou didst dilate my hart.

(b) Man is able, and doth runne in the right way of Gods commandments, (i) yet not of himselfe, but when God replenisheth his hart with grace.

33. (a) Set me a law, o Lord, the way of thy iustifications: and I wil seeke after it alwayes.

(a) Impresse, o God, thy law in myne affection, make me to loue it, and to desire to be iustified, (b) so shal I hartily and alwayes seeke it.

34. (c) Giue me vnderstanding, (d) and I wil search thy law: and I wil keepe it with my whole hart.

(c) After thou hast giuen me a desire to keepe thy law, giue me also vnderstanding, (d) then shal I fruitfully search it. For this is the right order (as before in the first, and second verses) first to loue Gods law, to be iustified, and to become immaculate, and then to search to know the law, and so it is more easily learned.

35. (e) Conduct me into the path of thy commandments: (f) because I would it.

(e) Gods grace first draweth and leadeth, (f) then freewil inflamed with desire effectually concurrereth.

36. (g) Incline my hart into thy testimonies: and (h) not into auarice.

(g) Stil the Prophet inculcaterh the necessitie of Gods grace, as wel to make vs desire that is good; (h) as to fly from euil.

37. (i) Turne away myne eies that they see not vanitie: (k) in thy way ken me.

(i) It is necessarie also to pray that God wil take away occasions, which might moue to sinne: (k) and stil to grant his helping grace in progresse of vertue.

38. (l) Establish thy * word to thy seruant, in thy feare.

(l) Againe the iust prayeth for confirmation in grace, to be established in the feare of God.

39. (m) Take away my reproch, which I haue feared: (n) because thy iudgements are pleasant.

(m) To be deliuered also from al the effects of former sinnes, (n) for sinne is therefore reprochful and odious, because it is contrarie to Gods law, & true iudgements, which are most pleasant.

40. Behold I haue coueted thy commandments: in thine equitie (o) quicken me.

(o) Being thus affected with desire to keepe the commandments, the soule prayeth to be stil quickned, more and more with good spirite, and so to perseuere to the end.

41. And (a) let thy mercie come vpon me, o Lord: (b) thy saluation according to thy * word.

(a) Againe considering that without Gods grace preuenting, man can not doe anie good thing, the Prophet reneweth his prayer, requesting Gods mercie, (b) and his helpe freely promised to al that aske it.

42. And (c) I shal answer a word to them that vpbroyde me: (d) because I haue hoped in thy * words.

(c) Wherwith being asisted and strengthened, he that before was weake wil boldly answer al calumniatours, that reprochiully say: God wil not helpe him: (d) that indeed he hath not in vaine trusted in Gods promised helpe.

(e) He also prayeth, though he be sometimes feareful, that God wil not suffer him wholly to omitte manifest profession of faith and true religion, (f) seeing by thy former grace I haue already reposed my trust in thy promises, made to them that are resolu'd to keepe thy law.

44. And (g) I wil keepe thy law alwayes: for euer, and for euer and euer.

(g) I For doe firmly purpose euer and alwayes to keepe thy law.

45. And (b) I walked in largeness: (i) because I haue sought after thy commandments.

(b) In this I haue had great ioy and comfort of mind: (i) because I did indeed seeke after thy commandments, which is specially vtered (as also the three next verses) in the person of those, that are in trial of persecution for their faith:

46. And (k) I spake of thy testimonies in the sight of Kings: and was not confounded.

(k) Who boldly in time of persecution, euen before persecuting Kings and Emperours, profess'd Christs true Religion. Verified in innumerable glorious Martyrs, yea also of the fraile sexe, in S. Catharin, S. Cecilie, S. Lucie, S. Margeret, S. Wenefrede, S. Ursula, and her selowes, and manie more, most constantly answering al words of reproch objected, as if it were a base or contemptible thing to be Christiā, to be Catholikes, to be Papistes. No, al these & the like, are honourable & glorious titles: importing the true seruice of Christ, in vnitie of the Catholike Church: and spiritual participation with the visible head thereof, Christs Vicar in earth.

47. And (l) I meditated in thy commandments, which I loued.

(l) Such confessours as yet mortal, reioyce in that they haue meditated in Gods commandments, which they haue feruently loued.

48. And (m) I haue lifted vp my hands to thy commandments, which I loued: and (n) I was exercis'd in thy iustifications.

(m) Also shewed the same in external worke, not dissembling by silence, by word, nor fact. (n) euerie way exercising Gods law, which maketh the obseruers iust.

49. Be (a) mindeful of thy word to thy seruant, wherein thou hast given me hope.

(a) That which God hath decreed and promised, being in it-selfe most certaine and assured, yet includeth the meanes, wherby it shal be put in execution: and therefore the iust, his elect, doe pray for the performance of his wil.

* elo-

(b) Expectation of thy promise hath ginen me courage.

51. The (c) proud did vniustly exceedingly: (d) but I declined not from thy law.

(c) Proud contemners of Gods law, haue euerie way molested me, by detracting, deriding, calumniating, and violently persecuting me. (d) Al which I haue borne patiently, and not declined from thy law.

52. I (e) haue been mindful of thy iudgements from (f) euerlasting, o Lord: (g) and was comforted.

(e) I remembred and considered thy iust punishments inflicted vpon the impious, (f) euen from the beginning of the world (both vpon the diuels and wicked me) and that thou wilt exercise the like hereafter, (g) which consideration of thy iustice comforted me.

53. (h) Fainting possessed me, because of sinners forsaking thy Law.

(h) Otherwise if I had not seen thy iustice, my zeale against contemners of thy law would haue killed me.

54. (i) Thy iustifications were song by me, in the place of my peregrination.

(i) In this place of my peregrination from heauen, I am comforted by remembering, celebrating, and singing thy iust commandments and lawes, which make thy seruants iust.

55. I haue been mindful in (k) the night of thy name, o Lord: and haue kept thy law.

(k) In perfecution, and in al tribulation, I kept thy law, because I would not dishonour thy name:

56. This was done to me: (l) because I sought after thy iustifications.

(l) And my tribulation especially fel vpon me, because I sought to be iustified by keeping thy law.

Heth Life.

57. My (a) portion, o Lord, I sayd to keep thy law.

(a) The Prophet proceedeth speaking in the person of the iust tending to perfection, and saying: This is my happie choise, that I desire no other inheritance, nor possession, but to keepe Gods Law.

58. (b) I besought thy face, with al my hart: haue mercie on me according to thy* word.

(b) And seeing this exceedeth my proper strength, I prayed God of his mercie to make able to keepe it. * elo-

59 I (c) thought vpon my wayes: and conuerted my feete vnto thy testimonies.

(c) Pondering my former actions, I turned my pathes to obserue more perfectly the Law, which God hath testified to be the right way.

60. I (d) am prepared, and am not troubled: to keep thy commandments.

(d) With promptnes of mind, and without hesitation I resolved the keepe the commandments.

61. The (e) cords of sinners haue wrapped me round about: and (f) I haue not forgotten thy law.

(e) The wicked laid cords, nets, or snares, to intrap and hinder me, (f) but I kept thy law fresh in memorie.

62. At (g) mid-nigh I rose to confesse to thee, for the iudgements of thy iustification.

(g) That this is not vnderstood only mystically in time of affliction, but also literally and prophetically, that some special seruants of God should obserue a godlie profesion of praying at mid-night, the word (I rose) maketh it probable. Saint Paul & Silas, either of a holie custome, or at least vpon special occasion (and such occasions were to them, and others frequent) prayed, and praised God at mid-night. And now in the Church of Christ soare religious men pray, and praise God continually at mid-night; besides other houres, mentioned more distinctly

v. 104.

Act. 16

63. (b) I am partaker of al that feare thee: and that keepe thy commandments.

(b) A great benefit, and a singular consolation, that al true liuing members of Christ, are partakers of al the prayers, good workes, and merits, of the whole Church militant and triumphant. Which in our Creede is called, The Communion of Saints.

64. The (i) earth, o Lord, is ful of thy mercie: (k) teach my thy iustifications.

(i) So great is the mercie of God, extended, communicated, and multiplied in the whole earth. (k) Instruct me, and direct me therefore, o God, that y may learne and obserue thy law, and so be iustified, and made participant of so great mercie.

Teth. Good.

65. Thou hast (a) done bountie with thy seruant, o Lord: (b) according to thy word.

(a) Dealt very bountifully (b) as thou dist promise.

66. Teach me goodnesse, (d) and discipline, and (e) knowledge: (f) because I haue beleued thy commandments.

(c) He that hath bountifully receiued grace at Gods hand, prayeth for more grace, that he may be beneficial to others in relieuing the needie, (d) in instructing the ignorant, (e) in perswading to keep the law of God: (f) because he hath learned and beleueth the commandments, by which he is bound to loue, and haue care of his neighbour.

67. Before I (g) was humbled I offended: (b) therefore haue I kept thy * word.

(g) Before I was afflicted, I often fell into sinne: (b) but vexation gaue me vnderstanding, therefore now I keep thy law.

69. The iniquitie of (i) the proude is multiplied vpon me: (k) but I in al my hart wil teach thy commandments.

(i) Contemners of thy law haue endeauoured to intangle me, (k) but I persist in keeping thy commandments. As before. v. 51 61.

70. Their hart is (l) curded together as milke: (m) but I haue meditated thy law.

(l) Though the wicked combine themselues together against me, (m) yet I consider, that it is necessarie to perseuer in thy law.

71. It is good for me that thou hast humbled me: that I may learne thy iustifications.

72. The law of thy mouth is (n) good vnto me, aboute thousands of gold and siluer.

(a) A cleere-comparison, that it is better to keep Gods law, which bringeth life euerlasting, then to haue al the riches & Kingdoms of this world.

Iod. Beginning.

73. Thy hands haue made me, and formed me: (a) giue me vnderstanding, and I wil learne thy commandments.

(a) God being our Creatour, we may with confidence pray him to illuminate our minds, that we may learne what is his pleasure, and so endeauour to fulfil it.

74. They that feare thee (b) shal see me, & shal reioyce: because I haue much hoped in thy words.

(b) Other: that loue God will be glad to see me also serue him.

75. (c) I know, o Lord, that thy iudgements are equitie: and in thy truth thou hast humbled me. (d)

(c) The iust being afflicted, and not seeing the particular cause thereof, yet knoweth and confesseth, that God doth it for most iust cause. (d) And therefore with patience prayeth for comfort, as foloweth:

(f) The iust also prayeth that the wicked may be ashamed, and conuerted, for so the Hebrew word here signifieth, though it is also lawful to desire the iust punishment of obstinate sinners.

79. Let them (g) be conuerted to me that feare thee: and that know thy testimonies.

Mat. 9. v. 17.

84. How manie are (d) the daies of thy seruant: when wilt thou doe iudgement on them that persecute me?

(d) Such is mans infirmitie, yea of the iust, that he apprehendeth tribulations to be very long, and therefore desireth consummation; and that without sinne, so he stil submit his wil to Gods wils.

(c) Man, except he meditate Gods law, and therby be holden vp, is in danger,

(d) perhaps in euerie tentation to perish eternally. For he can neuer rise out of mortal sinne, by his owne power, and al should perish if Gods mercie did not spare some, and giue them new effectual grace to repent.

93. I wil not forget thy iustifications for euer: because in them thou hast quickned me.

114. Thou art my helper, and protectour: and vpon thy word I haue much hoped.

115. (c) Depart from me ye malignant: and I wil search the commandments of my God.

118. Thou hast (b) despised al that reuolt from thy iudgements: (i) because their cogitation is vniust.

(b) God reiecteth sinners: (i) so long as they thinke peruersly: that is, vntil by his grace, some returne to a better mind, which of themselues they can neuer doe.

119. Al the sinners of the earth I haue (k) reputed preuaricatours: therefore haue I loued thy testimonies.

(k) As God accounteth of sinners, so the iust also esteemeth them, conforming his iudgement to gods.

120. (l) Pearse my flesh with thy feare: for I am afrayd of thy iudgements.

(l) Seruile feare is profitable as this place maketh eident: though perfect charitie afterwards succeeding, expelleth that feare, and moueth to doe wel for the loue of God, not for feare of punishment. Ioan. 4.

Ain. A fountaine, or an eye.

121. I (a) haue done iudgement and iustice: (b) deliuer me not to them that caluminate me.

(a) The iust againe in feruent zeale, not arrogantly, but confidently professing his innocencie, (b) prayeth to be defended from calumniatours.

122. Receiue thy seruant (c) vnto good: let not the proud caluminate me.

(c) Grant therefore, o God, the good and lawful request which I demand.

123. Mine eies haue fayled (d) after thy saluation: and for the * word of thy iustice.

(d) By long expecting to be deliured and saued from tribulation.

124. Doe with thy seruant according to thy mercie: and teach me thy iustifications.

125. I am thy seruant: giue me vnderstanding, that I may know thy testimonies.

126. (e) It is time to doe, o Lord: (f) they haue dissipated thy law.

(e) It is time, and high time, saith feruent zeale of the iust man, that God deliuer the innocent: (f) when the wicked haue not only persecuted the good, but haue also contemptuously made houoke of Gods law and true religion.

127. (g) Therefore haue I loued thy commandments, aboue gold and topazius.

(g) For this zeale of Gods law so despised and dissipated, the iust more and more loneth, that which the wicked so deadly hate.

128. (h) Therefore was I directed to al thy commandments: (i) al wicked way I haue hated.

(h) Euen by the mortal hate of the wicked I saw that Gods law is most excellent, and therefore addicted my selfe so much the more to lone it, (i) and to hate al wicked wayes.

Phe. Mouth.

129. Thy (a) testimonies are meruelous: (b) therefore hath my soule searched them.

(a) Gods meruelous power and wisdom, testified by his workes and commandments, (b) worthily inuite iust soules to meditate and contemplate the same.

130. The (c) declaration of thy* words doth illuminate: and giueth vnderstanding to litle ones.

(c) First entrance into knowledge of holie Scripture, illuminateth the vnderstanding of the humble, wherby they proceede to know more.

131. I (d) opened my mouth, and drew breath: because I desired thy commandments.

(d) By this Metaphore, of gaping or wide opening the mouth, and drawing breath, the Prophet describeth the great desire of the iust, to know and keepe Gods commandments.

132. Looke vpon me, and haue mercie on me, according to (e) the iudgement of them that loue thy name.

(e) According to thy accustomed equitie, in shewing mercie to them that loue thy name.

133. Direct my steps according to thy* word: and let not anie iniustice haue domination ouer me.

134. Redeeme me from the calumnies of men: that I may keepe thy commandments.

135. Illuminate (f) thy face vpon thy seruant: and teach me thy iustifications.

(f) Let thy diuine Maiestie looke vpon me with fauourable countenance.

136. (g) Mine eies haue gushed forth issues of waters: because they haue not kept thy law.

(g) True repentance consisteth not only in purpose to auoide sinne hereafter, which indeed is first required, but also in sorow and lamentation for sinnes past.

Iustice.

137. Thou art iust, o Lord: and (a) thy iudgement is right.

(a) God being essentially iust of himselfe, maketh men iust according to right iudgement, by giuing them grace of mercie, wherwith they cooperating are iust by iustice in deed inherent in their soules, not by imputation only: for it were not right iudgement to impure, or account man iust, who is not so indeed.

138. Thou hast commanded (b) iustice thy testimonies: and thy veritie exceedingly.

(b) The same is more confirmed by these three synonyma, Iustice, Testimonies, Veritie, signifying the law of God, most earnestly commanded.

139. My Zeie hath made me to pine away: because mine enemies haue forgotten thy words.

140. Thy* word is (c) fired exceedingly: and thy seruant hath loued it.

(c) Gods law is as pure as anie thing purged by fire.

141. I am (d) a yongman, and contemned: I (e) haue not forgotten thy iustifications.

(d) A iust man is often iudged ignorant, immature, vn experienced, by the worldlie wise; (e) but indeed is wise, in that he forgetteth not to keepe the law, which maketh him iust.

(e) According to thy accustomed manner of shewing mercie, shew it me, that therby I may liue.

150. They that persecute me haue approached to iniquitie: but from thy law they are made far off.

151. Thou art (f) nigh, o Lord: and al thy wayes are truth.

(f) God is alwayes readie to heare al that sincerely inuocate him.

152. (g) From the beginning I knew of thy testimonies: that thou hast founded them for euer.

(g) Gods law is the same in substance from the beginning of the world, and wil be for euer.

161. Princes haue persecuted me (a) without cause: and my (b) hart hath been afraid of thy words.

(a) Potent wicked men persecute the godlie without cause, that is, without anie iust reason mouing them; & without the effect intended by them, which is to draw Gods seruants from truth and equitie; (b) whose hart being possessed with the true feare of God, they persist in keeping Gods commandments.

162. I (c) wil reioyce at thy * words: as he that findeth manie spoyles.

(c) Yea they also reioyce in keeping the commandments, with such difficultie, as those doe, that gaining the victorie ouer their enemies, carie away great and rich spoyles.

Institution of Canonical Houres by the Church.

From hence also the Church of Christ tooke example to institute the seuen Canonical Houres, which is the ordinarie Ecclesiastical Office; consisting, as S. Isidorus, and manie other Fathers testifie, of Hymnes, Psalmes, Canticles, Antiphones, Lessons, Responsories, & other Prayers, & Praises, distributed into distinct times, beginning in the night, wherof that part is called the Nocturne (one or three according to the diuersitie of the Office) and pertaineth to one or more of the foure Vigils, into which souldiers diuide the whole night. Wherto also the Laudes are added. The Prime, in the morning. Afterwards, the Third houre, Sixt, Ninth, & in the euening, Euen song, and Compline.

This religious institucion reprehended
by Drowsie

Against which most ancient and religious Constiution, especially against the part called Vigils, or Nocturnes, certaine Heretikes repined, & calumniated the Churches custome, as superfluous and vnfruitful to spiritual worke, violating of Gods ordinance, who made the night for rest, and the day for labour. For which cause they were called Nyctozontes, Somnicolosi, Drowsy heretikes. As the same S. Isidorus testifieth li. 1. c. 22. de Offi. Eccles. S. Ierom Epist. ad Riparium, noteth the same heresie in Vigilantius, calling him Dormitantius, because he reprehended holie Virgils, as if it were better to sleepe, then wake in time of Diuine seruice. Wickliff also raised vp the same heresie as witnesseth Thomas Waldensis, To. 3. Tit. 3. c. 11. Lastly Luther and al his brood. But the holie obseruation of Canonical Houres is proued by manie anciēt Fathers to be altogether agreeable to the holie Scriptures, both of the old and new Testament. So S. Bede in 18. Luc. & li. 4. c. 7. Hist. Angl. S. Gregorie the Great, li. 3. Dialog. c. 14. S. Augustin (Ser. 55. de temp.) exhorting the people to rise early to the Vigils (or Noturnes) and in aniewise to come to the Third houre, Sixt, and Ninth. Let none (saith he) withdtaw himselfe from the holie worke, but whom either sicknes, or publike vtilitie, or perhaps some great necessitie holdeth backe. S. Ierom. Epist. 22. ad Eustoch. & in Epitaph. Paulz c. 10. maketh expresse mention of the Third houre, Sixt, Ninth, Morning, & Euening; also of Midnight, adding that no Religious is ignorant that sometimes they must rise to Diuine Seruice, twise, yea thrise in the night. S. Basil in Regulis salsus disput. ad Interrog. 37. & de Instit. Monachorum, first sheweth this ordinance to be agreeable to the holie Scriptures, & namely to this place of the Psalmist. S. Cypria in sine exposit. Orat. Domin. affirmeth that besides the three houres in which Daniel and his felowes prayed, the Church of Christ hath added more. And (as manie suppose) S. Clement li. 8. Constitut. Apostol. c. 40. sheweth the sette Houres of prayers, & the reasons therof. Make your prayers Early in the morning, at the Third houre, Sixt, Ninth, Euening, & at the Time of cocke crowing. Early giuing thanks, because our Lord hath illuminated vs, the night being passed, & the day comming in; the Third, because that houre our Lord receiued I lats sentēce; the Sixt houre, because thē he was Crucified; the Ninth, because al thinges were moued, when our Lord was crucified, abhorring the audacitie of the wicked, & not bearing the ignominie of our Lord; at Eueing, giuing thanks, for that God hath giuen vs the night for rest of daves labours: at the Ceeke crowing, because at that time the comming of the day is denounced, to exercise the workes of light. Thus S. Clement. Tonching the distinct and sette times of publike prayer, the continual practise by tradition teacheth, that Mattins with Lauds were said in the night, about the first Cockcrowing. Prime early in the morning. The other partes in the day time. At eueing Euensong, & last of al Compline. And touching the place: If for the infidels (saith the same holie Father) there be not accessie to the Church, the Bishop must gather the Assemblie at home, that the godlie may not enter into the Church of the wicked: for the place doth not sanctifie man, but man the place. Wherefore if the wicked occupie the place, that place is to be shunned, because it is prophaned by them: for as Priests doe sanctifie holie things, so the wicked doe contaminate them. If neither at home, nor in the Church Assemblies can be celebrated, let euerie one by himselfe sing, read, pray, or two or three be gathered together. For where two or three are gathered in my name (saith Christ) there am I in the middes of them. Let not the godlie pray with an heretike, no not at home. For what societie is there of light with darknes?

Why publike prayer is constituted at these houres.

Not lawful to goe to Church, nor to pray with Infidels.

Nor with heretikes.

1. Cor. 6

165. There is (e) much peaceto them that loue thy law: & (f) there is no scandal to them.

(e) Amongst other benefits, it is a speciall commoditie, that those which perfectly loue gods law haue alwayes peace in their owne conscience: (f) and are neuer scandalized, that is, doe not fal nor commit sinne, by anie occasion whatsoever giuen them by others. For it is a general assured doctrine, that the perfect are not scandalized, because they are constant in vertue, and not moued by anie example, perswasion, prouocation, or other meanes to offend God: but only the weake and vnperfect are moued and drawne to sinne by occasions giuen them, who otherwise would not haue sinned. Neither is he excused that falleth by such occasions, because he ought to be constant.

166. I expected thy saluation, o Lord: and haue loued thy cōmandments.

167. My soule hath kept thy testimonies: & (g) hath loued them exceedingly.

(g) Not of seruile feare, but of true charitie & filial loue.

168. I haue kept thy commandments, and thy testimonies: because al my waies are in thy sight.

(h) Because whatsoever I doe is in thy sight, whom I wil in no case offend.

Tau Signe.

169. (a) Let my petition approach in thy sight, o Lord: according to thy word giue me (b) vnderstanding.

(a) In this last Ostonarie, and conclusion of this Psalme, the faithful seruant of God prayeth, (b) not for humane knowledge, or other temporal things, but to vnderstand gods law.

170. Let my request enter in thy sight: (c) according to thy word (d) deliuer me.

(c) Thou that hast promised to heare al that inuocate thee, (d) voutsafe to deliuer me in time of tribulations and tentations.

171. My lips shal vter an hymne, when thou shalt teach me thy iustifications.

172. My tong shal pronounce thy * word: (e) because al thy commandments are equitie.

* elo-
quium.

(e) God giuing grace, it behoueth his seruants thankfully to serue and praise him.

173. (f) Let thy hand be to saue me : because I haue chosen thy commandments.

(f) Though man be indued with grace, yet he needeth more grace, that by Gods hand and power, not by his owne, he may resist tentations.

174. I haue coucted thy saluation, o Lord : and thy law is my meditation.

175. (g) My soule shal liue, and shal prayse thee : and thy indgements shal help me.

(g) By this assistance of grace, the soule continueth in spiritual life, and praifeth God.

176. (h) I haue strayed as a sheep that is lost : (i) seeke thy seruant, (k) because I haue not forgotten thy commandments.

(h) Al mankind, and vniuersally euerie one, hath been as a lost sheep, (i) & Christ came into this world to seeke and saue al : (k) but effectually findeth and saueeth those only, that forget not to keep his commandments.

A BRIEFE NOTE CONCERNING the Gradual Psalmes.

Why the 15.
Psalmes following are called Gradual Canticles.

The historical sense.

The mystical sense.

These Psalmes are consolatory prayers and prophecies.

Here follow in order fifeteene Psalmes intituled Gradual Canticles. The Hebrew word Mahaloth signifieth Steps, or Ascensions. The reason wherof Aadias, and some other Rabbins yeald, for that they were song with higheft eleuated notes, that can be in Musike. The Talmud saith they are so called, because they were song in the fifteen steps going vp into the Temple. But S. Augustin, S. Basil, and other Christian Fathers expound them according to the historie, and immediate propheticall sense, of the deliuerie of the Iewes from captiuitie of Babylon, ascending into Ierusalem: which is so situated on mountaines, that the way from al parts was by ascending vnto it. According to the Mystical sense, of ascending spiritually by vertues to perfection, and to eternal felicitie. For the way tending to vertue (saith S. Basil) is like to certaine steps (or degrees) by litle and litle bringing the man that loueth wisdom vnto heauen. These Canticles therefore are prayers, mixed with consolations, for the ioyful deliuerie of Gods people, from that great captiuitie in Babylon, which the Psalmist King Daud saw in propheticall spirite, and which his posteritie felt, and sometime indured. Which againe as a figure signifieth the returne and ascending of mankind from sinne to grace, and from the miserable state of this world into heauen. Wherupon S. Augustin interpreteth this propheticall of the ascension, or eleuation of the hart, from the vaile of teares. In the meane time, whiles we are in this world, these Psalmes are consolatory prayers, and propheticall assurance, that Gods people, Catholike Christians, shal be deliuered from thraldom and persecution of Pagans, Turkes, and Heretikes. As partly we see by the deliuerie from the Romane persecuting Emperours, from the Vandals, Gothes, and Hunnes: & therefore with assured confidence we hope and expect the like deliuerie from Turkes, and al Heretikes of Luthers brood.

The Iewes in captiuitie of Babylon, Christians in persecution, or other great tribulation, pray with confidence to be deliured from danger, and slander of wicked tongues, 5. lamenting their long indurance.

Prayer in tribulation.
The 7. key.

1. A gradual Canticle.

VW H E N I was in tribulation I cried to our Lord: and (a) he heard me.

(a) Former experience of Gods mercie in hearing the prayers of those that inuocated him, giueth hope that he wil heare in like case.

2. O Lord deliuer my soule from (b) vniust lips, and from a deceitful tong.

(b) Nothing is more dangerous then vntrue and deceitful rongs, nothing more damage then to diminish, and detract from the good fame of the iust: and therefore this is a most necessaric prayer, that god wil deliuer vs from the wicked tongues of Turkes, Heretikes, and other wicked men.

3. (c) What may be giuen thee, or what may be added vnto thee to a deceitful tong?

(c) What punishment is great enough for wicked tongues?

4. (d) The sharpe arrowes of the mightie, with coales of desolation.

(d) Surely the malice of wicked tongues deserueth sharpest punishments to be afflicted by strong hands.

5. (e) Woe is to me, that my seiourning is prolonged: I haue dwelt with the (f) inhabitants of Cedar: 6. My soule hath been long a seiourner.

(e) Iewes lamented their long absence from the holie land, especially from Ierusalem and the Temple. Christians moune for their restraint from gods seruice, and long peregrination from heauen. (f) Of Cedar the sonne of Ismael, came Mahomet, the Turkes false Prophet, whose tyrannie is great and long. The name Cedar is interpreted, blackenes, and obscuritie, which signifieth darkenes of error, and sinne.

7. With them that hated peace I was peaceable: when I spake to them, they impugned me (g) without cause.

(g) The wicked afflict those that giue no cause of offence.

(a) Diuers Prophets told the Iewes in captiuitie, that they should returne to Ierusalem. Al Prophets, Christ also; and his Apostles, and Priests, preach the entrance, and ioyes of heauen to the iust. Al which the Psalmist saw in propheticall spirite, and reioyced.

2. (b) Our feete were standing, in thy courts, o Ierusalem.

(b) The Iewes consider that sometimes they were ioyful in the Temple of Ierusalem: Christians reioyce in the comfort they haue in the militant Church.

3. Ierusalem, which is built as a citie: whose (c) participation is together in it- self.

(c) Communitie and participation of spiritual graces, is a great ioy to Catholikes, wner of the same Prophet speaketh, Psal. 118. v. 61. and often elsewhere.

4. For (d) thither did the tribes ascend, (e) the tribes of our Lord; the testimonie of Israel to confesse vnto the name of our Lord.

(d) Al the tweine Tribes frequented Ierusalem, (e) and al nations of the world doe come to the Catholike Church.

(i) Christ exhorteth to aske, (k) and promifeth to giue that is rightly asked; Christians also inuite each other to pray for the Church.

7. Peace be made in thy strength: and abundance in thy towers.

affliction.
The 7. key.

A seruent and attentiu prayer, to be deliuered from captiuitie, or anie other affliction.

.1. A gradual Canticle.

TO thee haue I lifted vp mine eies, which dwellest in the heauens.
2. Behold as the eies (a) of seruants, are on the hands of their masters.

(a) Seruants expecting necessaries at their masters hands are commonly very attentiu to receiue that which they hope for: so must the faithful praying God, be very attentiu, and not distracted in their prayers.

As the eies (b) of the handmaid on the hands of her mistresse: so are our eies to our Lord God vntil he haue mercie on vs.

(b) An other example of handmaids, who generally are more diligent then men.

3. Haue mercie on vs, o Lord, haue mercie on vs: because we are (c) much replenished with contempt.

(c) Though mod suffer his seruants to sustaine some affliction and reproch, yet he heareth and deliuereth them before they be oppressed.

4. Because our soule is (d) much replenished: reproch to them that abound, and contempt to the proud.

(b) We could not haue escaped the force of our enimies. (c) The word (perhaps) doth not here import a doubt, or vncertaintie, but in modest maner of asseueration, leaueth the iudgement of the euent that should hapen (if God did not protect his seruants) to their owne consideration: which is an vsual phrase in most languages.

(d) So sudainely should the weake, without Gods protection be destroyed, as men are deuoured & swallowed vp by rauening wild beasts, euen before they be throughly dead. So was Ionas swallowed into the whales bellie.

Mountaines round about it: and our Lord round about his people, from hence forth now and for euer.

3. Because our Lord (c) wil not leaue the rod of sinners vpon the lot of the iust: that the iust reach not their hands to iniquitie.

(c) God wil not alwayes, nor finally leaue his seruants in tribulation, but only a while for their good.

4. (d) Doe wel, O Lord, to the good, and right of hart.

(d) This prayer is also an asseueration, for it is certaine that God wil defend, and reward the good, and right of hart:

5. but (e) those that decline into obligations, our Lord wil bring with them that worke iniquitie: (f) peace vpon Israel.

(e) And no lesse assuredly God wil punish not only the notorious wicked, and principal Authours of wickednes, but also al those that for feare or for commoditie, or for anie other cause, decline into obligations, bonds, couenants, or anie way consent in external shew with the wicked against God: as in outward piousness of Heresie, or Schisme, though such temporizers doe not thinke in their hart, that the pretended religion is true, wile to they are drawne to yeald external conformitie.

For, as the Psalmist here teacheth, our Lord wil bring al such accessarie offenders, to the same iudgement and punishment, with the principal workers of iniquitie.

(f) Al which being punished, then Ierusalem, the Catholike Church, shal haue peace.

*Israelites released from captiuitie of Babylon, much more the blessed both of the old and new Testament deliuered by Christ from captiuitie of sinne, doe reioyce: 5.
Who neuertheles must passe through tribulation to eternal felicitie.*

1. A gradual Canticle.

WHEN our Lord turned the captiuitie of Sion: we were made as (a) men comforted.

(a) The Iewes released from captiuitie, were exceedingly, and almost incredibly comforted, as men for great, and v unexpected sodaine ioy, thinke it rather a dreame then a truth that they are deliured from miseries. So S. Peter when he was deliured out of prison by an Angel, thought it rather a vision, then a true deliuerie. Such spiritual ioy deuout soules haue when they are deliured from sinne.

Act. 12.

2. Then was our mouth replenished with ioy: and our tongue with exultation.

Then (b) shal they say among the Gentils: Our Lord hath done ma-gnifically with them.

(b) Whereas in the two former verses (and very commonly) the Prophet speaketh in the pretertense, for the assurance of that he foresheweth, as if it were already done, yet here he vttereth his Prophecie in the future tense, that the Gentils wil con-fesse that God dealeth magnifically with his people.

3. (c) Our Lord hath done magnifically with vs: we are made ioyful.

(c) The people also themselues gratefully confesse that God dealeth magnifically with them.

4. (d) Turne our captiuitie, o Lord, (e) as a torrent in the South.

(d) The Prophet foreseeing al this in spirit, prayeth for the performance herof. (e)
And that it may speedily be done, as a torrent that runneth in the south part of the world, is commonly very great, much desired, but searse expected.

5. (f) They that sow in teares (g) shal reape in ioyfulnesse.

(f) This is the ordinarie disposition of God, that his seruants shal make their seed, which is, doe good workes (saith S. Augustin) with teares, in tribulation vpon earth: (g) and reape a plentiful harvest, the reward of their suffering and wel working, in the next life. In assured hope wherof the Psalmist, and the whole Church ioyfully conclude this Psalme with the two verses folowing.

6. Going they went and wept, casting their seeds.

7. But comming they shal come with exultation, carying their sheaues.

3. (f) When he shal giue (g) sleepe to his beloued: behold (h) the inheritance of our Lord (i) are children: (k) the reward, the fruit of the womb.

(f) Contrariwise where God giuing grace; those that truly loue him, doe good workes, (g) with great ease, and dilight, as they take their sleepe, (h) they merite inheritance in heauen, (i) for their good workes. (k) The reward is promised to the true children of God, borne to him in the womb of the Catholike Church.

The Church

The 6. key.

The Church often (3. and much) impugned, is not ouercome. 4. Her persecuters are destroyed, 6. contemned, 8. and cursed.

1. A gradual Canticle.

(a) OF T E N haue they impugned me (b) from my youth, let Israel now say:

(a) Israel which is the Church of God, reioycing saith: that enimies haue often, (b) euen from the beginning of the world, persecuted me, as when Cain periecuted Abel, other wicked periecuted Seth, Enoch, Noe : the Chaldeas periecuted Abraham: the Ægyptians periecuted the Israelites: and so in other generacions.

2. Often haue they impugned me from my youth: (c) but they haue not preuailed against me.

(c) But they haue neuer ouercome me. So the Psalmist testifieth for al times past, & prophecieth the same for times to come.

3. Sinners (d) haue builded vpon my backe : they haue (e) prolonged their iniquitie.

(d) Persecuters not being able to ouerthrow or suppress the Church, haue laide great weightie burdens of tribulations vpon her backe, which she hath patiently and strongly strongly borne, (e) they haue stil persisted, one sorte after an other, but with longanimitie the Church hath stood fast, and constantly passed through al distresses. In moral sense sinners build iniquitie vpon the back of the Church, yea and vpon Gods back, when they presume to sinne, trusting in the end to be absolved by vertue of holie Sacraments left in The Church. Likewise when they excuse their sinnes, imputing the cause to other creatures of God, wherby they are allured. Which is in effect (saith S. Augustin) to accuse God, and to build iniquities on Gods back, who made those creatures.

4. (f) Our iust Lord wil cut the necks of sinners: 5. let them al (g) be confounded and (h) turned backward, that hate Sion.

(f) God therefore who is iust, wil at last cast such presumptuous sinners from his back, and breake their stiffe necks: (g) then shall they be confounded, (h) separated eternally from God, become like fruitles and withered grasse, cast away, despised, yea cursed of al, and blessed by none, as the Prophet denounceth in the next verses.

6. Let them be made as grasse in the toppes of houses: which is withered before it be plucked vp.

FR O M (a) the depths I haue cried to thee, o Lord: 2. Lord heare my voice:

(a) This prayer agreeth to al true penitents, crying to God for helpe, being either in depth of sorrow for sinne, and so it is one of the Penitential Psalms; or the depth of feruent desire, to ascend towards perfection in vertue, and from this vail of miserie into heauen, and so it is a Gradual Psalme; or in the depth of temporal paines, and so it is a special prayer for soules in Purgatorie, offered by the Church in their behalfe.

Let thine eares be intent to the voice of my petition.

3. If thou shalt obserue iniquities, o Lord: Lord (b) who shall susteine it?

(b) None is able to abide the rigour of Gods iustice.

4. Because with thee there is (c) propiciation: and for (d) thy law I haue expected thee, o Lord.

(c) But al must relie vpon his mercie. (d) For thy promises made in the law, that thou wilt remit sinnes to the penitent, giue more grace to them that seeke it, and mitigate also the paines due for sinnes.

(f) The greatest comfort is in Christ our Redeemer, whose plentiful Redemption bringeth more aboundance of grace.

Anie iust soule in humble confidence offereth his innocencie, as a spiritual and grateful sacrifice to God, 3. exhorting of Gods seruants euer to hope in him.

(a) Dauid by Gods special grace hauing a sincere minde towards al men, euen towards his enimies, and an humble hart, not desiring anie thing ambitiously, but al to the honour of God, proposeth his owne example, for others to imitate: that they may with him offer the sacrifice of humilitie and innocencie vnto God, from whom al good things proceed.

LORD my hart is not exalted: (b) neither are mine eies loftie. Neither haue I walked in great matters: nor in meruelous things aboue me.

(b) Al this with a thankful mind to God who gaue this grace.

2. If I was not humbly minded: but exalted my soule: As (c) the weaned child is toward his mother, (d) so retribution in my soule.

(c) As children after they are weaned come stil willingly to their mother, so doth the childe of God relie vpon Gods helpe, though he alwayes feele not the same sweetness: (d) & according to his denianeur herein, he expecteth reward.

3. (e) Let Israel hope in our Lord, from henceforth now and for euer.

Christs coming to restore man.
The 5. key.

1. A gradual Canticle.

REMEMBER (a) Dauid, o Lord, and al his meekenes:

(a) It is an vsual thing that Dauid, Moyses, & other Prophets speake of themselves in the third person.

2. As he sware to our Lord, (b) vowed a vow to the God of Iacob.

(b) King Dauid desiring, and so farre as lay in him, promising to build a Temple to God, with great instance prayeth that he might performe the same. But God differing otherwise, that not he, but his sonne should build it, he neuertheles prepared the matter, workemen, and money, shewed the forme, and disposed the Leuites how to serue therein.

3. (c) If I shal enter into the tabernacle of my house, if I shal ascend into the bed of my couch.

(c) Moreouer by vow deprived himself of entering into his owne house, or taking his ordinarie rest, til he might (if it so pleased God) know the place where it should be built.

4. If I shal giue sleepe to mine eies, and slumbering to mine eie liddes:

5. And rest to my temples: vntil I finde a place for our Lord, a tabernacle for the God of Iacob.

6. Behold we haue heard of it (d) in Ephrata: we haue found it in (e) the fields of the wood.

(d) It was reueled to Dauid, that the Temple should be built in that part of Ierusalem, which looketh towards Bethleem (otherwise called Ephrata) where our Sauiour was borne. (e) Within Ierusalem, which is compassed with woods. In this vision also the whole forme of the Temple was reueled vnto him, as he testifieth 1. Par. 28. v. 19. Al things, quoth he, came written with the hand of our Lord vnto me: that I might vnderstand al the workes of the paterne.

7. (f) We wil enter into his tabernacle: we wil (g) adore in the place where his feete stood.

(f) Holie Dauid moued with exceeding deuotion, repared to the place, where Gods Temple should be built, (g) & adored God, where the Propiciatorie, as a footstool representing Gods presence, should stand. What meruel then if deuotion moue Christians to visite the holie places, where our Sauiour God and Man was Incarnate, was borne, suffered death, was buried, ascended into heauen, or anie other place where his feete stood.

8. (h) Arise Lord into thy rest, thou, and (i) the arke of thy sanctification.

(h) O God, leauing Silo, Gabaon, and the like places, come into thy holie Temple, (i) with the arke of couenant, where thou sanctifiest thy people. And here againe the Proper illuminated with a higher Myserie, and inflamed with more deuotion, prayeth for Christs comming into the world, and prophecieth that after his Passion he wil rise, not only in glorie of soule, but also of bodie, prefigured by the Arke of testimonie, which was in the tabernacle, and after in the Temple.

9. Let thy Priests be clothed with (k) iustice: & let thy (l) saints reioyce.

(k) Grant therefore that thy Priests, which must offer sacrifice in this sacred place, be indued with vertues, and good life worthie of their degree: (l) and the Leuites who are ordained to serue there, be likewise made fitte for their diuers functions, both in the old and new Testament.

10. (m) For Dauid thy seruants sake (n) turne not away the face of thy Christ.

(m) And seeing thou hast giuen such meecknes, deuotion, zeale, sincerie, and other vertues, making him a man according to thine owne hart, and therupon promised to establish his seed, (n) differ not to send thy promised Messias, Christ our Redeemer.

11. Our Lord (o) hath sworne truth to Dauid, and (p) he wil not disappoint it: (q) Of the fruit of thy wombe I wil set vpon thy seate.

(o) Hence forth to the end of this Psalme the Prophet relateth Gods reuelation to him: That he hath truly promised with an oath, (p) and wil performe, (q) to sette one of Dauids sonnes vpon his Throne: which was not only fulfilled in Salomon, who reigned in great peace, and builded the Temple, but especially in Christ the Sonne of Dauid, to whom our Lord God gaue the seate of Dauid his father, & he shal reigne in the house of Iacob for euer. and of his Kingdom there shal be no end. Luc 1. v. 32. 33. By this promise Sainr Peter also proueth Christs Resurrection. Act. 2. v. 30.

12. (r) If thy children shal keepe my testament, and these my testimonies which I wil teach them:

(r) Concerning the children of Christ, members of his Kingdom the Church, the promise is conditional, if they obserue Gods commandments, they shal sit vpon his seate: be coheires of his Kingdom. Rom. 8. v. 17.

Their children also euen for euer, shal sit vpon thy seate.

13. Because our Lord hath chosen Sion: he hath chosen it for an habitation to himself.

14. This is my (s) rest for euer and euer: here wil I dwel because I haue chosen it.

(s) Sion, the Catholike Church, is a perpetual place where God dwelleth.

15. Blessing I wil blesse her (t) widow: her (v) poore I wil fil with breads.

(t) The Church wanting Christs visible presence, is replenished with manie blessings, (v) and al her humble children are releued with holie Sacraments.

16. Her (w) Priests I wil clothe with saluation: and her (x) saints shal reioyce with ioyfulness.

(w) The Church hath alwayes some holie Priests (x) and some holie people.

17. (y) Thither wil I bring forth a horne to Dauid, I haue prepared (z) a lampe to my Christ.

(y) Of this Church, elected by God, Christ is the Protectour, and strong defence. (z) And the same Church shal be a perpetual lampe, wherby others may come to him.

18. His enemies I wil cloth with confusion: but vpon him shal my sanctification flourish.

A Psalm of Dauid (a) for Ieremie.

(a) By adding to this title (for Ieremie) the Septuagint Interpreters signifie that this Psalm treateth of the same captiuitie, in which Ieremias writte his Lamentations.

VPON the riuers (b) of Babylon, there we (c) fate and wept: whiles we (d) remembred Sion.

(b) Nere the riuers in Chaldea, wherof Babylon was the head citie, (c) the Iewes remained mourning, (d) remembring the holie rites and seruice of God, which had been in Sion, wherof they were deprived in the captiuitie.

2. On the willowes in the miides therof, we hanged vp (e) our instruments.

(e) All their musical instruments, as hauing no vse of them.

3. Because there they that led vs captiue, (f) demanded of vs words of songs.

(f) Either in earnest or in scorne the Chaldees willed them to sing, as they were accustomed in their countrie.

And they that led vs away: Sing ye an hymne to vs of the songs of Sion.

4. (g) How shal we sing the song of our Lord in a strange land:

(g) They excused themselues, and refused to sing sacred Psalms before prophane people, neither had they mind to sing in that mourning state of captiuitie.

5. (h) If I shal forget thee, o Ierusalem, let my right hand be forgotten.

(h) The people shew not only their feruent present desire to serue God in Ierusalem, but also their firme purpose still to desire the same, wishing that if they forget it, or lose this affection, their right hands, or what soeuer is most deare, or necessarie for them, may be forgotten, not conserued, but suffered to perish.

6. (i) Let my tongue cleaue to my iawes, if I doe not remember thee:

(i) If I lose this affection, let me also lose the vse of my tongue.

If I shal not set Ierusalem in the beginning of my ioy.

7. Be mindful, o Lord, of (k) the children of Edom, in (l) the day of Ierusalem:

(k) The Idumeans incensed the Chaldees to be cruel against the Iewes, wherof they pray for iust reuenge, and withal the Psalmist prophecieth that it wil be reuenged, which Isaias also prophecieth, c. 21. v. 11 (l) for their reioycing in Ierusalem's miserie.

(m) That say: Rise it, rise it, euen vnto the foundation therof.

(m) The voice of the Idumeans, inciting the Babylonians vicerly to destroy Ierusalem.

8. (n) Daugther of Babylon miserable: blessed is he, that shal repay thee thy payment, which thou hast payed vs.

(n) A Prophecie that the people of Babylon should also be punished, for their crueltie against the Iewes, wherof Isaias likewise prophecieth c. 13.

9. Blessed is he (o) that shal hold, and (p) shal dash thy litle ones against the rock.

(o) God wil blesse, or reward them that shal seuerely afflict the Babylonians, (p) not sparing their children. Morally he is blessed, that mortifieth his owne passions, cutteth off first il motions, or punisheth venial finnes, that they grow not strong within his soule, and so draw it to commit mortal sinne. S. Aug. hic, & S. Greg. in sine expof. Psal. 4. pœnit.

PSALME CXXXVII.

The whole Church, or anie iust person, rendreth thanks to God for his benefits 4. praying that al Kings and Kingdomes may doe the same, 4. because God being high respecteth and aduanceth the humble.

1. To (a) Dauid himself.

(a) This Psalme is a fitte forme of thanks for Dauid, or anie other seruant of God.

I wil (b) confesse to thee, o Lord, in my whole hart: (c) because thou hast heard the words of my mouth.

(b) I wil render thanks and praise. (c) God euer heareth the prayer that is rightly made, for which the suppliant is therefore to giue thanks.

In (d) the sight of Angels I wil sing to thee: 2. I wil adore (e) toward thy holie temple, and wil confesse to thy name:

(d) Angels are present where the faithful pray, obserue our prayers, and offer them to God, if they be sincere, as the prayers of Tobias, and Cornelius. (e) When there was not access to the Temple, yet the Iewes praying in captiuitie, turned themelues towards the Temple.

For thy mercie, and thy truth: because thou hast magnified aboute euerie thing (f) thy holie name.

(f) The Name and Maiestie of God, The Word (which is the Sonne of God) also the name of Iesus, is magnified aboute al names, or temporal things.

3. In what day soeuer I shal inuocate thee, heare me: thou wilt multiple strength in my soule.

4. Let (g) al the Kings of the earth, o Lord, confesse to thee: because they haue heard al the words of thy mouth:

(g) Sooner or later Kings and Princes of al Kingdomes and nations, haue been or shal be conuerted to Christ.

5. And let them sing in the wayes of our Lord: because great is the glorie of our Lord.

6. Because our Lord is high, and he beholdeth low things: and high things he knoweth (h) far off.

(h) God knoweth proud men, not as his freinds or seruants, but farre off, as strangers and enimies.

7. It I shal walke in the middes of tribulation, thou wilt quiken me: and vpon the wrath of mine enimies thou hast extended thy hand, and thy right hand hath saued me.

Thanks to God for benefits.

PSALME CXXXVIII.

Gods knowledge, 7. and presence 10. without the helpe, or hinderance of anie thing) extender to al things, times, and places. 7. He giueth exceeding great honour to his saints. 20. the wicked, as enemies to God, are iustly hated, 23. the iust pray for God perpetual direction.

Gods special providence of his seruants.
The 3. key.

1. Vnto (a) the end, a Psalme of Dauid.

(a) By this part of the title (to the end) is signified (as is noted Psal. 4.) that the matter contained in the Psalme, pertaineth to the new Testament.

LORD thou (b) hast proued me, and hast knowen me: 2. thou hast knowen my sitting downe, and my rising vp.

(b) God who knoweth al things most absolutely and perfectly, without discourse or searching, yet as it were, maketh experimental trial of his seruants, to make them in some sort to know him, and to know themselves. And so here holie Dauid or other faithful man, acknowledgeth Gods Omniscience, that is, perfect knowledge of al things, without exception, past, present, & to come: al workes, wordes, thoughts, and what soeuer can be, though it neuer was nor shal be, in general, and in particular.

3. Thou hast vnderstood my cogitations far off: my path, and (c) my corde thou hast searched out.

(c) The vttermost measure and reach of myne intention.

4. And thou hast foreseen al my wayes: because there is not a word in my (d) tongue.

(d) The word holden in by the tongue, and not vttered by mouth, is not hidden from God.

5. Behold, o Lord, thou hast knowen al the last things, & them of old: thou hast formed me, and hast put thy hand vpon me.

6. Thy knowledge is (e) become meruelous of me: it is made great, and I can not reach to it.

(e) By experience we see that Gods knowledge exceedeth our reach.

7. (f) Whither shal I goe from thy spirit: and whither shal I flye from thy face?

(f) As Gods knowledge comprehendeth al things, so his presence extendeth it selfe to al places, neither is conctined in place, but exceedeth al place, in his diuine immensitie.

8. If I shal ascend into heauen, thou art there: if I descend into hel, thou art present.

9. If I shal take my wings early, and dwel in the extreme parts of the sea.

10. Certes thither also shal thy hand conduct me: and thy right hand shal hold me.

11. (g) And I sayd: Perhaps darknes shal treade ouer me: and the night is mine illumination in my delights.

(g) The Prophet also in the person of anie curious imaginatiue man, exanunct and findeth that no darknes nor couer can hide anie thing from God.

12. For darkenes shal not be darkened from thee, and the night shal be lightned as the day: as the darknes therof, so also the light therof.

13. Because thou hast possessed (h) my reynes: thou hast receiued me from (i) my mothers wombe.

(h) Nothing seemeth more hilden, then a mans entrails, (i) or a child in the mothers wombe.

14. I wil confesse to thee, because thou art terribly magnified: thy workes are meruelous, & my soule knoweth exceedingly.

15. My (k) bone is not hid from thee, which thou madest in secret: and my substance in the lower parts of the earth.

(k) Or bones in the flesh.

16. (l) Mine * imperfection thine eies haue seen, & in thy book * al shal be written: (m) daies shal be formed, & no man in them.

(l) Or mans bodilie imperfection before his birth, (m) dayly formed by God, not by man. Iob. 10. v. 8. 1. Mac. 7. v. 12. 23.

17. (n) But to me thy :: freinds, o God, are become honourable exceedingly: their principalitie is exceedingly strengthened.

:: New translators peruert this place, translating (thoughts) for (friends) contrarie to the Hebrew, Greeke, and Latin, and al ancient Fathers, only pretending that the same word in the Chaldee tongue also significeth thoughts. (n) Above al consideratiōs it most exceedeth, that God so high and infinite, honoureth his humble poore seruants so exceedingly, that it seemeth to themselues farre more then can be due. For he rewardeth euen ouer & aboue merites; which merites also are founded in Gods mercie giuen without merite.

18. (o) I wil number them, and they shal be multiplied aboue the sand: (p) I rose vp and I am yet with thee.

(o) The number also of Saints whom God hath chosen, called, iustified and wil glorifie, exceede mans conceit. Apoc. 7. (p) Incensed with this excellent glorie, and desiring to be of this innumerable multitude, by thy grace I haue risen from sinne, and in confidence of thy perpetual helpe, I stand and hope to perseuere in thy seruice.

19. (q) If thou shalt kil sinners, o God: (r) ye men of blood depart from me.

(q) And if it be so, yea seeing it is so, that as thou, o God, doest exalt thy Saints to exceeding and vnspeakable honour: so thou hast also decreed to punish obstinate sinners with eternal death and damnation: (r) I renounce al wicked association, get ye away from me al cruel bloudic men, that would draw me into euerlasting torments.

20. (s) Because you say in thought: they (t) shal receiue thy cities in vayne.

(s) Away from me, you that thinke, (t) the glorious mansions in heauen, prepared and promised to the iust, are vaine hopes, and in vaine expected.

21. (v) Did not I hate them that hate thee, o Lord: and (w) pynd away because of thine enemies?

(v) This hate of such sinners the iust shal confidently plead, and happie are they that shal be able truly to allcadge for themselues in the day of iudgement, that they hated al, whom God hateth, (w) yea hated them with seruent zeale, that are Gods enemies.

22. (x) with perfect harted did I hate them: they are become (y) enemies to me.

(x) Stil the Prophet inculcath this necessarie perfect hatred (y) and ennitie towards Gods enemies.

23. (Z) Proue me, o God, and know my hart: examine me, and know my paths.

(z) For that none in this life (without special and extraordinarie reuelation) knoweth certainly their owne state, whether they be worthe of Gods loue or hatred: (Eccle. 9.) the iust submit themselues to Gods examination of their hart and actions:

24. And (a) see, if the way of iniquitie be in me: (b) and conduct me in the euerlasting way.

(a) Humbly praying God, that if they be in the way of iniquitie, (b) he wil voutsafe to reduce and guid them into the right way of euerlasting life.

PSALME CXXXIX.

The iust diuersly afflicted by the wicked, pray to be defended, 7. repose their confidence in God. 10. Who wil adiudge the reprobate to eternal punishment, 13. and reward the good with the fruition of himself.

The 10. key.

1. Vnto the end, a Psalm of Dauid.

2. DELIVER me, o Lord, from the euil man: from the vniust man rescue me.

3. Which (a) haue deuised iniquitie in their hart: (b) al the day they did appoint battels.

(a) Vnquiet euil disposed men stil deuise wicked plots (b) and neuer cease to make discord and debates.

They haue whet their tongues as that of a serpent: 4. the venome of aspes is vnder their lips.

5. Keepe me, o Lord, from the hand of the sinner: and from vniust men deliuer me.

6. Who haue deuised to supplant my steps: 7. the proud haue hid a snare for me:

* Secun-dulum.

And they haue stretched out ropes for a snare: they haue layd * a stumbling block for me neere the way.

7. (e) I sayd to our Lord: Thou art my God: heare, o Lord, the voice of my petition.

(e) In time of tentation prayer is most necessarie.

8. O Lord, Lord (d) the strength of my saluation: (e) thou hast overshadowed my head in the day of battel.

(d) Man is not able to resist tentations, (e) vnlesse God by his grace, as by a helmet, defend him from yealding consent.

9. Yeald me not, o Lord, from (f) my desire to the sinner: they haue deuised against me, forsake me not, (g) lest thy perhaps be proud.

(f) Suffer me not to fal from that which I now desire (which is to be constant in vertue) not to consent to sinners persuasions. (g) Who then would triumph over me.

10. (h) The head of their compass: (i) the labour of their lips (k) shal cover them.

(h) The summe of their mischieuous deuises, (i) consistng in their futtle persuasions with sweete words, (k) shal onerwhelme, and bring themelues to perdition.

11. (l) Coales shal fal vpon them, (m) thou shalt cast them downe into fyre: in miseries (n) they shal not stand vp.

(l) Hel fire shal be their lot, (m) into which they shal fal, (n) & euer be in intolerable torments.

12. A man ful of tong shal not be directed in the earth: euils shal take the vniust man into destruction.

13. (o) I haue knowne that our Lord wil doe the iudgement of the needie; and the reuenge of the poore.

(o) I haue learned by good instructions, and by experience, that in the end thou, o God, wilt comfort the iust, who are now afflicted, and punish the vniust, that liue in temporal delights, as it happened to Lazarus and the glutton

14. But as for the iust, they shal confesse to thy name: and the righteous shal dwel with (p) thy countenance.

(p) Eternal glorie consisteth in seeing God.

PSALME CXL.

The Church prayeth that her children may auoide sinful words, 4. not make excuses of sinnes committed, not communicate with others in sinne, nor to harken to flatterers: 6. but to pray that they may amend (the Psalmist by the way prophesies that manie shal be conuerted.) 8. Though sometimes persecution be great, the Church faileth not.

1. A Psalm of Dauid.

LORD I haue cried to thee, heare me: attend to my voice when I shal crie to thee.

2. :: Let my prayer be directed as (a) incense in thy sight: the eleuation of my hands as (b) euening sacrifice.

(a) As the fume of incense is sweete ascendeth vpwads: so the Church prayeth that her petitions may be grateful, and ascend to God. (b) In the old testament morning sacrifice was rather more solemne, and more frequent, but the Prophet seemeth to allude vnto Christs Sacrifice, which he was to offer towards euening on the Crosse; and the same also in vnbloudie manner, the euening before his Passion, in the Eucharist.

3. Set o Lord (c) a watch to my mouth: and (d) a doore round about to my lips.

(c) A iust care and consideration what to speake, before the mouth be opened. (d) Lips must not be alwayes stopt, for it is a sinne sometimes not to speake, but as a doore that is to be opened and shut at due seasons, for example, opened to confesse our sinnes, and Gods truth.

4. Decline not my hart (e) into words of malice, to make excuses in sinnes.

(e) Shut from words of malice, and from excusing sinnes committed.

The Church prayeth and preuaileth. The 6. key.

:: In these words the Church prayeth, offering incense in her solemne Offices.

With

With men that worke iniquitie: and I wil communicate with the chiefe of them.

5. The iust shal rebuke me in mercie; and (f) shal reprehend me: but let not the oyle of a sinner (g) fatte my head.

(f) Admonition of the iust is a profitable reprehension, (g) but the fawning of flatterers is pernicious.

Because (b) yet also my prayer is in their (i) good pleasures: 6. (k) their iudges are swallowed vp ioyned to the rocke.

(b) The Church ceaseth not to pray for sinners, (i) though as yet they take pleasure in their sinnes, (k) but the very chiefest of them, which seeme most potent, if they remaine obstinate to their death, shal then perish, as men throwne against rocks.

(l) They shal heare my words (m) because they haue preuailed: 7. (n) as the grossenes of the earth is broken out vpon the earth.

(l) They shal then heare and vnderstand, that the prayers of the Church (m) are effectual, obtaining grace of constancie to her children, not to feare anie persecution, nor anie kind of death; obtrayning also iustification of their cause, when the persecuters shal see that the words and doctrine of the Church are true, and preuaile in true iudgement, as true, modest, peaceable, not sedicious, turbulent, nor against the commonwealth. (n) As much earth sticking together is made fruitful by breaking it into smal mould, so the children of the Church by persecution bring forth more fruit then before, S. Aug.

Our (o) bones are dissipated (p) nere to hel: 8. (q) for to thee, o Lord, Lord are mine eies; in thee haue I hoped, take not away my* soule.

* life.

(o) Some persecuters are so cruel as to rage against the bones, and other relikes of Martyrs, (p) casting them into the vilest places they can, willing if they could to throw them into hel, (q) but the Church and al her members repose confidence in God.

9. Keep me from (r) the snare, which they haue set for me: and from (s) the scandalls of them that worke iniquitie.

(r) Therefore she prayeth that her children be not entrapped by guileful deccits, (s) nor ouerthrowne by anie stumbling block cast in their way.

10. (t) Sinners shal fal in his net: (v) I am alone vntil I passe.

(t) In the end al persecuters and other wicked shal be caught in their owne net of perdition, (v) the Church is singularly protected euen to the end.

PSALME CXLI.

Holie David being fled into a caue, and besieged round about by Sauls armie, explicating bis distresse, 6. prayeth to be deliuered.

Dauids prayer in extreme distresse. The 8. key.

1. Of (a) vnderstanding to Dauid, when he was in the caue, a prayer.

1. Reg. 24.

(a) This Psalme in forme of a prayer, sheweth what cogitations Dauid had in extreme danger.

VVITH my voice I (b) haue cried to our Lord: with my voice I haue prayed to our Lord:

(b) Not with exteriour voice, for so he should haue detected himselfe, but with feruour of spirit.

3. I power out my prayer in his sight, and I pronounce my tribulation before him.

4. (e) When my spirit faileth of my self, and (d) thou hast knowne my paths.

(e) When by reason of extremitie I was not able to thinke how to helpe my selfe, (d) thou o God knowing my actions and demeanour, didst deliuer me.

In this way, which I walked, they hid a snare for me.

5. I looked toward (e) the right hand, and (f) saw: and (g) there was none that would know me.

(e) I looked for helpe, (f) and diligently looked about me, (g) but none would seeme to know me, when I required their help.

(b) Flight hath failed me: and there is none to require my soule.

(b) Endeauouring to saue my self by flight, I found no secure place, for being in a caue or hole of a mountaine, the whole armie besieged me; al seeke to take away my life, none to saue it.

6. (i) I haue cried to thee, o Lord, I haue sayd: Thou art (k) my hope, (l) my portion (m) in the land of the liuing.

(i) Thus left desolate of al mans helpe, and destitute of al worldlie shift, I cried to thee, o Lord; (k) my only hopeful refuge, (l) neither doe I desire to liue for anie worldlie respect, but hauing chosen thee, o God, for my portion, and inheritance, (m) I desire to be out of this desert place, and to be in the land, where is right vse of religious diuine seruice.

7. Attend to my petition: because I am (n) humbled exceedingly.

(n) Afflicted.

Deliuert me from them that persecute me: because they are made strong ouer me.

8. Bring forth my soule out of prison, (o) to confesse vnto thy name: (p) the iust expect me, (q) til thou reward me.

(o) Dauids desire of libertie, was especially to this end; that he might haue conuenient place, and other meanes to serue and praise God: (p) the good, and wel disposed people of Israel, can not now serue thee as they desire, but expect me, (q) whom thou, o Lord, wilt aduance to the Kingdom, that then we may serue thee more freely and more commodiously.

Al this happened in figure of Christ, of whom prophetically S. Augustin, S. Hilarie, Cassianus, Casiodorus, and others expound the whole Psalme. Amongst others S. Beda briefly in these words: Whereas in the title, Vnderstanding is premised to Prayer, therby is signified, that Dauid in his distresses, and in the denne whither he fled, vnderstood what our Lord should suffer of the Iewes, and how he would pray to his Father. In the first part our Lord crieth to his Father, complaining of the detestable deceits of Iudas the persecutour. In the second he prayeth to be deliured from the prison of hel (Limbus, where he was free) because the faith of al the Saints depended on his Resurrection.

The propheticall sense of this Psalme.

PSALME CXLII.

King David (or anie other) in spiritual or temporal tribulation, not trusting in his owne iustice, layeth open his calamitie, 5. considering Gods benignitie, 6. prayeth to be speedily deliuered; 11. and confidently assureth himselfe therof.

The seuenth penitential Psalme.
The 7. key.

I. A Psalme of Dauid, when Absalom his sonne persecuted him.

1. Reg.
17.

LORD heare my prayer: with thine eares receiue my petition in
(a) thy truth: heare me in (b) thy iustice.

(a) God hauing so promised is bound by his truth (b) and his iustice, to heare penitents praying for remission of finnes.

2. And (c) enter not into iudgement with thy seruant: (d) because no man liuing shal be iustified in thy sight.

(c) Deale not with me in rigour of iustice, (d) for no mortal man is able of himselfe to be iustified, abstracting from Gods mercie.

3. Because the enimie (e) hath persecuted my soule: he (f) hath humbled my life in the earth.

(e) Sought my life, (f) and brought it into great danger. Spiritually, the diuel as a roring lion stil seeking whom he may deuour, hath tempted me vehemently.

(g) He hath set me in obscure places as the dead of the world: 4. and my spirit is in anguish vpon me, within me my hart is troubled.

(g) I am pressed with great calamities, temporal or spiritual.
5. (b) I was mindful of old dayes, I haue meditated in al thy workes: in the facts of thy hands did I meditare.

(b) In this case I consider, how God hath hertofore shewed his goodnes towards me and others.

6. I haue (i) stretched forth my hands to thee: my soule is (k) as earth without water vnto thee.

(i) Stretching forth hands a ceremonie in prayer, wherby the suppliant is made more attentiu, and also indureth some paine for part of satisfaction. (k) Mans mind without Gods illumination is drie and barren.

7. Heare me (l) quickly, o Lord: my spirit hath faynted.

(l) In great tentations Gods grace and helpe is more presently needful to preuent our weaknes, lest we yald consent.

Turne not away thy face from me: (m) and I shal be like to them that descend into (n) the lake.

(m) If God leaue man without special and continual grace, he wil fal (n) into sinne, as into deep lake, from whence without help he can not rise vp againe.

8. Make me heare thy mercie (o) in the morning: because I haue hoped in thee.

(o) In the first assault of tentation.

Make the way knowen to me, wherein I may walke: (p) because I haue lifted vp my soule to thee.

(p) Seeing by thy grace I haue begun to pray vnto thee.

9. Deliuer me from mine enemies, o Lord, to thee I haue fled: 10. teach me to doe thy wil, because thou art my God.

11. Thy

Thy (q) good service wil conduct me into the right way : 11. for thy name sake, o Lord, thou wilt quicken me in thine equitie.

(q) The penitent thus humbling himselfe and praying may assuredly trust that God doth remitte his finnes by the holie Sacraments, and iustificieth him, protecteth him, and wil bring him out of al dangers of spiritual or temporal enemies.

Thou wilt bring forth my soule out of tribulation: 12. and in thy mercie thou wilt destroy mine enemies.

And thou wilt destroy al that afflict my soule: because I am thy seruāt.

P S A L M E. CXLIII.

The royal Prophet thanketh God for al his victories, & possession of the kingdom.

3. Admiring Gods benignitie towards man, 5. prayeth to be stil defended from al enimies, 9. promisseth a new song of prayse, 11. describeth the vanitie of worldlie men, 15. concluding that true felicitie is in seruing God.

1. A Psalm of Dauid, (a) against Goliath.

(a) Because this was Dauids first, and a very notable victorie, the Septuagint Interpreters make mention of Goliath in this title.

BLESSED be our Lord my God, who (b) teacheth my hands to battel, and my fingers to warre.

(b) God made Dauid a warier, and victorer against Goliath, without anie former retaining in armes.

2. My mercie, and my refuge: my defender, and my deliuerer.

My protectour, and I haue hoped in him, who (c) subdeweth my people vnder me.

(c) Made him afterwards King of a great people.

3. Lord (d) what is man, that thou art (e) made knowne to him? or the sonne of man, (f) that thou esteemest him?

(a) Al mankind was vnworthie before Christ, (e) that God should be reuealed vnto them, (f) especially that he should haue care of the progenie of men, after their sinne.

4: (g) Man is made like to vanitie: his dayes passe as a shadow.

(g) Indeed man in himself, in his owne nature and frailtie, is but a vaine and transitorie creature, passing from liue to death, as a shadow that can not consist of itselfe, neither can man without God.

5. (h) Lord incline thy heauens, and descend: touch the mountaynes, and they wil smoke.

(h) By a poetical description he prayeth for Gods helpe, as if God should make the heauens to bow, and so descend, or make the mountaines smoke, as when Moyse received the law; or declare himself by Meteors, as foloweth:

6. Lighten lightning, and thou shalt disperse them: shoote out thine arrowes, and thou shalt destroy them.

7. Send forth thy hand from on high, take me out, and deliuer me from manie (i) waters: from the hand (k) of children (l) strangers.

(i) Tribulations or tentations. (k) Children of the Church, (l) but of euil life.

9. O God I wil sing to thee a new song: in (n) the psalter of ten strings, I wil sing to thee.

(n) In that principal instrument, apt for a new song, and for extraordinarie benefits.

10. Who giuest saluation to Kings: who hast redeemed Dauid thy seruant from the malignant sword: 11 deliuer me.

And rescue me out of the hand of (o) children strangers, whose mouth hath spoken vanitie: and their right hand, is the right hand of iniquitie.

(o) Both Iewes & Christians that liue not well, are as strangers that frame to themselves such a false felicitie, as is here described: making riches or worldlie pleasures their God.

12. Whose sonnes, are as new plants in their youth.

Their daughters comely trimmed: decked about after the similitude of a temple.

13. Their store-houses full, flowing out of this into that.

1. (a) Praying, to Dauid himselfe.

(a) By this title Eldras signifieth that the Holie Ghost, who indited al the Psalmes to Gods praise, more specially in these seuen last suggested to Dauid, & by him to al Gods seruants, that al their other seruice must tend and be directed to the praise of God: and that therein we must continue, and finally rest, as in the sabbath of the seuenth day, signified (as S. Beda supposeth) by these seuen last Psalmes of prayse, eternally praising our Lord God. For which principal end both Angels and Men, yea and al other creatures were made.

I" Wil exalt thee my God (b) the King: and I wil blesse thy name (c) for euer and (d) for euer.

(b) King is the proper epitheton of Christ, the Sonne of God, to whom, in his humanitie, God the Father promised the Church of al nations for his kingdom. Psal. 2. in whom also the whole Blessed Trinitie is praised: (c) Al the time of this world they prayse God, (d) & after in eternitie.

2. Euerie day wil I blesse thee: and wil prayse thy name for euer, and for euer and euer.

3. Great is our Lord and exceeding laudable, and of his greatnes there is no end.

4. Generation and generation shal prayse thy works: and they shal pronounce thy power.

5. They shal speake the magnificence of the glorie of thy holines: and shal tel thy meruelous workes.

6. And they shal tel the force of thy (e) terrible things: and shal declare thy greatnes:

(e) Of wonderful and miraculous things, which strike terrour into mens minds.

7. They shal vtter the memorie of the aboundance of thy sweetnes: and in thy iustice they shal reioyce.

8. Our Lord is pitiful and merciful: patient and very merciful.

9. Our Lord is sweete to al: and his (f) commiserations are ouer al his works.

(f) The effects of Gods mercie in redeeming, and recalling sinners, are eminent aboue al other workes.

10. Let al thy works, o Lord, confesse to thee: and let thy (g) Saints blesse thee.

(g) Therefore the sanctified haue special cause to praise God.

11. They shal tel the glorie of thy kingdom: and shal speake thy might.

12. That they may make thy might knowne to the children of men: and the glorie of the magnificence of thy kingdom.

13. Thy kingdom is a kingdom (h) of al words: and thy dominion in al generation and generation.

(h) Christs kingdom the militant Church is magnifical, but much more the triumphant which is eternal.

14. Our Lord is faithful in al his words, and holie in al his works.

15. Our Lord (i) lifteth vp al that fal: and setteth vp al that are bruised.

(i) God is readie of his part to lift vp al.

16. The cies of al hope in thee, o Lord: and thou giuest their meate in time conuenient.

17. Thou openest thy hand: and fillest (k) euerie liuing creature with blessing.

(k) He giueth necessarie things to al liuing creatures, euen to brute beasts.

18. Our Lord is iust in al his wayes: and holie in al his workes.

19. Our Lord is neere to al that inuocate him: to al that inuocate him in truth.

20. He wil doe the wil of them that feare him, and wil heare their prayer, and saue them.

21. Our Lord keepeth al that loue him: and he wil destroy al sinners.

22. My mouth shal speake the prayse of our Lord: and let al flesh blesse his holic name for euer, and for euer and euer.

ANNOTATIONS. PSALME CXLIII.

1. Vvil exalts the.) As this Psalme is the first of the seuen, which conteyne more particular instruction of perpetually praising God: so it is the seuenth of those, which are composed in order of the Alphabet, to wit, the 24. 33. 36. 110. 111. 118. and this 144. Of which the three former want some letters: signifying (as Cassiodorus interpreteth) such in Gods Church, as sing his prayes, but with some imperfections: the other foure haue the perfect Alphabet, signifying those, that sing Gods praises with perfect deuotion. Which only foure S. Ierom calleth Alphabetical Psalmes. Epist. ad Paulam Urbicam, & Proem. in Lament. Ierem.

14. Our Lord is faithful. This verse is not now in the ordinarie Hebrew text, and therefore either the same is defectiue, or els this Psalme should seeme not to be composed with a perfect Alphabet in the fountaine tongue. For here it wanteth the letter Nun. But seeing S. Ierom counteth this one of the foure Alphabetical Psalmes, omitting the other three, which consist of vnperfect Alphabets, it is very probable that this verse was once in the Hebrew text, as it is both in Greke & Latin. Wherby amongst other places appeareth, that there is no certaintie to correct the Greke or Latin Bible by the Hebrew, which is now extant; but rather by them, that may be supplied, which the Hebrew wanteth.

The seuen last Psalmes perceyve more specially to prayes. This Psalme and other six are composed in order of the Alphabet. It is probable that the Hebrew text now wanteth a verse in this Psalme. And therefore is not more certaine then the Greke or Latin.

P S A L M E CXLV.

The Psalmist exciteh himselfe, and al others to praise God for his singular regard, & providence of al that trust in him: 3. shewing that neither Princes, nor other men are able to helpe, 5. but God can and doth continually relieue al sorts of necessities.

1. Alleluia (a) of Aggæus and zacharie.

(a) The Septuagint added the names of these two Prophets, for the like reason as as they added Ieremie, Psal. 136. because Aggæus and Zacharias prophesying in the reduction of the people from captiuitie, exhorted them, as here the Psalmist doth, to trust in Gods Providence, and preferre his seruice before worldlie cares.

2. MY soule prayse thou our Lord, I wil prayse our Lord in my life: I wil sing to my God as long as I shal be.

Put not confidence in Princes: 3. in (b) the sonnes of men: in whom there is no saluation.

(b) In one Sonne of Man (Christ) is saluation (saith S. Augustin) and in him, not because he is the sonne of man, but because he is the Sonne of God.

4. His spirit shal goe forth, and he shal returne into (c) his earth: in that day al their cogitations shal perish.

(c) He saith not that the spirit or soule shal turne into the earth, but the soule shal depart from the bodie, and so euery one (in whom worldlie men put their trust) shal according to the bodie, returne into his earth.

5. Blessed is he, whose helper is the God of Iacob, his hope in our Lord his God: 6. who made heauen and earth, the sea, and al things that are in the.

7. Which keepeth truth for euer, doth iudgement for them that suffer wrong: giueth foode to the hungrie.

Our Lord looseth the fettered: 8. our Lord illuminateth the blind.

Our Lord listeth vp the bruised, our Lord loueth the iust.

9. Our Lord keepeth strangers, the pupil and widow he wil receite: and the wayes of sinners he wil destroy.

10. Our Lord wil teigne for euer thy God, o Siō, in generatiō & generatiō.

Al are exhorted to praise God & trust in his assured providence. The 3. key.

PSALME CXLVI.

Gods excellencie in creating and governing the world.
The 2. key.

God is also to be praised by his peculiar people, for particular benefis, 4. & for his omnipotent power, wisdom, goodnes, in creating and governing this whole world, 11. and most special benignitie towards those that trust in him.

1. Alleluja.

PRAYSE ye our Lord because Psalme (a) is good: to our God let there be pleasant and comelie praise.

(a) It is good to sing Psalmes of praise to God.

2. Our Lord building vp Ierusalem: (b) wil gather together the dispersions of Israel.

(b) A prophetic of the restauration of Ierusalem after the captiuitie.

3. Who (c) healeth the contrite of hart: and bindeth vp their sores.

(c) Remitteth sinnes to the penitent.

4. Who (d) nūbreth the multitude of starres: & (e) giueth names to thē al.

(d) Besides experience of euerie one that shal behold the firmament in a cleere night, the holie Scripture (Gen. 1.5.v.5.) sheweth, that the starres are innumerable to man. For albeit Ptolomey and other Astronomers numbred certaine more notorious starres, which serue especially for some knowledge in the science of Astronomie, numbring 349. such in the Zodiach; 316. in the South part therof; and 360. on the North part, which are in al 1025. Yet al acknowledge that no man can come neere to anie probable coniecture of the whole number, nor is able to attaine anie perfect knowledge of their natural influences, and special proprieties. And therefore the Psalmist proposeth here the admirable and vnsearchable knowledge of God: who both most exactly knoweth the number, (e) and so perfectly their nature, that his diuine Omniscience giueth to euerie starre a proper name, according to their singular differences and proprieties.

5. Great is our Lord, and great is his strength: and of his wisdom there is no (f) number.

(f) Things subiect to Gods knowledge and wisdom are innumerable.

6. Our Lord receiuing the meeke: & humbling sinners euē to the ground.

7. Sing ye to our Lord in confession: sing ye to our God on harpe.

8. Who (g) couereth the heauen with clouds: and prepareth rayne for the earth.

(g) Al these and the like benefis doe shew Gods incomparable greatnes, wisdom, and goodnes.

Who bringeth forth grasse in the mountaines: and herbe for the seruice of men.

9. Who giueth to beasts their food: and to (b) the yong rauens that cal vpon him.

(b) Both sacred and prophane authours testifie, that rauens seeing their yong ones, either without fethers, or to haue whitish vnlike to theirs, as suspecting that they are not their owne birdes, but of some other kind, leaue them destitute of meate; therefore God the authour of nature, and conseruer of al kindes of creatures, by his special prouidence, feedeth them: either by a certaine dew hanging neere them in the ayre, as Isidorus supposeth; or by litle beasts, or flies, sent by Gods prouidence, which they catching into their mouths, are nourished and brought vp. as S. Chrysoft teacheth, ser. in Heliam; or by what other meanes soeuer, al agree that yong rauens are neglected by their parents, and are fed meruciously by Gods ordinance; by which example the Psalmist sheweth, that much more God hath care of men: especially of such men (saith S. Chrysoftom.) as honour him with hymnes and praises, whom also he hath called to be his peculiar people, and his owne portion or inheritance.

Ho. in

10. He shal not haue pleasure in the strength of an horse : nor in the legges of a man shal he be wel pleased.

11. Our Lord is wel pleased toward them that feare him : and in them that hope vpon his mercie.

P S A L M E. CXLVII.

Againe God is to be praised for his goodnes towards his peculiar people, 4. yea towards al the world: but most abundantly towards his Church.

Alleluia.

1. O (a) Ierusalem praise our Lord : praise thy God, o Sion.
(a) Ierusalem in the latter part of Dauids time, al the time of Salomon, and part of other Kings reignes til the captiuitie, had peace & prospered. Againe after the captiuitie, the Citie was repared, the Temple reedified, and the whole land receiued and enioyed manie blessings. But al this was no more then a figure of the excellent benefits here prophesied, and more evidently verified in Christs Catholike Church: partly here militat in the whole world, & especially in the glorious Ierusalē, and Sion, the perfect vision of peace, and contemplation of God in eternal liue.

2. Because he (b) hath strengthened the locks of thy gates : he (c) hath blessed thy children in thee.

(b) In comparison of other cities and peoples of the world, the gates' of Ierusalem were strongly fenced, (c) and the citizens blessed : much more the Church of Christ is built vpon a sure rock, her faithful children indued with al spiritual graces, and most of al, heauen it-selfe is free from al danger of calamitie, and the Saints are most secure & most happie, enioying eternal fruition of God.

3. Who (d) hath set thy borders peace : and filleth thee with (e) the fat of corne

(d) Hath giuen peace in thy borders, (e) and the very best corne, and al other fruits: wine, oyle, milke, honey, and the rest. Allegorically in the Church, reconciliation with God, by remission of sinnes, & peace of conscience, in the Sacramēts of Baptisme & Penance; with the most spiritual food of Christs Bodie & Bloud in the Eucharist, and graces of other Sacraments. In heauen most assured peace and ioy without end.

4. Who sendeth forth (f) his speech to the earth : his word (g) runneth swiftly.

(f) This perteyneth most specially to Euangelical doctrine, preached (g) and quickly receiued in al the world. Rom. 10. v. 18.

5. Who giueth (h) snow as wool: scatereth (i) mist as ashes.

(h) Snow nourisheth the earth, making it warme by Antiperistasis, as is eident in natural Philosphie, (i) and noysome ayre is changed into cleere weather. In the Church by penance & austere life men are purged from sinnes and vices, euil spirits are also driuen away. If your sinnes shal be as scarlet, they shal be made white as snow, and if they be redde as vermilion, they shal be white as wool. Isaie 1. v. 18.

6. He casteth (k) his crystal as mortels : before the face of his cold (l) who shal endure?

(k) Yea some that are hardened in sinnes, as yse or chrystal, shal be melted, broken, or made fitte to be ingrafted in Gods Church. So S. Peter was admonished by a vision (Act. 10. v. 13.) to kil and eate. Otherwise without Gods grace giuing remorse and sorow, no man can ouercome his owne vices.

7. He (m) shal send forth his word, and shal melt them : (n) his spirit shal blow, and (o) waters shal flow.

Gods prouidence especially towards the Church. The 6. key.

The Hebrews ioyne this Psalme with the precedent.

(m) But Gods word preached, (n) and his grace touching mens harts, (o) innumerable are conuerted.

8. Who declareth his word to (p) Iacob : his iustices and iudgements to Israel.

(p) The Church only enioyeth these spiritual benefits.

9. He hath (q) not done in like manner to anie nation : and his iudgements he hath not made manifest to them. (r) Alleluja.

(q) Considering that al mankind was in the masse of sinne, and that God letteth manie iustly perish, those to whom he giueth his grace to iustification, are specially bound to praise him. (r) And therefore the Prophet concludeth this Psalmine, and the rest following, with Alleluja.

P S A L M E C X L V I I I .

All creatures spiritual and corporal, are invited to praise God, their Creatour and Conseruer, 13. as incomparably excellent.

1. Alleluia.

PR A Y S E ye our Lord (a) from the heauens : praise ye him in the high places.

(a) Al ye heauenlie spirits praise God for the excellencie of your nature.

2. Prayse ye him al his Angels: prayse ye him (b) al his hosts:

(b) And for your innumerable multitude.

3. Prayse ye him (c) sunne and moone: prayse him al ye starres, and light.

(c) Al creatures, wanting sense or reason, shew forth the Maiestie and excellencie of their Creatour.

4. Prayse him ye heauens of heauens: and the waters that are about the heauens, 5. let them praise the name of our Lord.

Because he sayd, and they were made: he commanded, and they were created.

6. He established them for euer, and for euer and euer: he put a precept, and it shal not passe.

7. Prayse our Lord from the earth: ye dragons, and al depths.

8. Fyre, haile, snow, yfe, spirit of stormes: which doe his word:

9. Mountaines, and al litle hils: trees that beare fruit, and al ceders.

10. Beasts, and al catel: serpents, and fethered foules:

11. (d) Kings of the earth, & al peoples: Princes, and al iudges of the earth.

(d) Againe God is to be praised for the diuersitie of states in men, wherby the whole communitie is conserued & gouerned.

12. Yong men and virgins: old with yong let them prayse the name of our Lord: 13. because the name of him (e) alone is exalted.

(e) God only, & no false imagined God made & disposed al things in order.

14. The confession of him aboute heauen and earth: and he hath exalted (f) the horne of his people.

(f) More especially for that God hath so fortified his Church.

An hymne to al his (g) saints: to the children of Israel a people (h) approaching vnto him. (i) Alleluia.

(g) Sanctified children, (h) that by grace and free wil, which he giueth them, approach vnto him. (i) Al this considered the Psalmist concludeth with Alleluia, inuiceth al to praise our Lord.

Our Creatour

PSALME CXLIX.

The Church is most singularly bound to praise God, 4. for the grace, sanctitie, victorie, glorie, 7. and iudicial power, which he giueth to his Saints.

The Church must euer praise God. The 6. key.

I. Alleluia.

SING ye to our Lord a new song: let his prayse be in (a) the Church of saints.

(a) God our Lord whom al creatures are bound to praise, only accepteth those mens praifes, that liue in his holie Church.

2. Let Israel be ioyful in him, that made him: and let the children of Sion reioyce in their King.

3. Let them praise his name in quire: on tymbrel and psalter let them sing to him.

4. Because our Lord is wel pleased in his people: and he wil exalt the meeke vnto saluation.

5. The saints shal reioyce in glorie: they shal be ioyful in (b) their beds.

(b) Eternal rest.

6. The (c) exaltations of God in their throte: and (d) two edged swords in their hands.

(c) Highest praifes of God shal be continually vttered by Saints in glorie: for stil as praifes passe by their songs and mouths, more like praifes shal succede from their throte, and hartie affection, so out of the aboundance of the hart their mouth shal stil speake Gods praise. (d) Glorified Saints shal also haue iudicarie power. First, al in general shal like and approue Gods iustice in punishing the wicked. Secondly, the wicked shal be iustly condemned in comparison of the blessed, who passed through and ouercame the like, yea and greater tribulatiōs and tentations then those by which the damned were ouercome. Thirdly, certaine more excellent Saints, namely the Apostles and al those that forsaking proprietie of temporal goods, giue that they haue the poore, as some religious Orders doe; or into a Communitie as the Apostles, and manie primitiue Christians did (Mat. 4. v. 10. cap. 19. v. 27. Act. 4. v. 34. 1. Cor. 6. v. 3.) shal sit in iudgement seats, affectiue iudges with Christ, and iudge those that render account of wel or euil spending the temporal lands or goods, which they possessed in this world. So teach S. Augustin. S. Ierom, S. Beda, and others.

In Psa. 121. v. 7. li. 3. in Mat. 19. ho. in Nat. S. Bened.

7. To doe reuenge in the nations: chastisements among the peoples.

8. To binde their Kings in fetters: and their nobles in yron manicles.

9. That they may doe in them the iudgement that is (e) written: (f) this glorie is to al his laints. Alleluia.

(e) Decreed by God. (f) This iudicial power is part of Saints glorie.

PSALME CL.

God absolutely most excellent is to be praised, 3. with al sorts of instruments, and by al other meanes.

God most excellent and most laudable. The first key.

I. Alleluia.

PRAYSE ye our Lord (a) in his holies: prayse ye him in (b) the firmament of his strength.

(a) Al

(a) Al ye Angels and men that are in the holie and highest heauen praise our Lord.

(b) Al ye creatures that are in and vnder the first moueable firmament, praise our Lord.

2. Prayse ye him in (c) his powers : prayse ye him (d) according to the multitude of his greatnes.

(c) And you especially (Gods peculiar people) amongst whom and for whom diuine miracles haue been wrought, praise our Lord, (d) with al your possible endeaour, for though his infinite Excellencie exceedeth the prower of al creatures to praise him sufficiently, yet it resteth that you may infinitely extend your wil and desire to prayse our Lord, according to the multitude of his greatnes.

3. (e) Prayse ye him (f) in the sound of trumpet: prayse ye him on psalter and harpe.

(e) Out of this your great and infinite desire, let your tongues sound and sing diuine prayses, as wel with voice, as musical instruments. (f) Whero: six most vsual in the Tabernacle and Temple were these: Trumpet, Psalter, Harpe, Timbrel, Organ, and Cymbal.

4. Prayse ye him on timbrel and (g) quire: prayse ye him on (h) strings and organ.

(g) By the way the Psalmist interposeth againe two especial things, which make perfect harmonie, without which no instrument is grateful to God: Vnitie amongst his seruants, signified by the Quire of consonant voices: (h) and mortification of passions, signified by Strings, which are made of dead beasts bowels.

5. Prayse ye him on wel sounding cimbals: prayse ye him on cymbals of iubilation: 6. let euerie (i) spirit prayse our Lord. Alleluia.

(i) Man created of corruptible bodie and immortal soule, is finally admonished to praise our Lord, ouer and above the praises of al other corporal creatures; who also is more especially bound therto then Angels, because God hath voutsaffed to make himselfe man, to redeeme man that was lost by sinne, and to endow him with new grace, and so bring him to euerlasting glorie, where with holie Angels men also for euer & euer shal praise our Lord, with hart, voice, and iubilation of spirite, singing as the Psalmist concludeth, Alleluia.

ANNOTATIONS. PSALME CL.

S. Augustin in the conclusion of his Enarrations or Sermons vpon the Psalmes, explicateth a mysterie in the number of an hundred and fittie, signifying the concord of the two Testaments. For in the old testament they kept the Sabbath, which is the seuenth day: in the new we keepe our Lords day, after the sabbath, that is, the eight: which seuen and eight (making fifteen) multiplied by ten, signifying the Law of ten commandments, rise vnto 150.

Againe, seuen multiplied by seuen make 49. wherto one (to wit the eight) being added make fittie, which multiplied by three, signifying the B. Trinitie, make 150. Neither seemed it without cause to this great Doctour, that the first fittie end with a Psalm of Penance, crauing mercie & remisison of sinnes: the second with Mercie & Iustice, which God ioyneth in the Redemption, iustification, and Saluation of men: the last with Diuine Praises, signifying, that by condemning sinnes in our selues, through Gods mercie we may be iustified, and so begin in this life, which is to be perfected in the next, to prayse our Lord, as S. Paul admonisheth with Psalmes, Hymnes, and Spiritual Songs. Concluding with the two verses, appointed by S. Damasus Pope, to be added in the end of al Psalmes, and is obserued euer since histime by tradition in the whole Church.

Glorie to the Father, and to the Sonne, and to the Holie Ghost: As it was in the beginning, and now, and euer, into worlds of worlds. (in eternitie without end.) Amen.

The number of Psalmes signifieth the agreement of the old and new Testament.

Three fifties signifie Penance, Mercie with iustice, and Prayses of God.

Gloria Patri added by tradition.

THE THIRD PART OF THE OLD TESTAMENT CONTEINING SAPIENTIAL BOOKS.

The argument of Sapiential Books.

Hitherto the Law and Historie of Gods peculiar people are set forth in the former parts of the holie Bible: after which folowved the booke of Psalms, which in manner of stile, being al in verse, is a distinct part, but in substance of matter, is an Epitome or briefe Summe of al holie Scripture: most conueniently therefore placed in the middes of the rest, as the Sunne amongst other Planets, a shining great light in a large house. Now ensueth the third part, coneing Diuine Intiuctions, or Rules of good life. A doctrine most agreeable to Gods high wisdom, and most fitly commended to Man, his reasonable creature in earth. But besides this principal subiect, as befor: is noted (that each part participated with others in their proper contents) so here be manie precepts of the Law renewed, sundrie examples of men, and things past repeated, and diuers prophecies vttered of things to come: though in this part more specially is shewed the ground, and as it were, the very life or soule of the Law. Which is Reason, the true Rule or Directorie wherein al good lawes are grounded.

For it both sheweth what ought to be done, or auoided, & directeth mans iudgement to embrace that is good, and to flye from al euil: not only illuminating the vnderstanding to see that is right and iust, but also disposing the internal affectio to desire, loue, choose, and preferre the right path of Gods law, before whatsoeuer oher wise seemeth pleasant or profitable: & so, not withstanding al dangers, difficulties, distresses, worldlie calamities, and death it self, effectually perswading to perseuer to the end in holie conuersation. Al which by a general name is called Wisdom: comprising in one word, al good desires, holie vertues, supernal gifts, godlie endeauours, and the whole means wherby God is rightly knowen, & duly serued, wherof these five Books, teaching this most excellent and most necessarie manner of life, are called Sapiential. Neuertheles foure of them haue also other particular names, as appeareth in their titles. Only the fourth is called the Booke of Wisdom, by appropriation of the general name.

The coherence of this part with the rest.

The contents of Sapiential books.

Why they are so called.

They are al
Canonical Scripture.
Salomon is anfour of the three first.

Other books of Salomon not extant.

A brief summe
of these three.
(a) Prouerbs.
(b) Ecclesiastes
(c) Canticles.

All five are Canonical and assured holie Scripture: as is shewed before, and may be further proued of the two later, which Protestants denie. It is also euident that King Salomon was Auctour of the three former: as S. Ierom, S. Augustin, and other Fathers proue by the holie text it-selfe. It is likewise certaine that he either writ, or at least by diuine inspiration vitered, much more then is now extant. For the holie Scripture (3. Reg. 4.) testifieth that he spake three thousand Parables: and his Songs were a thousand and fiue. Hee disparted of the trees from the ceder that is in Libanus, vnto the hyssop which cometh out of the wal: and he discoursed of beasts, and foules, and creeping wormes, and fishes. Iosephus (li. 8. c. 2. Antiq.) following some other Edition, saith his songs were five thousand, and parables (as the ordinarie text hath) three thousand. For he deduced a parable (saith Iosephus) through-out euerie kind of trees, from the hyssop to the ceder. In the same manner he treated of beasts, and other liuing creatures of the earth, water, and ayre. For he was not ignorant of anie natural thing, neither omitted to treat thereof, but cleerly explicated al their natural proprieties. Most briefly S. Ierom declareth both the Auctour and master of these three bookes, saying: Salomon the Peaceable, and amiable or our Lord (a) correcteth manners: (b) teacheth the nature (of creatures) (c) ioyneth the Church and Christ; and singeth the sweet bridal song of the holie Mariage.

THE first booke called Prouerbs, that is, common & vsual pithie sentences, short in words, ample in sense; and Parables, signifying likenes or similitudes, wherby more important things are vnderstood then expressed; instructeth and exhorteth new beginners, to learne, and practise al sorts of vertues, the only right way to true wisdom and eternal happines. It may be diuided into foure parts. In the first nine chapters the auctour interposing certaine general precepts, produceth wisdom her selfe inuiting al men to seeke her, for the spiritual profite, they shal therby enioy. From thence to the 25. chap. he giueth sundrie more particular precepts, as wel for embracing vertues, as shunning of vices. In the next five chapters, more like precepts of the same auctour, are added by the care of King Ezechias. In the thirtieth chapter either another Auctour, or rather the same vnder another title, and in prophesical stile vitereth like diuine sentences, adding in the last chapter other excellent precepts received of his mother: whereto he adioyneth the praise of a right wise woman; prophesically of the Catholike Church.

Three kindes of wisdom.

Diuine Attributes are not qualities in God, but his substance.

Wisdom in-created is God himselfe.

Wisdom the giift of the Holie Ghost.

Humane wisdom.

2. Wisdom.) As wel in these Sapiential books, as in other holic Scriptures, and sacred writers, the word wisdom hath three significations. Sometimes it importeth the Diuine Attribute called Gods wisdom; sometimes supernatural wisdom giuen to men by the Holie Ghost; and sometimes it signifieth mere humane wisdom, gotten by the natural light of reason and mans industrie. The first, as likewise other Diuine Attributes, Gods Power, Goodnes, Iustice, Truth, Mercie, and the like, are not qualities, or other accidents in God, as the same termes signifie in creatures. For in God there is no Accident, but al in him is his Diuine Substance and Essence, whose diuers Excellencies are called by such names as mans capacitie can better conceiue: and so Gods wisdom is God himselfe: and is appropriated to the second Person of the blessed Trinitie, as Power is appropriated to God the Father, and Goodnes to the Holie Ghost. In this sense chap. 3. v. 16. is said: Our Lord by wisdom founded the earth, &c. The second is called (Sap. 3. v. 25.) the vapour of Gods power, and a pure emanation (or influence) of the glorie of Almighty God, and so is a participation of Diuine increated wisdom, called also diuine, according to a certaine analogie, or similitude of Gods owne wisdom, and is the principal giift of the Holie Ghost, by which God is rightly knowne, and duly serued, including al other supernal giifts and vertues, wherof is treated in these books, and to which al men are inuited, with assured promise of celestial and eternal reward. The third wisdom is mere humane, gotten by natural wit and studie, such as Philosophers haue, knowing manie truths, but mixt with manie errours, and much ignorance, truly called worldlie wisdom,seruing only for this world.But the second kind which is as a sparkie of Gods wisdom, maketh men, otherwise ignorant and of smal capacitie, rightly wise indeed,the true seruants of God, and enheriters of the kingdom of heauen,as these bookes doe most copiously teach.

24. Because I called and you refused.) God voutsaffecth foure benefits of grace to euerie man, al necessarie and sufficient for his saluation : 1. He calleth al by preaching,or good inspiration. 2. He offereth help. 3. He instructeth the ignorant what is good,that they may choose it if they wil.4.And reprehendeth euil,that they may shun it. They therefore that neglect this manifold grace in this life, shal without al remedie be damned,being too late to repent in the other world. For then they shal crie and not be heard.v.18.

33. But he that shal heare me.) Contrariwise those that accept Gods grace, and cooperate therewith, shal haue eternal rest and ioy.The very same which S. Paul teacheth 2. Cor. 1. v. 10. Euerie one shal receiue the proper things of the bodie, according as he hath done,either good or euil.

Gaining of wisdom bringeth much good, 10. and auoideth much euil: 16. deliuering from error of Idolaters and Heretikes.

Y sonne, (a) if thou wilt receiue my wordes, and wilt hide my cominadments with thee, 2. that thyne eare may heare wisdom: incline thyne hart to know prudence. 3. For if thou shalt cal for wisdom, and incline thyne hart to prudence: 4. If thou shalt seeke her (b) as money, and as treasures shalt dig her vp: 5. then shalt thou vnderstand the feare of our Lord, and shalt finde the knowledge of God. 6. Because our Lord giueth wisdom: and out of his mouth prudence and knowledge. 7. He wil keepe the saluation of the righteous, & protect them that walke simply. 8. Keeping the paths of iustice, & garding the wayes of Saints. 9. Then shalt thou vnderstand iustice, and iudgement, and equitie, and euerie good path. 10. If wisdom shal enter into thy hart, and knowledge please thy soule: 11. counsel shal keepe thee, and prudence shal preserue thee, 12. that thou mayst be deliuered from the euil way, and from the man that speaketh peruersethings: 13. " who (c) leaue the right way, and walke by darke wayes: 14. " who are glad when they haue done euil, and reioyce in most wicked things: 15. whose wayes are peruerse, and their steps infamous, 16. That thou mayst be deliuered from "the strange woman, and from the forainer, which mollifieth her words, 17. forsaketh the guide of her youth, 18. and hath forgotten the couenant of her God. For her house is bowed downe to death, and her paths to hel. 19. Al "that goe in vnto her, shal not returne

10. v. 9.

(a) This frequent manner of proposing the way and means to wisdom, If thou wilt receiue my wordes, &c. sheweth most euidently the power of mans free wil.

(b) Not euerie desire, or sleight seeking of wisdom sufficeth, but such laborious seeking is required, as a couetous man seeketh treasure which he knoweth to be hid in the ground.

(c) A description of peruers sinners especially of heretikes.

neither shall they apprehend the paths of life. 20. That thou mayst walke in a good way: and mayst keepe the paths of the iust. 21. For they that are right, shall dwell in the earth, and the simple shall continue in it. 22. But the impious shall be destroyed from the earth: and they that doe vniuersally shall be taken away from it.

ANNOTATIONS.

CHAP. II.

Four marks of an heretike.

1. He forsaketh the knowen faith.

2. He glorieth in his owne invention.

3. Teacheth pleasing things.

4. Admitteth no iudge but himself.

13. Who leaue the right way.) Generally this description of wicked men, agreeth to al that commit and persist in mortal sinne, whether they walked right at anie time before or no; but most especially sheweth the properties of heretikes: who forsake and leaue the direct, ancient, beaten, knowen way of the Catholike Church, and teach new obscure doctrines, not heard of, or not approued in our forefathers time. Secondly (v. 14.) they glorie in their owne deuises, and reioyce in most wicked things, as in seducing multitude of peoples to rebel against their Catholike Princes, and other Superiours spiritual and temporal, in breaking vows; in despising good works; trusting to only faith, and that not the Catholike faith of al true Christians, but euerie one his particular perswasion, that himself is iust, & shall be saued, which by their owne doctrine, none is bound to belieue of an others state, but of his owne only. In so much that the chiefest point of a Protestants imagined faith, is not a general Article, which al doe or should belieue, but a most particular and singular phantasie, which each one must conceiue of himself, or herself. Thirdly (v. 16.) Heresie, called here the strange and forain woman, tempereth her words, to please the itching eares of her auditorie, framing her doctrine to the humour of those, whom she seeketh to peruert. The same which the Apostle saith in other words, by sweete speeches and benedictions they seduce the harts of innocents. Fourthly (v. 19.) Those that doe enter into errour of heresie, shall not returne, that is, very hardly and rarely returne into the right way of life; the reason whereof the same Apostle yealdeth, because an heretike is condemned by his owne iudgement. For being in errour, and admitting no iudge but himself, he parteth from the Church, excludeth the meanes of better instruction, & through his erronius iudgement, remaineth in damnable opinion, and so in the state of damnation.

CHAP. III.

Wisdom exhorteth to keepe Gods law (giving long life) to obserue mercie, and truth. 5. to confide in God, 7. to feare, 9. and honour him, 11. to take his correction gladly (13. for al good things follow wisdom.) 27. to relieue the needie without delay, 30. not to contend with the wicked, nor to imitate them. 33. The euil shall faile, and the godlie shall prosper.

(a) It auaileth little to heare good instructions, except we keepe them

Y sonne, (a) forget not my law, and let thy (b) hart keepe my precepts. 2. For they shall adde to thee length of dayes, and yeares of life, and peace. 3. Let not (c) mercie and truth leaue thee, put them about thy throte and write them in the tables of thy hart:

4. and thou shalt find grace; and good discipline before God and men. 5. (d) Haue confidence in our Lord with al thy hart and leane not vpon thyne owne prudence. 6. In al thy wayes thinke on him, and he wil direct thy steps. 7. Be not wise in thyne owne conceit: feare God, and depart from euil: 8. for it shal be health to thy nauil, and watering of thy bones. 9. Honour our Lord with thy substance, and giue to him of the first of al thy fruits: 10. and thy barnes shal be replenished with fulnes, and thy presses shal run-ouer with wine. 11. My sonne, cast not away the discipline of our Lord: neither doe thou faint when thou art chasticed of him: 12. (e) for whom our Lord loueth he chasticeth: and as a father in the sonne he pleaseth himself. 13. Blessed is the man that findeth wisdom, and floweth with prudence: 14. better is the purchasing therof then marchandise of siluer, and her fruite then chiefe and the purest gold: 15. she is more precious then al riches: and al things that are desired, are not able to be compared with her. 16. (f) Length of dayes in her right hand, & in her left hand (g) riches and glorie. 17. Her wayes are beautiful wayes, and al her paths peaceable. 18. She is a tree of life to them that shal apprehend her: and he that shal hold her is blessed. 19. Our Lord by wisdom founded the earth, established the heauens by prudence. 20. By his wisdom the depths haue broken forth, and the clouds waxe thicke with dew. 21. My sonne, let not these things depart from thyne eies: keepe the law & counsel: 22. and there shal be life to thy souie, and (h) grace to thy iawes. 23. Then shalt thou walke confidently in thy way, and thy foote shal not stumble: 24. if thou sleepe, thou shalt not feare: thou shalt rest, and thy sleepe shal be sweete. 25. Dread not at soden terrour, and the power of the impious falling vpon thee. 26. For our Lord wil be at thy side, and wil keepe thy foote that thou be not taken. 27. Doe not prohibite him to doe good, that is able: if thou be able, thy selfe also doe good. 28. Say not to thy frend: goe, and returne; and (i) to morow I wil giue to thee: wheras thou mayest giue forthwith. 29. Practise not euil against thy freind, when he hath affiance in thee. 30. Contend not against man without cause, wheras he hath done thee no euil. 31. Doe not enuie an vniust man, nor imitate his waies: 32. because euerie deluder is an abomination of our Lord, and his communication is with the simple. 33. There is pouertie from our Lord in the house of the impious: but the habitations of the iust shal be blessed. 34. He shal delude the deluders, and to the milde he wil giue grace. 35. The wise shal possesse glorie: the exaltation of fooles ignominie.

in memorie.
 (b) not in books only but in the hart:
 (c) and put the in execution.
 (d) know also that al thy strength is in God, in whom thou maist securely trust, not in thyne owne prudence.
 (e) Chastisement and tribulation in those that endeauour to serue God, is a signe of his fauour towards them; and therefore his other promises which seeme to be temporal, are to be vnderstood of the next life.
 (f) God rewardeth as it were with both hands, promising eternal life,
 (g) and competent meanes in this life.
 (h) Merite for the words of thy mouth.
 (i) Almes in season is double worth to that which is differred long.

C H A P. IIII.

The wiseman exhorteth others by his owne example to seeke wisdom. 14. to decline from the wicked, and to imitate the iust, 23. to guide wel the hart, mouth, and feete.

(a) As Salomō was instructed by his father King Dauid, so he teacheth others the right order how to learne wisdom.

(b) The first part of wisdom is to desire it. For nothing hindereth from being iust but that iustice is not desired. S. Aug. in Psal. 118. v. 20.

(c) As the hart is the principal part of the bodie, so the wil is the chiefest power of the soule: from which good or euil proceedeth.

H I I D R E N heare ye the fathers discipline, and attend that you may know prudence. 2. I wil giue you a good giift, forsake not my law. 3. For (a) I also was the sonne of my father, tender and as the onlie-begotten in my mothers sight: 4. and he taught me, & sayd: Let thy hart receiue my words, keepe my precepts, and thou shalt liue. 5. Possesse wisdom, possesse prudence: forget not, neither decline from the words of my mouth. 6. Leauē her not, and she wil keepe thee: loue her, and she wil preferue thee. 7. (b) The beginning of wisdom, possesse wisdom, and in al thy possession purchase prudence: 8. take her quickly, and she wil exalt thee: thou shalt be glorified of her, when thou shalt embrace her. 9. She wil giue to thy head increase of graces, and with a noble crowne she wil protect thee. 10. Heare my sonne, and receiue my words, that yeares of life may be multiplied to thee. 11. The way of wisdom I wil shew to thee, I wil leade thee by the paths of equitie. 12. Which when thou shalt haue entered, thy steps shal not be straytned, and running thou shalt not haue a stumbling block. 13. Hold discipline, leauē it not: keepe it, because the same is thy life. 14. Be not delighted in the paths of the impious, neither let the way of the euil please thee. 15. Flye from it, neither passe thou by it: goe aside, and forsake it. 16. For they sleep not vnlesse they haue done ill: and they take no sleep vnlesse they supplant. 17. They eate the bread of impietie, and drinke the wine of iniquitie. 18. But the path of the iust, as shyning light, proceedeth euen to perfect day. 19. The way of the impious is darke som: they know not where they fal. 20. My sonne heare my wordes, and incline thine eare to my sayings. 21. Let them not depart from thine eies, keepe them in the middes of thy hart. 22. For they are life to those that finde them, and health to al flesh. 23. With al garde keepe thy (c) hart, because life proceedeth from it. 24. Remoue from thee a froward mouth, and let detracting lips be far from thee. 25. Let thine eies see right things, & let thine eie-liddes goe before thy steps. 26. Direct the path to thy feete, and al thy wayes shal be established. 27. Decline not to the right hand, nor to the left: turne away thy foote from euil. 28. For our Lord knoweth the wayes that are on the right hand: but those are peruers, which are on the left hand. 29. But he wil make thy courses right, and thy wayes he wil bring forward in peace.

CHAP. V.

Againe wisdom deborteth from fornication (carnal and spiritual) 6. shewing that in the end sinners shal see and feele the effect of their follie: 20. which God seeth and wil punish.

MY sonne, attend to my wisdom, and to my prudence incline thyne care, 2. that thou mayst keepe (a) cogitations, and thy lippes preferue discipline. 3. Attend not to the decept of a (b) woman: for the lips of an harlot are as a hony combe distilling, and her throte netter then oyle. 4. But her later ends are bitter as wormewood, and sharp as a two edged sword. 5. Her feete goe downe into death, and her steps penetrate vnto hcl. 6. They walke not by the path of life, her steps are wandering, and vnsearcheable. 7. Now therefore my sonne heare me, and depart not from the words of my mouth. 8. Make thy way far from her, and approach not to the doores of her house. 9. Giue not thy honour (c) to strangers, and thy yeares to the (d) cruel. 10. Lest perhaps strangers be filled with thy strength, and thy labours be in an other mans house, 11. and thou mourne in the end, when thou shalt haue spent thy flesh and thy bodie, and say: 12. Why haue I detested discipline, and my hart consented not to reprehensions, 13. nor I heard the voice of them that taught me, and haue not inclined mine eare to masters? 14. I haue almost been in al euil, in the middes of the Church and of the synagogue. 15. Drinke water of thyne owne cesterne, and the streames of thy wel: 16. (e) Let thy fountaines be deriued abroad, and in the streets diuide thy waters, 17. (f) Haue them alone, neither let strangers be partakers with thee. 18. Let thy vayne be blessed, and reioyce with the woman of thy youth: 19. a hinde most deare, and a most grateful fawne: let her breasts inebriate thee at al time, in her loue be thou delighted continually. 20. Why art thou seduced my sonne of a strange woman, and art cherished in the bosome of an other? 21. Our Lord beholdeth the wayes of man, and considereth al his steps. 22. His owne iniquities take the impious, and he is fast bound with the ropes of his sinnes. 23. He shal die because he hath not had discipline, and in the multitude of his folie he shal be deceiued.

(a) To auoide al impietic it is first of al necessarie, not to thinke, speake, nor heare vnlawful things. (b) By woman is generally vnderstood concupiscence of what sinne soeuer, as: ch. i. v. 10. & ch. 3. v. 33. ch. 4. v. 14. (c) The world the flesh and the diuel are strangers, (d) and cruel enemies that render for reward eternal damnation. (e) Good doctrine is to be imparted to men of sincere intention. (f) not to con-temners and obstinate infidels.

C H A P. VI.

*He that is suretie for an other, must haue care to discharge that he promised.
6. The slouthful must learne diligence of the emmot. 12. The description of an Apostata. 16. Above other six bad things God detesteth the sorow of discord. 20. All are exhorted to keepe Gods law, 24. namely to fyve forni-

(a) The wifma doth not absolutely diswade from al manner of suretiship, but from rashly, or vnaduisedly answering for others. And especially exhortheth to vse al diligence in performing, or causing others to performe that which is promised or couenanted.

(b) Euerie one that sinneth wittingly and of malice, refusing to obey God, employeth his mouth, eyes, feere, hands, and al parts with a wicked hart and intention to peruerse others: most proper to heretikes, apostates from the faith.
(c) The former six are al damnable, but this seuenth is most detestable, because it

MY sonne: (a) if thou shalt be suretie for thy freind, and hast made fast thy hand to a stranger, 2. thou art entrapped with the words of thy mouth, & caught with thyne owne words. 3. Doe therefore my sonne that which I say, and deliuer thy selte, because thou art fallen into the hand of thy neighbour. Runne diuers wayes, make hast, rayse thy freind. 4. Giue not sleep to thine cies, neither let thine cie-lids slumber. 5. Deliuer thyselfe as a litle doo from the hand, and as a bird from the hand of the fowler. 6. Goe to the emmot, o sluggard, and consider her wayes, and learne wisdom. 7. Who wheras she hath no guide, nor maister, nor capitaine, 8. prepareth meate for herselfe in the summer, and gathereth in the haruest for to eat. 9. How long wilt thou sleepe, o sluggard: when wilt thou rise out of thy sleepe? 10. Thou shalt sleepe a litle, a litle shalt thou slumber, a litle shalt thou ioyne thy hands to sleepe: 11. and penurie shal come to thee, as a wayfaring man, and pouertie as a man armed. But if thou be not sluggish, thy haruest shal come as a fountaine, and penurie shal fyre farre from thee. 12. A man that is an (b) Apostata, a man vnprofitable, goeth with peruerse mouth, 13. winketh with the cies, treadeth with the foote, speaketh with the finger, 14. with wicked hart he deuifeth euil, and at al time he soweth brawles. 15. To him his destruction shal come forthwith, and he shal sodainly be destroyed, neither shal he haue remedie any more. 16. Six things there are which our Lord hateth, and the seuenth his soule detesteth: 17. Loftie cies, a lying tongue, hands that shead innocent blood, 18. a hart that deuifeth most wicked deuises, feete swift to runne into euil, 19. a deceitful witnesse that vttereth lies, and him that among brethren (c) soweth discordes. 20. My sonne keepe the precepts of thy father, and leaue not the law of thy mother. 21. Bynde them in thy hart continually, and put them about thy throte. 22. When thou shalt walke, let them goe with thee: when thou shalt sleepe, let them keep thee, and awaking talke with them. 23. Because the commandment is a lampe, and the law a light, and the way of life the increpatiō of discipline: 24. that they may keepe thee from the euil woman, and from the faire spoken tongue of the stranger. 25. Let not thy hart couet her beaultie, be not caught with her becks: 26. for the price of an harlot is scarce worth one loafe: but a woman catcheth the precious soule of man. 27. (d) Can a man hide fyre in his bosome, that his garments burne not? 28. Or walke ypon hote coales, that his soales be not burnt? 29. so he that goeth in vnto his neighbours wife, shal not be cleane when he shal touch her. 30. It is (e) no great fault, when a marshall haue stollen: for he stealeth to fill his hungrie soule: 31. also being taken he shal restore seuenfold, and shal giue vp al the substance of his house. 32. But he that is an aduouterer, for penurie of hart shal destroy his owne soule: 33. shame and ignominie he gathereth to himselfe, & his reproch shal not be blotted out. 34. Because the zeale and furie of the husband wil not spare in the day of reuenge, 35. neither wil he yeald to any mans prayers, neither wil he take for redemption verie many guifts.

is opposite to the chief vertue charitic, it breaketh vnitie, & is the proper sinne of the diuel. (d) All occasiōs of sinne, especially probable, are to be shunned. (e) Theft is also mortal sinne against the seuenth cōmandment, but not so great as adulteric.

C H A P. VII.

He further exhorteith yongmen to seeke wisdom, 5. especially to flye from the intisements of harlots, largely describing the same, 22. and the ruine of them that are so deluded.

MY sonne (a) keepe my words, and my precepts hide with thee. Sonne 2. keepe my commandments, and thou shalt liue: and my law as the apple of thine eie: 3. binde it on thy fingers, write in the tables of thy hart. 4. Say to wisdom, thou art my sister: & call prudence thy freind, 5. that she may keepe thee from the strange woman, and from the forener which maketh her words sweete. 6. For out of the window of my house I looked out through the lattise, 7. and I see litle ones, I behold a foolish yongman, 8. which passeth through the streets by the corner, and goeth nigh the way of her house, 9. in the darke the day being toward euening, in the darkenes of the night, and diunnes. 10. And behold the womā meeteth him in harlots attire, prepared to deceiue soules: babling and wandring, 11. impatient of rest, nor able to consist in the house ou her secte, 12. now abroad, now in the streets, now lying in wayte neere the corners, 13. And taking the yongman she kisseth him, and with malepert countenance speaketh fayre, saying: 14. I vowed victimas for welfare, this day I haue payed my vowes. 15. Therefore I am come forth to meete thee, desirous to see, and I haue found thee. 16. I haue wouen my bed with cordes, I haue adorned it with tapestrie pictured out of Ægypt. 17. I haue sprinkled my bed with myrrhe, aloes, and cinnamome. 18. Come let vs be inebriated with brests, and let vs enjoy desired embracings, til the day appeare. 19. For my husband is not at home, he is gone a very long iourney. 20. he caried with him a bag of money:

(a) Because tentations still occurre in this life, and man is fraile, good exhortations, and earnest admonitions must also be continually inculcated, as here the wisman often repeateth and much vrgeth the same good and necessarie aduises to embrace wisdom and to walke still in the way of vertue, especially to flye from vices, and dangers of sinne.

(b) Sinners after consent giuen to tentations are as inconsiderate of their owne state, & of their perile and ruine, as an oxe when he is ledde to the shambles, or a bird allured with a bate, that flyeth into the snare or net.

in the day of the ful moone he wil returne to his house. 21. She intangled him with many words, and with flatterie of lips drew him. 22. Immediately he foloweth her (b) as an oxe led to be a victime, & as a lambe playing the wanton, and not knowing that he is drawn as a foole to bonds, 23. til the arow pearse his liuer: as if a birde should make haste to the snare, and knoweth not that his life is in danger. 24. Now therefore my sonne, heare me, and attend to the words of my mouth. 25. Let not thy mind be drawn away in her wayes: neither be thou deceiued with her paths. 26. For she hath cast downe manie wounded, and al the most strong are slaine by her. 27. Her house the wayes of hel, penetrating to the inner parts of the death.

C H A P. VIII.

Wisdom is preached in conspicuous and most frequented places, that none may pretend want of admonition, 7. her doctrine is true, godlie, profitable, & necessarie to al sorts of men. 12. Wisdom (increated which is God himselje) is eternal, 32. and bringeth eternal happines.

(a) True wisdom directing to good life & so to eternal saluation, is only found in the visible Church standing vpon a mountaine, not hidde in corners or obscure places.

(b) These singular praises pertain to the increated wisdom, God himselje, from whom proceedeth wisdom giuen to men by the Holic Ghost. See Annot. ch. 1. v. 2.

DO TH not wisdom crie, and prudence giue her voice? 2. Standing (a) in the high & loftie tops ouer the way, in the middes of the paths, 3. beside the gates of the citie in the verie doores she speaketh, saying: 4. O men, to you I crie, and my voice is to the children of men. 5. O litle ones vnderstand subtiltie, and yevnwise marke. 6. Heare ye, because I wil speake of great things: and my lips shal be opened to preach right things. 7. My throte shal meditate truth, and my lips shal detest the impious. 8. Al my words are iust, there is no wicked, nor peruerse thing in them. 9. They are right to them that vnderstand, and iust to them that finde knowledge. 10. Receiue ye discipline, & not money: choose doctrine rather then gold. 11. For wisdom is better then al most precious riches: and whatsoever is to be desired can not be compared to it. 12. I (b) wisdom dwel in counsel, and am present in learned cogitations. 13. The feare of our Lord hateth euil: arrogancie, and pride, and wicked way, and a double tonged mouth I doe detest. 14. Myne is counsel & equitie, prudence is mine, strength is mine. 15. By me Kings doe reigne, and the makers of lawes decree iust things. 16. By me Princes rule, and the mightie decree iustice. 17. I Loue them that loue me: and they that watch toward me shal finde me. 18. With me are riches, and glorie, glorious riches, and iustice. 19. For my fruite is better then gold and precious stone, and my blosomes then

choscn filuer. 20. I walke in the wayes of iustice, in the middes of the paths of iudgement, 21. that I may enrich them that loue me, and may replenish their treasures. 22. Our Lord possessed me in the beginning of his wayes, before he had made any thing from the beginning. 23. From eternitie I was ordayned & of old before the earth was made. 24. The depths were not as yet, and I was now conceiued, neither had the fountaines of waters as yet gushed forth: 25. the mountaines with heauie hugnesse stooode not as yet: before the litle hils I was brought forth: 26. he had not yet made the earth, and the riuers, and the poles of the round world. 27. When he prepared the heauens, I was present: when with a certaine law and circuite he compassed the depths: 28. When he established the firmament aboue, & poyled the fountaines of water: 29. when he compassed the sea with her limits, and set a law to the waters that they should not passe their bounds: when he hanged the foundatiōs of the earth, 30. I was with him franing al things: and was delighted euerie day, playing before him at al time, 31. playing in the world: & (c) my delights to be with the children of men. 32. Now therfore children heare me: Blessed are they that keepe my wayes. 33. Heare ye discipline, and be wise, and reiect it not. 34. Blessed is the man that heareth me, & that watcheth at my doores dayly, & wayteth at the potts of my doore. 35. He that shal finde me shal finde life, and shal draw saluation of our Lord: 36. but he that shal sinne against me, shal hurt his owne soule. Ai that hate me, loue death.

(c) God much preferreth man before al other corporal creatures.

ANNOTATIONS.

CHAPTER IX.

1. Wisdom hath built herself a house. According to the literal sense, wherein the mystical is grounded (both intended by the Holie Ghost) Wisdom which is God himself, Creatour & Cōseruer of al things, whose special good pleasure and delight is to be with men, built his house the Church, first in the Patriarchs, Priests, Prophets, and his other faithful seruants in the old Testament; partly before, but more conspicuously in the people of Israel, establishing the same with seuen, that is (according to the frequent phrase of holie Scripture) with manie pillers, Pastors and chief gouerners, by whom the whole people were directed in al spiritual causes; as the Psalmist likewise induceth God, saying: I haue confirmed the pillers therof. And as S. Paul afterward calleth S. Peter, S. James, and S. Iohn, pillers. In this house wisdom also prepared a banquet, appointed victimes of diuers sorts, as grateful Sacrifices to God, & therto inuited al men in much better order, and to their more profite, then the aduultresse woman, follie and wicked concupiscence, inciteth to her carnal and wordlie pleasures, which bring to eternal ruine. And for this purpose God neuer ceased to send Priests and Prophets to inuite the people of Israel, to this strong towre fenced with wals. In the Allegorical sense, the same diuine increated Wisdom, the second Person in the B. Trinitie, the Diuine WORD coeternal to the Father, built himself a house, his humane bodie in the Virgins womb, and therunto, as to the head, adioyned the members, his mystical hodie the Church, immolated victimes of Martyrs, prepared the Table in breade and wine, where also appeareth his Priesthood; according to the Order of Melchisedec, and called therto such as before were vnwise, and of smal vnderstanding: because as the Apostle saith: God chose the weake of this world to confound the strong. THE PARABLES OF SALOMON.

This repetition of the title signifieth, that the sentences which follow are more properly called Parables, then the former: From which they also differ in manner of utterance, by the figure Antithesis, for most part opposing, and comparing contrarie vertues and vices, shewing their contrarie effects: with great elegancie, especially in the original tongue; which could not be so fully expressed in Greeke, nor Latin, much lesse in vulgar language: But are the same in sense, though often obscure, by reason of the Hebrew phrase, shortnes of sentences, and so without anie certaine connexion, that we can not with perspicuitie, comprehend the summe therof in brieve contents, after the ordinarie manner before the chapters. And therefore haue thought it better for the vulgar reader, to set downe in the margin of the twentie chapters next following, in brieve termes, the vertues, or other good things (rather then the bad, not hauing place for both) commended in euerie sentence. For though the same be not alwayes expressed in the text, yet they may be vnderstood by their opposite vices. Whofoeuer desireth further explication, may finde manie of these diuine sentences excellently expounded by S. Ierom, S. Augustin, S. Gregorie and other Fathers in feueral places. Or read S. Bedas Commentaries vpon this whole booke, To. 4. Vel apud S. Ierom. To. 7. Or amongst late writers, our learned cuntryman D. Radulphus Bains, Bishop Iansenius, and F. Petanus.

CHAPTER XIII.

Without true faith none can be saued.
 Sincere intention excuseth some errors.

12. A way which seemeth iust.) If anie Iewes, Turkes, or Heretikes lead a moral good life in this world, it seemeth both to themselues, and to other rude people, that they are in a right way of saluation, but their error in faith leadeth them to eternal damnation.

30. Health of the hart.) As soundnes of the hart conserueth the rest of the same bodie in life, so a pure intention often excuseth from mortal sinne, as in errors committed of probable, nor of grosse, nor affected ignorance. But secret enuie in the hart infecteth and putrieth mans actions, and destroyeth the worke that seemed good: which can no more endure strict examination in the day of iudgement, then a rotten cloth can abide washing.

A N N O T A T I O N S.

C H A P. XVI.

A general rule that one place of holie Scripture is not contrarie to another.

Gods grace is is necessarie both to begin and to prosecute anie good worke.

1. It pertaineth to man to prepare the hart) For the better vnderstanding of this and other hard places of Holie Scripture, this general rule, euer approued by al Christians, is most necessarie, That al holie Scripture is true and certaine, as being al indited by the Holie Ghost, the Spirite of truth: and so one place is neuer contrarie to another, though at first sight they may so seeme to mans vnderstanding. For by this place the Pelagians would proue, that man can of himself, without the helpe of Gods grace, begin a good thing, though without this help he can not performe it, because it is here sayd that it pertaineth to man to prepare the hart: that is, to begin a good thing. But S. Augustin sheweth that it may not be so vnderstood: because so it should be contrarie to that saying of our Sauour: Without me you can doe nothing; and that of S. Paul: We are not sufficient to thinke anie thing of our selues, as of our selues: but our sufficiencie is of God. Which two euident places, with other like, doe shew that this place hath an other different sense, from that which the Pelagians gather. And so S. Augustin, and other Fathers teach, that the wiseman here affirmeth not, that man of himself can prepare his hart, or begin a good worke; but that it pertaineth to man to prepare his hart; presupposing helpe of Gods grace, and hauing so begun, God also gouerneth the tongue, and by more grace directeth it to speake those things wel, which the hart purposed, and disposed to be vttered; without which helpe none is able, neither to begin anie meritorious worke, nor to prosecute, nor perfect that is wel begun. The like sentence foloweth in the 9. Verse: The hart of man disposeth his way: but it pertaineth to our Lord to direct his progresse; signifying in both places, that after a thing is wel begun (which can not be without the help of Gods grace) yet it can not proceede wel without more grace, stil directing and strengthening mans freewil.

11. Apples of gold in siluer beds, he that speaketh a word in his time.
 12. A golden earlet, and a shining precious stone, he that rebuketh a wiseman, and an obedient eare.
 13. As the cold of snow in the day of haruest, so a faithful legare to him that sent him, maketh his soule to rest.
 14. Clouds, and wind, and no rayne folowing, a glorious man, and not accomplishing his promises.
 15. By patience the Prince shal be pacified, and a soft tongue shal breake hardnes.
 16. Thou hast found honie, eate that which sufficeth thee, lest perhaps being filled thou vomit it vp.

4. Anger hath no mercie, nor furie breaking forth: and the violence of a moued spirit who can susteyne?

5. Better is manifest correction, then love hidden.
6. Better are the wounds of him that loveth, then the fraudulent kisses of him that hateth.
7. A soule that is full shall treade vpon the honiecombe: and a soule that is hungrie shall take bitter also for sweete.
8. As a bird fleeing from her nest, so a man that forsaketh his place.
9. The hart is delighted with ointment and diuers odours: and with the good counsels of a freind the soule is sweetned.
10. Thy freind, and thy fathers freind doe not leaue: and goe not into thy brothers house in the day of thine affliction.
Better is a neighbour neere then a brother far off.
11. Studie wisdom my sonne, & make my hart ioyful, that thou maist make answer to the vpbayder.
12. The subtel man seeing euil, hideth himself: litle ones passing through haue susteyned euil detriments.
13. Take his garment that hath been suretie for a stranger: and for alienes take from him a pledge.
14. He that blesseth his neighbour with a loud voice, rising in the night, he shall be like him that curseth.
15. Roofs droppin: through in the day of cold, and a brauling woman are compared together: 16. He that reteyneth her, as he that should hold the winde, and shall call it the oyle of his right hand.
17. Iron is sharpned with iron, and a man sharpneth the face of his freind.
18. He that keepeth the figtree, shall eat the fruits thereof: and he that is the keeper of his master, shall be glorified.
19. As in waters the countenance of them that looke therein shineth, so the harts of men are manifest to the prudent.
20. Hel and perdition are neuer filled: in like manner also the eyes of men are vnfatiable.
21. As siluer is tried in the forge, and gold in the fornace: so a man is proued by the mouth of him that praiseth.
The hart of the wicked seeketh after euils, but the righteous hart seeketh after knowledge.
22. If thou shalt bray a foole in a mortar, as when a pestle striketh vpon ptisane, his follie shall not be taken from him.
23. Know diligently the countenance of thy cattel, and consider thy flocks: 24. For thou shalt not haue power alwayes: but a crowne shall be giuen into generation and generation.
25. The medowes are open, and the greene herbs haue appeared, and the grasse is gathered out of the mountaines.
26. Lambes for thy garment: and kiddes the price of the field.
27. Let the milke of the goats suffice thee for thy meats, and for the necessities of thy house: and for victual to thy hand-maids.

C H A P. XXX.

A right wiseman thinketh humbly of himself 4. knowing that Gods workes are inscrutable, and perfect: 8. desireth truth in al things, & mediocritie in riches 11. Abhorreth certaine sorts of men, 15. & certaine execrable things. 18. Noteth certaine things hard to be knowen: 21. other things intolerable, 24. others admirable. 32. The tongue dangerous.

HE words of the Gatherer the sonne of Vomiter. The vision, that the man spake, with whom God is, and who being strengthened by God abiding with him, sayd: 2. I am (a) most foolish of me, & the wisdom of men is not with me. 3. I haue not learned wisdom, and haue not knowen the science of saints. 4. (b) Who hath ascended into heauen and descended? who hath conteyned the spirit in his hands? who hath bound the waters together as in a garment? who hath rayfed vp al the borders of the earth? what is his name, and what is the name of his sonne, if thou know? 5. Euerie word of God tryed by fyre, is a buckler to them that hope in him: 6. Adde not any thing to his wordes, and so thou be reprov'd and found a lyer. 7. Two things I haue asked thee, deniethem not to me before I dye. 8. Vanitie, and lying wordes make far from me. Beggerie, and riches giue me not: giue only things necessarie for my sustenance: 9. lest perhaps being filled I be allured to denie, and may say: Who is the Lord? or being compelled by pouertie I may steale, and forswear the name of my God. 10. (c) Accuse not a seruant to his master, lest perhaps he curse thee, and thou fal. 11. There is (d) a generation that curseth their father, and that blesteth not their mother. 12. A generation, that seemeth to it-self cleane, & yet is not washed from their filthines. 13. A generation, whose eies are loftie, and the eie-lids therof set vp on high. 14. A generation, that for teeth hath swords, and chaweth with theyr grinding teeth, that they may eat the needie out of the earth, and the poore from among men. 15. The horseleach hath (e) two daughters that say: Bring, bring. Three (e) things are vnfatiable, the fourth neuer sayth it sufficeth. 16. Hel, and the mouth of the matrice, & the earth which is not satisfied with water: but the fyre neuer sayth it sufficeth. 17. The eie that (f) scorneth his father, & that despiseth the traual of his mother in bearing him, let the rauens of the torrents pick it out, and the yong of the eagle eat it. 18. Three things are hard to me, and of the fourth I am vterly ignorant. 19. The way of an eagle in the ayre, the way of a serpent vpon a rocke, the way of a ship in the middes of the sea, and (g) the way of a man in youth. 20. Such is also the way of an adulterous woman, which eateth, and wying her mouth sayth: I haue done no euil.

The fourth part. Other singular precepts, with prayse of a prudent woman.

(a) The wisest man best knoweth that he wanteth much of perfect wisdom yet in his humilitie supposeth that others haue attained somewhat more then himself.

(b) Christ the Sonne of God is wisdom itself and as the Sonne of man hath perfect wisdom.

(c) Bondslaves are to be pitied, and not affliction added to the afflicted.

(d) Foure execrable vices: Ingratitude, Hypocrisie, Insolencie: Oppression of the poore.

(e) Concupiscence of the flesh, & of the eyes.

(f) Enuie, Luxurie, Auarice, & Ambition.

(g) Dishonour of parents shall be severely punished.

(g) Yongmen following carnal appetite, can no more give account of their actiōs, then of the wayes which an eagle, a serpent and a ship haue passed.

(h) By these examples are commended foure vertues, Industrie, Prudence, Concord, and Humilitie.

(i) Other foure Fortitude, Chastitie, Order, and Iustice.

(k) Fools ought not to gouerne.

(l) Moderation is necessarie in al actiōs.

Some suppose one Agur to be authour of this chapter. But it seemeth more probable that only Salomon is authour of this whole booke.

Why he is called Gatherer.

Why God suffereth herefieto reigne.

21. By three things the earth is moued, and the fourth it cannot susteyne. 22. By a seruant when he shal reigne : by a foole when he shal be filled with meate: 23. by an odious woman when she shal be taken in matrimonie : & by " a bond-woman when she shal be heyre to her mistresse.

24. There are (h) foure the least things of the earth, and they are wiser then the wise. 25. The antes, a weake people, which prepareth in the haruest meate for themselues: 26. The leueret, a people not strong, which placeth his bed in the rocke: 27. The locust hath no King, and they goe out al by their troops: 28. The stellion stayeth on his hands, & tarieth in Kings houses. 29. (i) There are three things which goe wel, and the fourth that goeth happily. 30. The lyon, the strongest of beasts shal feare at the meeting of none: 31. the cocke gyrded about the loines, and the ramme: also the King, against whom none can resist.

32. There is that (k) hath appeared a foole after that he was lifted vp on high: for if he had vnderstood, he would haue layd his hand vpon his mouth. 33. And he that (l) strongly presseth the paps to wring out milke, strayneth out butter, and he that violently clenseth his nose, wringeth out bioud: & he that prouoketh angers, bringeth forth discords.

ANNOTATIONS.

CHAPTER XXX.

1. The words of the Gatherer. Some Interpreters take these foure Hebrew words, Agur, Iache, Ithiel, and Vcal, contained in this first verse, to be proper names of men, supposing that a certaine wiseman named Agur, the sonne of Iache, spake the sentences following in this chapter, to his sonnes or scholers, called Ithiel & Vcal. And so this supposed, Agur, not Salomon, should be the auctor of this chapter. But the old Interpreter, whom S. Ierom approueth and foloweth, translated the same words as noones appellatiues. Neither doth anie ancient Father account this Agur amongst the writers of holie Scriptures. And if there were a peculiar auctor of this chapter, it is like the same should haue been placed last, and not before that which now foloweth, and is by al men confessed to be Salomons. And therefore we thinke it more probable, with S. Beda, and the common opinion, that there was no other auctor of anie part of this booke, besides King Salomon. Who is here called CONGREGANS, the Gatherer, because he gathered these excellent Parables, and Proverbs; as the sonne of the Holie Ghost, signified by the word IACHE, powring forth diuine sentences, for instruction of ITHIEL & VCAL, that is, of al those with whom God is by his grace; and who are strengthened by God abiding with them.

2. A bond-woman when she shal be heyre. Of al things in this world, it seemeth most absurde, that heresie doth dominiere ouer Catholike religion; which God sometimes, and in some places suffereth, for the greater metite of his elect.

Giue not thy iustitance to women, & thy riches to destroy Kings. 4. Giue not to Kings, o Lamuel, giue not wine to Kings: because there is no secret where drunkennes reigneth, 5. & lest perhaps they drinke, & forget iudgements, & change the cause of the children of the poore. 6. Giue strong drinke to them that be sad, and wine vnto them that are of a pensie minde: 7. let them drinke, and forget their pouertie, and not remember their sorow any more. 8. Open thy mouth to (b) the dumme, & to the causes of al the children that passe: 9. open thy mouth (c) decree that which is iust, & iudge the needie & poore. 10. A valiant woman (d) who shal finde? far, and from the vtmost borders is the price of her. 11. The hart of her husband trusteth in her, and he shal not neede spoyles. 12. She shal redeer good, and not euil, al the dayes of her life. 13. She hath fought wool and flaxe, and hath wrought by the counsel of her hands. 14. She is become as a marchants ship, bringing her bread from farre. 15. And she hath risen in the night, and giuen prey to her household, and meates to her handmaidens. 16. She hath vewed a fiede, and bought it, of the fruite of her handes she hath planted a vineyard. 17. She hath gyrded her loines with strength, and hath strengthened her arme. 18. She hath tasted, and seen that her traficke is good: her lampe shal not be extinguished in the night. 19. She hath put her hand to strong things, and her fingers haue taken hold of (e) the spindle. 20. She hath opened her hand to the needie, and stretched out her palmes to the poore. 21. She shal not feare for her house in the coldes of snow: for al her household are clothed with double. 22. Tapestry clothing she hath made to herself: silke and purple is her garment. 23. Her husband is noble in the gates, whē he shal sitte with the senatours of the land. 24. She (f) made sindon, and sold it, and deliuered a girdle to the Chananeite. 25. She hath considered the pathes of her house, and hath not earen her bread idle. 28. Her children arose, and commended her to be most blessed: her husband, and he prayfed her. 29. Manie daughters haue gathered together riches: thou hast passed them al. 30. (g) Grace is deceitful and beautie is wayne: the woman that feareth our Lord shal be prayfed. 31. Giue ye to her (h) of the fruite of her hands, and let her workes praise her (i) in the gates.

(c) The chief & most proper office of a King is to do iustice.

(d) A woman of such perfection as is here described, is indeed rare, yet possible to be found.

(e) Flaxe on the distafe signifieth purpose to do good workes, yarne on the spindle the worke wel begun, which giueth confidence in God that the same shal be perfect and haue due reward.

(f) They make and sel cloth, which learning and obseruing Gods law, doe teach it others.

10. A valiant woman who shal finde? Vpon occasion of his mothers most prudent admonition, the wiseman singularly praiseth a perfect; vertuous woman. And that in an exquisite kind of stile: in Tetramical Iambike verse, with perfect order and number of the Alphabet letters, signifying, as S. Ierom teacheth, that as none can read, or speale words, vnles they first learne to know the letters: so we can not attaine to know the greater Mysteries in holie Scriptures, except we beginne with moral good life, according to that the Prophet sayth: By thy commandments I haue vnderstood. And therefore wise Salomon, by instinct of the Holie Ghost, as wel by the manner of stile, as by the doctrine contined, concludeth his Booke of Parables, with praise both of the Chnrch in general, which hath al the vertues, and good properties here mentioned, and of euerie faithful soule, sincerely seruing God, which either in deed, or in desire of mind, hath such part of them, as may suffice to the attaining of eternal life. THE ARGUMENT OF ECCLESIASTES.

In King Salomon a diuine Preacher, wherof this Booke is called Ecclesiastes, exhorteth al such as haue learned the principles of good life, to contemne this world: because al things therein are vaine, and insufficient to giue repose to mans soule: shewing that true felicitie, which al men desire, consisteth not in natural knowledge, gotten by wit and industrie, nor in worldlie pleasures, much lesse in carnal; nor in riches; nor in auctoritie or dominion; nor in anie other tēporal thing, as diuerse diuersly thinke: but only in the true seruice of God, by flying from sinne, and doing good workes, as in the meritorious cause, and essentially in the cleere vision of God: the proper end, for which man was created. And so this Book conteyneth three principal parts. First this diuine preacher confuteih al their opinions, that imagine a false felicitie in humane, worldlie, or temporal things: so the beginning of the 7. chapter. In the rest of that chapter and three folowing, he teacheth that true felicitie consisteth in the eternal fruition of God: and is procured by declining from vices and embracing vertues. In the two last chapters he exhorteth al to begin speedily to serue God, and to perseuer therein to the end of this life.

This booke called Ecclesiastes, teacheth to contemne this world. Because felicitie consisteth not in anie temporal thing: but in the eternal sight of God. Diuided into three parts.

ECCLESIASTES, IN HEBREVV CALLED COHELETH.

C H A P. I.

Al temporal things (in comparison of true felicitie) are vaine, 4. because they are mutable, 8. neither can anie man attaine perfect knowledge to his satisfaction: 12. as appeareth by Salomons owne experience.

The first part of this Sermon sheweth, that Felicitie consisteth not in anie temporal thing.

THE words of Ecclesiastes, the sonne of Dauid, King of Ierusalem. 2. Vanitie of vanities, sayd Ecclesiastes: vanitie of vanities, and al things are vanitie. 3. What hath a man more of al his labour, wherby he laboureth vnder the sunne? 4. Generation passeth

(a) In the end of this world the earth shall be purified, & so remaine for euer.

(b) Mens soules dayly created are of the same kind as Adams soule: other creatures either were in their kinds from the beginning of the world, or are procreated of diuers kinds preexisting. S. Tho. 1. p. q. 73. a. 1. ad. 3.

(c) All natural things are insufficient meanes to attaine felicitie.

(d) Wisdom is the best thing in this world, yet is not perfect felicitie, but the meanes to attaine it.

Wisdom maketh men to be angrie with sinne, to serue God, and to proceede in vertue.

and generation commeth : but (a) the earth standeth for euer. 5. The sunne riseth, and goeth downe, and returneth to his place : and there rising againe, 6. compasseth by the South, and bendeth to the North: compassing all things, goeth forward in circuite, & returneth vnto his circles. 7. All riuers enter into the sea, and the sea ouerfloweth not: to the place, whence the riuers issue forth, they doe returne, that they may flow againe. 8. All things are hard : man can not explicate them in word. The eye is not filled with seeing, neither is the eare filled with hearing. 9. What is that hath beene the same thing that shall be. What is that hath beene done: the same that is to be done. 10. (b) Nothing vnder the sunne is new, neither is anie man able to say : Behold this is new: for it hath already gone before in the ages that were before vs. 11. There is no memorie of former things : but neither of those things verily, which hereafter are to come, shall there be remembrance with thee, that shall be in the later end. 12. I Ecclesiastes haue been King of Israel in Ierusalem, 13. and haue proposed in my mind to seeke and search wisely of all things, that are done vnder the sunne. This very euil occupation hath God giuen to the children of men, that they might be occupied in it. 14. I haue seen all things, that are done vnder the sunne, and behold all (c) are vanitie, & affliction of spirit. 15. The perverse are hardly corrected, and the number of fools is infinite. 16. I haue spoken in my hart, saying: Loe I haue been made great, and haue gone beyond all in wisdom, that were before me in Ierusalem : and my minde hath contemplated manie things wisely, and I haue learned. 17. And I haue giuen my hart to know prudence, and doctrine, and errors, and follie: and I haue perceiued that in these also there was labour, and affliction of spirite, 18. for that " in much (d) wisdom there is much indignation: and he that addeth knowledge, addeth also labour.

CHAP. I.

18. In much wisdom is much indignation. How much more anie man profiteth in wisdom, so much more he is angrie with himself, for the euils which he hath done: so much better he knoweth the strict iudgement of God, which he must passe: so much more he vnderstandeth the want of perfect wisdom: so much more he seeth that labour is required to proceede in vertue: and to conserue that smal portion which he hath gotten. Neither is anie man ordinarily assured that he hath gotten anie part of true wisdom; for he knoweth not whether he be worlthie of loue or hate. Eccle. 9.

C H A P. II.

Humane delights are al vaine: 4. as gorgeous buildings, fruitful vineyards plentie of fish, cattle, seruants, siluer, gold, musike: not satisfying mans desire. 18. Neither can anie man know how his heyre wil behaue himself.

Sayd (a) therefore in my hart: I wil goe, & flow in delights, and enioy good things. (b) And I saw that this also was vanitie. 2. Laughter I haue reputed error: and to ioy I haue saide: Why art thou deceiued in vaine? 3. I haue thought in my hart to withdraw my flesh from wine, that I might transerre my minde to wisdom, and might auoid follie, til I might see what should be profitable for the children of men: what is needful to be done vnder the sunne, in the number of the dayes of their life. 4. I haue magnified my workes, I haue built me houses, & planted vineyards, 5. I haue made gardens, and orchards, and set them with trees of al kinds, 6. and I haue made me ponds of waters, to watter the wood of springing trees, 7. I haue possessed men-seruants and women-seruants, and haue had a great familie: heards also, and great flocks of sheep, aboue al that were before me in Ierusalem: 8. I haue heaped together to my self siluer, and gold, and the substance of Kings, and prouinces: I made me singing men, & singing women, and the delights of the children of men: cups, and goblets to serue to powre out wines: 9. and I surpassed in riches al that were before me in Ierusalem: wisdom also hath perseuered with me. 10. And al things that myne eies desired, I haue not denied to them: neither haue I stayed my hart, but that it enioyed al pleasure, & delighted it-self in these things, which I had prepared: and this I esteemed my portion, if I did vse my labour. 11. And when I had turned myself to al the workes which my hands had done, & to the labours wherin I had swette in vaine, I saw in al things vanitie, and affliction of mind, & nothing to be permanent vnder the sunne. 12. I passed further to contemplate wisdom, and errors, and follie (what is man, quoth I, that he can folow the King his Maker?) 13. and I saw that wisdom so much excelled follie, as light differeth from darknes. 14. The (c) eyes of a wise-man are in his head: the foole walketh in darknes: and I haue learned that there was one death of both. 15. And I sayd in my hart: if the fall of the foole & myne shal be one, (d) what doth it profite me, that I haue bestowed greater labour for wisdom? And speaking with my minde, I perceiued that this also was vanitie. 16. For there shal be no memorie of the wise in like manner as of the foole for euer, and the times to come shal couer al things together with obliuion: the learned dieth in like manner as the vnlarned. 17. And therefore I haue been wearie of my life, seeing al things vnder the sunne to be euil, and al things vanitie and affliction of spirit. 18. Againe, I detested al myne indutrie, wherewith I haue laboured vnder the sunne most iudiciously,

(a) A wordlie man may object, that seeing wisdom bringeth not felicitie in this life, it seemeth best to take his pleasure & ease & not to labour for it. (b) But the wise man confuteth this conceit. Because worldlie ioy is short & vncertaine, neither is anie ioy that men haue in this life true ioy of the blessed, but only a consolation in miseries.

(c) Consideration is the directorie of al good workes. (d) The conceit of worldlie men not considering the life to come.

being like to haue an heyre after me: 19. whom I know not, whether he will be a wiseman or a foole, and he shal rule in my labours, wherewith I haue swette and haue been careful: and is there anie thing so vaine? 20. Wherfore I ceased, and my hart hath renounced to labour anie more vnder the sunne. 21. For whereas one laboureth in wisdom, and doctrine, and carefulnes, he leaueth the things gotten to an idle man: and this therefore is vanitie, and great euil. 22. For what profite shal be to a man of al his labour, and afflictio of spirite, wherewith he is vexed vnder the sunne? 23. Al his dayes are ful of sorowes and miseries, neither by night doth he rest in minde: and is not this vanitie? 24. Is it not better to eate and drinke, and shew vnto his soule good things of his labours? (e) & this is of the hand of God. 25. Who shal so deuour, and flow with delights as I? 26. To a man good in his sight, God hath giuen wisdom, and knowledge, and ioy: but to the sinner he hath giuen affliction, and superfluous care, to adde, and to gather together, and deliuer it to him that hath pleased God: but this also is vanitie, & vaine carefulnes of the minde.

(e) It is better to vse that is honestly gotten for our necessitie, then to be still solicitous to get more.

C H A P. III.

Contrarie things succeed in their seasons, and passe away: 9. wherof man getteth no perfect knowledge, how long soeuer he liueth, and laboureth to know them: 16. neither wil there be equitie where it ought to be in this world: 21. but in the next, good and euil shal be separated, and iudged according to their deserts.

(a) Generatio, Corruption, & Alteration, pertaine only to things of this world vnder heauen, often here described by the terme, Vnder the sunne. For spiritual substances are not comprehended in time nor place. S. Ierom. in hunc locum.

(b) Al this sheweth that nothing of this world is per-

1. All things haue a time, and in their spaces al things passe vnder (a) heauen. 2. A time to be borne, & a time to dye. A time to plant, & a time to pluck vp that which was planted. 3. A time to kil, and a time to heale. A time to destroy, and a time to build. 4. A time to weepe, & a time to laugh. A time to mourne, and a time to dance. 5. A time to disperse stones, and a time to gather. A time to embrace, and a time to be farre from embracings. 6. A time to gette, and a time to lose. A time to keepe, and a time to cast away. 7. A time to rent, and a time to sow together. A time to keepe silence, & a time to speake. 8. A time of loue, and a time of hatred. A time of warre, and a time of peace. 9. (b) What hath man more of his labour? 10. I haue seen the affliction, which God hath giuen to the children of men, that thy may be distracted in it. 11. He hath made al things good in their time, and hath deliuered the world to their disputation, and that man can not finde the worke, which God hath wrought from the beginning vnto the end.

12. And I haue knowne that there was no better thing then to reioyce, and to doe wel in his life. 13. For euerie man, that eateth and drinketh, and seeth good of his labour, this is the gift of God. 14. I haue learned that al the workes, which God hath made, perseuer for euer: we can not adde anie thing, nor take away from those things, which God hath made that he may be feared. 15. That which hath been made, the same is permanent: the things that shal be, haue already been: and God restoreth that which is past. 16. I saw vnder the sunne in the place of iudgement impietie, and in the place of iustice iniquitie. 17. And I sayd in my hart: the iust and the impious God wil iudge, and then shal be the time of eueriething. 18. I sayd in my hart of the children of men, that God would proue them, and shew them to be like beasts. 19. Therefore there is one death of man, and beasts, and the condition of both equal: as man dieth, so they also dye: al things breath alike, and man hath nothing more then beast: al things are subiect to vanitie, 20. and al things passe to one place: of earth they were made, and into earth they returne together. 21. Who knowe: h if the spirit of the children of Adam ascend vpward, and if the spirite of beasts descend downward? 22. And I haue found that nothing is better then for a man to reioyce in his worke, and that this is his portion. For who shal bring him to know the things that shal be after him?

petual, but to be vsed interchangeably, in due time, place, manner, and order. For disorder maketh confusion.

C H A P. IIII.

In this world manie innocents are oppressed, 4. the potent sometimes enuied, contemned, 15. and forsoken by their subiects, 17. especially when the superiours obey not God.

Turned my self to other things, and I saw the oppressions, that are done vnder the sunne, and the (a) teares of the innocents, and no comforter: & that they can not resist their violence, being destitute of al mens helpe. 2. And I praised rather the dead, then the liuing: 3. and happier then both haue I iudged him that is not (b) yet borne, nor hath seen the euils that are done vnder the sunne. 4. Againe I haue contemplated al the labours of men, and their industries I haue perceiued to lie open to the enuie of their neighbour: and in this therefore there is vanitie, and superfluous care: 5. A foole foldeth his hands together, and eateth his owne flesh, saying: 6. Better is an handfull with rest, then both hands ful with labour and affliction of mind. 7. Considering I found also an other vanitie vnder the sunne: 8. There is one, and he hath not a second, not a sunne, not a brother, and yet he ceaseth not to labour, neither are his eyes satisfied with riches, neither doth he recount, saying: For whom doe I labour, and defraud my soule of good things: in this also is vanitie, and very il affliction. 9. "It is better therefore that two be together, then one: for they haue profite of their societic: 10. if one fal, he shal be stayed vp of the other. Woe to him that is alone: because when he falleth, he hath none to lift him vp. 11. And if two sleepe together, they shal warme ech other: one how shal he be warmed? 12. And if a man preuaile against one, two resist him: a (c) triple cord is hardly broken. 13. Better is a child that is poore and wise, then a King old and foolish, that knoweth not to foresee for hereafter. 14. Because out of the prison and cheynes sometiue there commeth one forth to a Kingdom: and an other borne in his Kingdom, is consumed with pouertie. 15. I saw al men aliue, that walke vnder the sunne, with the second yongman, which shal rise vp for him. 16. The number of the people, of al that haue been before him is infinite: and they that shal be afterward, shal not reioyce in him. But this also is vanitie, and affliction of spirit. 17. Take heede to keep thy foote, when thou entrest into the house of God, and approach thou to heare. 18. For much better is obedience, then the victimes of fooles, who know not what euil they doe.

(a) God suffereth the innocent to be afflicted for a time, of his special providence: because they thereby merite a great reward. Psal. 72.

can neither resist tentations, nor rise from sinne.

And without mans free consent Christ wil
not stay him, nor raise him
vp.

9. It is better that two be together.) Besides the commendation of charitie, and freindship amongst men, which is one proper sense of this place: S. Ierom expoundeth it also of the necessitie of Christs dwelling in mans soule, & of his continual assisting grace: that man alone lie not open to the deceits of the aduersarie. The benefit of felowship (sayth he) is streight wayes shewed in the profite of societic. For if the one fal (as * the iust falleth often) Christ raiseth vp his partner: for woe to him, who falling hath not Christ in him, to raise him vp. If one also sleepe, that is, be dissolved by death, and haue Christ with him, being warmed, and quickned, he sooner reuiucth. And if the diuel be stronger in impugning against a man, the man shal stand, and Christ wil stand (pro homine suo, pro sodali suo) for his man, for his companion. Not that Christs power alone is weake against the diuel, but that free wil is left to man, and we doing our endeauour he becommeth stronger in fighting. And if the Father, the Sonne, and the Holie Ghost come withal, this sodalitie is not soone broken. Yet that which is not soone broken, may sometimes be broken. For this triple cord was in Iudas the Apostle, but because after the morsel the diuel entred into him, this cord was broken. Thus S. Ierom teacheth, that neither can man without Christ resist tentations, nor rise from anie sinne in this life, or * in the next: neither wil Christ without mans consent and endeauour, stay him from falling, nor raise him vp being fallen.

An exhortation to speake discretely and reuerently of God; 3. to performe Vowes; 6. not to be troubled with imaginations, nor present oppreffions of the poore. 9. Auarice is neuer satiate, 11. riches sometimes cause sicknes, ruine of the bodie, 18. and obliuion of God.

SPEAKE (a) not anie thing rashly, neither let thy hart be swift to vtter a word before God. For God is in heauen, and thou vpō the earth: therefore let thy words be few. 2. Dreames doe folow manie cares, and in manie words follie wil be found. 3. (b) If thou hast vowed anie thing to God, differre not to pay it: for an vnfaithful and fooliſh promise displeaseth him. But whatſoever thou haſt vowed, pay it: 4. and it is much better not to vow, then after a vow not to performe the things promiſed. 5. Giue not thy mouth to make thy fleſh to ſinne: neither ſay thou before (c) the Angel: There is no prouidence; leſt perhaps God being wrath againſt thy words, diſſipate al the workes of thy hands. 6. Where manie dreames are, there are manie vanities, and words innumerable: but doe thou feare God. 7. If thou ſhalt ſee the oppreſſions of the poore, and violent iudgemēts, and iuſtice to be ſubuerred in the prouince, meruail not at this matter: becauſe there is an other higher then the high, and ouer theſe alſo there are others more eminent: 8. and beſides, the King of al the earth reigneth ouer his ſeruant. 9. A couetous man ſhal not be filled with money: and he that loueth riches, ſhal take no fruite of them: and this therefore is vanitie. 10. Where great riches are, there are alſo manie that eate them. And what doth it profite the owner, but that he ſeeth the riches with his eyes? 11. Sleep is ſweete to him that worketh, whether he eate much or litle: but the ſatiētie of the rich doth not ſuffer him to ſleep. 12. There is alſo an other very il infirmitie, which I haue ſeen vnder the ſunne: riches kept to the hurt of the owner. 13. For they periſh in very euil affliction: he (a) hath begotten a ſonne, which ſhal be in great pouer- tie. 14. As he came forth naked from his mothers wombe, ſo ſhal he returne, and ſhal take nothing away with him of his labour. 15. An infirmitie vtterly miſerable; as he came, ſo ſhal he returne. What doth it then profite him, that he hath laboured into the winde? 16. Al the dayes of his life he eateth in darknes, and in miſerie, and in heauines. 17. This therefore hath ſeemed good to me, that a man eate, and drinke, and take ioy of his labour, wherwith he hath laboured vnder the ſunne, the number of the dayes of his life, which God hath giuen him, and this is his portion. 18. And to euerie man, vnto whom God hath giuen riches, and ſubſtance, and hath giuen him power to eate of them, and to enioy his portion, and to reioyce of his labour: this is the giſt of God. 19. For he

C H A P. VI.

Riches make not men happie, because manie dye shortly: 3. and manie rich men wil not vse their riches. 8. Likewise studie to know al secretes things is vanitie, not felicitie.

HERE is also an other euil, which I haue seen vnder the sunne, and that frequent with men: 2. A man to whō God hath giuen riches, and substance, and honour, and nothing is lacking to his soule of al things, which he desireth: neither doth God giue him power to eate therof: but a strange man shal eate it vp. This is (b) vanitie and great miserie. 3. If a man shal beget an hundred children, and shal liue manie yeares, and haue manie dayes of age, and his soule vse not the goods of his substance, and he lacke burial: of this man I pronounce, that the vntimely borne is better then he. 4. For he came in vaine, and passeth to darknes, and his name shal be cleane forgotten. 5. He hath not seen the sunne, nor knowen the distance of good and euil: 6. although he liued two thousand yeares, and hath not enioyed good things: doe not al things hasten to one place? 7. Al the labour of man is in his mouth: but his soule shal not be filled. 8. What hath the wiseman more then the foole? and what the poore man, but to passe thither, where life is? 9. Better it is to see that, which thou maist couete, then to desire that, which thou canst not know. But this also is vanitie, and presumption of spirite. 10. (c) He that shal be, his name is already called: and it is knowne, that he is a man, and can not contend in iudgement against a stronger then himself. 11. There be manie words, that haue much vanitie in disputing.

C H A P. VII.

It is in vaine to seeke, and vnpossible to know al natural things. 2. It importeth to leade this short life in mortification, 4. penance, 8. and patience: 12. seeking wisdom, with competent temporal meanes; 15. providing for the next world; 24. not yealding to concupiscence.

WHAT needeth a man to seeke things greater then himself, whereas he is ignorant, what is profitable for him in his life, in the number of the dayes of his peregrination, and the time that passeth as a shadow? Or who can tel him what shal be after him vnder

(b) At this sheweth evidently that felicitie consisteth not in riches.

the sunne?

2. Better is a good name then precious ointments: and the day of death, then the day of natiuitie. 3. It is better to goe to the house of mourning, then to the house of banketing, for in that the end of al men is signified, and he that liueth thinketh what shal be. 4. (a) Anger is better then laughter: because by sadnes of the countenance, the mind of the offender is corrected. 5. The hart of wisemen where sadnes is, and the hart of fooles where mirth. 6. It is better to be rebuked of a wiseman, then to be deceiued with the flaterie of fooles. 7. Because as the sound of thornes burning vnder a pottle, so the laughter of a foole: but this also is vanitie. 8. Oppression troubleth the wise, and shal destroy the strength of this hart. 9. Better is the end of a speach, then the beginning. (b) Better is the patient man then the arrogant. 10. Be not quickly angrie, because anger resteth in the bosom of a foole. 11. Say not: What is the cause thinkest thou that the former times were better then they are now? for this manner of question is foolish. 12. Wisdom with (c) riches is more profitable, and doth more profite them that see the sunne. 13. For as wisdom protecteth, so money protecteth. But learning and wisdom haue this much more, that they giue life to their owner. 14. Consider the workes of God, that no man can correct whom he hath despised. 15. In the good day enioy good things, and beware before of the euil day. For as this, so that also hath God made, that man finde not against him iust complaints. 16. These things also I saw in the dayes of my vanitie: The iust man perisheth in his iustice, and the impious liueth a lōg time in his malice. 17. Be not iust too much: neither be more wise thē is necessarie, lest thou become more dul. 18. Doe not impiouly much: and be not foolish, lest thou dye not in thy time. 19. It is good that thou hold vp the iust, yea and from him withdraw not thy hand: because he that feareth God, neglecteth nothing. 20. Wisdom hath strengthened the wise aboue ten Princes of the citie. 21. For there is no iust man in the earth, that doth good, and sinneth not. 22. But to al words also that are spoken, doe not applie thy hart: lest perhaps thou heare thy seruant cursing thee. 23. For thy conscience knoweth, that thou also halt cursed others. 24. I haue proued al things in wisdom. I haue sayd: I wil become wise, & it departed farder from me 25. much more thē it was: and a deepe profunditie, who shal finde it? 26. I haue vewed al things with my minde, that I might know, and cōsider, and might seeke wisdom and reason: and that I might know the impietie of the foole, and the errour of the imprudent: 27. and I haue found that a woman is more bitter then death, who is the snare of hunters, and her hart a net, her hands are bands. He that pleaseth God, wil auoid her: but he that is a sinner, wil be caught of her. 28. Loe this haue I found, sayd * Ecclesiastes, one thing and another, that I might find reason, 29. which yet my soule seeketh, and I haue not found it. (d) A man of a thousand I haue found one, (e) a woman of al I haue not found. 30. Only this I haue found, that (f) God made man right, and he hath intangled himself with infinite

The 2. part. True felicitie is procured by good life, and consisteth in the eternal sight of God. (a) Anger rightly vsed, is commendable & beneficial to correct our owne faults and others. (b) But hastie, or immoderate anger is sinful and hurtful. (c) Likewise moderate riches profite the seruants of God, so that they sette not their mind vpon them.

C H A P. VIII.

A signe of true wisdom appeareth in obseruing Gods commandements, 6. in this short time of meriting eternal reward. 7. Rule of others, 11. and want of feare hurt manie. 14. Why God sufferet the wicked to prosper, and the iust to be afflicted in this life, no mortal man can know.

(a) As probable coniecture of a mans inward dispositiō is made by his exteriour countenance: so his good workes shinning before men are good signe of internal vertues: which indeed are right and meritorious, when the intention is sincere, referring al to Gods glorie, & edification of others, without desire of vaine praise in the world.

HE wisdom of a man (a) shineth in his countenance, and the most mightie wil change his face. 2. I obserue the mouth of the King, and the precepts of the oath of God. 3. Hasten not to depart from his face, nor continue thou in an euil worke: because al that he pleaseth he wil doe, 4. and his word is ful of power: neither can anie man say to him. Why dost thou so? 5. He that keepest the precept, shal find no euil. The hart of a wiseman vnderstandeth time and answer. 6. There is a time for al busines, and opportunitie, and much affliction of man: 7. because he is ignorant of things past, and things to come he can know by no messenger. 8. It is not in mans power to prohibite the spirit, neither hath he power in the day of death, neither is he suffered to rest when warre is at hand, neither shal impietie saue the impious. 9. Al these things I haue considered, and gaue my hart on al the workes that are done vnder the sunne. Sometime man ruleth ouer man to his owne hurt. 10. I saw the impious buried: who also when they yet liued, were in holie place, and were praised in the citie as men of iust workes. But this also is vanitie. 11. Because sence is not speedily pronounced against the euil, the children of men committe euils without anie feare. 12. But yet a sinner by this that he doth euil an hundred times, & by patience is borne withal, I know that it shal be good to them that feare God, which dread his face. 13. Let there be no good to the impious, neither let his dayes be prolonged, but as a shadow let them passe, that feare not the face of our Lord. 14. There is also an other (b) vanitie, which is done vpon the earth. There are iust men, to whom euils happen, as though they had done the workes of the impious: and there are impious mē, which are so secure, as though they had the deeds of the iust. But this also I iudge most vaine. 15. I therefore haue praised mirth, that there was no good thing for a man vnder the sunne, but that he should eate, and drinke, and be glad: and this only he should take away with him of his labour in the dayes of his life, which God hath giuen him vnder the sunne. 16. And I haue set my hart to know wisdom, and to vnderstand the * distraction that is in the earth: There is a man that dayes and nights taketh no sleepe with his eyes. 17. And I vnderstood that mā can finde no reason of al those workes of God, that are done vnder the sunne: and the more he shal labour to seeke, so much the lesse he can finde: yea if the wisman shal say that he knoweth, he is not able to finde it.

C H A P. IX.

None knoweth (certainly and ordinarily) whether they be in Gods grace or no. 4 The euil are in worse case dead then aliue: 11. neither can we know the euent of temporal things, nor the terme of our life, nor how grateful others wil be towards vs. 16. Sure it is, that wisdom is better then strength.

L these things haue I discoursed in my hart, that I might curiously vnderstand them: there are iust mē and wife: and their workes are in the hand of God: and yet (a) man knoweth not whether he be worthie of loue or hatred: 2. but al things are reserued vncertaine for the time to come, because al things doe equally chance to the iust and impious, to the good and the euil, to the cleane and vncleane, to him that immolateth victimes, and him that contemneth sacrifices. As the good, so also is the sinner: as the periured, so he also that sweareth truth. 3. This is a very euil thing amōg al which are done vnder the sunne, that the same things chance to al men. Wherby also the harts of the children of men are filled with malice, and with contēpt in their life, and after that they shal be brought downe to hel. 4. There is no man that may liue alwayes, and that can haue confidence of this thing: better is (b) a dog liuing then a lion dead. 5. For the liuing know that they shal dye, but the dead know nothing more; neither haue they reward anie more: because the memorie of them is forgottē. 6. Loue also and harred, and enuies haue perished together, neither haue they part in this world, and in the worke that is done vnder the sunne. 7. Goe therefore and eat thy bread in ioy, & drinke thy wine with gladnes: because thy workes please God. 8. At al time let thy garments be white, and let not oyle fal from off thy head. 9. Enioy life, with thy wife whom thou louest, al the dayes of the life of thy intabilitie, which are giuen to thee vnder the sunne, al the time of thy vanitie: for this is the portion in life, and in thy labour, wherewith thou labourest vnder the sunne. 10. Whatsoeuer thy hand is able to doe, worke it instantly: for neither worke, nor reason, nor wisdom, nor knowledge shal be in hel, whither thou dost hasten. 11. I turned me to an other thing, and I saw vnder the sunne, that neither running is of the swift, nor warre of the strong, nor bread of the wise, nor riches of the learned, nor grace of the artificers: but time and chance in al. 12. Man knoweth not his owne end: but as fishes are taken with the hooke, and as birdes are caught with the snare, so mē are taken in the euil time, whē it shal sudenly come vpon them. 13. This wisdō also I haue seen vnder the sunne and haue proued it to be very great: 14. A little citie, and few men in it: there came against it a great King, and compassed it, and builded forts

(a) Mortal men suffering calamities know not whether the same be inflicted for their prooffe and merite, as in Iob and Tobie, or for their sinnes only, as in Pharao, & the Aegyptians: but shal know in the iudgement after their death.

(b) A sinner in this life may amend if he wil, & become iust: but after death he can not repent.

round about, and the siege was perfited. 15. And there was found in it a man poore and wise, and he deliuered the citie by his wisdom, and no man afterward remembred that pooreman. 16. And I sayd, that wisdom is better then strength: how then was the wisdom of the pooreman contemned, & his words were not heard? 17. The words of the wise are heard in silence, more then the crie of a Prince among fooles. 18. Better is wisdom, then weapons of warre: and he that shal offend in one point, shal lose manie good things.

C H A P. X.

Considering the great difference between wisdom and follie, 4. it becometh to resist vehement temptations diligently. 5. As when euil & ignorant men haue authority ouer the wise. 8. The wicked often fall into their owne snares, 10. are hard, yet not vnpossible to be corrected. 11. Detracters are like serpents. 12. wise graue Princes are profitable; childish are hurtful to the commonwealth; 18. which by their negligence tendeth to ruine: 20. yet subiects ought not to iudge euil of them.

(a) Base & vicious men mixt with the good, corrupt the whole companie: much more a mortal sinne in a mans soule destroyeth all the vertues, that were there before.
(b) Euil men advanced seem to prosper:
(c) But they fall into their owne traps.

(d) Such as seeke by sense and reason to obtaine true knowledge, enter not into the citie, the Church:

LIES (a) dying marre the sweetnes of ointment. Wisdom and glorie is more precious, then a litle and tēporal follie. 2. The hart of a wiseman is in his right hand, and the hart of a foole is in his left hand. 3. Yea and the foole walking in the way, wheras himself is vnwise, esteemeth all men fooles. 4. If the spirite of him that hath power, ascend vpon thee, leaue not thy place: because carefulnes wil make the greatest sinnes to cease. 5. There is an euil that I haue seen vnder the sunne, as it were by error proceeding from the face of the Prince: 6. a foole set in high dignitie, and the rich to sit beneath. 7. I haue seen (b) seruants vpon horses: and Princes walking on the ground as seruants. 8. He (c) that diggeth a pit, shal fall into it: and he that breaketh the hedge, a serpent shal bite him. 9. He that remoueth stones, shal be afflicted in them: and he that cutteth trees, shal be wounded of them. 10. If the iron shal be blunt, and that not as before, but shal be made blunt, it shal be sharpned by great labour: and after industrie shal wisdom folow. 11. If a serpent bite in silence, nothing lesse then it hath he, that detracteth secretly. 12. The words of the mouth of a wiseman grace: and the lippes of the vnwise shal throw him downe headlong. 13. The beginning of his words is follie, and the later end of his mouth is most wicked errour. 14. A foole multiplieth words. A man is ignorant what hath been before him: and what shal be after him, who can tel him? 15. The labour of fooles shal afflict them, that know not to goe into (d) the citie. 16. Woe to thee ô lād, whose King is a childe, and whose Princes eat in the morning. 17. Blessed is the lād whose King is noble, & whose Princes eat in their time, to refection, and not to riotousnes. 18. In slouthfulnes the rooſe of the houſe ſhal goe to ruine, & in the infirmitie of the hands the houſe ſhal drop through. 19. They make bread for laughter, and wine, that liuing they may make merie: and to money al things obey. 20. In thy cogitation detract not from the King, and in the ſecret of thy chamber curſe not the richman: becauſe euen the birds of the ayre wil carie thy voice, and he that hath wings wil declare the ſentence.

They labour in vaine, and are afflicted in ſtudie of Scriptures, when they waike in the deſert, and can not find the citie. S. Ierom.

C H A P. X.

16. Woe to thee o land, whose King is a childe.) S. Ierom (as in moſt part of his commentaries vpon this booke) expoundeth this paſſage in two ſenſes: ſimply according to the firſt apparance of the letter; and myſtically concerning the Church. The wiſeman ſeemeth indeed (ſayth he) to reprove the principalitie of yongmen, and to condemne luxurious iudges; for that in the one by want of age is infirme wiſdom; in the other, mature age is weakned by delicacies. And contrarywiſe he approueth a Prince of good parts, & liberal education; & commendeth thoſe Iudges, which doe not preferre voluptuousnes before publike affayres: but after great labour and adminiſtration of the commonwealth, are conſtrained as by neceſſitie to take meate. Yet to me (ſaith this great Doctour) ſomething more ſacred ſeemeth to lye hid in the letter: that in Scripture they are called yongmen, who forſake old auctoritie, and contemne ancient precepts of forefathers; who neglecting Gods commandment, deſire to eſtabliſh traditions of men. Touching which points, our Lord threatneth Iſrael by Iſaias, for that this people hath reſuſed the water of Siloe, that runneth with ſilence, and hath turneth away the old fiſhpond, chooſing the ſtreames of Samaria, and gulſes of Damascus, I wil giue yongmen to be their Princes, and deluders ſhal rule ouer them. Read Daniel: Thou ſhalt finde God ancient of dayes. Read the Apocalyps of S. Iohn: Thou ſhalt finde the head of our Sauour white as ſnow, and as white wool. Ieremie alſo becauſe he was wiſe, and grauitie was reputed in his wiſdom, was forbid to cal himſelf a childe. Woe therefore to the land, whoſe King is the diuel, who alwayes coueting nouelties, rebelled in Abſalom againſt the father. Woe to that land whoſe Iudges and Princes loue the pleaſures of this world. Who, vntil the day of death come, ſay: Let vs eate and drinke, for to morow we ſhal dye. Contrariwiſe bleſſed is the land of the Church, whoſe King is Chriſt, the Sonne of the freeborne, deſcending from Abraham, Iſaac, and Iacob, the ſtock of Prophets, and of al Saints, ouer whom ſinne ruled not: and for that cauſe they were truly free: of whom was borne the holie Virgin Marie more free: hauing no ſhrub, nor branch out of the ſide, but her whole fruit ſprung forth into floure: ſaying in the Canticles: I am the floure of the field, the lillie of the valleyes. The Princes alſo of this land are the Apoſtles, and al Saints, who haue their King the ſonne of the freeborne, the ſonne of the freewoman, not of the bondwoman Agar, but borne of the freedom of Sara. Neither doe they eate in the morning, nor quickly. For they ſeek not pleaſure in this preſent world; but ſhal eate in their due time, when the time of reward ſhal come, and they ſhal eate in fortitude, and not in coufuſion. Al the good of this preſent world is coufuſion: but of the future world is perpetual fortitude. Thus farre S. Ierom. Whoſe diſcourſe we haue here cited at large for a taſte of his profound expoſition of this whole booke; that ſuch as haue apportunitie, may read the reſt in the authour himſelf. To. 7.

Antiquitie in matter of faith and religion is to be followed, not noueltic.

Alſo mortification and labour is required in Paſtours not delicatie nor eaſe.

The 3. part.
An exhortation to begin quickly, and perseuer in Gods seruice.

(a) Of al vertues, the workes of mercie, corporal and spiritual, most auaille for obtaining eternal felicitie. Mat. 25.

(b) So the same begrounded in true faith, belieuing al that is written in the old and new testament, signified by seuen & eight.

(c) After death, none can either merite or demerite.

(d) Both in youth and old age doe good workes.

Workes of mercie are necessarie, whiles we haue time, 3. because after death none can merite: 4. neither must we differre to begin, nor cease from good deeds, 8 but stil be mindful of deat's and iudgement: 10. auoiding wrath and malice.

As t thy bread vpon the passing waters: (a) because after much time thou shalt finde it. 2. Giue a portion (b) to seuen, and also to eight: because thou knowest not what euil shal be vpon the earth: 3. If the clouds be ful, they wil powre out raine vpon the earth. If the tree thal fal to the South, or the North, in what place soeuer it shal fal (c) there shal it be. 4. He that obserueth the winde, soweth not: and he that considereth the clouds, shal neuer reape. 5. As thou art ignorant which is the way of the spirit, & how the bones are framed together in the wombe of her that conceiueth child: so thou knowest not the workes of God, who is the maker of al. 6. In (d) the morning sow thy seede, and in the euening let not thy hand cease: for thou knowest not which may rather spring, this or that: and if both together, it shal be the better. 7. The light is sweete: and it is delectable for the eyes to see the sunne. 8. If a man shal liue manie yeares, and shal haue reioyced in them al, he must remember the darke some time, and manie dayes, which when they shal come, the things past shal be reproued of vanitie. 9. Reioyce therefore yongman in thy youth, and let thy hart be in good, in the dayes of thy youth, and walke in the wayes of thy hart, and in the sight of thyne eyes: and know that for al these God wil bring thee into iudgement. 10. Take away anger from thy hart, and remoue malice from thy flesh. For youth and pleasure are vaine.

C H A P. XII.

In youe is fitteſt time, and moſt meritorious to ſerue God. In age the ſame is more and more neceſſarie, but harder then to begin, and leſſe grateful. 8. In this book the preacher hath ſhewed, that al worldlie things are Vanitie, 13. and that true felicitie is only procured by wiſdom, which conſiſteth in the feare of God, and obſeruation of his commandments.

REMEMBER thy Creatour in the dayes (a) of thy youth, before the time of affliction come, & the yeares approach, of which thou maiſt ſay: They pleaſe me not: 2. before the ſunne, and light, and moone, and ſtarres be darke, and the clouds returne after the raine: 3. when the keepers of the houſe ſhal be moued, and the ſtrongeſt men ſhal ſtagger, and the grinders ſhal be idle in a ſmal number: and they ſhal waxe darke that looke through the holes: 4. and they ſhal ſhut the doores in the ſtreet, at the baſenes of the grinders voice, and they ſhal riſe vp at the voice of the birde, and al the daughters of ſong ſhal be deafe. 5. The high things alſo ſhal feare, and they ſhal be afraid in the way, the almond tree ſhal flourish, the locuſt ſhal be fatted, and the capertree ſhal be deſtroyed: becauſe man ſhal goe into the houſe of his eternitie, and the mourners ſhal goe round about in the ſtreete. 6. Before the ſiluer cord be broken, and the golden head-band recurre, and the water-pot be broken vpon the fountaine, and the wheele be broken vpon the celterne, 7. and the duſt returne into his earth, from whence it was, and the ſpirit returne to God, who gaue it. 8. Vanitie of vanities, ſayd * Eccleſiaſtes, and al things vanitie. 9. And wheras Eccleſiaſtes was moſt wiſe, he taught the people, and declared the things that he had done: and ſearching forth made manie parables. 10. He ſought profitable words, and wrote words moſt right, and ful of truth. 11. The words of wiſemen are as pricks, and as nailes deeply ſtrucken in, which by the counſel of maiſters are giuen of one paſtour. 12. More then theſe my ſonne require not. Of making manie books there is no end: and often meditation is affliction of the fleſh. 13. (b) Let vs al heare together the end of ſpeaking. Feare God, and obſerue his commandments: for this is euerie man: 14. and al things that are done, God wil bring into iudgement for euerie * errour, whether it be good or euil.

THE ARGUMENT OF THE CANTICLE OF CANTICLES.

names writ and intitled books.

Salomon Pacifier King of Israel.

Ecclesiastes,
Preacher King of Ierusalem:

Idida, Beloued.

This canticle

All are not meete to read it.

SALOMON, called also Ecclesiastes, and Idida, according to these three names (as S. Ierom noeth) writte three books of three particular arguments, directed to three degrees of people, with three distinct titles, all tending to one end, the true seruice of God, which bringeth to eternal felicitie. In the first he teacheth the principles of good life, to flye from vices, and folow vertues: belonging to such as begin to obserue Gods law, wherein true wisdom consisteth: and this book is called the Prouerbs, or Parables, that is to say, Pitthe, brief, sententious precepts, of Salomon, which signifieth Pacificus, Peaceable, or Pacifier: the sunne of Dauid, King of Israel. In the second he exhorteth to contemne this world, shewing that true felicitie consisteth not in anie worldlie or temporal things, but in the eternal fruition of God, which is obtayned by keeping his commandments. And this book he intitlith: The words of Ecclesiastes, which is Concionator, Preacher, Sunne of Dauid, King of Ierusalem, because he there exhorteth such as haue made some progresse in vertues, called Proficients, signified by the inhabitants of the Metropolitan citie Ierusalem; whereas in the former he stiled himself King of Israel, proposing precepts meete for all the twelue tribes, and all vulgar men desirous and beginning to serue God: In both books, for more auctoritie sake, making mention of his godlie renowned father the Royal Prophet Dauid, with his owne title also of King. But in this third book he only expresseth his proper name Salomon, whom God singularly loued, wherof he was called Idida. Because this alone, without mention of father or King, was most conuenient for the Perfect, who not as seruants, or yong scholars are moued by feare of auctoritie, but as children are sweetly drawne by loue. And this he writ in verse, intitling it not simply a Canticle, but The Canticle of Canticles, as preeminent aboue other Canticles: The bridal song for the Marriage, to be solemnized between God himself and his glorious spouse. For though all holie Scriptures are the spiritual bread, and food of the faithful, yet all are not meate for all, at all seasons. Some parts are not for sinners, nor for beginners, nor for such as are yet in the way towards perfection, but only for the perfect. According to the Apostles doctrine: Milke is for childrent, hat are yet vnskilful of the word of iustice. But strong meate is for the perfect, them that by custom, haue their senses exercised to the discerning of good and euil. With what moderation therefore and humilitie, this Canticle of Gods perfect spouse may be read, the discrete wil consider, and not presume aboue their reach, but be wise with sobrietie. For here be very high and hidden Mysteries, as Origen teacheth in his learned Commentaries (which Saint Ierom translated into Latin and singularly commendeth) and so much harder to be rightly vnderstood, for that the fervent spiritual loue, of the inward man, reformed in scale, and perfected in spirite, is here uttered in the same usual words and termes, wherewith natural, wordlie, yea and carnal loue of the outward man old, Adam, corrupted by sinne, is commonly expressed: and are so much more dangerous to be mistaken, as we are more addicted to proper wil, & priuate iudgement, or subiect to carnal, or passionate motions. Wherefore it seemeth most meete to keepe the same order in reading these three books, which the authour wise Salomon observed in writing them. And which Philosophers also follow in their forme of discipline. For they first learne and teach Moral Philosophie, then Natural & lastly Metaphisike, which is their Diuinitie. As Salomon had given them example: first teaching precepts of good life and manners, in his Prouerbs: after, discoursing of natural things in Ecclesiastes, deduced thence a conclusiō which prophane Philosophers wel vnderstood not, to contemne this world: and finally commeth to high mystical Diuinitie, in this supereminent Canticle: written in an other stile, in verse, and in forme of a sacred Dialogue between Christ and his spouse, or as Origen calleth it, in forme of an * Enterlude, in respect of diuers speakers & actors, & of diuers persons, to whom the speeches are directed, and of whom they are uttered. For by the Spouse or Bridegrome, is not only vnderstood Christ as Man, but also as God, and the whole Blessed Trinitie; to whom manie prayers, praises and thanks are offered vp, and by whom manie benefits are giuen, praises returned, & promises made to his spouse. Likewise by the Spouse or Bride, the ancient faibers vnderstand three sorts of spouses: al espoused to Christ, and to God, to wit, his General Spouse, the whole Church of the old and new Testaments: of al that are, and shal be perfect, making one mystical bodie, free from sinne, without spot or wrinkle, sanctified in Christ. Also his special spouse, which is euerie particular holie soule. And his singular spouse, wich is most Blessed & most Immaculate Virgin Mother. This being the general summe of this excellent Canticle, remetting the reader for explication therof to the learned deuout Commentaries, both of ancient and late writers, we shal also endeauour to gather the same contents more particularly, not before the chapters, because we can not there so conueniently distinguish the same by verses, but in the margent: where we shal especially note the speakers, as seemeth more probable, of euerie parcel, according to the first sense (not hauing rowme for more) perteyning to the General spouse, the Catholike Church which is the great, and euerlasting holie Citie of God the eternal King.

Best method in learning is to begin with doctrine of good life, then studie to know natural things: and finally contemplate diuine mysteries.

SALOMONS
CANTICLE OF CANTICLES VVHICH
 IN HEBREVV IS CALLED
 SIR HASIRIM.

CHAP. I.

(a) The Church of the old testament desireth Christs comming in flesh: and the Christian Church prayeth for his comming in glorie.

(b) The Church outwardly afflicted, is inwardly fayre.

(c) Christ encourageth his spouse the Church.

(d) She meditateth of his Passion and Resurrection

(e) Christ praiseth his spouse

(f) She againe praiseth him;

(g) With thanks for her repose, and present consolation.

ET (a) h'im kisse me with the kisse of his mouth: because thy breasts are better then wine, 2. smelling fragrantly of the best ointments. Oile powred out is thy name: therefore haue yong mayds loued thee. 3. Draw me: we wil runne after thee in the odour of thine ointments. 4. The King hath brought me into his cellars: we wil reioyce & be glad in thee, mindful of thy breasts aboue wine: the righteous loue thee. 5. (b) I am blacke but beautiful, o ye daughters of Ierusalem, as the tabernacles of Cedar, as the skinnes of Salomon. 6. Doe not consider me that I am browne, because the sunne hath altered my colour: the sonnes of my mother haue fought against me, they haue made me a-keeper in the vineyards: my vineyard I haue not kept. 7. Shew me o thou, whom my soule loueth, where thou feedest, where thou lyeest in the midday, lest I begin to wader after the flocks of thy copaniōs. 8. (c) If thou know not thy selfe, o most fayrest among women, goe forth, and folow after the steps of the flocks, and feede thy kids by side the tabernacles of the pastours. 9. To my companie of horsmen, in the chariots of Pharaο, haue I likened thee, o my loue. 10. Thy checks are beautiful as the rurtel-doues, thy necke as iewels. 11. We wil make thee cheynes of gold, enameled with siluer. 12. (d) Whiles the King was at his repose, my spikenard gaue the odour thereof. 13. A bundle of myrrhe my beloued is to me, he shal abide between my breasts. 14. A clustre of cypre my loue is to me, in the vineyards of Engaddi. 15. (e) Behold thou art fayre, o my loue, behold thou art fayre, thine eyes are as of doues. 16. (f) Behold thou art fayre my beloued, & comelic: (g) our litle bed is flourishing. 17. The beames of our houses are of cedar, our rafters of cypresse trees.

Behold my beloued speaketh to me: (g) Arise, make hast my loue, my doue, my beautiful one, and come. 11. For winter is now past, the rayne is gone, and departed. 12. The flowers haue appeared in our land, the time of pruning is come: the voice of the turtle-doue is heard in our land: 13. the figge-tree hath brought forth her greene figges: the flourishing vineyards haue giuen their fauour. Arise my loue, my beautiful one, & come. 14. I wil rise, and wil goe about the citie: by the streets and high waies I wil seeke him whom my soule loueth: I haue sought him, and haue not found. 3. The watchmen which keepe the citie found me: Haue you seen him, whō my soule loueth? 4. When I had a litle passed by them, I found him whom my soule loueth: I held him: neither wil I let him goe, til I bring him into (b) my mothers house, and into the chamber of her that bare me. 5. HOw (a) beautiful art thou my loue, how beautiful art thou! thine (b) eyes as it were of doves, besides that which lyeth hid within. THE ARGUMENT OF THE BOOK OF WISDOM.

AS wel of the authour, as of the authoritie of this booke, have been diuers opinions among the learned. But in processe of time the first is probably discussed, the other is cleerly decided by the Church. For concerning the former doubt, Manie ancient Fathers aledge sentences of this Booke, as the sayings of Salomon. Namely S. Ireneus (apud Eusebium, lib. 5. c. 8. Hist.) S. Clement of Alexandria, li. 5. & 6. Stromat. Origen. ho. 12. in Leuit. & lib. 8. in Epist. ad Rom. S. Athanasius in Synopsi, & Or. 2. cont. Arrian. S. Basil. li. 5. con. Euno-mianos. S. Epiphanius heresi. 67. S. Gregorie Nazianzen. lib. de Fide. S. Gregorie Nissen. in Testimonijs ex vet. Testam. cap. de Natiuitate ex Virgine. S. Christof.
 hom. 33. & 34. in Mat. S. Cyril of Alexandria li. 10. c. 4. Also S. Cyprian li. de exhortat. Martyrum. c. 12. & li. 3. c. 59. ad Quirin. & li. de Mortalitate. S. Hila-rie in Psal. 127. S. Ambrose; li. de Salomone. c. 1. and diuers others suppose Salomon to be authour of this booke. To whom likewise some of them ascribe the booke of Ecclesiasticus. But S. Ierom Praefatione in libros Salomonis testifieth that some ancient writers affirme this booke to be writien by Philo a Iew, and the other by Iesus the sonne of Sirach. And S. Augustin very plainly (li. 17. c. 20. de ciuit.)
 saith, custome preuailed, that the bookes of Wisdom, & Ecclesiasticus, for some similitude of speach are called Salomons: but the more learned assuredly iudge that they are not his. What then shal we say, seeing so manie other ancient learned Doctours cite the as his. The answer is easie, and sufficiently insnuated by S. Augustin, that these two bookes being like vnto the other three, which are Salomons, were also called his. Wherto we may adde a like example in the two first bookes of Kings, which are called the bookes of Samuel, though he writ not al the first, nor anie part of the second. Morcouer al these fiae are called by one general. title Sapiential bookes. In so much that the Church readeth in the sacred Office before al Epistles, taken out of anie of these fiae bookes, not Lectio Prouerborum, or Ecclesiastice, &c. but stil, Lectio libri Sapientie. The solution therfore is very probable, that this booke of wisdom was written by Philo Iudeus.
 not he that liued after Christ, but an other of the same name, nere two hundred yeares before. And Ecclesiasticus by Iesus the sonne of Sirach. Who not only imitated Salomon, but also compiled their bookes, for most part of Salomons sentences, conserued til their times by tradition, or in separated scoles of papers, yea they so vster some sentences in his person as if himself had written them. As touching the auctoritie of these two bookes, and some others, it is eident that the Iewes refuse them. And therfore manie ancient Fathers writing against them, spared sometimes to vrge such bookes as they knew would be reiected. Especially hauing abundant testimonies of other holie Scriptures, for deciding matters of faith against them. Even as our Saviour himself proved the Resurrection of the dead against the Sadducees out of the books of Moses, which they confessed for Canonical Scripture, denying other parts, where the same point might otherwise have been more evidently shewed. And so S. Ierom in respect of the Iewes saide these book were not Canonical. Neuertheles he did often alleadg testimonies of them, as of other diuine Scriptures: sometimes with this parenthesis (si cui tamen placet librum recipere) in cap. 8. & 12. Zacharia: other times, especially in his last writings, absolutely without such restriction, as in cap. 1. & 56. Isaia, & in 18. Ieremia. Where he professeth to alleadg none but Canonical Scripture. As for al the other ancient fathers here aboue mentioned, ascribing this book to Salomon, and manie others cited by Doctor Iodocus Coccius (To. 1. The. ser. li. 6. art. 9.) they make no doubt at al. but that it is Canonical Scripture, as appeareth by their expresse termes, Diuine Scripture, Diuine word, Sacred letters, Prophetical saying, the Holy Ghost faith, & the like. Finally, as wel ancient General councels, namely that of Chartage. an. D. 419. with others, as the later of Florence and Trent, haue declared this book to be Canonical. And that conformably to the most ancient and learned Fathers: as S. Augustin, not only iudgeth himself, but also plainly testifieth (li. de Predestinat. sanct. c. 14.) saying: The sentence of the book of wisdom ought not to be reiected (by certaine inclining to Pelagianisme) which hath been so long publikely read in the Church of Christ, and receiued of al-Christians, Byshops, and others, cuen to the last of the Laitie, Penitents, and Catecumes (cum ueneratione diuina auctoritatis.) with ueneratio of diuine authoritie. Which also the excellent writers, next to the Apostles times, alleadging for witnes (nihil se adhibere, nisi diuinum testimonium crediderunt) thought they alleadged nothing but diuine testimonie.

The contents.

Diuided into three parts.

The summe and contents of this book is an Instruction and Exhortation to Kings and al Magistrates, to minister iustice in the comonwealth, teaching al sortes of Vertues vnder the general names of Iustice & wisdom. With frequent Prophecies of Christs Comming, Passion, Resurrection, & other Christian Mysteries. Al maybe commodiously diuided into three parts. In the six first chapters, the authour admonisheth al Superiours to loue and exercise iustice and wisdom. In the next three, he teacheth that Wisdom proceedeth only from God, & is procured by prayer & good life. In the other ten chapters, he sheweth the excellent effects, and vtilitie of wisdom and iustice, Superiours are admonished to doe iustice, sincerely seeking God: 7. who being euery-where seeth al things. 11. Murmuration, detraction, and lying bring to perdition. 13. God created men to liue, but they brought death vpon themselves.

O V E iustice, you that iudge the earth. Thinke of our Lord in goodnes, and in simplicitie of hart seeke him: 2. because he is found of them that tempt him not: and he appeareth to them that haue faith in him. 3. For (a) peruerse cogitations seperate from God: and proued power chasteneth the vnwise: 4. because wisdom wii not enter into a malicious soule, nor dwel in a bodie subiect to sinnes. 5. For the Holie Ghost of discipline wil flye from him that feyneth, and wil withdraw himselfe from the cogitations that are without vnderstanding, and he shal be chastened of iniquitie ensuing. 6. For the spirit of wisdom is gentle, and wil not deliuer (b) the curser from his lips: because God is wintnes of his reynes, and he is a true searcher of his hart, and an hearer of his tong. 7. Because the Spirit of our Lord hath replenished the whole world: and that which contayneth al things, hath the knowledge of voice. 8. For this cause he that speaketh vniuit things, can not be hid, neither shal the chastising iudgement passe him. 9. For in the cogitations of the impious there shal be examination: and the hearing of his workes shal come to God, to the chastising of his iniquities. 10. Because the eare of ielousie heareth al things, and the tumult of murmurings shal not be hid. 11. Keep your selues therefore from murmuring, which profiteth nothing, and refraine your tong from detraction, because an obscure speaeh shal not passe in vaine: and the mouth that lyeth, killeth the soule. 12. (c) Zeale not death in the error of your life, neither procure ye perdition by the workes of your hands. 13. Because God made not death, neither doth he reioyce in the perdition of the liuing. 14. For he created al things to be: and he made the nations of the earth to health: and (d) there is no medicine of destruction in them,

Which being extinguished, our bodie shal be ashes, and the spirit shal be powred abroad as soft ayre, and our life shal passe as the trace of a cloud, and shal be dissolued as a mist, which is driuen away by the beames of the sunne, and oppressed with the heate therof: 4. and our name in time shal be forgotten, and no man shal haue remembrance of our workes. 5. For our time is the passing of a shadow, and there is no returne of our end: because it is sealed, and no man returneth. 6. (b) Come therefore, and let vs enioy the good things that are, and let vs quickly vse the creature as in youth. 7. Let vs fill our seruies with precious wine, and oynments: and let not the flowre of the time passe vs. 8. Let vs crowne our selues with roses, before they wither: let there be no medow, which our riote shal not passe through. 9. Let none of vs be exempted from our riotousnes: euerie-where let vs leaue signes of ioy: because this is our portiō, and this our lot. 10. Let vs (c) oppresse the poore iust man, and not spare the widow, nor reuerence the old mans grey-head of long time. 11. But let our strength be the law of iustice: for that which is weake, is found vnprofitable. 12. (d) Let vs therefore circumuent the iust, because he is vnprofitable to vs, and he is contrarie to our workes, and reprochfully obiecteth vnto vs the finnes of the law, and defameth in vs the finnes of our discipline. 13. He boalteth that he hath the knowledge of God, and nameth himselfe the sonne of God. 14. He is made vnto vs to the defaming of our cogitations. 15. He is grieuous vnto vs euen to behold, because his life is vnlike to others. & his wayes are changed. 16. We are esteemed of him as triflers, and he absteyneth from our wayes as frō vncleannes, and he preferreth the later ends of the iust, and glorieth that he hath God for his father. 17. Let vs see therefore if his words be true, and let vs proue what things shal come to him, and we

By contumelie and torment let vs examine him, that we may know his reuerence, and proue his patience. 20. To a most shameful death let vs condemne him: for there shal be respect had vnto him by his wordes. 21. These things haue they thought, and haue erred: for their malice hath blinded them. 22. C H A P. III.

The iust condemned by the wicked, and proued by tentations are happie: 10. and the wicked vnhappie. 12. Chastise shal be rewarded, & adulterous generations shal not prosper.

56. v. 4.

BUT (a) the soules of the iust are in the hand of God, and the torment of death shal not touch them. 2. (b) They seemed in the eies of the vnwise to die: and their decease was counted affliction: 3. and that which with vs is the way, is destruction: but they are in peace. 4. And though before men they suffered torments, their hope is full of immortalie. 5. Vexed in few things, in many they shal be wel disposed of: because God hath tempted them, and hath found them worthie of himselfe. 6. As gold in the furnace he hath proued them, and as an host of holocaust he hath receiued them, & in time there shal be respect of them. 7. The iust shal shine, and as sparkes in a place of reeds they shal runne abroad. 8. They (c) shal iudge nations, & haue dominion ouer peoples, and their Lord shal reigne for euer. 9. They that trust in him, shal vnderstand truth: & the faithful in loue shal rest in him: because rest and peace is to his elect. 10. But the impious according to the things which they haue thought, shal haue correction: which haue neglected the iust, & haue reuolted from our Lord. 11. For he that reiecteth wisdom and discipline, is vnhappie: and their hope is vaine, and labours without fruit, & their workes vnprofitable. 12. Their (d) wiues are sensles, and their children most wicked. 13. Cursed is their creature: because happie is the barren woman: and the vndefiled, which hath not knowen bed in sinne, she shal haue fruit in visitatiō of holie soules: 14. and * the eunuch that hath not wrought iniquitie with his hands, nor thought most wicked things against God: for the chosen guitt of faith shal be giuen to him, and a most acceptable lot in the tēple of God. 15. For

(a) Temporal death of the iust, is the way to eternal life. Where damnation (called here the torment of death) shal not touch them.
(b) For albeit Martyrs secme in the eyes of the vnwise to dyc, or to be extinguished, they passe indeed into eternal, and vnspokeable glorie.
(c) Al the iust shal approue Gods iudgemēt condemning the wicked.
(d) Literally is vnderstood, that the wiues of adulterers, or if a becomee adulteresses, & their children wicked.

Morally, their sensuality & all their workes are wholly of good labour there is glorious fruit, and the roote of wisdom which falleth not. 16. But the children of adulterers shal be in consummation, and the seede of the vnlawful bed shal be destroyed. 17. And if certes they be of long life, they shal be reputed for nothing, & their last old-age shal be without honour. 18. And if they dye quickly they shal haue no hope, nor speach of comfort in the day of acknowledging. 19. For of a wicked nation the ends are cruel.

CHAP. IIII.

Great difference between chaste and adulterous generations. 7. Speedier death of the iust is recompensed by Gods providence, 19. but the wicked incurre greater damnation by living long.

(a) Chastitie of the bodie is a singular great vertue, & spiritual chastitie of true faith and religion is greater, and more generally commended, as the roote and foundatiō of al vertues. For without faith it is vnpossible to please God.
(b) When soeuer the iust dieth it is profitable for him: & dying yong his immaculate life is more commendable then old age in the wicked.
v. 16.

How beautiful is (a) the chaste generation with glorie! for the memorie therof is immortal: because it is knowen both with God and with mē. 2. When it is presēt, they imitate it, and they desire it when it hath withdrawen it-self, and it triumpheth crowned for euer, winning the reward of vndefied conflicts. 3. But the multitude of the impious that hath manie children, shal not be profitable, and bastarde plants shal not take deepe roote, nor lay sure foundatiō. 4. And if in the boughes for a time they shal spring being weakly set, they shal be moued of the winde, and by the vehemencie of the winds they shal be rooted out. 5. For the vnperfect boughes shal be broken, and their fruits shal be vnprofitable, and sowe to eate, and meete for nothing. 6. For the children that be borne of wicked sleeps, are witnesses of wickednes against the parents in their examination. 7. But (b) the iust if he be preuented with death, shal be in a place of refreshing. 8. For venerable old age is not that of long time, nor accounted by the number of yeares: but the vnderstanding of a man are grey haire: 9. and an immaculate life is old age. 10. Pleasing God he is made beloued, and liuing among sinners he was translated. 11. " He was taken away lest malice should change his vnderstanding, or lest anie guile might deceiue his soule. 12. For the bewitching of vanitie obscureth good things, and the inconstancie of concupiscēce peruerteth the vnderstanding that is without malice. 13. Being consummate in short space he fulfilled much time: 14. for his soule pleased God: for this cause he hastned to bring him out of the middes of iniquities: but the peoples that are seeing, and not vnderstanding, nor putting such things in their harts: 15. that the grace of God, and mercie is toward his saints, and respect toward his elect. 16. But the iust dead condemneth the impious alieue, and youth soone ended, the long life of the vniust. 17. For they shal see the end of the wise, and shal not vnderstand what God hath thought of him, and why our Lord hath fensed him. 18. For they shal see and shal contemne him: but our Lord shal laugh them to scorn, 19. and they shal fall after this without honour, and in contumelie among the dead for euer: because he shal breake them puffed vp (c) without voice, and shal remoue them from the foundations, and they shal be made desolare vnto the highest degree: and shal be mourning, and the memorie of them shal perish. 20. They shal come feareful in cogitation of their finnes, and their iniquities on the contrarie shal conuince them.

(c) The damned shal be without al excuse vtterly confounded in their owne consciences.

11. He was taken away.) By this place S. Augustin proueth that such as died in good state, might haue fallen into wickednes, if they had liued longer: and therefore it was a benefit to them to dye sooner. And that it is neuertheless certaine, that God both knew the possibilitie that such might, yea would haue sinned, if they had liued longer, and also knew that they should die sooner, and so escape that danger. Which assured foreknowledge of al things that shal be, or may be, standeth wel with mans free-wil: against certaine that inclined to Pelagianisme, attributing too much to mans free-wil, and detracting from Gods foreknowledge and prouidence. Which he prouing by this place, his aduersaries excepted against the auctoritie of this booke, and therefore he also proueth that it is Canonical Scripture. li. i. de Predest. Sanct. ch. 14.

In the general iudgement, the wicked seeing the iust, whom they had contemned, to be in great honour, shal bewaile their owne miserie, 9. considering that their pleasure was short, 16. and the roy of the Blessed shal be for euer. 18. God wil arme himself, and al creatures, to punish the impious.

HEN shal the iust stand in great constancie against those that haue afflicted them, and (a) taken away their labours. 2. They seeing shal be troubled with horrible feare, and shal meruel at the sodainnes of vnexpected saluation, 3. saying within themselves, (b) repenting, and sighing for anguish of spirit: These are they, whom we nau sometime in derision, and in a parable of reproch. 4. We senselesse esteemed their life madnes, and their end without honour. 5. Behold how they are counted among the children of God, and their lot is among the saints. 6. We therefore haue erred from the way of truth, and the light of iustice hath not shined to vs, and the sunne of vnderstanding rose not to vs. 7. We are wearied in the way of iniquitie and perdition,

(a) Wicked men in their false conceits iudge the troubles of the iust to be vaine & fruitles. (b) Repentance of the damned is only for the losse & paine wherinto they are fallen, not of loue towards God, or vertue, nor of hate towards me, & therefore is fruitles bringing no comfort nor helpe at al, but euerlasting torment and anguish of mind.

(c) For the certaintie of things that shal be, Prophets doe very often speake in the preference, of things to come, as if they were already past.
(d) As the ioy of the blessed, so cōtrariwise the miserie of the damned is meruelous great, & for euer vchangeable.

and haue walked hard wayes, but the way of Lord we haue not knowen. 8. What hath pride profited vs? or what commodity hath the vaunting of riches brought to vs? 9. All those things are passed away as a shadow, and as a messenger running before, 10. and as a ship, that passeth through the surging waters: wherof, when it is past, the trace can not be found nor the path of that ships keele in the waues: 11. or as a bird, that flyeth through in the ayre, of which there is no token can be found of her passage, but only a sound of the wings beating the light winde: and by vehemence of going cutting the ayre, mouing the wings she is flowne through, and afterward there is no signe found of her way: 12. or as when an arrow is shot forth to a set marke, the diuided ayre is forthwith closed in it-self againe, so that the passage therof is not knowen: 13. so we also being borne forthwith cealed to be: and of vertue certes haue been able to leaue no signe: but in our naughtines we are consumed. 14. Such things (c) sayd they in hel, which sinned: 15. because the hope of the impious is as dust, which is taken away with the winde: and as a thinne froth, which is disperfed by the storme: and as smōke that is scatered abroad by the winde: and as the memorie of a ghest of one day that passeth. 16. But the iust shal liue for euer, and their reward is with our Lord, and cogitation of them with the Highest. 17. Therefore shal they receiue a Kingdom of honour, & a crowne of beautie at the hand of our Lord: because with his right hand he wil couer them, and within his holie arme he wil defend them. 18. And (d) his zeale wil take armour, and he wil arme the creature to the reuenge of the enemies. 19. He wil put on iustice for a brest-plate, & wil take sincere iudgement for an helmet: 20. he wil take equitie for an inuincible shielde: 21. and he wil sharpen fierce wrath for a speare, & the round world shal fight with him against the senselesse. 22. The shots of lightnings shal goe directly, & as it were from a bow of the clouds wel bent they shal be cast forth, and shal light on a certaine place. 23. And from rooked wrath shal thicke haile-stones be cast, the water of the sea shal rage against them, and the riuers shal runne together roughly. 24. A spirit of power shal stand against them, and as a hurlewinde shal diuide them: and their iniquitie shal bring al the land to a desert, and naughtines shal ouerthrow the seats of the mightie.

Kings and al Magistrates are againe admonished to exercise iustice: 7. otherwise they shal be more grieuously punished. 13. Wisdom may easely be found 18. by those that sincerely desire it. 22. And is very profitable (25. excepting the enuious, or ill disposed) 26. both to Prince and people.

*Ecc'e. 9.

v. 1.*

WISDOM is better then strength : and a wise man then a strong. 2. Hearc therfore ye Kings, & vnderstand, learne ye iudges of the ends of the earth. 3. Giue care ye that rule multitudes, and that please your selues in multitudes of nations: 4. because the (a) power is given you of our Lord, and strength by the Higheft, who wil examine your workes, and search your cogitations: 5. because when you were the ministers of his Kingdom, you iudged not rightly, nor kept the law of iustice, nor haue walked according to the wil of God. 6. Horribly and quickly wil he appeare to you: because most seure iudgement shal be done on them, that beare rule. 7. For to the litle one mercie is granted: but (b) the mightie shal mightily suffer torments. 8. For God wil not except any mans person, neither wil feare the greatnes of any man: because he made the litle and the great, & he hath equally care of al. 9. But to the stronger more strong torment is imminent. 10. To you therfore ô Kings are these my words, that you may learne wisdom, and not fal. 11. For they that haue kept iust things iustly, shal be iustified: and they that haue learned these things, shal find what they may answer. 12. Couet ye therfore my words, and loue them, and you shal haue discipline. 13. Wisdom is cleere, and such as neuer fadeth, and is easely seen of them that loue her, and is found of them that seeke her. 14. She preuenteth them that couet her, that she first may shew herself vnto them. 15. He that awaketh early to her, shal not labour: for he shal find her sitting at her doores. 16. To thinke therfore of her, is perfect vnderstanding: and he that watcheth for her, shal quickly be secure. 17. Because she goeth about seeking them that be worthie of her, and in the wayes she wil shew herself to them cheerfully, and in al prouidence she wil meere them. 18. For (c) the beginning of her is the most true desire of discipline. 19. The care therfore of discipline, is loue: and loue is keeping of her lawes: and the keeping of the lawes, is the consummation of incorruption: 20. and incorruption maketh to be next to God. 21. Therefore the desire of wisdom leadeth to the euerlasting Kingdom. 22. If therfore you be delighted with thrones, and with scepters, oye Kings of the people, loue wisdom, that you may reigne for euer. 23. Loue the light of wisdom al ye that beare rule ouer peoples. 24. But what wisdom is, and how she was made, I wil declare: and I wil not

(a) Al power is from God: & therfore to be respected, though the magistrates sometimes abuse their authoritie.
(b) As euerie ones charge is more or lesse, so his account is easier or harder, and the punishment (if he offend) smaller or greater. S. Gre. no. 9. in Euang.

(c) Wisdom is attained by this gradation, and so from first to last, a resolute desire ioyneth faithful soules to God, v. 22.
